Council to Explore Possible Sharing Of Theater by Cable TV, Arts Group

by Leta Mach

Two recurring issues, cable TV and the Greenbelt Cultural Arts Center, merged at council's January 21 session. Mayor Gil Weidenfeld explained: "One of the things that prompted us to move ahead (with cable TV) is the preservation of the theater." It has been suggested that a cable TV company could use the old theater on a shared basis with a Cultural Arts Center. "This would be a useful reward to the city for granting a franchise," Councilman Charles Schwan felt.

Councilman Thomas White cautioned that the granting of a cable TV franchise be done properly. He suggested that council first agree on the conditions of a franchise. He felt the shared use of the theater with the cultural arts center would be one of several conditions. Next council should hold a public hearing on those conditions and finally invite cable TV companies, including those that have already appeared before council to bid on the franchise.

Because of the critical time element for Greenbelt Cultural Arts Center, Inc. (GCACI), others felt it would be appropriate preliminarily to ask those companies which have appeared before council about the feasibility of the shared use of the theater. Councilman Richard Castaldi warned that the theater owner, George Christacos, should also be informed, to forestall any other possible theater tenants. Council directed city staff to draw up a formal approach for granting a franchise and to contact cable TV companies.

Konrad Herling gave an update on the Cultural Center. He told council that State Senator Edward Conroy, Delegates Gerald Devlin, Charles Ryan, Joan Pitkin and Prince Georges County Councilman Paris Glendening were given a presentation and tour. All felt a cultural arts center was a good idea, he added.

The group has a month to month lease for the theater and will be arranging a calendar of events. Research will soon begin at a foundation library for possible funding. GCACI also plans to submit a request for funding in next year's recreation department budget.

Council received a Park and Recreation Advisory Board report recommending the city support GCACI, especially in finding grants for possible funding. Council unanimously passed motions instructing city staff to help GCACI with grants and licenses and permits if necessary, but hoped individuals would volunteer specialized services to the group.

At its February 4 meeting City Manager James Giese informed council that there had been, as yet, no response about the shared use of the theater from the cable TV companies contacted. A monkey wrench has been thrown into the plans, he added, the Greenbelt Credit Union wants to rent the theater lobby.

Although it is not under a lease deadline, the credit union would like to relocate soon because of space requirements. Actually, Giese explained, if it were available, the credit union would prefer a location with even more space. They've had their eye on the post office.

Giese said that he understood Greenbelt Cooperative Inc. would like to remodel, using the present credit union space.

With the theater lobby leased, a new entrance might have to be constructed in the side of the building near the cleaners.

In response, council felt it was important to meet soon with Christacos. A meeting was set for February 12. White felt there was "a huge game of musical chairs in the center," and hoped the city could play a role in helping center businesses "meet each other's needs synergistically."

Co-op Offers Lower Level Space For Possible Postal Service Use

by Leta Mach

Greenbelt Co-operative, Inc., (Co-op) has offered space on the lower floor of its building for a post office, City Manager James Giese informed Council at its January 21 regular session.

The space would come in part from a reduction in the size of the bowling alley and archery range, which is acceptable to the operator. An entrance to the postal facility could be made in the side of the building facing the lower parking lot. People shopping in the center mall would have to go down a flight of steps to reach the post office. The post office has been informed, but has not yet responded to the suggestion. Giese felt the site might not satisfy the postal service's desire for exclusive parking and ownership instead of tenancy.

Concerned about the postal facility, Greenbelt resident Bill Wilkerson gave council a written list of possible sites for a distribution center along Greenbelt Road. The nine locations all had good access, in some cases near a traffic light. Although he did not check on "the cost, availability, or other constraints that the United States Postal Service (USPS) may have," Wilkerson, a Greenbelt resident, did feel the sites "are worthy of future investigation by the city and USPS officials." Councilman Richard Castaldi thanked Wilkerson for his efforts and suggested these and other sites be considered and ranked at a work session before being sent to Gene Fleming, Maryland/DC District Manager of the postal service. Mayor Gil Weidenfeld added that the report for the postal service should also include the location and amount of future commercial development in Greenbelt. Castaldi suggested contacting the Prince Georges Program Planning and Economic Development office for the information.

Of the possible sites Wilkerson listed, several have already been suggested to the postal service by city council. Last spring council suggested the following possible sites: 1) unsubdivided land at Beltway Plaza, 2) property at the end of Hanover Parkway outside of city limits, 3) part of parcel 15 owned by Consolidated Syndicates between the American Legion and the Beltway, 4) property near Edmonston Rd. and Kenilworth Ave. extended from either the farm or private lands.

In addition to these privately owned lands, the Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission last spring sent the postal service a list of publicly-owned vacant land in the Greenbelt area. Of these only one site, the East Greenbelt Elementary-Junior-Senior High School site located on parcel 2, has been declared surplus. Council members feared that location would be inaccessible except by increasing traffic in a residential area.

At its February 4 meeting Weidenfeld explained that he was reluctant to change the city's position with only three members present. Nevertheless, he wanted "to put the ball in the court." Councilman Thomas White responded by moving that council send the post office the four sites it suggested last spring and information on commercial developments in the city. Even though the motion passed 2-1, it failed because any action of council requires three votes.

Castaldi offered a counter motion that council's four sites and the seven additional ones offered by Wilkerson be sent to the postal service. "We should send everything (that we think is more acceptable) than Parkway," he said. That motion failed for lack of a second. The following night council (Schwan absent) agreed to forward 6 sites from Wilkerson's list - essentially the same 4 sites council had already agreed on plus two east of the city limits on Greenbelt Road.

VOLK SEEKS CITY'S AID ON GHI CAPITAL IMPROVEMENT PROJECT

by Mary Lou Williamson

Donald Volk, president of Greenbelt Homes, Inc., appeared before the City Council Monday, February 4, to request low-cost revenue-bond financing for GHI's member-approved Capital Improvement Project. Under the same bond issue, GHI would also finance the conversion of its expensive oil heating system and some additional work now planned for the brick homes. The bond issue would also refinance outstanding capital improvement borrowing.

"We need to get the wheels in motion," Volk told the council. Two factors are forcing GHI to push the city for an early commitment on the bond issue: (1) The GHI board hopes that conversion to a more efficient and therefore less costly heating system can be started by April or May and completed by the next heating season. (2) HUD is now asking GHI to show within 60 days a commitment for financing its capital improvement project prior to settlement with HUD on its $6.4 million rehabilitation loan.

Revenue Bonds

Approved last September by Greenbelt's electorate in a 2 to 1 vote, the new amendment to the city charter enables the city to issue low-interest rate revenue bonds. This special tool, low-cost tax-exempt city bonds, can be used to finance rehabilitation and energy conservation projects for homes and businesses throughout the city at no cost to the taxpayer. GHI's is the first request the city has received.

GHI's Program

GHI members last August overwhelmingly approved the $5.2 million capital improvement project, along with the $6.4 million rehabilitation program which will be financed at 3% interest through HUD. Rehabilitation will include replacement windows (all older homes), insulation and new siding (frames and masonry); the capital improvements include insulation of crawl spaces, electrical heavy-up and rewiring.

Heating Conversion

In a special meeting Friday, February 1, the GHI board formalized its intent to convert to an alternate heating system utilizing city revenue bonds.

"I am not sure that electricity is the long range way to go," cautioned board member James Smith, "but it is an attractive alternative to what we have now. Our best guess is that an electric system would cost half as much to operate as the present system." The board hopes to present information on various alternatives—gas, electric baseboard, electric radiant, other—for membership decision as soon as possible.

Director Wayne Williams was concerned about going to the council before going to the membership. "We have to do this now or the conversion is lost for the next heating season" was the response he received. In fact, that was the concern of an ad hoc committee which had been studying conversion.

"Our comptroller is now preparing a five-year budget and the staff engineer is working up the cost figures for heating and the additional work to be done on the brick homes," deputy general manager Ken Kopstein told the board. "We know council will want to review our plans in detail to be assured of GHI's financial ability to repay the loan."

City council and the GHI board met in a work session Tuesday to determine where to go next, what information is needed and how to proceed.

Barber Shop Moves

by Corinne Comulada

The barber shop is getting a new location—a former storeroom of the variety store.

Pat Griffin, the barber and a Greenbelter for 33 years, is enthusiastic about the new quarters, which should be ready next week, when the plumbing is installed. The barber shop has been at its present location above High's dairy store for three years. Before that it was in what is now Maria's Beauty Shop.

The new location will offer an advantage for handicapped patrons who found negotiating the steps to the second floor almost impossible. The new shop will also have the benefit of lots of natural light.

Live Theater At the Utopia

By Angela Schreiber, Director
 Live theater will once again grace the stage of the Utopia Theater in Greenbelt. The Greenbelt Cultural Arts Center will bring "Night Watch" by Lucille Fletcher to this community the last two weekends in March. There will be six performances: March 22, 23 and 25; March 29-31. Heralded as one of the greatest hits on the Broadway stage in 1972, "Night Watch" was later filmed with Elizabeth Taylor heading an all star cast. It promises an evening of suspense to our Theatre goers. Many will remember "Sorry, Wrong Number" as it was performed for television by Barbara Stanwyck. "Night Watch" is by the same author.

Our show will be performed, produced and directed by people from the community. While auditions were held earlier this week anyone else interested in acting may call 345-3916. Also still needed are people who can wield a hammer, paint, have knowledge of electricity, interior decorating, makeup or hairstyling. For those who have not worked on stage sets before or with stage lighting, the Greenbelt Players will provide the know-how.

GHI NOTES

Several members of GHI are now receiving help with their heating costs. Up to $250 is available to members of GHI, as well as others who meet the income criteria. Those members of GHI who qualify and apply for the Federal assistance will receive a reduction in their monthly charges in the amount they have been awarded.

Members should contact GHI to obtain the necessary statement on the amount the member pays in fuel costs, and then file an application with the Energy Crisis Assistance Program in the County Services Building in Hyattsville. The office is open from 8:30-5 p.m., Monday-Friday, phone 699-2632. The director is Greenbelter Hal Silvers who is also Director of the county's Office of Emergency Preparedness.

The Ad Hoc Committee on conversion to electric heat will meet Friday, February 8, in the GHI Board Room at 8 p.m. Interested members are invited. Other meetings for the week: Monday, Feb. 11, Aesthetics and Environment; Tues. and Wed., Feb. 12 and 13, Long Range Planning and Engineering and Maintenance; Thurs., Feb. 14, Board.

Draft Demonstration

The Greenbelt Peace Committee is participating in a metropolitan area-wide demonstration against registration and the draft Saturday, February 9 at 12 noon in Lafayette Park. Organized by a coalition of concerned organizations, attendees will include delegations from American and George Washington Universities, the University of the District of Columbia, the University of Maryland and area residents. The demonstrators will march from Lafayette Park to Gallery Place, near Selective Service Headquarters. Interested Greenbelt residents who need a ride or more information may call Esther Webb - 474-6890.

Invitation to Bike Racers

by Bill Cornett

Bicycle races at Greenbelt Park got off to an excellent start on Sunday, Feb. 3 with over 60 racers, some from as far away as Pennsylvania, braving the clear, cold weather to find out how out of shape they were after the winter layoff.

There were five categories of races, including two short novice races of three and six miles for beginners. Although it helps to have a good, light ten-speed racing bike, it is not entirely necessary. There was even one competitor with a souped-up three-speed! There is a free but mandatory safety inspection before each race.

Potential competitors may like to know that novices ran about 4 minutes-30 seconds or faster for the 1.5 mile circuit around the north end of the park. The class A riders (the highest category) averaged under four minutes a lap for nine laps. The races will probably lengthen as the weather gets warmer.

You don't have to win to have fun. Just racing along with a pack of cyclists can be exhilarating. To get in shape, it is recommended that you ride at least ten to twenty miles a day for two weeks before starting to race. Running will also help get you in shape, but is no substitute.

Cycling is an endurance sport, where you are given a chance to compete against others of your own ability. Speed, quick reflexes, and a sharp grasp of tactics are also helpful.

If this sounds like the sport for you, show up one Sunday morning in Greenbelt Park at 10 a.m., or call Larry Black at 864-2211 for more information.

On to OPEC

To the Editor:

To those members who believe that by voting down proposed increases in monthly charges, however justified, we can make costs go away, I urge their attendance and action at the public meeting to be held by the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission at 4017 Hamilton Street, Hyattsville, Tuesday, Feb. 12 at 8 p.m.

The News Review reports that the Commission is holding a public hearing to discuss the proposed WSSC operating and capital budget, which was approved January 16. The budget includes a projected need for a 21% increase in water rates and a 35% increase in sewer usage rates for implementation April 1. If approved, of course, these rates would be applicable to GHI members. Should we not deny them the proposed increase? Let's tell them to improve the efficiency of operations and to cut their staff, but no increase in rates. Then on to OPEC.

Greenbelt Grab-bag

by PUNCHIN' JUDY

Cousin Zachary greeted me boisterously when I went to visit him. "Hey, hey, gal! haven't seen you this year. How are the eighties treating you?"

"I can hardly believe it's 1980," I told him. "Just think—a new decade."

"Are you sure it's a new decade?" he asked. "If the years started with one then this decade would start with 1981 and the century with 2001. I tend to frequently think about that."

"Not only do you split hairs but also infinitives," I pointed out.

"Speaking of grammar, how is the old lady," he inquired.

"Grandma is fine," I said. "She is looking forward to seeing Halley's Comet in 1985. Maybe it will appear on her 75th birthday. She's planning to climb on to the roof to view it."

Zach looked gloomy. "They'll both be a sight, if she's going to sit on her solar panels. But anyway, we've got to get through 1984 first."

"I've got a medicine bottle that says 'Do not take after Dec. 1983'. Do you think that means anything?" I asked.

"Could be," he said. "I bought some film that expires in 1984. If I take pictures with it, I wonder if it will take a picture of me."

"Depends on whether Big Brother Leica you," I suggested.

"I don't know about Big Brother," he said, "But if you don't watch it, Big Cousin will see to it that you never make it through the eighties."

He ushered me to the door. "Come back when you can't stay so long," he shouted after me. "Maybe 1990."

What I have to go through just to write a column!

Free Income Tax Help

Interested individuals should bring along the tax forms received in the mail, wage earnings and interest statements, any other relevant information concerning income and expenses, and a copy of last year's tax return if possible.

GVFD&RS 608 78

During the past week, members of the Greenbelt Volunteer Fire Department and Rescue Squad, Inc. responded to 14 fire calls, and 17 ambulance calls.

This past Saturday units responded to Green Ridge House for a flooding condition. Flooding from a broken pipe on the third floor caused the ceiling to collapse. Units remained on the scene for two and a half hours.

Deputy Chief William Holland notes that if you listen to a fire department radio, you would undoubtedly hear "food on the stove." Food left simmering on the stove for just a little while can become a raging inferno if forgotten.

Frequently, fires caused by food on the stove originate when you go to bed or leave for work. Take the time to check your stove. Turn all burners off when not in use.

When cooking, always watch combustible materials such as pot holders or dish towels. The use of flour near open flames is especially dangerous because of explosive properties.

Golden Age Club

The Greenbelt Golden Agers will celebrate Valentine's Day with a party at the Youth Center, Wednesday, Feb. 13 at 12 noon. Members should bring a sandwich or light lunch. Refreshments will also be served, including ice cream and cake. Rosemary Lombardi is in charge and said there might be some surprises. Her telephone is 345-1413.

Special guest at the January 30 meeting was Albert Moreland, affiliated with the Loyal Order of Moose Lodge. Moreland addressed the group, supplying information on the Vial of Life Program and its benefits, especially to senior citizens.

Five new members were welcomed into the club.

What's Showing At the Utopia?

by Gus Weiland

The Greenbelt Cultural Arts Center has added to its music programs and Saturday night coffee houses with a Thursday Fine Arts Film series and a Friday/Saturday classic film series. All films begin at 8 p.m.

This Thursday's film will be The Story of Adele H, a sensitively told story based on the life of Victor Hugo's youngest daughter and her widely known, unrelenting love for a British lieutenant. A young woman is portrayed as she heads for destruction, fixing her attention totally on one man.

Shown on Friday and Saturday will be the third classic film. A really scary flick, The Haunting stars two actresses, Julie Harris and Claire Bloom, who go to the outer limits of true terror. There is no made-up monster and none needed to show the fearsome mystery just beyond life.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY MIKE! We're back again this year—hoping your 16th is the best yet.

FOR SALE: Two snow tires, almost unused 700-13, mounted on balanced 13 inch wheels. $14.95 each, $27.50/set. 474-8795.

FOR SALE: Tire, 650-13, almost unused, mounted on 13 inch wheel. $14.95/set. 474-8795 after 6 p.m.

INCOME TAX PREPARED. 15 yrs. experience. Call Ron, 441-1033.

LOW COST REPAIRS SELL HOMES!

"Bargain basement" repairs and touch-ups to a home can add value beyond the cost of the repair itself, and often can make the difference between selling and failing to sell the home within a reasonable time. Competition for buyers has increased, and that means sellers should do all they can to improve salability of their home. In today's home market, that's the best return the home seller can get for the buck invested. For free estimate call Jim - 474-5403.
