Angry GHI Board Supports Eyeball to Eyeball Session with HUD Officials

by Sid Kastner

A measure of the frustration that the Greenbelt Homes, Inc., cooperative feels about its current treatment by federal and state agencies was the burst of anger shown by usually even-tempered director James Smith at the regular board meeting last Thursday evening.

Prince Georges County has set May as the deadline for final closing of the $6.4 million loan for GHI rehabilitation by the U.S. Dept. of Housing and Urban Dev. Because the controversy with the Md. Historical Trust over use of sliding windows and vinyl siding in the masonry homes has not been settled and may not be settled for months. Thus a week ago, the GHI board reluctantly agreed that the entire loan could be used for the frame homes. About 75% of the work called for under the loan is for the frame homes. GHI had been assured of HUD's approval.

What triggered the GHI board's irritation at Thursday's meeting was a new requirement proposed by HUD that GHI members must vote to approve the change.

Smith first expressed his feeling that "we seem to be getting too many different signals," and after Kopstein described how communications with HUD personnel were inconsistent and unclear, Smith erupted into much stronger language. His subsequent motion to request HUD officials to meet with the board—to clarify the agency's directives in a face-to-face session—was passed unanimously with enthusiastic support. Kopstein, who noted that most of the interchange with HUD has been verbal, not in concrete written form, was asked to assemble as much documentation about past exchanges as possible so that the board can refer to the facts of the case. (See next issue for continuation next week.)

An Interpretive Report

Federal Financing for Rehabilitation of GHI Homes Entangles Corporation in Red Tape

by Mary Lou Williamson

For nearly a year now, Greenbelt Homes, Inc., has been on a long roller coaster ride with the federal government. It was in October 1978 that the GHI members first approved a $5 million rehabilitation program for the cooperative's 1600 homes. Insulation, new windows, siding and plumbing would make the 40-year old homes more energy efficient. In early August 1979 the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) showed interest in financing the program. It seemed a miracle. By late August HUD accepted a Prince Georges County application on behalf of GHI for a Section 312 rehabilitation loan at 3% interest.

This newspaper hailed the HUD loan as a "special opportunity," urging members to approve. Members were again called together—this time to approve a revised rehabilitation program. Revised, because the county government now required that within five years GHI must correct certain deficiencies—outdated electrical system and standing water in crawl spaces—which are code violations. The rehabilitation program's cost was raised to $6.4m. to reflect the inflation spiral. For the additional work, called the Capital Improvements Program or CIP (to distinguish it from the rehabilitation work to be financed under the HUD loan), GHI would have to borrow an additional $5.2m. at the best available terms.

Hopes soared that after nearly ten years of planning and decision-making rehabilitation would get underway. Financing had been the last obstacle. GHI members overwhelmingly approved the package by a vote of 394 to 48.

GHI management predicted an exhilarating ride for last fall: September would bring a gala gathering to hail the start of rehabilitation, final closing with HUD would come in October and work on the homes would begin two weeks later.

Celebration

In September 200 members did celebrate with city, county, state and federal officials. A HUD spokesman congratulated GHI and the representatives of the various governmental agencies for putting together in a very short time "a very complicated joint venture. Putting the whole thing together is quite an accomplishment." He acknowledged that GHI's Ken Kopstein, then Deputy General Manager, now General Manager, was largely responsible for engineering that accomplishment. Members cheered.

But the expected downhill ride soon veered off in a new direction. In mid-October the Maryland Historical Trust came into the picture. If GHI were eligible for listing on the National Historic Register (it has been listed on the Maryland Historic Places List for several years), the Trust would be required to review the rehabilitation plans if federal funds were to be used. Two weeks later came the ruling; GHI was eligible. State Historic Preservation Officers from the Trust arrived in Greenbelt for on-site inspection, then went back to Annapolis to study the plans in detail. Negotiations with the Trust over a long list of concerns dragged on into winter. Compromises were reached regarding the frame homes. Vinyl siding was discarded in favor of a mineral fiber siding which would resemble the original shingles; only double-hung windows would be permitted.

But on the masonry homes—sliding windows and vinyl siding (needed to cover insulation which can only be applied to the exterior) created an impasse. These two items would change the appearance of the homes, the Trust maintained. GHI appealed, pointing out that Greenbelt's historic significance lies with its planning concepts—the way the community was designed with inner walkways, underpasses, homes facing garden areas, etc.—certainly not with the architecture of its buildings.

But the Trust was adamant, even when HUD sided with GHI. Members and management alike wondered why the Trust officials seem more interested in the exterior appearance of the homes than they were in the people who lived inside and paid the maintenance costs.

GHI's "special opportunity" had instead plunged the cooperative into a complex maze of problems.

New Stipulations

One agency after another has attached strings to the HUD loan. GHI has written an Affirmative Marketing Plan agreed to by HUD. The county has agreed to provide a full time inspector once construction begins. GHI has received from the City of Greenbelt a letter of intent to finance the CIP through city revenue bonds and has received a back-up commitment from a local commercial bank in case the revenue bonds should somehow not be available. HUD has written its procedures for administering the loan. GHI's biggest dilemma has been in trying to compromise with the position of the Trust, while keeping the program affordable to its members.

In March, as progress ground to a halt, the historic issues question was redirected to the National Advisory Council on Historic Preservation. After more than two months, there has been no "advice" forthcoming. (Final decision here will be made by the Secretary of HUD.) The Advisory Council's tactic seems to be, "We'll drag this out until GHI gives up or goes away."

Cut The Red Tape

As described in an article and background story in this issue, the Greenbelt Homes housing cooperative is emerging as the victim of more classic red tape than could be depicted by the pen of the most caustic caricaturist.

Government agencies on all levels — federal, state and county — have combined together to create a tangle of regulations and requirements which no ordinary organization can hope to follow or fulfill.

For the past two years GHI has been doing its best to satisfy a growing number of official demands.. It should be kept in mind that all this has been for the purpose of obtaining funds to make an aging housing community once more viable and energy-efficient. One would think such a goal would be enthusiastically supported by government officials, as being clearly in the national interest. Quite the reverse.

Among the more outstanding breakdowns in communications, for example, were delegation to the county, by HUD, of responsibility for overseeing rehabilitation work at GHI — which the county did not want and could not handle without assistance from GHI; and a series of conditions imposed by the Maryland Historical Society which conflict with the whole point of keeping project costs as low as possible.

We will not bore the reader by repeating the latest frustrating developments in this sorry spectacle, which are described on the front page of this issue. But it is evidently time for all who are concerned about this continuing failure of government, to perform its proper function, to protest to the following officials:

 Area Manager
 Department of Housing and Urban Development,

THANKS

To the Editor:
 I want to thank all my friends and neighbors for all the lovely cards and flowers sent to me during my recent illness. And a special thanks to Katie Bassinger and the Greenbelt Rescue Squad.

Heinz Leibe

Heinz Leibe, 55, a 22-year resi- dent of 4-G Ridge Road, died May 8 of a heart attack. He was bur- ied Monday, May 12 at Gate of Heaven Cemetery in Maryland.

Before moving to College Park last year, Mr. Leibe spent his Greenbelt years working with Cub Scouts and the Little League. He was a member of St. Hugh's bowling team and the Bingo com- mittee, and was for a time in Toastmasters.

Most notably, he was a member of the Greenbelt Volunteer Fire Department & Rescue Squad for more than 15 years. His son, Paul, who joined the department, is now a detective with the Annapolis city police force.

Mr. Leibe's wife, Peg, was ac- tive in Center School PTA work. She is currently a secretary at Parkdale High School, where twin daughters Lisa and Lynn are jun- iors.

A memorial service Sunday eve- ning was led by Prince Georges County Fire Department Chap- lain, Capt. Pierce, with an honor guard of Greenbelt Department friends. Monday's funeral ser- vice was conducted at Gasch's Funeral Home by Father Amy of St. Hugh's.

Mr. Leibe was born in Berlin, Germany, and came to this coun- try at the age of three. A sister, Marge Redick, livs at Holiday Beach, Maryland.

Judith Hayes

Judith L. Hayes, a 22 year-old Prince Georges Community Col- lege student and former Greenbelt resident, died after her car hit a light pole on the Beltway exit ramp on to northbound Route 1.

Miss Hayes had been active in community affairs, having served as a hostess at benefits sponsored by the Greenbelt Jaycees to raise funds for the Greenbelt Cultural Arts Center. She recently com- pleted her third March of Dimes Walkathon in Washington.

The family requests that ex- pressions of sympathy be in the form of contributions to the March of Dimes.

Electric Heat Conversion

To the Editor:
 The GHI membership will have the opportunity at the May Spe- cial Membership meeting of choosing a new heating system. The new proposed heating sys- tem is an individually controlled electric heating system. The con- version to electric heating is very cost effective when compared to our present oil-fired heating sys- tem. This fact is currently dem- onstrated by the test conversion to electric heat in several GHI homes. As early as 1973 with un- insulated homes and finance costs included, the conversion would have yielded substantial savings to the GHI homeowners. Greenbelt Homes decided to make a change from steam to hot water heat. The cost of simply converting to in- dividual electric heat and hot water would not have been much more expensive than the interim patching of the present system. The savings, however, would have been much greater.

Electric heat and hot water will offer individual control of heating costs. With room by room thermostat temperature control, not only will it be pos- sible to save energy by varying room temperatures, but a level of comfort will be obtainable that is presently not possible in GHI. Too much or too little heat will be but memories in GHI. Also with an individual domestic hot water system, surges and short- ages of hot water will be elimi- nated. These are not projections but the results of those of us who now have electrically heated GHI homes.

For several years the long range planning and the engineer- ing and maintenance committees have advised the board to con- vert to electric heat and hot wa- ter system. With an eye toward the future the long range plan- ning committee is looking into ways of adapting solar technol- ogy to an electric heating system for the 1985-2000 period.

Finally the committees are act- ing as technical advisors for the conversion to electric heat of an entire row of eight brick homes in the 11 court of Ridge Rd., which will serve as a model for the future conversions.

We hope that all members will vote for the electric heat and hot water conversion, thus putting the cooperative on the right track for an energy efficient future.

City Recreational Groups Request Funds

by Hally Ahearn

Mayor Gil Weidenfeld successively cautioned representatives of the organizations appearing before the City Council with budget requests: "It's a tough budget this year." Most of the organizations requested little or no increases over last year; one even cut back its budget request. Only the Greenbelt Boys and Girls Club asked for a substantial increase — because last year's expenses forced the organization to dig into its savings. And the Greenbelt Cultural Arts Center, Inc. made its first request for Recreation Department funds.

The Cultural Arts group is asking for $3,500 to purchase the projector, stage lights and control board necessary for staging events at the Utopia Theater. If some or all of this equipment can be purchased second-hand, the remaining monies will be used to buy sound system components. Any equipment purchased will revert to the city should the group fail to survive its financial commitments to the owner of the theater property. Said Councilman Charles Schwan, "From where you were to where you are is a tribute," referring to the organization's short but so far successful life. "I thank you for being here this evening and for generating this whole Cultural Arts Center idea," added Mayor Weidenfeld.

The mayor called the Greenbelt Boys and Girls Club "almost an extension of our recreation department." The club is asking for $8,300 for uniforms, equipment, and supplies, up $3,500 from last year. Its total budget is $15,000. The mayor also complimented this organization for its success in involving Springhill Lake youth in its sports programs. Of 413 members, 103 are from Springhill Lake.

The Washington Ear is an organization which provides a reading service for the blind and physically handicapped over a substation of WETA-FM. Each year it solicits local municipalities to provide funds for broadcast readings of newspapers, magazines, books, and some special programs—a consumer help program, which reads newspaper ads so its listeners can prepare their own shopping lists, the Smithsonian Program, and a new series on "the law and the handicapped." Washington Ear has eight listeners in Greenbelt. If there are others in Greenbelt who could make use of this service, they are urged to contact the Washington Ear, Inc., 35 University Blvd East, Silver Spring, MD 20901. Last year the city contributed $400 to the organization; this year the request is for $450.

The Greenbelt Concert Band, a Greenbelt organization since 1942, will face difficulties during the summer concert season because of the deteriorating condition of the Lake Park bandstand. City Manager James Giese told the band's representative, Steve Polaschik, "I don't know where or when there will be an alternative" (to the present bandstand), but asked that the band give him some feedback about "what and where." The band, whose high caliber performances have become an expected part of the Fourth of July and Labor Day Celebrations, is asking the city for $1,500, $50 more than last

The question in the Greenbelt Labor Day Festival Committee's budget is whether the city will fund a bus for the festival this year. Sandra Barnes, president of the committee, made the suggestion that a "Dial-a-Ride" van be substituted for the bus route service provided last year. Members of the city council responded favorably. The cost of the van would be about the same as the cost of the bus—$250. The city contribution to the festival is for services and materials, an unspecified amount. Total budget for the Labor Day Festival is about $12,000.

The Greenbelt Golden Age Club is asking the city for $500, primarily to provide busing for special trips for Golden Agers.

The Springhill Lake Baseball League reduced its request from $1,130 last year to $1,050 this year. The league now has an active booster club to help support its activities. But Martha Sutton reported to the council that it does not have good playing fields. The field at SHL Elementary School needs a permanent backstop and regrading. The pitcher's mound is a foot-and-a-half higher than home plate. The junior high field has been considered temporary because of its poor condition, but the A-league teams have continued to use it. "What we need is an evaluation of what needs to be done, what it might cost, for both fields," said Councilman Schwan.

Bob Dies of the Greenbelt Little League reported to council that the organization had discovered $3,000 in a savings account which had remained inactive since 1975. The league plans to spend $1,700 of this for new uniforms and is asking the city for $2,500 to cover the remaining cost of the uniforms. The cost of uniforms is up 15 percent and the current uniforms have been in action for three years. The league has only six girls among its 160 members, perhaps because few of the mothers or other women available for coaching have played hard ball.

Larry Noel of the Greenbelt Running Club, which recently sponsored a Run for Muscular Dystrophy, commented to the council that, in running, girls under 12 are beating the boys. This group is asking the city for $200, $75 less than last year.

The Aquatic Boosters, who sponsor the Greenbelt swim teams, need $1,700 from the city. A large part of this contribution is requested for pool rental for the winter swim program.

The Greenbelt Tennis Association is asking for $375, $200 of which will reimburse instructors for their junior tennis program. Pete Allen reported that the Association is comprised of about 66% residents, with non-residents admitted to spur competition.

The City Council recognized the significant contribution of each of these organizations to the Greenbelt community, but "It's a tough budget this year."

Cultural Center Concert Is Artistic Success

by Al Herling

A highly appreciative audience enjoyed a concert of outstanding musical quality last Saturday night at the Greenbelt Cultural Arts Center's Utopia Theatre. Mezzo-soprano Kriss Larsen, pianist Brian Ganz and violinist John Ward provided the audience with a widely varied program ranging from Handel to Vaughan Williams and Copland.

Larsen's presentation of the Handel "Liebliche Walder" from "Almira" demonstrated her understanding of Handel and provided the audience with the enjoyment of an outstanding voice. Her remarkable artistic ability was later underscored in her offering of the A. E. Housman poem, "Good-bye," set to music by R. Vaughan Williams and two English folk songs, Vaughan Williams, "Searching for Lambs" and "The Lawyer." These latter numbers were accompanied by John Ward on the violin.

The most impressive part of Larsen's performance was her rendition of twelve poems of Emily Dickinson in musical settings by Aaron Copland. It must be described as a magnificent tour de force which only an accomplished artist of Larsen's stature is capable of delivering.

Adding to the quality of the performance was the incomparable accompaniment of Larsen by Brian Ganz. Rarely has this reviewer felt and heard such perfect understanding between soloist and accompanist. Such sensitive accompaniment is even more remarkable because Ganz is a highly capable concert artist in his own right.

Ganz offered three Nocturnes by Chopin: Opus 9, No. 1, Opus 9, No. 3 and Opus 62, No. 1. The Opus 9, No. 3 Nocturne in B Major is rarely heard in concert and it was a pleasure to hear this neglected musical delight. Ganz displayed his technical competence and his feeling for the deeply romantic music of Chopin.

Ganz also performed beyond the normal call of duty, having substituted for pianist Maggie Chang, who was unable to meet her commitment. He performed the very program which Chang was scheduled to present.

John Ward, accompanied by Brian Ganz, played the Schubert Sonata in D Major at the very opening of the concert. He closed the concert with a number of compositions by Fritz Kreisler: "Andantine" in the style of Martin; "Chanson Louis XIII and Pavane," in the style of Couperin, "Tempo di Minuette," in the style of Pugnani and "Liebesleid." These very popular compositions were thoroughly enjoyed by the audience. Ward is a vice-president of the Greenbelt Cultural Arts Center and a resident of Greenbelt. He plays with the Greenbelt Chamber Orchestra and the Prince Georges Philharmonic Orchestra.

The entire program will be repeated this Saturday evening at 8 p.m. It is expected that Chang will be able to appear at that time.

P.G. Co. TAG Programs

The May meeting of Prince Georges TAG (Talented and Gifted) will be held on Tuesday, May 20 at 8 p.m. in the multipurpose room of Largo Senior High School, 505 Largo Road, Largo. The guest speaker will be Dr. William G. Durden, Project Coordinator of the Program for Verbally Gifted Youth at the Johns Hopkins University.

Mishkan Torah News

Rabbi Rebecca Alpert will speak on "Jewish Ethics Through a Reconstructionist Perspective" on Friday, May 16 at the Mishkan Torah at 8 p.m. Dean of students at the Reconstructionist Rabbinical College, she will discuss the topic further at Saturday morning services, which start at 9:30 a.m.

Northern P.G. NOW

The general meeting of the Northern Prince Georges National Organization for Women chapter will be held on Wednesday, May 21 at 8 p.m., at the Greenbelt Library. This meeting is titled "Homemakers - Making the Transition from Home to School and Work Easier." The panel discussion will feature persons representing women's referral services in the county. The public is invited. For more information, call 794-7532.

In the meantime costs continue to rise. The membership, management and board thrash about, wondering if the long months of patient waiting and the cooperation they have offered wherever possible will be met by positive action from the other side. If members continue to be frustrated, they may decide to go it alone or in small groups—putting in their own replacement windows, insulation and siding, rather than face another cold and drafty winter. In this case so many variations may result that members and historical people alike will be unhappy with the hodge-podge appearance.

Finally the county established a May 1 closing date for the HUD loan. In order to meet this deadline, and in utter frustration over not being able to resolve the masonry homes historical questions and thus not being able to begin the rehabilitation work, GHI agreed that the HUD loan be used entirely for the frame homes. (Financing the rehabilitation of the masonry homes would have to be done by other means.) This appears to be a logical and even a reasonable solution as 75% of the basic rehabilitation work is geared toward the frame homes. Better not to risk losing the 3% financing altogether, is the reasoning.

Concerned that GHI has the intention of circumventing their role, the Trust insists that GHI show good faith by abiding by Advisory Council recommendations on historical issues, even though no federal funds will now be involved with the masonry homes. County and federal officials are now preparing the loan closing documents as is GHI's legal consultant, Krooth and Altman.

Just as it seems that the bottleneck has been removed, HUD now proposes new requirements—another membership vote approving the use of the loan for frame homes only, and closing on the commercial bank loan to finance the CIP. (See page 1 story on last Thursday's GHI board meeting.) The membership vote is an unnecessary roadblock; deciding to use the commercial bank financing for the CIP is, at best, premature. Revenue bond financing could be a viable method. Since the cost of bank financing would be almost double that of revenue bonds, it is hardly in the best interest of GHI members to rule out bonds until or unless it is necessary to do so.

Historically the Greenbelt houses were designed to be affordable by low and middle income families. The HUD official we quoted earlier also said he was impressed with GHI as an economically "integrated community—persons of all income levels can live here." The Section 312 loan and the 325 units of Section 8 housing assistance payments would make it possible, he said, for those with middle and very low incomes to remain in GHI. "The expense of this rehabilitation would be intolerable," he emphasized, "for these two groups were it not for our programs. These people could not otherwise stay in this extraordinarily attractive place to live."

What seemed like the impossible dream in August for GHI's long-awaited rehabilitation program has turned into a nightmare of bureaucratic red tape.

Police Blotter

An elderly female resident of Springhill Lake was the victim of a theft of cash when she allowed two youths into her home on the pretext of using the telephone.

Two incidents of Peeping Tom/ indecent exposure occurred in Springhill Lake. The first involved a black male juvenile, 17-19 years of age, 6'2", approximately 160 pounds. The second involved a white male, 35-40 years of age, 6'1", 165 pounds. Residents are requested to notify the police without delay to report any suspicious activity.

The Co-Op Food Store was forcibly entered during closed hours, activating the alarm system. The store was checked by Pfc Blake and Pfc O'Neil along with a Prince Georges County K-9 Unit. Amount of loss, if any, is undetermined.

A patron of the Youth Center had money removed from his wallet which was left unattended in the locker room.

As a result of an ongoing investigation, Pvt. Cancelose charged a resident with reckless driving, hit and run, driving with suspended license. The individual was released to his attorney pending trial.

Officer M. A. DiPietro charged a non-resident for consuming alcoholic beverages while at the Lake Park. He was incarcerated in lieu of $1,000 bond. Residents are reminded alcoholic beverages are prohibited in city parks.

Two non-residents were assaulted and their vehicle damaged by employees of a local restaurant when the two left the establishment without paying their bill. Investigation is continuing.

Label Products?

Co-op labels are different!

Why?

They are the only grocery product labels designed by an organization owned and controlled by the people who actually use the products. Universal Cooperatives, Inc., operates a Quality Maintenance Test Kitchen and employs a Home Economist who is responsible for producing labels that represent the consumers' interests.

How?

Our pledge to the consumer is to represent Co-op products fairly, even pointing out product limitations on the label, such as on the CO-OP toothpaste which recommends alternative, less expensive dentifrices. CO-OP canned goods have for many years carried U.S. Grade labeling, and we are pioneers in the use of drained net weights. CO-OP labels carry nutrition information on a voluntary basis, over and above government requirements. For your information, CO-OP labels graphically list the eight basic nutrients, even when a particular nutrient is not present in a given product.

Council Finds Budget Review Frustrating

by Mary Lou Williamson
 Faced with the likelihood of a 10% increase in the city tax rate and a budget already padded of any padding, the city council has found little it could do at this spring's round of budget work sessions. Monday's session on Greenbelt CARES, general government (the administrative staff) and revenues, like the public works budget of a month ago, engendered little more than an occasional question as to why last year's figure was different than this year's.

Most of the talking was done by the city manager, Jim Giese, backed up by the city treasurer Dennis Piendak, as they explained the more interesting facts hidden behind the numbers. Council listened and flipped pages.

CARES

CARES budget calls for total expenditures of $481,200. The State of Maryland finances 75% of an approved program. The city matches the remaining 25% and funds 100% of an additional portion. The state has raised its share by 8% for next year, the city's dollar share is close to that of last year's, though when the salary adjustments are added, the total will be slightly higher.

At some time in the future, Carol Leventhal, CARES' director, would like to see the program expanded to include the elderly, and eventually to all ages, but recognized that this is not the year to ask for additional commitment of funds from the city. Council agreed.

In support of her desire to expand CARES in coming years, Leventhal told council that CARES has an "area-wide reputation for providing excellent services." That reputation, she says, has created "demands beyond what we can match." Leventhal is pleased that CARES has been selected as one of 20 family therapy agencies, whose clients are referred from juvenile services, and whose programs were judged to be exemplary. The agencies will be written up in a report and also in a protocol manual. The project is funded by L.E.A.A.

Leventhal may do better with her efforts to improve slightly the situation of the two juvenile counselors Councilman Charles Schwan was concerned that even though part-time, the two positions should be classified so that the employees would be entitled to receive fringe benefits — hospitalization, insurance, etc.

In his salary adjustment memo to council, Giese has already proposed a small increase in salary for the two, almost up to the level Leventhal is requesting. Council members present, Gil Weidenfeld, Richard Pilski and Schwan appeared uncertain about doing any more than that, even though less than $1000 is involved and council is in general agreement that the increase is desirable. Leventhal would have liked to expand the two half-time positions to three-quarters time and eventually to full time.

Mayor Weidenfeld explained to Leventhal that council was reluctant to promise anything. "We're worried about the significant increase (10%) in this year's budget." Commenting on council's review of the entire budget, he further explained, somewhat apologetically, "I can't see anywhere we can cut this budget. I don't know what we can do for you."

The above example, though minor, is typical of council's situation this year. There is no extra money to add the occasional requests received in these budget sessions. In normal years there would be flexibility, built into the budget. Council would be able to cut here and there in order to add something else, without adding to the tax rate. But not so this year.
