$7.2 Million City Budget Proposed

by Diane Oberg

The $7.2 million budget proposed by City Manager James K. Giese calls for hiring an additional eight and one-half full time employees and four part-time employees, a two percent cost of living raise for all employees and the rental of a third trailer to be placed near the municipal building. No change in the property tax is called for to accomplish these tasks, although a 12 percent increase in trash collection fees, to $114 per year, is recommended.

The City Council begins its review of the budget next week, beginning with a work session on recreation groups' requests for contributions on Tuesday, April 28, and a work session on the police budget on Thursday, April 30.

In his written comments to council, Giese noted that the proposed budget cannot be considered a "hold the line budget," but rather that it reflects the fact that "Greenbelt is growing and the city government must grow with it."

Revenues

The ability of the city to finance an expansion of services without a tax increase reflects a substantial increase in revenues from several sources. Property tax revenues will increase 8.5 percent due to new construction and increased assessments. The budget anticipates an 8.5 percent increase in the city's share of the state income tax due to new growth and increased personal income. In addition, the city's share of this tax will probably be greater than budgeted due to the effect of federal tax reform on the state income tax. No allowance was made for this increase since the amount is unknown.

The city also anticipates a 21 percent increase in highway taxes shared with the city due both to the changes in the city's population and the increases in state taxes

Thus total revenues anticipated by the city amount to $6.66 million, an increase of nine percent over the estimated revenues for the 1986/87 fiscal year, and an increase of almost 12 percent over the amount budgeted for fiscal 86/87.

In addition, $554,400 is budgeted from unallocated reserves to bring total revenues to $7.214 million. In the previous budget, $649,800 was similarly allocated, but the city was able to fund

Priorities for Bond Money Use Focus of Worksession on Pools

by Mavis Fletcher

Priorities for bond money use—when and how to set them and what they should be—were the focus of discussions at a city council work session on the indoor and outdoor pools on April 9. The meeting was attended by five residents who weren't there in some official capacity.

During the discussions, several of the council members began to take positions on the relative priority of the indoor pool and on the process of setting priorities. Council member Joseph Isaacs led off by saying that he was favorably disposed toward both the indoor and outdoor pools. He went on to stake out a position which appears to be unique among the council members: that funds can be shifted from other parts of the bond money to help pay for the pools. Isaacs said he perceived "lots of support for the (indoor) pool," didn't see how "we can back down" on it, and would like to move ahead on the entire facility. Isaacs said he believes the city can buy "a significant amount of park land for half of the $2 million" which was earmarked for that purpose.

Council member Edward Putens, however, said he is not ready to switch parkland money to some other category. Then he also staked out a unique position: go back to the citizens again in either a survey or referendum on the indoor pool to find out whether "they want to spend that much for a pool." He added that there is no question about proceeding with renovation of the outdoor pool (which was authorized by a council vote at the regular session on March 23).

Council member Antoinette Bram took a slightly different stance: She suggested going ahead with the outdoor pool renovation, making do with the old bathhouse, preserving the rest of the $2 million bond authorization designated for the pools, and increasing city taxes enough to allow the indoor pool to be built in three to four years. Bram made clear, however, that she feels the pool has to be built; she said the "police station and (indoor) pool were the two big things" in the bond issue along with parkland and, therefore, the "priorities have been set."

Mayor pro tem Thomas X. White gave no clue about his own priorities for the bond issue projects; however, he sharply criticized the council for not setting priorities earlier. White said priorities have been set on an "ad hoc basis—catch as catch can."

He pointed to the police station which he called "the first cost overrun" with "no attempt" by the council to limit the overrun. White insisted that economies could yet be achieved in the indoor pool.

White said that it has always been known that the money was limited in what it could do but one of the promises made when the citizens approved the bonds was that the council would tackle the issue of the limitations imposed by the $6 million issue. In his view, he said, it would be a "reneg" to alter the $2 million allotments made to the three basic categories.

White also criticized the referral of the question of the bond project priorities to the subcommittees working on long-range planning for the city. He said that this referral delays a council decision and "front loads" the views of the city staff (since many of those participating in strategic planning are also staff members). White also charged that the whole strategic planning process "lessens public input." He advocated a public hearing on bond priorities. He stated that "Council has abdicated its responsibilities to set priorities for too long."

Mayor Gil Weidenfeld also gave

BELTWAY PLAZA: TWENTY-FIVE YEARS OLD AND GOING STRONG

by Steve Galanis

If one were to consider the 50-year history of Greenbelt, 1962 would probably come to mind as a landmark year. Easy enough, since that year was the 25th anniversary of the city, but a look at what occurred in 1962 would reveal that it was the beginning of a new era of growth for Greenbelt.

The Beltway Plaza opened in 1962. Although only a small fraction of the mall had been completed at that time, it was understood that more was to come. The plaza's grand opening which brought government officials, WWDC and Bozo the clown to the center, was the first installment in a plan to build the first roofed-over, climate-controlled mall in the D.C. area.

Sidney Brown, the developer of the plaza, basically built the center along Greenbelt Road in four stages. The first three stages are connected with the building of the mall, and the fourth stage with the various free-standing structures spread over the remaining portion of a 70-acre tract.

When the mall opened in 1962, it was a 10-store building strip that extended eastward from what is now Cherrywood Lane. On one end of the building was an A&P and on the other a Drug Fair.

S. Klein's

The first addition to the plaza was a separate structure on the east end of the tract adjacent to the county school bus lot. Completed in 1963 after a fatal construction accident in which two men were killed, the 320,000 sq. ft. building was leased by S. Kleins, a major department store. For several years the plaza re-

Public Safety Day Features Crime Story's Dennis Farina

by Dorrie Bates

More than 30 federal, state and local law enforcement agencies will be participating in this year's Public Safety Day to be held at Eleanor Roosevelt High School on Saturday, May 9, from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. The community-oriented event will include live demonstrations, equipment exhibits and an anti-drug performance.

Dennis Farina, star of the NBC series "Crime Story" is scheduled to make an appearance. He will be honored at a special awards program for his "positive portrayal of a police officer." Local dignitaries expected include Mayor Gil Weidenfeld, acting as master of ceremonies, States Attorney Alexander Williams, Police Chief James R. Craze, Delegates Charles "Buzz" Ryan and Joan Pitkin, County Councilman Richard Castaldi and State Senator Leo Green.

Dennis Farina, "Lt. Mike Torrello" of NBC's Crime Story will appear at the Public Safety Day at Eleanor Roosevelt on Saturday, May 9.

Some of the specialized police units operating in the metro area will display their unique skills and capabilities. According to event coordinator Patrick McAndrew, there will be demonstrations by a bomb disposal unit and a helicopter team. There will also be a tracking exercise presented by a canine unit and a polygraph demonstration.

A one-act mini-musical, "The Power of No," has been scheduled to be performed at 1 and 4 p.m. in the high school auditorium. This anti-drug program is geared towards elementary school age children.

Several special police vehicles will be on display. The Park Police is providing an armored personnel carrier used in barricade situations. A brand new mobile command post used by the Montgomery County Police will be open for inspection. There will even be a hot air balloon.

Emphasizing the family aspect of the event, McAndrew said "We want parents to bring their children out . . . It's an opportunity for personalized contact between the citizens and police officers."

This event is co-sponsored by the Greenbelt Police Department and the Greenbelt American Legion Post 136. It is being held in conjunction with the beginning of National Police Week.

Sidewalk Sideswipe

To the Editor:

The GHI board, at its April 9 meeting, made a very wise decision in regard to the Crescent/Ridge Road sidewalk issue. They directed management to propose a specific sidewalk configuration that might be tolerable to all area residents, both pro and con. This was a good decision because the existence of a specific plan might dispel the opponents' worst-case fears.

There was, however, one very disturbing aspect to the discussion among the members present at the meeting. Some opponents argued that sidewalks were not necessary since no one had yet been killed for lack of one. These members actually tried to make the case that the lack of a sidewalk had not been the cause of a certain pedestrian fatality some years ago, and that sidewalks are therefore not necessary. The implications of this argument are frightening. Will these people accept the necessity of sidewalks only after someone is killed?

In my opinion, if we wait for someone to be killed before implementing sidewalks, it will have been too late. At that point, no sidewalk could bring that person back.

THANKS

To the Editor:

I wish to thank all of my friends and supporters who have expressed their good wishes upon my having been appointed Chief of Police for the City of Greenbelt. A special thank you to the News Review is in order, in response to their kind editorial comment in the April 16 issue.

I am, indeed, honored to have been selected and wish to thank Mr. James Giese for the confidence he has placed in me.

My appointment from within the ranks is a reflection upon the Department as well. I would be remiss if I did not publicly thank the men and women of the Department for their demonstrated support.

After 16 years of service, I feel as though my career is just beginning. I am looking forward to many more years of dedicated service to the community.

Only by the continuing participation of the members can GHI remain the active, vital cooperative that it is today.

To obtain more information on running for office this year, GHI members can contact me at 474-4713. The consent forms are shown elsewhere in this issue of the News Review.

Greenbelt to be Featured On TV Program on May 1

Three "new towns" in the Washington metropolitan area have been successfully planned, built and settled since the 1930s, providing viable alternatives to the haphazard urban sprawl of our area.

The New Towns, a WETA production airing on Friday, May 1 at 9 p.m. on Channel 26, examines these alternatives: Greenbelt and Columbia, Maryland, and Reston, Virginia.

Greenbelt, built by the Roosevelt Administration in the 1930s, was planned as the answer to the critical lack of housing during the Depression, and as a counterpoint to the dehumanizing commercial housing of the time. Columbia and Reston, both built in the 1960s, were designed to be rational responses to the urban sprawl that Washington was beginning to exhibit.

Developers Robert E. Simon (Reston) and James Rouse (Columbia) as well as architects, town leaders and original residents in all three communities, discuss the successes and failures they have encountered with the planned community concept. How does one provide jobs within the community? Can moderate income people who work in the community afford to live in the community? Can a development be built which preserves the beauty of the natural environment, enhances the lifestyles of its people and still make a profit?

The New Towns looks at these and other considerations that go into making a successful new community from the ground up.

The New Towns is a WETA production. Joyce Campbell is executive producer; Jackson Frost, producer. Funding for this program was made possible by the Maryland Humanities Council through the National Endowment for the Humanities, the Virginia Foundation for the Humanities and Public Policy, the Virginia Environmental Endowment and the members of WETA.

Beltway Plaza Celebrates 25 Years

mained essentially unchanged with a huge gap separating the two principal buildings on the lot.

Then in 1971, construction began to join the two structures with a 63 store enclosed addition. In the fall of that year, the second addition was completed, and the original plan of the mall was realized.

During the plaza's early expansion period, there was much debate about the type and extent of commercial development occurring in the city.

In early 1962 owners of the Golden Triangle tract of land along the northeastern quadrant of the Kenilworth/Greenbelt Rd. intersection had hoped to get the necessary zoning to build a second regional shopping center. For years, these plans were blocked by the county, as Brown along with city officials contended that the area could not support two large shopping centers located back-to-back and that

Brown already had the required zoning. By the time the county was willing to give commercial zoning to the Golden Triangle developers, land use plans for that property had changed.

Turbulent Period

The 1970's, however, still proved to be a largely turbulent period for the plaza. At a city council meeting in 1974, Brown appealed for and received council support for efforts to secure a second department store. At that meeting Brown recounted how the Beltway Plaza merchants including Kleins had not been getting the business they should. In the winter of 1975, Kleins shut down anyway. Occupying the vacant space left by Kleins with stable tenants who complemented the mall's remaining businesses posed a continuous problem for Brown.

Also in the '70s, the plaza developer began a new phase of expansion on the Beltway tract that was characterized by numerous, isolated improvements. Following the addition of the six theatre complex to the mall in 1975, Brown embarked on some construction projects which, largely because of their piecemeal nature, drew much opposition from the city.

Currently, Beltway Plaza has more than 100 commercial outlets including its various kiosks inside and outside the mall. Best Products, a catalogue showroom, Marshall's department store, and Bud's discount drug store now occupy the ground floor of the former Kleins building. Frank's nursery now occupies that section of the building previously used by Kleins as a garden center. Among the free standing units added within the last seven years are Bennigans, Wendys, and Popeyes located in front of the mall and Chi Chi's which is to the west of Cherrywood Lane.

According to a site plan submitted to the city in 1985 further expansion of Beltway Plaza is projected. Included in the plan is a proposal to extend the mall in two places. An extension in the center front of the mall would house a two-story department store, and a west-wing extension at the back of the mall would house another two-story department store and 22 additional stores. To the west of Cherrywood Lane across from the proposed rear mall extension an 11-story office building, and an adjacent parking garage is planned. A pedestrian overpass will connect the west wing to the garage. The plan also calls for adding 35 stores in the upper level of the former Kleins building.

An 83-year-old female patient at the Greenbelt Nursing Center on Greenbelt Road awoke about 4:45 a.m. April 14 to see a man standing beside her bed. The suspect had entered the room by forcing a window. He escaped with some of the victim's property.

Responding about 7:45 p.m. April 10 to a report of a man trying to get into an apartment at 12 Crescent Road, Cpl. Craig Rich found that the suspect lived there. However, in checking further Cpl. Rich learned that the man was wanted on an arrest warrant for failing to appear in court. The 37-year-old resident was arrested and turned over to the Prince Georges County Sheriff's Department.

Officer David Buerger stopped a motorist about 10:50 p.m. April 11 in the 9400 block of Kenilworth Avenue for a traffic violation and found suspected PCP in his possession. He arrested a 29-year-old Greenbelt resident for possession of a controlled dangerous substance and driving under the influence of the drug. The suspect was held on $7,000 bond pending trial.

Officer Troy Harding arrested a 30-year-old man and a 32-year-old woman, both nonresidents after he stopped their car about 2:30 a.m. April 12 for numerous traffic violations on Greenbelt Road near Mandan Road. The man was found to be operating under the influence of PCP. He was charged with that offense and both he and the woman were charged with possession of the drug. The man was held on $1,000 bond and the woman was released.

Arts Center Launches Fund-Raising Drive

by Konrad Herling

Arts Center President John Ward described the Arts Center's next few months as "critical"; Board Member Dan Hamlin characterized it as an "opportunity".

What both were reacting to was a projected 500% increase in rent by landlord George Christacos. To compound matters, funding assistance from the county will cease unless the city begins to provide substantial support for the Arts Center.

To help counter this double dose of bad news, the Arts Center will begin a community-wide fund-raising campaign to raise $10,000. In conducting this campaign, the Arts Center hopes to achieve five specific objectives.

First, monies raised would go toward the operating costs of running the Arts Center. Secondly, it would serve as a strong signal that Greenbelters desire a community arts center. Third, council may feel a greater sense of urgency to negotiate on the Arts Center's behalf in its discussion with the developer of the Roosevelt Center. Fourth, it could help to increase the chances for approval from the city council with respect to the Arts Center's request for operating, production and programming expenses. And fifth, a successful campaign might prompt the county to reconsider its position and possibly provide some programming monies.

The fund-raising campaign will begin Saturday, April 25 at 9 a.m. at the Utopia. One hundred volunteers will knock on 5,000 doors and will offer memberships in the Arts Center as well as Greenbelt Players subscription to next season's play series. Those interested in helping, either on Saturday, or another weekend day during the subsequent three weeks, please call 345-9369.

The two juveniles were charged with theft and one with resisting arrest. They were released to relatives pending trial.

Budget Tops $7 Million

its expenditures without making use of these reserves.

Thus revenues would be balanced against the budgeted expenditures of $7.214 million, which represents nine percent increase over last year's budgeted expenditures, and an 18 percent increase over the estimated actual expenditures.

General Government

The General Government budget, which pays for the operation of the city including council, administrative, financial and legal services and related expenses would receive a 10 percent increase over last year's budget under Giese's proposal. Three new employees would be added: a full time administrative assistant and a part-time office assistant, increasing salary costs by $28,700, and an engineer for the Planning and Development Coordination office. The $36,600 cost of the engineer would be offset by road permit fees.

Under the proposed budget a third trailer would be placed beside the municipal building. According to Assistant City Manager Michael McLaughlin, this trailer would be used for an employee lounge and possibly for additional office space for the administrative and finance departments. In addition, it is proposed that the city council chambers be divided to provide an additional meeting room. This would be accomplished by renting non-movable partitions that would be removed when no longer needed.

Public Safety

Giese's budget proposes adding four full time employees—two records assistants and two communications specialists—to the police department, none of whom would be police officers. In addition, five new police cars would be bought, three of which would replace existing cars. These changes would bring the total, full time police employment to 57 and the total police fleet to 32 vehicles.

The total public safety budget, which includes police, traffic control and animal control costs, is $2,151,900, a nine percent increase over the last fiscal year.

Public Works

The total expenditures for the public works department will increase 10 percent over the amount budgeted for the previous fiscal year, after allowing for a book-keeping change, according to Giese's budget summary. Eight seasonal, or 6-month employees will be hired to work during the peak periods. In addition, the budget calls for the purchase of a fourwheel drive pickup truck for use by Special Details Crew.

Major changes are proposed for the city's refuse collection service. In addition to the proposed 12 percent increase in fees, the first increase in five years, the city manager also proposes to discontinue the newspaper recycling program, and to collect special trash on Wednesdays, using the regular trash crews. The special trash crew would continue daily collections, according to McLaughlin.

Parks and Recreation

The budget once again calls for the hiring of a Special Populations Supervisor, requested but not funded in the last budget. This employee, who would develop programs tailored to the special needs of elderly and handicapped citizens, would be hired in the second half of the fiscal year after completion of a study on special population services.

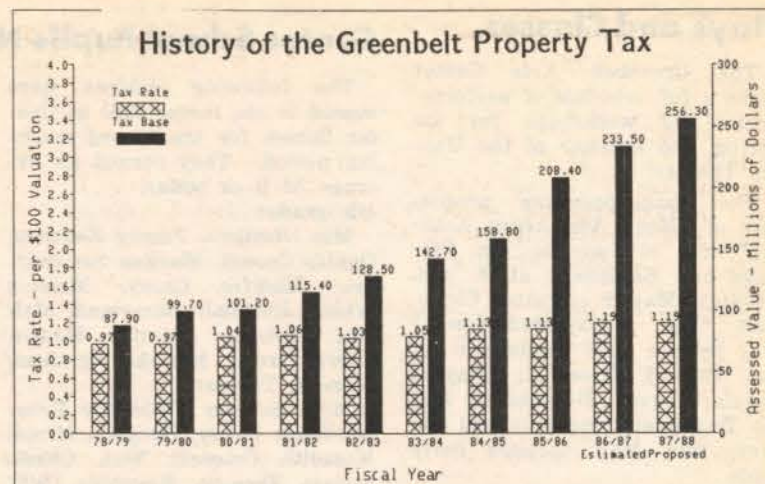

The contributions budget again will have more requests than money budgeted. The city manager proposes a five percent increase in total contributions to $22,900. However, the organizations' requests total $61,600 with the Arts Center requesting a $30,100 increase in their grant.

Several equipment outlays are proposed for the city's parks. A backhoe for the parks crew is requested, along with $10,000 for playground equipment and $10,000 for a basketball court at the Windsor Green fields.

Other

The city manager proposes that the dial-a-ride bus service be expanded to six days a week with no service Saturday. To accomplish this task he is proposing that a full time bus driver be hired.

As the city's bonds are sold, debt service costs will increase. Giese projects that for the fiscal year 1987/88, one-half year of interest on $2.8 million worth of bonds will be paid. He estimated this cost to be $93,500.

Reserves

Increases are proposed for most of the city's reserve funds, with the biggest increases in the Capital Improvements Fund II, budgeted to increase from the $833,500 budgeted last year (86/87 estimated reserves $218,900) to $3,226,300 to accomplish the projects proposed for the bond issue. Giese notes that even after available reserves are applied, revenues fall short of expenditures by $2,093,400. The city manager, in his written summary of budget issues, calls this the "most critical issue in the budget." He says that council will have to resolve this shortfall by reducing the projects to be accomplished, allocating other resources to these projects or seeking authority to issue more bonds.

PROCLAMATION

WHEREAS, During the month of April, the Greenbelt Volunteer Fire Department and Rescue Squad, Inc., is conducting its Annual Fund Drive and is seeking the support of the community to raise the funds necessary to assure proper maintenance of its equipment and facilities, and to assure that the fire and rescue services provided by its volunteers continue to be of the highest quality; and

WHEREAS, During Greenbelt's 50th Anniversary, it is appropriate to remember that fire services date back to the construction of Greenbelt, when a 500 gallon per minute pumper, furnished by the Federal Government, was manned by three two-man platoons, supplemented by workers and guard personnel employed on the project; and

WHEREAS, During World War II, this small group of paid fire fighters was augmented by volunteers trained under the Civil Defense Auxiliary Firefighter Training program; in 1946 the Greenbelt Volunteer Rescue Squad was organized; and in 1955 the local fire department was converted into a volunteer organization and with the rescue squad formed the organization which has served Greenbelt and the extended warranty so well for more than thirty years; and

WHEREAS, These efforts of the men and women of the Greenbelt Volunteer Fire Department and Rescue Squad, Inc. and their Ladies Auxiliary could not have been successful without the year in and year out support of the citizens of Greenbelt and their generosity in responding to the annual fund raising appeals of the department;

NOW, THEREFORE, I, Gil Weidenfeld, Mayor of the City of Greenbelt Maryland, by authority vested in me by the Council and the citizens of Greenbelt, hereby issue this proclamation to declare the month of April

FIRE DEPARTMENT & RESCUE SQUAD GENERAL FUND DRIVE MONTH

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Seal of the City of Greenbelt, Maryland, to be affixed this 6th day of April, 1987.

by Danny Harbin

It was clear from the beginning that Ocean City was very serious about recapturing a title they felt was snatched away from them by Greenbelt in 1986. Ocean City fielded a very select team (250 kids tried out) and was stacked with players at the high end of the age limit. Again, the Greenbelt 76ers played with determination against teams older and more experienced and took third place with a 2-2 tournament record.

Outstanding efforts were given by every member of the Greenbelt team — it being virtually impossible to single out any individual. It was truly a team effort. Special mention must be given to all the parents, relatives, and friends who made the trip to Ocean City and provided the loudest cheering section of any team in the tournament. Also, a special thanks to our team managers, Mariam Hunanian and Ernest Aguillo and our "House Mom" Kitty Harbin without whose help would have made a very harried weekend.

Hats off to very talented 76ers team that included: Greg Hunanian, Scott Lubey, Peter Timer, Shawn Wilson, Jason Everhart, Kris Todd, Marc Selawy, Adam Wheatley, T.J. Trimble, Daniel Gomez, Jason Harbin, Kevin Lynch and Miguel Pereira.

Banquet to Honor Lawman, Fireman

As part of a nationwide program focusing on law and order, the Greenbelt American Legion Post 136 will hold a "Lawman and Fireman Awards Banquet" on Friday, May 8, at 7:30 p.m. The dinner also sets the stage for Public Safety Day held on May 9, an event co-sponsored by Post 136 and the Greenbelt Police Department.

The banquet will honor a Lawman of the Year chosen from the Greenbelt Police Department, and a Fireman of the Year selected from the Greenbelt Volunteer Fire Department and Rescue Squad. The awards are intended to "recognize an individual's efforts in their work for the community," said Post spokesperson Ric Santos.

Several local leaders will attend the awards dinner. Mayor Gil Weidenfeld is expected to present a proclamation recognizing the American Legion Law and Order Month and County Council member Richard Castaldi will deliver a letter of recognition from the County Council.

The festivities will be held at the American Legion Post 136. Doors will open at 6:30 p.m. for a social hour. There will be dancing following the awards ceremony. The event is free and open to the public but reservations are requested to be made no later than Tuesday, May 5.

For more information, call Post 136, 345-0136 or Ric Santos 345-8931.

CITY NOTES

The special details crew worked on the relocation of the lighting at the parking lot lights at the Municipal Building in preparation for the Police Department trailer to be installed at the side entrance of the building. They also worked on installing new signs and relocating them for traffic control throughout the city.

The general crew worked on base removal and replacement prior to a contract for resurfacing of Eastway. The base work on Hillside Road is complete.

The special detail, general and parks crew assisted with the trash removal program. One member of the refuse crew is still on administrative leave due to an injured hand. This injury was caused by a sharp object in the trash container which required at least three stitches.

The parks crew worked all week on the preparation of the athletic fields for the anticipated opening of Little League softball and baseball season. The horticulturist has been extremely busy with plantings throughout the city. Both the horticulturist and the parks crew have been working on planting and re-seeding the areas where road construction was undertaken during the latter part of last summer; this being Plateau, Gardenway and the area near the intersection of Crescent and Ridge Roads.

The building maintenance supervisor, along with one member of the special detail crew, worked on the completion of McDonald Field club house and dug out.

Lakeside Resident Chosen As Outstanding Educator

by Eileen Peterson

If you want to make Elizabeth Eny smile and lean forward in eager anticipation, ask her what she does as a Reading Specialist at Walker Mill Middle School. Her reaction will tell you a lot about this Lakeside Drive resident chosen recently as one of 16 Outstanding Educators in Prince Georges County for 1986-87.

One of two Greenbelt residents chosen from 80 nominees, Eny will be honored at a banquet May 20 at Martin's Crosswinds.

After receiving her B.A. degree from St. Mary's College, she taught English in that county's high school before returning to her home county. She earned a Master's degree in Reading from George Washington University and does all individualized testing at Walker Mill, where the variety of challenges in her work with each child bring her much satisfaction.

Planning individual programs for poor handwriters, Talented and Gifted children who may not spell well, or students with reading problems is only part of her work at the Capitol Heights magnet school.

Last week colleagues honored her with a breakfast and gave her a scrapbook bulging with copies of letters sent to the school system on her behalf. There are letters there from children, too, thanking her for help along the way.

Raised in Cheverly, she is the daughter of Hilary Jones Eny and Nicholas Eny. Ten of her 12 years in teaching have been at Walker Mill. In the Prince Georges County Reading Association, she serves as Legislative Chairman.

In 1979, Eny and her husband Glenn Wolf moved to 48 Court Ridge Road. In 1981, they moved to Lakeside where they live with son David, four, and daughter Laura, who will be two in June. Every summer they camp on the islands of Lake George in New York state, and they keep a boat in Calvert County. Wolf owns the Olympic Auto Parts firm on Greenbelt Road.

Being named an Outstanding Educator continues a family tradition of involvement in education. Eny's father was on the County School Board during the 1970's, as was Glenn's mother Ruth (Mrs. Robert) Wolf.

Did You Know?

* Did you know that the architect for the original North End School building and the 1944 addition to the Greenbelt High School (now the Greenbelt Middle School) was a woman? She was Victorine Homsey, member of the architectural firm of Homsey and Kleber. Because of a war-time shortage of paint, she could not make plans ahead for colors to be used on interior walls. Instead she was forced to depend on whatever was available at the time of construction.

Exercise Guide Available

"If exercise is supposed to be good for you," mumbles a disheveled participant as she staggers out of the fitness club, "Why do I feel so exhausted and sore?"

To help consumers avoid improper exercise classes, the Maryland Commission on Physical Fitness has developed a new pamphlet, "The Right Class for You—A Consumer's Guide to Exercise Classes." This pamphlet helps the consumer to identify an instructor who has been properly trained to teach an exercise class. For a free copy of this pamphlet, write the Maryland Commission on Physical Fitness, 201 West Preston Street, Baltimore, Md. 21201.

Paid Ad

To Greenbelt Citizens:

Nearly two years have passed since you entrusted the Greenbelt City Council with your vote of support for a six million dollar ($6,000,000) authorization to finance capital projects in a bond issue referendum on May 14, 1985.

When the referendum was approved the Council promised to obtain the advice of citizens and its Advisory Boards to determine priorities for implementing the bond program. However, Council has delayed taking action on this important matter. Major decisions have already been made on an ad hoc basis, without, in my view, full public participation. It now appears that further Council deliberations on bond issue topics could proceed without adequate public participation.

At the time of the referendum, the projects listed below were envisioned as possibilities for funding through bond proceeds. Your specific guidance will help me immeasurably in representing you during future discussions on these bond issue priorities, so please take the time to provide me with your opinion by assigning your preferred priorities in each category (1, 2, 3, etc.). After filling it out, you can either drop it in the mail, deliver it to my home address noted on the questionnaire, or have it picked up by giving me a call at 474-6440.

Thanks for your help.

Soccer News

by Manuel Pereira

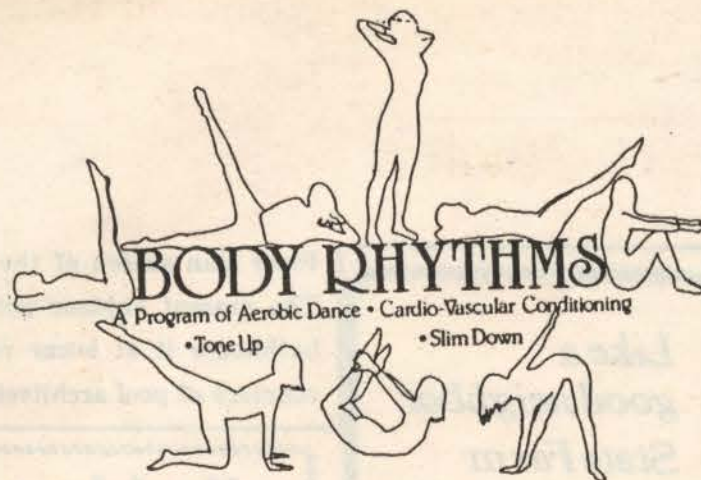

On April 12 the new Greenbelt 1976 soccer team played its first game in the National Capital Soccer League against the Waldorf Hurricanes. The final score of 0 - 4 doesn't reflect what happened in the game and was possible because of three difficult to report misfortunes of the Greenbelt defense, three generous Easter "gifts" that the experienced Hurricanes didn't fail to capitalize on.

In the first half with the help of a strong wind, Waldorf pressed but the Greenbelt defense, led by sweeper Jason Everhart with the strong support of fullback Shawn Wilson, was able to stop the quick and skillful opponents all but once when Waldorf scored the only goal that came as a consequence of their pressure. In the second half, Greenbelt controlled the game better, pressed the visiting team, created chances to score but the Waldorf goalie, and one time the pole, were "there".

Special mention should go to the Midfielder Peter Timer, center forward Etim Edim, and left wing Jason Harbin. The NCSL Greenbelt team showed that despite its inexperience it has the talent to go the distance in this top soccer league.

In last week's article giving the team roster, two players, Shawn Wilson and Adam Wheatley, were unintentionally omitted. Adam and Shawn have been stalwarts of Greenbelt youth soccer for years and we are proud to have them on the team.

This week we would like to welcome the Greenbelt Hilton as a team sponsor. Their contribution will cover the fees for the players to participate in a national or international tournament in the coming months. We greatly appreciate their support and community spirit!

POOL PLANS REVIEWED

no indication about the priority he would attach to any of the bond projects. The mayor acknowledged that it is frustrating when council delays making decisions but defended the delay because, he said, decisions would have been made "in a vacuum" if they had been made earlier. Weidenfeld pointed out that the council needed cost estimates and input such as the recent surveys made by the Community Relations and Park and Recreation Advisory Boards. He said that now this information is available the council should set priorities and, for those projects which won't fit it, a program should be set up.

Weidenfeld defended his recommendation to refer the matter of priorities to the strategic planning groups, saying it would give a balanced approach. He felt that the advisory boards provide public input since the advisory boards are made up of "independent citizens."

Other Views

Residents who attended the work session also had views on priorities. Betty Sonneveldt, president of the Aquatic Boosters, said she worked hard for the bond issue and "if we get everything else and not the (indoor) pool, I will feel misled." However, she urged council to decide so that, as she put it, she won't have to keep coming out to work sessions on the pool question.

Gail Drake, a swimming instructor, spoke out against what she termed "penny pinching." She said that in 10 years her city taxes had not gone up at all if the reduction in county taxes given to city residents is taken into account.

Joe Wilkinson, however, said he agreed with Putens' position—the question of building the indoor pool should be settled at the polls at a regular election since, he said, only supporters come out to special elections. Citing a list of tax increases being imposed on residents by the state and county, he maintained that only a referendum would be "fair to the citizens of this town."

Ann Pisano, a leading exponent of North End School renovation, said that "we all expected some sort of priority for our own project." She said she accepted the need to put the police station first but from that point on she wanted some sort of definite priority.

Pool Design

No specific criticisms of the preliminary pool design surfaced at the meeting. White insisted that some economies might be achieved if council scrutinized the plans more carefully. Putens asked White if he thought he could save $1.2 million (the approximate gap between the bond money available and the estimated cost of the indoor pool). Bram also noted that the architect had made the point that certain basics have to be included in any pool; she felt it would be difficult to make significant cuts "and still have a pool."

Sonneveldt approved of the design, saying that she was particularly pleased that it is a small facility which Greenbelt would be able to support. Drake also said she felt the design is good. She said that it answers the concerns of "some people who felt that Greenbelt wouldn't build a nice enough pool."

City Manager's Concerns

Weidenfeld started the meeting by asking City Manager James K. Giese to describe any concerns he had about the design. Giese said that he was pleased with the design on the whole but he did list the following subjects which need resolution: relation of the design to the work being planned for the Roosevelt Center; the status of the old bathhouse, the proposed service road, and the deck space in the plan. On the last point, he said he would like a little more deck space but that space is also needed for amenities which will bring patrons to the facility. He also noted that the encroachment of the service road on the green space behind the Center might be mitigated by landscaping.

Future of the Old Bathhouse

The architect's design for the pool complex does not really use the old bathhouse and Giese said that this question needs to be resolved. He felt that a decision needs to be made whether to keep the bathhouse or not; and if it is to be kept, it should be renovated and used. He also noted that there is no money available for such renovation.

Bram suggested that the bathhouse might be renovated and used as a senior center. Putens thought a before-and-after-school facility for children might be possible. White rejected Bram's suggestion, saying his reaction to the idea of a senior center in such proximity to the pool "was not too keen" because of the commotion from the pool. Sonneveldt noted that the amenities required for a children's care center would make the renovation very expensive.

Weidenfeld said that the bathhouse is being considered for renovation because of its historical significance. Bram then suggested that the facility be rebuilt and only the facade kept since that is the only part which has a visual impact on the surroundings.

PRAB Consideration

Wilkinson reported on PRAB consideration of the pool complex at a meeting on April 8. He said that PRAB strongly supported the renovation of the outdoor pool. The board had concluded, however, that a successful indoor pool would add considerably to the parking problems in the center. He said that PRAB did not intend to take a position on the advisability of constructing the indoor pool in its report.
