Pool Rates; Green Ridge Management Contract Are Among Council Topics

by Diane Oberg

The Greenbelt City Council, at its March 21 regular meeting, directed the staff to investigate the costs of conducting an independent traffic study of major development areas in the city. It also sought ways to force commercial property owners to maintain their property, and again deferred renewal of the management contract for Green Ridge House.

Swimming Pool Rates

The Recreation Department has recommended raising the admission rates for the outdoor pool to $100 for a family, $90 per couple and $45 per single adult. The department also recommended charging senior citizens, defined as anyone over 62, $15 per year. Currently seniors are granted free admission, families pay $80, couples $70 and singles $35.

Even with the increase, city pool rates remain lower than other area pools, according to a report by Recreation Director Harry G. Irving. The report shows family rates at other pools ranging from $163 to $267, and single rates between $80 and $158. Seniors received discounts of 20 to 60 percent at those pools.

The Park and Recreation Advisory Board (PRAB) supported the increases, noting that these rates would allow pool admissions, for the first time in several years, to cover operating expenses. PRAB also said that the move to charge a "nominal fee" to senior citizens is consistent with national trends.

In order to get the promotional literature printed in time for the pool opening, council plans to decide upon the new rates and pass the required legislation, under a suspension of the rules, at its April 4 meeting.

Green Ridge House

Council again deferred renewing Community Realty's contract to manage Green Ridge House. This item had been deferred at the February 22 meeting so that staff could solicit comments from the Tenants' Association. As of the March 21 meeting, no comments had been received. City Manager James K. Giese urged renewal, saying he had heard no complaints about the management agent and reminding council that there had been problems with earlier agents.

Councilmember Edward Putens mentioned complaints by unnamed residents of intimidation and name-calling as well as complaints that the management agent is not always present. He said he has suggested that these residents call the city manager and they have said that they cannot. He said he could not support renewal because of these complaints.

Councilmember Antoinette M.

Bram was concerned about the "fat" Green Ridge House budget. Giese agreed this was a problem, but he said the funds are received from the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development and by the State Community Development Administration and cannot be used for other purposes. He reminded council that they and not the management agent approved the Green Ridge House budget. Mayor pro tem Joseph Isaacs said that council can only act on the information it receives. Therefore, he said that in the absence of complaints by the Tenants' Association council should renew the contract.

Mayor Gil Weidenfeld suggested deferring the item to the April 4 meeting, with the staff contacting the residents in the interim. He said that the residents could comment confidentially, but that details of specific problems would be needed if the city were not to renew that contract.

Later, council deferred scheduling a worksession on the contract to allow staff time to survey the residents as suggested by Putens. The budget will be reviewed at a May 5 worksession.

Greenbelt Traffic Study

On a motion by Putens, council authorized the city manager to investigate the cost and feasibility of a city-wide traffic study to be conducted in phases. Phase 1 would focus on the Hanover Parkway/Greenbelt Road area. The Golden Triangle and Capital Office Park would be the subject of phases 2 and 3 respectively while phase 4 would consider other projects.

Putens said that independent information is needed to evaluate developers' claims about the traffic impact of their proposals.

Giese was uncertain of the usefulness of the project and requested time for staff to review it. He said that the developers' studies are prepared under parameters determined by the Park and Planning Commission and that studies are extensively reviewed by that agency. Because private traffic engineers make their living by preparing traffic studies for developers, Giese doubted that truly independent traffic engineers could be found.

Giese said that the city's engineer can review developers' studies, as was done with the Magnolia Farms traffic study. City Planning and Development Coordinator Celia Wilson said this took approximately four hours at $75 per hour.

Giese reported that City Solicitor Robert Manzi, who was not present, estimated the cost of a city-wide traffic study to be $75,000. Wilson said the proposed revisions to the Adequate Public Facilities legislation and guidelines, if adopted by the county council, would improve developers' traffic studies by requiring the use of current data and by accounting for pass-through traffic.

Weidenfeld was concerned that any study prepared would soon be obsolete. He suggested that a mini traffic study be conducted for particular projects and issues. Then, if the city's results do not agree with those of the developers, the need for an independent study will be clear.

Ruth Kastner suggested instead that each member of council be given a copy of the traffic generation rates table. She said that these tables, available free, provide an easy means of gauging developers' claims.

North End Center

Council referred to PRAB a recommendation by Giese that the city not pursue a state grant for the North End Center. The "Centering In" grant program provides funds for creating space for the arts.

Giese said that the most the city would receive would be $25,000, which it would have to match. Noting that this would fund the renovation of only one classroom, he recommended that the city not pursue such grants until it has a funding plan and program for the North End Center.

Barbara Simon of the Greenbelt North End Center Arts Coalition urged the city to apply. Although she recognized that the money would be inadequate, she said the coalition is exploring the idea of private foundation support and that the refusal to seek state grants would send the wrong message to possible private benefactors.

Zoning Enforcement

Council directed staff to survey the Golden Triangle, Beltway Plaza, Greenway Center and Commerce Center for possible

Greenway Merchants Oppose Silver Diner in Parking Lot

by Elaine Skolnik

Responding to recently announced plans to locate a new restaurant, the Silver Diner, in the Greenway Center, other merchants in the center have organized to oppose the move. The restaurant would be located in the northeast parking lot adjacent to the Standard Federal Bank and near the Safeway supermarket. It is projected to seat about 196 customers.

The proposal for the new restaurant, originally on the April 4 city council agenda, has been withdrawn at the request of the developer. (According to city officials, the developer is not ready to make its presentations.)

The plans have drawn fire from various merchants in the Greenway Center, including the Safeway management. In a letter of March 11 to Western Development Corporation, developers of Greenway, the Safeway Property Administrator, Michael B. Smith, said: "Safeway views the proposed diner as a serious threat to an already tight parking situation and, therefore, does not consent."

Smith's letter further noted: "Paragraph four of our shopping center lease agreement dated July 24, 1978 states in pertinent part, 'Following completion of construction of Phase I and/or any portion of Phase II, the sizes and arrangements of said buildings and common areas (including parking areas and traffic circulation and flow patterns) will not be materially changed without leasees' written consent, which shall not be unreasonably withheld. . . .'"

Other Merchants Respond

According to Berk Motley, Jr. of Jasper's, the overwhelming number of Greenway merchants intend to sign a letter addressed to the city council opposing the Silver Diner because of "the horrendous traffic flow at Greenway Center." Motley said the merchants in their letter will stress that "any addition would reduce the number of parking spaces available in the immediate area of the shopping center and, at the same time, increase the demand for parking spaces and add to the already congested traffic flow. Such a change," he said, "would create an unnecessary hardship for both citizens and the merchants."

"It seems to us," Motley added, "that the landlord should be directing its energies toward the solution of those problems—solutions that will make the center more user friendly."

Motley said that the merchants

Study Suggests Ways to Visually Unify Greenbelt East Using Green

by Diane Oberg

A new study, presented to the public at a March 15 meeting, suggests ways to combine the separate developments of "New Greenbelt" into a unified whole. New Greenbelt, or Greenbelt East, is defined as the triangular area adjacent to old Greenbelt bordered on the northwest by the Baltimore-Washington Parkway, on the Southwest by the Capital Betway and extending eastward to the city limits.

The study was conducted by the Prince Georges County Urban Design Section (UDS) of the Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission as part of the Planning Assistance to Municipalities and Communities Program. In its written report the UDS recognized the city's desire for a better integration of the old and new sections of the city. However, given the division of the city by the Baltimore-Washington Parkway and the Beltway, and the independent development of the new parts of town, the UDS focused on New Greenbelt itself.

In addition to recording all existing developments, trails and open space in New Greenbelt, the study group looked for potential unifying features, especially paths and green space.

As explained by Liora Hawmann of the UDS, a key concept of the plan resulting from the study, is a "ring and spine" system of green space. The study suggests that Hanover Parkway and Mandan Road be landscaped with trees along the median strips and along the roadsides. This would create a ring of green around the area. In addition, the creating of bikeways along both roads is suggested, in order to connect all local parks and schools to the residential streets.

Then, the existing green areas including the buffer areas for the Beltway and Parkway, two city parks (Mandan/Hanover Park in Greenbriar and Schrom Hills Park between), the larger wooded areas within the residential areas and Mandan Road and Hanover Parkway (which are to be tree-lined) would be connected with other "potential park-like sites" such as the grounds of Eleanor Roosevelt High School and the WSSC facility site. This would result in a "spine" of green space running from the city park at the northern end of the area down to the ballfields off Good Luck Road at the Beltway, just outside the city limits.

Hawmann said that much of New Greenbelt's conception of green space is the result of the undeveloped parcels in the southern part of the area. She said that given the rapid development of the remaining undeveloped parcels, the city must work fast to implement a plan to retain a system of open space. Such a plan would allow the city to work with the developers during their planning stages rather than trying to work around a finished project.

Hawmann said the spine would function as an internal pedestrian system independent of roads, similar to the inner walkways of historic Greenbelt. Several citizens saw some modern-day drawbacks to that concept. Arlene Petersen likened the spine to a system designed to help people get away after a crime. Dorothy Pyles, who called the violations of county code or their landscape plans. In addition, in preparation for a worksession, council directed staff to obtain rough estimates of the cost of screening the back lot of Beltway Plaza from the view of residents of Springhill Lake.

The motion arose from an agenda item requested by Putsens. He said that in many of the commercial lots in the city, the promised landscaping has died and not been replaced, and that the parking lots themselves have been poorly maintained, resulting in numerous potholes.

Bram described the lack of landscaping behind Beltway Plaza. Doubting that the owner would resolve these problems, she suggested that the city plant trees on its land behind the Plaza. Bram suggested that if here were not enough city land available the city could plant trees on Plaza property with the owner's permission. Weidenfeld suggested that the city try to work out an agreement with the owner whereby the city and owner would split the landscaping costs.

Councilmember Thomas X. White charged that the owner was in violation of orders from the Department of Water Resources relating to erosion on the hill between the Plaza and the county school bus lot. He recommended that council again meet with the owner for a comprehensive discussion of issues relating to the Plaza rather than focusing on landscaping alone.

Earlier in the meeting, Wilson had reported that the construction occurring at the Plaza is a second-floor addition to office space. She said that because the shopping center is not governed by either a site plan or a landscape plan and meets the county parking requirements, no approvals other than a building permit were required.

Arts Policy

Council accepted PRAB Report 1-88 recommending that the city establish an Arts Advisory Committee. PRAB outlined five goals for this committee, including encouraging citizen participation in a variety of high-quality arts opportunities established by the city; ensuring adequate and increasing funding for arts organizations and programs; and advancing policy goals through effective planning and cost-effective use of scarce resources.

According to the report, the Arts Committee would be an auxiliary committee of PRAB with one member appointed by the PRAB chairperson, one member each from performing, visual and literary arts groups, one art educator, two members of the business community and an ex officio representative of the Recreation Department.

The proposal also calls for the city to "Provide a first-class performing arts facility" possibly in the Utopia Theater, and to establish a visual arts center at the North End Center.

Council will consider this proposal at its April 4 meeting.

Legislation

Under a suspension of the rules, council unanimously passed an ordinance appropriating $25,000 for expenses related to the planning and design of Roosevelt Center and Centerway.

An ordinance authorizing the city to borrow up to $525,000 for the extension of Ora Glen Drive was introduced. The monies will be repaid by a special assessment on lot 3 of the Smith-Ewing tract. Commerce Center II is to be built upon this property.

Lloyd L. Moore

Long-time Greenbelt resident and civic leader Lloyd L. Moore, 72, died Friday, March 25, of congestive heart failure following a long illness.

Born in Mead, Oklahoma, Mr. Moore came to this area to attend what is now Columbia Union College. He and his wife, Louise, a fellow student, were married in 1937.

During and immediately after World War II, he was employed by the federal government to prepare for the sale of public housing projects to the private sector in Newport News and Portsmouth, Va.; Crossville, Tenn.; Hattiesburg, Miss.; and the three greentowns. When he and Louise fell in love with Greenbelt, he secured a permanent position here in 1947. Mr. Moore had become the chief fiscal officer of the Greenbelt project when it was sold at the end of 1952. He then returned to Takoma Insulators, Co., where he worked before the war. He retired after 35 years as company treasurer and chief fiscal officer.

Mr. Moore was a 30-year member of the Community Church. He was a key figure in the construction of the church building and, later, the Fellowship Center. A member of the church council for many years, he served a term as moderator and 15 years as treasurer. He and Louise were youth counselors when their two daughters were active in the program. "As a very shrewd businessman," say long-time family friends Sherry and Jay Brubaker, "he was a wonderful advisor for church business."

Mr. Moore maintained a keen interest in the new Greenbelt Veterans Housing Corporation, later Greenbelt Homes, Inc. He served on the fiscal and, later, finance committee from 1954 through 1962. When running for the board, he wrote in his biography: "I was instrumental in establishing several policies relative to accounting and financial affairs of the corporation." He served four terms on the board; treasurer, 1954, 1958-61; vice president, 1957-58. Mr. Moore also served on a number of committees: Mortgage Insurance, North End Property and Ad Hoc Committee on the Proceeds from the Sale of Land, 1958-59; Blue Ribbon Committee, 1964 (Moore was chairman of this first long-range planning effort). In 1964 Mr. Moore suffered a major heart attack, which curtailed many of his activities for a time.

Beginning in 1965 Mr. Moore, as head of Citizens for a Planned Greenbelt, was the community spokesman in its battles with the county government over the 1965 master plan and with the school board over the location of the three-school complex on Northway extended. Moore, who was a persuasive speaker, a fiscal conservative and a Republican, added weight to the pleas of New Deal Greenbelters, who were frequently scoffed at in those days in rural Upper Marlboro.

Moore was briefly tempted by Republican politics. He served as evening appointments secretary to Larry Hogan in an early bid for office. Mr. Moore entered the 1965 race for a seat on the city council, but was not successful.

The third Greenbelt organization to benefit from Mr. Moore's talents was the Lions Club. He joined in 1954, two years after the club was chartered. In 1956 he served as King Lion (president). Over the next 20 years he was selected to serve in many capacities and at many levels in District 22-C of the Lions International, including 10 years as treasurer of the local club. In 1963 he served a year as District Governor of the 60 clubs in District 22-C. "He was the only member of the Greenbelt Club to rise that high," says fellow Lion Ken Kennedy proudly. Mr. Moore was convention chairman in 1967 for all Districts in Maryland, Delaware and the District of Columbia. Lions International awarded him its highest honor in 1975—life membership. The Greenbelt Club made him an honorary member this year.

Mr. Moore enjoyed playing golf and traveling, mostly in this country. He and his wife celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary by taking a cruise from San Francisco to Alaska with their family last summer.

In addition to his wife, Mr. Moore is survived by two daughters, Constance L. Harman of Germantown, Md., and Patricia A. Mancuso of Potomac, granddaughters Terri L. and Robyn L. Mancuso, and a brother, Ansel D. Moore of Pembroke River, Fl.

A memorial service was held Tuesday evening at the Community church.

Memorial contributions may be made in his name to the Community Church or the Lions Club.

The Silver Diner as depicted in the Investment Summary issued by the Silver Diner Limited Partnership, developer of the restaurant. The proposed location of the diner is adjacent to the Standard Federal Bank in the northeast parking lot of the Greenway Shopping Center. According to the summary, the diner will seat 196 customers and provide affordable meals in a comfortable environment. The diner will be patterned after old-time diners but updated for modern tastes.

Merchants Oppose Diner

Merchants stand ready to work with all parties concerned in trying to correct the problem and make the center "one of which we may all be proud." He stressed that the merchants were not opposing the Silver Diner "from the standpoint of competition."

"I would be more interested in whether the citizens of Greenbelt think the Greenway Center can stand increased traffic," Motley said. He estimated that the proposed addition would generate about 800 additional cars per day.

Developer's Comment

When asked to comment, Linda Motta, Property Manager for Western Development, told the News Review that the lease with Silver Diner Limited Partnership has not been fully executed and that Western was awaiting results from two traffic studies. One study has been initiated by Western Development, she said; the other by Silver Diner Partnership.

Motta noted that representatives of Western Development had scheduled a meeting with officials of the Prince Georges Public Works Department to discuss the matter.

According to the report of the city's Advisory Planning Board presented to the city council on February 22, construction of the diner does not require subdivision approval since it is considered part of an integrated shopping center. The landscaping and site plans do require approval of the county Park and Planning Commission. APB recommended that the city indicate its approval of the site and landscape plans with conditions relating to handicapped access and relocation of trees affected by the construction.

GHI NOTES

The Finance Committee will meet April 5 in the Board Room. Free blood pressure testing will be offered April 6 from 10 to 4 p.m. in the Board Room. GHI will celebrate Arbor Day with a tree planting ceremony at 10 Court Southway beginning at 10:20 a.m. The board will meet at 8 p.m. on April 7.

Council Tidbits

by Diane Oberg

At its March 21 regular meeting the Greenbelt City Council:

- Voted to oppose state legislation lowering the maximum tax on movie tickets from ten percent to five percent. According to Assistant City Manager Michael P. McLaughlin, the city receives all the ticket tax revenue from the 16 theaters within the city limits. He said that the proposed reduction would cost the city approximately $250,000, a revenue loss equivalent to six or seven cents on the tax rate.

- Referred the master plan for the Roosevelt Center to APB and PRAB for review and comment. The boards will be asked to give first priority to decisions relating to the reconstruction of Centerway.

- Saw Nancy Battagliani of Sovran Bank present a check for $500 to the Greenbelt Museum.

Commerce Center Plans Expand As Space Leased in Building I

by Elaine Skolnik

The new Commerce Center I office building on the corner of Hanover Parkway and Greenbelt Road is 64% leased, according to Babi Meekins, leasing representative for the Rubin Companies. The firm, in a joint venture with the Midland Companies, has constructed the 126,000 gross square-foot angular shaped structure on seven and a half acres (Lot 1) of the 21.9-acre former Smith-Ewing tract. In June 1985 this entire property was rezoned to commercial from high rise apartment zoning, which would have permitted a maximum of 48 units an acre.

Midland-Rubin is also developing two buildings in materials similar to Commerce 1 on six and a half acres (Lot 3) at the southern end of the 21.9 acre property. A 75,500 square-foot three-story facility and a 46,089 square foot one-story building should be completed by the end of December 1988.

Recently the Greenbelt City Council gave Midland the green light to develop an office building on Lot 2, a five-acre tract situated immediately south of Commerce I. Original plans for a 144-suite Residence Inn Hotel on the lot were shelved and the owners could not find a buyer interested in carrying out the project.

According to Gary Modjeska, senior vice-president of Midland, and contract purchasers of Lot 2, the firm is preparing to submit a site plan for a "sister" building to Commerce 1. The Midland-Rubin Companies envision a "comprehensive business park" on the three lots.

Architect Alan Lockman has described the building style of Commerce I as "sensitive contemporary" with a stepped facade that was "created because of height limitations imposed upon us. We did not want a mammoth and scaleless building." The building features horizontal bands of deep red brick with warm simulated limestone texture trim. The insulated windows are green and the low mansard roof has a coppery green-like finish. The long face of the building parallels Hanover Parkway, with one access off Greenbelt Road and another off Hanover Parkway.

The main pedestrian entrance from the 450-car parking lot opens into a three story atrium lobby, which faces southeast. The lobby runs diagonally through the building, becoming only one-story high on the northwest side, which is at a lower elevation than the atrium lobby. The latter lobby features granite floors and planters, reflective ceilings and a decorative brass and glass staircase rising from the middle of a triangular garden to the second floor.

About 100,000 square feet will be utilized for office space on the second through the fifth floors and 19,000 square feet of retail space will occupy the first floor.

Mt. Vernon Realty Company, leasing 10,400 square feet and KCM Computer Consulting with 1,000 square feet have already opened their quarters in the building. Leasing 5,225 square feet is the China Pearl Restaurant, which is expected to open at the end of March. The American Automobile Association

GHI Considers Request from Co-op Nursery School for Building Sites

by Mavis Fletcher

On March 24, the board of directors of Greenbelt Homes, Inc. engaged in a preliminary discussion of a request from the Greenbelt Coop Nursery School that GHI consider allowing the school to build new quarters on GHI property. The school, which currently enrolls 60 pupils, is housed in the Greenbelt Community Church. Because the school anticipates future growth, it has formed a long-range planning committee to seek a new location.

Kristin Thomas, chair of the committee, emphasized that the committee has just started looking into various options. She said that the committee is exploring the idea of space at the North End School but has no assurance that renovations planned now will go beyond a senior center and senior day care. For that reason, she said, the committee is also looking at the possibility of building a new structure if land is available and if costs are within the reach of the school. She described the financial condition of the school as "stable" but indicated that there would be a limit to the amount of indebtedness the school could incur.

Janet Cantwell, director of the school, estimated the size of the needed building at 2500 square feet and the additional play space required as a minimum of 3500 square feet. Thus, the site would have to be at least 6000 square feet, less than one-quarter acre.

Thomas said that the school is planning to expand into before- and after-school care. At this time, she said they do not propose to provide full day care but acknowledged that this might be an option in the future.

During a brief discussion of the matter at a previous meeting, GHI General Manager Ron Colton had indicated that he would look into some factors, such as zoning, which might be involved in the decision and also review potentially suitable sites. At the meeting on March 24, he listed four sites as "possibles." The first, on property owned by a GHI subsidiary, the Greenbelt Development Corporation, is located on Parkway between the GDC garages and the firehouse; the second off Northway near the 50 Court of Ridge. The third site is near the 10 Court of Laurel Hill Road, where a boiler room was taken down, and the fourth is off Hamilton Place between the Boat and Trailer lot and the 36 Court of Ridge.

Colton briefly described the advantages and disadvantages of each site. After listening to the pros and cons, some members of the board said that the sites with the fewest problems appeared to be the Parkway or the Laurel Hill Road sites.

The board asked a number of questions to which there are no good answers at present. Director Mac Wirick asked what kind of financial arrangement with GHI is contemplated. Director Nancy Hutchins asked whether the school would be planning to buy or lease the land. Thomas said that the committee is just getting started and wanted to know whether the board would even consider the matter before actually working out a proposal. Director Ray McCawley pointed out that preparing a detailed proposal would cost the school money, which they would not want to spend on an unacceptable idea.

Hutchins summed up the dilemma when she said that there is no proposal to present to the membership at this year's meeting but at the same time the board cannot give a 'go-ahead' to the school without membership approval.

Director Betty Deitch said the burden should be on the school, not on the GHI staff, to determine the feasibility of the proposal. Audit Committee member Lucille Jacoby also questioned the amount of staff time which had been spent on this matter. Colton replied that he was familiar with most of the zoning considerations involved from investigation of other use proposals and that little staff time had as yet been spent on the inquiry.

Vice-president Wayne Williams, presiding in the absence of president Margaret Hogensen, said he was particularly interested in the question of insurance liability. Cantwell assured him that the school carried its own liability insurance. Director Chuck Hess said that he would like to see the proposal 'fleshed out.' Director Alan Freas said that he had reservations about the idea but would be willing to listen to details. The board by consensus (with Deitch not agreeing) took the position that they were willing to listen to a more detailed proposal.

New Orientation Plan

The board approved a new member interview process which

Antenna Regulations

The board received a report from the Architecture and Environment Committee which recommended several changes in the regulations governing outside antennas. The report recommended that GHI offer to remove (without charge) all unused antennas, that all outside antennas would have to be removed on resale and that new members not be allowed to construct such antennas.

The board instructed the staff to bring back specific recommendations on these proposals for the board's consideration.

Other Actions

The board voted to continue its membership in the Greenbelt Arts Center.

Colton informed the board that Wednesday, April 6, was the Annual Arbor Day celebration. This year the dead crab apple trees in Southway will be removed and replaced with pear trees and dogwoods.

The next meeting of the board of directors will be held on April 7.

Study of New Greenbelt

concept "interesting" was also concerned about planting large bushes and shrubs, saying that while this may have been appropriate 25 years ago, today people must consider safety.

Another aspect of the spine system that drew comment was the proposal to have these pedestrian paths cross Greenbelt Road. The study did not contain any details for how this crossing could be accomplished. Hawmann mentioned different paving materials to make drivers aware of the crossing. She did note that it will never be a "super-safe crossing."

Pyles objected to the crossing location, which Hawmann suggested might be in the vicinity of Frankfort Drive in Glen Ora. She said that this location is not safe even for left-turning cars due to poor visibility.

Paul Aggarwal, of Park and Planning, suggested that in time an underpass might be built. Hawmann agreed and suggested an overpass as an alternate.

Maryland Trade Center

The Greenway Center/Maryland Trade Center area was given special attention in the study. Hawmann described the Trade Center as a huge parking lot with little islands inside. She said drivers were faced with a lack of direction as to where to go.

The report calls for future development of additional buildings along with landscaped avenues and small parks. In order to make room for this development, parking garages would be required.

In the meanwhile, Hawmann suggested improving the access from Greenbelt East and improving Greenway Center Drive. She said that although this road is the main entrance into the complex, motorists drive along the back of the shopping center, then find themselves in the middle of a parking lot with little direction as to how to get to their destinations.

Hawmann said that landscaping and a focal point is needed - perhaps a traffic circle - along with adequate signage. A secondary network of driveways should be developed within the parking lot. She said this could be accomplished through landscaping.

To improve the entranceway to the trade park, Hawmann suggested that some of the Greenway Center stores could open to the back of the center. In front of Greenway Center, Hawmann recommended an arcade, perhaps with an outdoor cafe, between the shops and the parking lot.

Although it was not a part of the presentation, several of those present commented, none favorably, on the plans to place a restaurant in the Greenway Center parking lot.
