Council: Condo Zone for Sunrise, Increased Control in Metro Area

by Mary Lou Williamson The City Council agreed to recommend R-18-C zoning for the Sunrise property, and to support the Transportation District Overlay (TD-O) concept for the area surrounding the Metro station, when presenting Greenbelt's views on the county's proposed Sectional Map Amendment (SMA) on Tuesday, February 13. Thus council wrapped up discussion and voted on the few remaining SMA issues at its regular meeting on Monday, February 12.

Celia Wilson, the city's Planning and Development Coordinator, reviewed for council the several issues still needing a decision prior to the city's formal presentation by Mayor Gil Weidenfeld at the SMA public hearing the next evening. When approved, the SMA will rezone properties in the Langley Park-College Park-Greenbelt planning area in accordance with the Adopted Master Plan. The County Council, sitting as the District Council, has until May 31, 1990, to approve the SMA.

The Master Plan shows highdensity residential / commercial use for the Sunrise property, which is currently zoned R-10 (high rise residential). The developer has taken the necessary steps to protect his right to develop within the R-10 category.

In outlining the problem, Wilson reviewed council's opposition to its other options: C-O (commercial office building) offers no control over the size of the development that could be built, and with R-10 the density is too great. In recommending R-18, she pointed out that the zoning is compatible with the apartment/condominium residential development adjacent to the property, would provide a transition between the multi-family housing to the south and the office/retail to the north, and meets the community activity center guidelines as well or better than R-10. With Greenbelt already overloaded with multi-family dwellings, R-18 would add less than R-10.

Council agreed with the as-sessment. "R-18 will have the least (negative) impact on the city," said Weidenfeld. Council member Antoinette Bram asked council to further refine its recommendation to R-18-C (condo-miniums rather than rental property), which it did. At City Solicitor Robert Manzi's suggestion, council also agreed to ask that site plan approval be required for this property, regardless of the zone.

"Can't fight your logic," offered Sheldon Goldberg from Green-belt East. "No one wants to take a chance on C-O." The developer has offered to discuss commer-cial development only if the city agrees to 512,000 square feet as the minimum size. Council has been unwilling to consider more than 200,000 or 300,000 square feet.

TDO

A TDO is a zone superimposed over other zones in a designated area. Greenbelt had planned to seek a TDO designation for the area around the Metro sta-tion, rather than a CMX (mixed development zone), as the former offers more control over development. Wilson, however, found the TDO requires a plan showing the pattern of development in the area. Since no plan exists, a TDO designation would be premature. She suggested that the city instead ask that the area near the Metro station be subject to a TDO study and that the city wishes to be involved in all phases of the TDO planning, including setting the boundaries of the study area. Council agreed. Rick Meetre expressed his disappointment that more prominence was not given to environmental aspects in the presenta-tion. Specifically, he said, approximately one-third of the A. H. Smith property, the focus of a TDO, is wetlands, some of it valuable. If you have time for three or four points, he told council, then one major one should be the environmental concerns.

The master plan does show "significant environmentally sensitive areas," said Wilson, who acknowledged that the SMA ignores the issue. Council member Thomas X. White suggested including a sentence about environmental concerns within the TDO area and also attaching a copy of the letter council received from Carmen Turner, head of Metro, identifying the wetlands on the A. H. Smith property as valuable. Council agreed to those additions.

Green Springs Council, Wilson recommended could go ahead with the R-55 zone requested by Richmond American for Green Springs. The developer had provided the covenants they promised at the January 29 work session. The covenants would limit the number of homes to be built and insure city review at each planning step.

The Furey property, she suggested, should also be R-55 under the RPC overlay. While there are some plans for future development by the owners, the city was not ready to upgrade the zoning.

Greenbelt will also support the R-12 zone, as designated in the SMA, for the vacant land at Westchester Park. Council had previously supported this zoning.

A REVIEW Absorbing Drama Invades City Council Chambers by Barbara Likowski

"Nuts," by Tom Topor, the Greenbelt Arts Center's current production, though billed as a courtroom drama and entertaining as such, is much more than that. It is a study of motives, beliefs, mores, stereotypes, power, responsibility. Each member of the audience must look into himself/ herself to glimpse, however fleetingly, some of those emotions one does not readily admit to or often face. In being called upon to make a decision about the defendant, the that however much the members of the audience might squirm, their attention is held and they want to know more.

The play is set in a courtroom in the nsychiatric wing of Bellevue Hospital, where the defendant, a young woman accused of manslaughter, is being examined on her ability to stand trial. The word insane hangs in the air and its definition pulls at each member of the audience. What is insanity? Who decides who is insane?

Sally Hanna-Jones does a good job of portraying the cynical defendant, frustrated by the circumstances in which she finds herself so that at first she antagonizes the audience by her inane antics. Then gradually she gains their sympathy and even, in spite of the lifestyle she reveals, their grudging respect.

Credible performances are given by all the other members of the case. Frank Pearlman looks and sounds like one would expect a weary member of a large district attorney's office to sound. Tony Schiavone looks and sounds like the upcoming young lawyer he portrays. But it is Leonard Cohen as the defendant's stepfather and Norma Ozur as her mother who hold the audience riveted by what they reveal.

Psychiatrist Tom Zanner plays his part in such a way that one feels a chill when his promotion to a state mental health position is revealed at the end of the

Gypsy Moth Egg Masses Should Be Removed Now

Gynsy moth eggs will begin hatching around the middle of April. Now, before they hatch, homeowners should scrape egg masses off trees, wood piles, stone walls, or wherever else they may be found. The more egg masses removed, the fewer caterpillars that will hatch in the spring and begin their ascent up trees to devour leaves.

Egg masses are light brown in color, oval in shape, a feit-like texture, and can be as large as 1½ inches long and ¾ inch wide. They are mainly found on the branches or trunks of trees but may also be located on any outdoor object.

Because small hairs on the egg masses may cause a rash, it is best to use gloves when removing the egg masses. Using a putty knife, scrape the egg masses into a paper or plastic bag, secure it tightly and dispose of it in the garbage. Be careful not to let the egg mass fall to the ground or blow away. This will spread the eggs around and they will still hatch.

By scraping egg masses, residents can do much to protect the trees on their property. Any questions may be directed to Eric Berlin at 474-8000.

FLASH

The jury trial in the condemnation of Parcel 1, expected to begin on February 20, has been postponed until May. A new date has not yet been set, viewer also decides some things about himself. It is to the credit of the cast David Wilson, Jack Carlson and Trix Whitehall aptly perform in the supporting roles.

Directed by Mary Lou Fisher and produced by Virginia Zanner, the play is staged in the Greenbelt city council chambers, giving the feel of a courtroom. How-ever, seating is limited. This is not a play for children, not even mature children, or for any persons who object to graphic language. For those who dare to be challenged to think while being entertained, and not just amused, it should be an evening well spent.

Performances are slated for Fridays and Saturdays, February 16, 17, 23, 24 and a matinee at 2 p.m. Sunday, February 18.

City Sells Bonds

The city's $2,100,000 bond issue was purchased on Thursday, Feb-ruary 8 by Merrill Lynch Capital Markets for an average interest rate of 7.0675 percent. The city again received a better interest than most other municipalities with the same bond rating, according to pleased city officials. The bonds, which are dated February 1, 1990, are in denominations of $5,000 or integral multiples thereof. Bonds mature each of the years 1991 through 2010. Rating

Standard and Poors has again given Greenbelt an A-plus bond rating, according to Alex Brown and Sons, underwriters for the Greenbelt bonds. City officials went to New York last month in hopes of improving that rating, but were not successful. Factors which weighed against Greenbelt were the small size of the community with limited growth potential, the ratio of apartments to owner-occupied homes (although they noted the ratio has improved in the past few years), and an economic base that relies on office development.

Funds

The bond issue combines funds for three separate purposes. One million is the remaining unsold portion of the $6 million bond issue approved by voters in 1985 and will be used toward either the purchase of Parcel 1 or the construction of an indoor swimming pool. Last year the voters approved $1 million for the immediate construction of the Schrom Hills Park in Greenbelt East. The remaining $100,000 will finance a portion of Ora Glen Drive, with the costs to be assessed to the owners of Commerce Center II, the adjacent property.

Council member Thomas X. White agreed with Field that council should hear from the affected public to "get a better sense. . . . safety impels us."

Council, in the past, has been reluctant to construct sidewalks without majority support of the homeowners on the street affected.

Earth Day

Tom Barlett, who heads up planning for a celebration of Earth Day 1990 on April 22, invited council's interest and support. Activities for the day, he said, will include information on recycling and precycling of household products, adopt-a-lot, cleanup days, and a small parade from the center to the lake ending with a "hands around the lake event.' Barlett asked council for a proclamation for Earth Day in Greenbelt to "show support for environmental concerns." White speculated "we might

GREENBELT LAFFTERS

On Wednesday evening, January 4, the LAFFters had the walls and windows in the multipurpose room at the Youth Center moving and shaking. The occasion? A rousing "New Year's Eve" dance. Members and counselors danced to disco music, wore party hats and party clothes, filled the air with the sound of noise makers and popping balloons, and cheered on John, a talented LAFFTER, as he sang along with the music.

Nine o'clock was the witching hour, with everyone counting the seconds. A toast was made over sparkling apple cider, and hugs, kisses, and Happy New Year greetings were plentiful. All hated to see the festivities end and looked forward to the nex* one.

January 20 the members On of LAFF, Leisure Activities for Fun and Friendship, visited the Space Museum and viewed a movie on the large screen there.

Tax Changes Ease Filing

Maryland state income tax-payers will benefit from several changes on the 1989 state return, according to the State Comptroller. The filing deadline is April 16.

One major change is use of tax tables by most taxpayers, in place of the old mathematical formula. This will make computing the tax easier and help eliminate math errors. More people will be able to use the Maryland short Form 503 because there is no longer an income limit and more senior citizens can file the short form. A series of questions on the back of the short form lets taxpayers decide if they can use it.

Maryland's personal exemption has been increased; and taxpayers 65 or older, or blind, are now eligible for the regular personal exemption plus a special exemption. For the first time, taxpayers will be able to calculate the dollar value of their personal exemptions in the exemptions area on the form. The minimum stardard deduction amounts have also been increased.

Taxpayers are asked to include a new subdivision code on their returns, based on a list in the tax packet. This will help make sure local governments receive their fair shares of local income taxes, and will speed up refund checks.

A special worksheet in the tax packet will help taxpayers determine if they are eligible for the new poverty level income tax break. Members of the military with active duty overseas pay in 1989 should look in the instructions for possible exclusion of up to $15,000 of that income from state tax.

The contribution feature for the Chesapeake Bay and Endangered Species Fund begun last year is again on the return forms. The Comptroller encourages taxpayers to contribute.

Free Tax Help

Maryland income tax offices will offer free state tax assistance Mon. through Fri., 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. until the April 16 filing deadline. There will be extra hours on all state holidays and certain weekends. Addresses and phone numbers of tax offices are on the back of the tax packet and in telephone directories.

Storytellers Perform At Greenbelt Library

Friends of the Greenbelt Library are bringing three outstanding performers to the library on Saturday, February 24, at 2 p.m. Through the ancient art of storytelling, Marvel Abayomi-Cole, Margery Maidman and Bill Mayhew will take their listeners to many parts of the world, Marvel Abayomi-Cole wears a colorful African dress as she delights her audiences with tales from Africa. She has been telling stories professionally for 12 years in festivals, schools, churchmuseums and government buildings. She is a member of the Association of Black Storytell-

Margery Maidman likes to help her young audiences explore their imaginations and become actively involved in the stories. She has performed for the past six years at parties, festiva's. schools and other places. She specializes in Jewish stories but tells stories from all over the world.

Bill Mayhew, who is already a celebrity among local school children, comes from a long line of storytellers and has been telling stories himself all his life. He tells some wonderfully funny stories but he also tells some that give his audience a scare. He is actively involved in storytelling in the Washington area and has organized the storytelling stage for the Washington Folk Festival.

Castaldi Elected WSTC Vicechair

Richard Castaldi, Prince Georges County Councilman, has been elected vice-chairman of the Washington Suburban Transit Commission (WSTC). He will through calendar year serve 1990.

The Commission was created as a bi-county agency under state law in 1965. Castaldi has been a member since 1982.

The commission is composed of seven members, three each appointed by the County Executives of Montgomery and Prince Georges Counties, and a representative of the State Secretary of Transportation. The Commission is the financial conduit for Metro funding by the state and the two counties. It also coordinates the efforts of county and state agencies who have an interest in Metrorail and Metrobus plans, funding, and operations.

Chamber Names Pickard P.G. Teacher of the Year

Dorothy Pickard, director of orchestras at Eleanor Roosevelt High School has been chosen by the Prince Georges County Chamber of Commerce as one of three teachers to receive the Teacher of the Year Award. 'the award was presented at a luncheon at the Greenbelt Sheraton on January 29.

Pickard began the string program at Roosevelt with 11 students. The school now has three orchestras: an 80 member symphony orchestra, a 52 member concert orchestra, and a chamber orchestra. Mrs. Pickard was named the String Teacher of the Year by the American String Teachers Association in 1981 and Maryland Music Educator of the Year in 1980. The symphony orchestra won acclaim after its trip to Vienna, Austria in 1982, where they won a Silver medal. It was one of two high school orchestras in the nation to be selected to perform at the Music Educator's Conference in Chicago in 1984.

Members of chamber groups from the orchestra perform at civic events in the county.

Pickard is a well-known string coach, adjudicator, and conductor in the area. For years, she has worked with the Prince Georges County Youth Orchestra, and has been honored by the Prince Georges Philharmonic for her work with strings.

She has been chosen to conduct the Anne Arundel County Orchestra Festival in 1990.

COUNTY OFFICES LINKED TO METRO BY THE BUS

Effective January 15, Prince Georges County is providing new local bus service between Upper Marlboro and the New Carrollton Metro Station and expanded bus service to the Addison Road Metro Station. The service is provided weekdays between 6 a.m. and 7 p.m. Buses operate every 40 minutes during rush hours and every 80 minutes during non-rush hours. Fares are $.75 for children and adults and $.35 for senior and disabled citizens. There is no charge for children under age five.

The new buses, painted with red, black and grey stripes on white, are identified with the name, Prince Georges THE PUS, and logo, showing a bus inside a square. Route 21 between the New Carrollton Metro station and Upper Marlhoro will run along Landover/Largo Road and serve the county buildings and courts

GHI Board Discusses Privacy Screening, Siding by Pat Scully

The annual membership meeting of Greenbelt Homes, Inc. (GHI), will be held Wednesday, May 16 at Center School. The GHI board of directors addressed this and a variety of other topics at its regular meeting of January 25, including privacy screens, the draft revised and amended Articles of Incorporation, masonry repairs, siding and sheds.

Meeting

After General Manager Ronald Colton announced that staff had verified that Center School is available on May 16, the board adopted that date for the annual meeting. The question of hiring a parliamentarian for the meeting was raised. That and other annual meeting issues will be worked out by the Audit Committee and the board.

Privacy Screens

James Maher, chair of the Aesthetic and Environment Committee, presented their report on privacy screens regulations. The committee recommended changing the maximum length of such screens from 16 feet to 8 feet. In addition, the group suggested two styles for wooden screens, either "alternate board" or "basket weave." Both of these styles present an equally attractive face on either side of the screen. Under the suggested policy, members with units on the periphery of GHI who wish to erect privacy screens along the outward-facing property lines would not be required to obtain written approval from the neighbor, since neighbor would not be a GHI member.

The board referred the report to management.

Articles

revised Colton presented draft of proposed revisions to the Articles of Incorporation, reflecting the changes decided on by the board at its last meeting. What should the next step be, he asked. Director Mac Wirick noted that the Articles are designed to be generic, with the Bylaws providing specifics. The Board is interested, he said, in giving members the opportunity to review the draft, not to rewrite the Articles.

A number of options were discussed and discarded. The draft could be submitted now for review by attorneys. A committee of members could be appointed to review the draft, prior to the attorneys' review. It could be deemed that members had had ample opportunity for input and discussion during the board meetings at which the draft Articles had been repeatedly discussed.

Instead, the board agreed to hold a hearing to give interested members an opportunity to review and provide comments on the proposed changes to the Articles of Incorporation.

Masonry Repairs

The board approved for fist reading a contract for masonry repairs to the F-J row of 6 Court Hillside. Geotechnical Services. had provided its final report, stating that the building movements of the row have ceased. Staff had solicited bids from contractors to make repairs to the brick and mortar joints. GBC Contractors was the low bidder, for $6,525.

Siding

Two siding issues were discussed, one vinyl and the other mineral. The board on first reading authorized the expenditure of up to $3,000 to purchase vinyl siding and trim pieces. The board, at its December 7 meeting, had directed staff to maintain an adequate stock of the remaining colors of eight-inch horizontal siding. Since the required purchase was not covered by the 1990 budget, a board motion was necessary to use part of the frame homes replacement reserve for this investment in siding.

A member who lives in one of the pre-fab homes with mineral siding had reported to staff that he was unable to find a contractor willing to paint the original siding. The contractors believed that the asbestos contained in the siding might be friable and ered friable and that the state places no restrictions on its removal or disposition. Staff had also talked with a local contractor who was willing to undertake painting or replacing the existing siding. The prices quoted by the contractor were rather high. Since other members living in mineral-sided homes might be interested and a group rate might be obtainable the board directed staff to poll the court to determine who would be interested in such a project and report back to the board.

Shed

A member who lives in one of the free-standing homes had requested an exception to the shed regulations. The member had begun construction of a shed 10 feet long, 15 feet wide, and 10 feet high. The maximum allowable dimensions are a total of 100 square feet and a maximum height of 8 feet. The member had begun construction believing the free-standing homes were exempt from the regulations. (Staff had issued a stop-work order.) A review of the minutes from 1967. when the homes were built, found no discussion of this topic.

Because the shed is located down a hill behind the home, its greater size will be visible only to one neighbor. The board agreed to grant an excention regarding floor area but not to the height restriction.

Volunteer Training Held at Hospital

Greater Laurel Beltsville Hospital is offering an orientation for volunteers on Saturday, February 24 from 10 a.m. to noon at the hospital. Members of the community are warmly encouraged to attend. Following orientation, a training session for teenagers will take place from 1 to 3 p.m. Volunteers must be 14 years of age to attend the February 24 orientation.

Volunteers are needed to run errands, perform light clerical duties including filing and copying, and assist with patient-related activities throughout the hospital, Monday through Sunday

For additional information. please call Carolyn Carchedi, director, Volunteer Services, 407-7950.

The A&E committee will be reviewing shed regulations in the near future and will address the question of an exemption from the regulations for the freestanding homes.

1099'S ON THE WAY

The state recently mailed more than 815,000 Form 1099Gs to Maryland taxpayers. Under federal law, the Income Tax Division must send the 1099G information forms to taxpayers who itemized deductions last year and received refunds from the state. This form shows the full amount of the taxpayers' refunds, including those portions of the refunds contributed to the Chesapeake Bay and Endangered Species Fund or applied to 1989 estimated taxes. Although the actual refund check excluded these uses of the money, federal law says that taxpayers received the benefit of the full amount of their eligible refund. The refund amount on the 1099G must be reported as income on 1989 federal tax returns. Contributions to the Chesapeake Bay and Endangered Species Fund may be deducted by those taxpayers who itemize. For more information, call 974-3701 or 459-2710.

CITY NOTES

(Continued from page one) proceed with the condemnation of Parcel 1. He is satisfied with the work the city has done to prepare for the trial which will begin in the Court House in Upper Marlboro on Tuesday, February 20 at 9 a.m. The trial, he said, could take four days. Manzi fold council he is confident that "we will present a very good case." He is concerned, however, about rumors he has heard that eager citizens might show up at the court house wearing tee shirts and carrying placards. This kind of demonstrating, he said, was not a strategy to be used to influence a judge and jury. Also, vocal indications of support within the court room would anger a judge who expects decorum in the court room, he cautioned. Mayor Gil Weidenfeld urged citizens to heed Manzi's advice.

Douglas Love gave his wholehearted support to Manzi's requests. No tee shirts or placards would come to Upper Marlboro with the members of the Committee to Save the Green Belt, he guaranteed. Also, he said, we will remove our neighborhood count-down sign before the inry is brought to view the site. (This morning in court the judge contined the trial until May.)

City-wide Crime Watch?

Asking that citizens become the "eyes and ears all over the city." Mayor Gil Weidenfeld proposed the city "help develop a citywide citizens crime watch program." The business community could help finance needed equinment and the Crime Prevention Committee (CPC) and the city's police department could develop the procedures. He asked council to refer the proposal to the CPC for comment. Hal Silvers, CPC chairman, told Weidenfeld, "You took the words right out of my mouth." Many of the local crime watch groups, successful in the past, have waned. He was eager to have his committee accent the mayor's challenge, a challenge they had already determined to take up with council. Wetlands Walk?

Rick Meetre asked whether the city had had any response from the owners of the A. H. Smith property to their request for an inspection/walk on the property. Council member Ed Putens read the response from the owner's attorney, Kennon Scott, stating "My client would not be interested in a plan that would involve taking additional land from him for the Metro Green Line. For that reason, the property inspection suggested by you would not be necessary."

Council asked staff to review the complaints of citizens about conditions on the property and make suggestions. A sand and gravel operation, said City Manager James K. Giese, must be regulated by a state agency and he would look into it. He also noted that the promised response from the Corps of Engineers to Greenbelt's concerns about wetlands and the Metro train yard has not been received. He will follow up there also. Other Actions

On first reading, council is prepared at its next meeting to: -Double the penalty for illegally parking in a handicapped parking space from $25 to $50.

-Establish a Capital Improvements Fund III to accept the proceeds of last week's bond sale of $2,100,000 that portion to be used for Schrom Hills Park. Council took final action on the following items: -Authorized purchase of a 20-ton, tri-axle dump truck for $20,000 from Albert Breeden.

Approved a new design for the Hunting Ridge Club sign.

-Authorized payment for professional services of Jack Blevins & Associates for planning work to be used in the condemnation trial, and for Schnabel Engineering Associates, Inc. for soil testing beneath the employees parking lot at the new police Both will exceed the station. $5,000 limit which requires coun-cil approval for a negotiated purchase.

-Authorized additional fees to be paid to Wooden & Benson for extra costs resulting from the departure of the city's accountant just prior to the end of the fiscal year.

-Approved the bid of G. L. Cornell Company for $8,997 for a hydraulic sprayer with hose, host reel and spray gun.

-Approved the request for a new temporary position of lieutenant allowing the chief of police to appoint a replacement im-mediately for Lt. Phil Coombs, who will retire in June.

-Accepted the resignation of Charles Fuchs from the Crime Prevention Committee.

-Appointed John F. Lynch and Galena R. Gaponava to fill the two openings on the Crime Prevention Committee.

-Directed staff to send a let-ter to Safeway asking that their store in Greenway Center be added to the list of those now offering an experimental delivery service and a similar letter to Co-op asking whether they would be interested in providing such a service.

"Things are happening on a much bigger scale, though. Not long ago on television they an-pany was having trouble getting a mouch, and right after that was a commercial from chat same company saying you'd never have trouble putting your calls through using their service." "I remember chuckling about that," I said.

"And did you chuck'e when the news report that oat bran isn't what it's cracked up to be was followed by a commercial from a cereal company extolling its oat flakes?"

"The cracked oat I was eating was crackling so hard that I must not have heard the commercial,' I evaded.

She looked at me rather sternly. "I'm not sure oat bran is the only thing cracked around here " she admonished.

"Almost you convince me," said I. "What other evidence do you have?'

"What would you call it when an official in this county and one in the D of C both get into the same hot water in the same week?'

"A very lar"e bath tuh?" I

"Don't you get sassy," she warned. "And speaking of hot water, your late Uncle Sylvester. .

"Late Uncle!" I yelped. "What happened? I thought he was perfectly healthy!"

"Of course he's healthy. But you have to admit he's always late, I've been expecting him for the last half hour. He's got to check the hot water heater."

"And speaking of late," I said, "if I don't leave soon I'l be late for an appointment."

"Now isn't than a cohinkydinky," marvelled Aunt Hepzebiah.

If you can negotiate a lower price or better terms than the original offering, you may possibly save yourself some money, but you could risk losing a home you really love in the process,

If your offer is below the sellers' bottom line, they will probably make you a counter offer. If your bid is too low, you run the risk of offending them. Your offer may not be taken seriously -especially if it is far below market value.

Another risk is that while you and the sellers are trading offers and counter offers, another buyer may come in with a more attractive bid. If this happens before your negotiations are concluded, your sellers may accept the competing offer. Before you decide what kind of offer to make, weigh the benefits and risks of going in with a lower price than what the sellers are asking. We live in the richest country in the world - in fact the richest country that has ever existed in the world. Food is available to Americans cheaply and abundantly, more so than to anyone ever, except to royalty. Our children are healthier and fatter than anywhere else, past or present. So why do doctors hear the frequent plaintive cry: "my child doesn't eat anything. What can I do to make him eat?" It is fascinating to observe mothers of healthy, chubby babies worry about their children's poor appetite!

In this article I shall try to instruct parents when to worry but mainly when NOT to worry about their children's poor eating habits.

Most parents have a pre-conceived notion about how much a child should eat, and if their children fail to measure up, they push, cajole, nag, and worry. Meal-time becomes a war zone, and everybody is unhappy. The children learn to use eating as a weapon in their battle for control. Parents, therefore, must learn to think in a reverse manner from the way they usually think; it is NOT that children don't eat, therefore they are small and thin; it is that children's hereditary factors guide them to be small and thin, therefore they don't eat more than necessary for their condition. Parents must learn to consider the child first; is he healthy and is he growing at a steady rate (following his growth chart properly)? If the answers are yes, then how much he eats is unimportant.

The proper way to encourage a child to eat is as follows: do NOT discuss eating. Set up a "buffet table" at meal time consisting of several acceptable dishes. Let the child help himself to whatever he wants and as much as he wants. Make no comments. Meals should be leisurely and pleasant affairs - try to imitate sit-com families from the 1950's like "Father Knows Best" or "Leave It To Beaver." Discourage between-meal snacks, and cut down on milk, which has little else besides empty calories. (The child gets enough calcium elsewhere. If milk is essential, give skim milk, or, at worst, 2% milk.)

Sometimes a poor appetite may be a sign of disease. A sudden fall in appetite is worrisome, especially if it is accompanied by weight loss, fatigue, and ill appearance. If you notice other symptoms accompanying a poor appetite (vomiting, diarrhea, fever, lethargy) call the doctor right away and discuss the matter.

Remember, what you want is NOT an "eating child," but a healthy, well-adjusted, growing child.

Dick Good & Jim Drake Lead Greenbelt Runners by Larry Noel

The D.C. Road Runners held the 26th annual 20 and 10 mile races in Greenbelt on December 23. Because of the unusually cold weather (12 degrees at the start) race officials had decided to cancel the 20 mile race. When this announcement was made 36 runners strongly objected, particularly a group who had come up Richmond, VA. from After strong warnings of the danger of hypothermia, the possible absence of volunteers on the course after the 10 mile race was completed, and the opportunity of stopping after 10 miles, both

In the 20 mile, Dick Good, 60, was 28th and the only Greenbelter to finish - 2:53:05. Good is an ultra distance runner, running 50 and 100 mile races. The 20 mile race was won by a master runner (40 years of age or older) Bennett Beach, 40, Bethesda, Md. in 1:58:53. Beach had won this race last year in 1:58:15. Second was Pete Landergan, 33, Richmond, Va. in 2:00:52. The leading female runner was Hiroko Smith, 40, Annandale, Va. in 2:34:32 over Pamela Foley, 30, Gaithersburg, Md. in 2:44:08.

In the 10 mile Jim Drake, 42, was the first of six Greenbelters to finish, 5th in 1:05:00. Other Greenbelters were: 12th, Tom Winkert, 25, in 1:10:52; 24th Bob Mongelli, 49, in 1:18:40; 28th Dave Chitwood, 39, in 1.22:-04: 29th Sid Conger. 60, 15 1:22:

40; and 33rd Joe Broderick, 51 in 1:25:08. First place in the 10 mile went to Jim Porterfield, 42, Bethesda, Md. in 1:01:27 with Wayne Cottrell, 27, Wush-ington, D.C. second in 1:02:10. Donna Elliot, 29, Fort Washington, Md. was the first female in 1:06:20 with Chris Stockdale, 45, of Takoma Park, Md. second in 1:14:59 setting a new masters record for this race,

The safety of the runners on this cold day was greatly improved by the presence of a mobile radio communications team led by Bill Shook. This team (REACT) had their base operator Myrna Burchick at ber Greenbelt home. Volunteers who helped DC RRC officials Larry Noel and Shalon Fisher put on this race included Bob Mongelli, Ray McCaw'ey, Bill Clarka John Noel and Jerry Conway. The use of the Youth Center and the cooperation of the Greenbeit Recreation Department was much appreciated.
