As visitors pass the entrance of the courthouse and proceed to the garage, they will view Sanborn's sculptural site as it appears in this photo. In the foreground is the stone wall over which there will be a waterfall. Nearby will be seating areas partially concealed by clusters of ornamental grass. A serpentine walk leads to a copper cylinder perforated with 2500 letters and symbols. At night, a light within the cylinder will cast the characters onto trees and buildings.

Courthouse Artwork Okayed

by James Giese

The General Services Administration has given the go-ahead to Washington artist Jim Sanborn to undertake his proposal for outdoor art work at the new Federal Courthouse in Greenbelt. Sanborn had been selected a year ago from a group of 13 artists interested in creating the art work under the Federal Art-in-Architecture Program.

Sanborn will cite his work on a rectangular area located between the main entrance to the courthouse and the parking garage. The road to the garage borders one side and the sidewalk between the garage and the main entrance borders the other. Since the architecture of the building and surrounding landscape is formal, Sanborn proposed creating a more casual site offering visitors and building inhabitants a place for (refuge,) respite and rumination. Sanborn calls his work "a landscaping and also a sculptural plan."

Grassy Mound

Anyone approaching the site on the entrance drive will see a grassy, treed mound with a low, stone wall facing toward the entrance road. Located in the center of the wall will be a waterfall flowing into a small pool. Seating areas both above and below the wall will be partially secluded behind ornamental grasses. Other trees and shrubs will landscape this area.

A serpentine walk, constructed of hard packed gravel and edged with steel, will lead from the entrance plaza to the northern end of the site its highest point. The sidewalk will circle a cylinder of thin copper sheeting. Trees will ring the sidewalk. Using a high compression water jet, approximately 2,500 letters and symbols will be cut into the cylindrical sheeting. If funds permit, there may also be bands of copper with perforated characters between the layers of stone in the waterfall.

In the daytime, the whole area around the cylinder will seem to move as daylight streams through the perforations of the metal casting shapes of the letters and symbols upon the ground. At night, will be even more dramatic when a 150-watt metal halite light placed in the center of the sculpture's base projects the characters upon the trees and buildings.

Symbolism

The entire area is intended to be symbolical, particularly representing the recent archeological findings at the site. These establish that in 9000 B.C. a Paleo-Indian culture inhabited the area, using the land as a quarry for creating projectile points. Six hundred shards of pottery and other items, including 27 projectile points, were retrieved from the site.

Sanborn also notes that the resulting system of government in the United States is based in part on the Iroquois model and that Benjamin Franklin consulted with the Iroquois to gain insight into their legal and governmental system while developing the U.S. Constitution.

Native American culture is represented in the serpentine walkway and the rounded plateau shape of the area both reminiscent of mound building. Because Cherokee and Algonquin languages were common systems of communication at the time of the group's first contact with Europeans, the characters from these languages will be engraved into the metal cylinder. There will also be images such as the projectile points in both ancient and modern shape.

According to Sanborn, the most time-consuming aspects of this commission will be developing the cylinder's symbolic text and subsequently scanning each individual letter and symbol into a computer system. He believes that the whole process could take up to one year.

Art Panel

As part of the selection process for the Art-in-Architecture Program, the General Services Administration appointed an advisory panel consisting of art professionals and community representatives to provide recommendations throughout the commissioning process.

Panel members were: Jennifer Gibson, Arts Division of Maryland-National Capital Parks and Planning Commission; Barbara Simon, Greenbelt artist; Thomas X. White, Greenbelt City Council Mayor Pro Tem; James Giese, retired Greenbelt City Manager; Kevin McDonald, artist; Anne Palumbo, Program Coordinator

GHI Chooses New Manager

by David Morse

The GHI Board of Directors has appointed a new general manager, according to Al Freas, president of GHI. She is Gretchen Overdurff, of Rochester Hills, Michigan, a suburb of Detroit. She will report for duty on January 3.

Overdurff has been resident manager of Avon Hills, a 197-unit housing co-operative in Rochester Hills, since 1984. She is employed by the firm that manages the complex under contract with the co-op's board of directors. One of the co-op's pioneers, she has been a very active member for nearly 23 years.

Overdurff has been active in other cooperatives as well. She is a board member of the Avon Hills Food Cooperative and founded the Avons Baby Sitting Co-op. She has also been involved with numerous church and civic groups, including service with a drug awareness program and with several groups that counseled young people. She is also trained in mediation, having served as a mediator with a program run in conjunction with the Small Claims Court in her area. She is currently Executive Secretary for Chrysler Corporation's Customer Arbitration Board.

Having lived so long in Michigan, it will be hard leaving, said Overdurff in a telephone interview. But she said she had been mulling such a step for about a year before seeking the GHI position. "I was ready for a change," she said, adding, "I'm really excited about coming, and I'm looking forward to meeting the members." She is originally from Reading, Pa., so living near the East Coast will not be entirely unfamiliar to her.

Overdurff was elected by unanimous vote, said Freas, "I'm fully confident that she will be an excellent manager." GHI Board member Chuck Hess also voiced his support. "She has excellent people skills," he said.

GHI Special Membership Meeting Called for Dec. 5

A special Greenbelt Homes, Inc. (GHI) membership meeting has been scheduled for December 5 at 2 p.m. at the Greenbelt Elementary School. A petition was received by GHI's secretary signed by more than 50 members to call a special membership meeting. The petitioners are concerned about GHI's new budget proposal which would increase the members' monthly charges by an average of 4.2%. The group petitioning feels that so far, the Board has not proposed a single reduction in personnel cost. The petitioners want the following to be considered: "That the GHI budget be kept at or below the total members' charges for 1993, $5,938,605. That the GHI members assert their authority to approve or disapprove the annual budget at special membership meetings."

Street Parking Regs Near Metro Studied

by Diane Oberg

Possible parking restrictions near the Greenbelt Metro station will be discussed at the November 22 regular meeting of the Greenbelt City Council. Among the options council could consider are permit parking and prohibiting or restricting parking on Cherrywood and Ivy Lanes.

At a November 15 work session on the city's trail plan, Council members Thomas White and Edward Putens expressed concern that when the Metro station opens next month, motorists seeking to avoid paying to park in the Metro lot could overwhelm nearby city streets. The two shared tales of areas around other stations where people park surprisingly long distances from the station to obtain free parking.

Director of Planning and Development Celia Wilson thought the areas most likely to be affected are Cherrywood Lane between the station and Greenbelt Road and the adjacent Springhill Lake lots. The council members were also concerned about Ivy Lane and Cherrywood Lane between the station and Edmonston Road (Kenilworth Avenue).

Although City Manager Daniel Hobbs was not convinced that a parking problem would develop, the staff will come up with some proposals for council consideration on November 22.

Alert

I cannot believe it happened to me, but it did. On November 9 I had just finished some business with my part time job at University Blvd. and Riggs Road, when I decided to go for lunch nearby. I was in the restaurant for approximately 25 minutes. When I came out, my car wouldn't start. I tried twice to start it, when, within two minutes this guy appears on the scene in a BP uniform, asking if I would like help. Thinking that he was legitimate, I agreed. He said that the "electrical black box" would have to be replaced, and would take about a half-hour, so I decided to go across the street and call my office. When I got back, the car was fixed, which took less than three minutes instead of one-half hour. I asked this man to show me the box the part came in, and he started to get aggressive, saying if we have to go to the station it would cost $65 diagnostic fee, plus $95 for the part.

Then before I knew it he was in my car. He must have opened the passenger side of the car when I was making the phone call. He said, "I want my money" and quoted me a price of $87 for the part and $20 labor. I said I would give him a check, and he said, "I don't accept checks". Then he said there is an ATM machine down the street. We went there, and it was not working. (We tried two other ATMs before trying an ATM that worked.) He kept on saying through this that he was going to be late for work.

Later that day I checked with the BP station, and the owners said they had no one working there with that description. He wore a green-blue, BP costume with matching scarf, was a white male, about 5'5" tall, weighing around 150 lbs. with brown hair, between the age of 37-40.

Hindsight, I am still angry at myself for panicking, and not using my head, and calling AAA. In talking with professionals and the police, they said I was lucky that I wasn't killed or cleaned out of my money in my account. My "helper" was a slick, aggressive operator that knew how to intimidate a lone female—appearing on the scene quickly, stating it would cost more to go to the station, demanding cash, getting quickly into the passenger side of the car.

I conjectured that I was a sitting duck and that somehow when I was in the restaurant this guy had done something to my car. I found out later that the black box was part of the carburetor, which, if it is dislodged, the car will not start.

Letters to the Editor

Justify Need

We members of the Greenbelt Homes, Inc., housing co-op are summoned to a special membership meeting on December 5, to act on a petition urging us to "Just Say No!" to increases in our monthly payments to GHI.

I offer these points to consider:
 • It takes about a $20,000 increase or decrease in GHI's total budget to add or subtract $1.00 per month from any member's payments, on average;

• The petitioners complain that the GHI Board proposed no cuts in personnel costs and state that this is a "likely place" for cuts. I think it behooves the petitioners to make specific proposals where to cut personnel costs, are we to cut specific persons' salaries (by how much), and/or are we to fire specific persons altogether (at what cost in lost services to members or what increased workloads for other employees)?

• I do believe that the GHI membership has the right to order the board to increase or decrease the budget, and the obligation to be rather specific as to how that is to be done and to be careful not to harm either GHI as an entity or individual GHI members whose dwellings and investments could be jeopardized by wrong cuts. I think also that that obligation extends to how we treat our employees. If there are specific programs GHI is embarking on, or has already going on, that a majority of the members wish to decrease or eliminate and that are not legally required or vital, of course the membership has the right to do that.

• The petitioners' second motion, that the "members assert their right to approve or disapprove the annual budget at special membership meetings" is not clear to me as to its intent. If it is intended as an amendment to the Bylaws, they should have said so and drafted it that way, and it would require the requisite extraordinary majority. If it is intended that a special membership meeting for this purpose be held every year to ratify or amend each year's budget, this is really much, much, much! Can the membership really do this sort of thing and know what it is doing? Why should GHI members run for, and accept board positions and responsibilities, and spend much time studying, debating and adopting budgets, if each year these budgets are merely going to be proposals to a special membership meeting to pull apart and cut? (I assume we're never likely to increase our own monthly payments at such meetings.)

• The principle, that GHI members can make the Board justify budgets and/or budget increases (or decreases), is a good one and the exercise of this right when specific facts warrant it is fine. The petitioners need to justify that this is such an occasion.

Mat Amberg

Ghostly Tour

On Saturday night, October 30, the Committee to Save the Green Belt held its sixth annual Halloween Tour in the woods off Northway extended. In spite of an entire day of unrelenting rain, the weather cleared just in time and the tour was almost illuminated by a full moon shrouded by clouds.

Although we were too busy to take an accurate count, approximately 75-100 people braved the elements to walk along the trail lined with over 100 carved pumpkins, a spooky tunnel, assorted ghosts and goblins, and of course, GOATMAN. There was candy, hot cocoa, and hot cider.

We hope everyone enjoyed themselves and that those who stayed away thinking that we couldn't possibly go through with it on such a rainy day will have more faith next year. Once again, the Committee would like to encourage everyone to view our own Greenbelt Woods as a source of pleasure and adventure. Keep it wooded.

Old Greenbelt on TV

"Maryland in the Great Depression" is the subject of a Maryland Public Television special on Channel 22, Saturday, November 20, at 8 p.m. Greenbelt is featured in one segment as "the Maryland town that was built from scratch as a New Deal project." The film crew shot several scenes at the Greenbelt Museum.

The program is a companion to "The Great Depression" which has aired on PBS and MPT over the past several weeks. The program interweaves the commentary of Dr. George Callicott, a historian and professor of history at the University of Maryland and that of other historians with the personal anecdotes of ordinary people. Greenbelt's Gil Weidenfeld, Lee Shields, Kathleen McFarland and Mary England are also featured.

Maryland was one of the states that received the fewest dollars from the federal government because then Governor Albert Ritchie believed that states should be able to stand on their own two feet without help from the federal government.

Other segments deal with the role of charitable organizations and the effect of the Depression on African Americans in Maryland. With the hardships came a strong sense of community which permeated all aspects of life. This was particularly true in Greenbelt where thousands of unemployed workers obtained construction jobs as a result of the creation of the New Deal Greenbelt towns.

for Art in Public Places in the Office of the County Executive; Cynthia Wayne, the Art Gallery of the University of Maryland; Joe Haas, Clerk of the Court, Maryland District; and Clayton Powell, Greenbelt attorney.

The panel has held three meetings with GSA representatives and building architects. At the first, held in August 1991, the scope of the building project was presented to the panel.

In November 1991, the panel considered the work of 139 artists, narrowed the field to a workable number, looked at slides of their work and discussed the merits of each artist. Finally they recommended eight artists, with Sanborn as the panel's preference. The panel's last meeting was held in August at Sanborn's studio, where he presented a scale model of his proposed work.

Other Works

Sanborn has previously worked with the GSA. In 1989 he completed three sculptured areas for the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) in Langley, Virginia. For these, he used coded messages ranging from the simple Morse Code to his own complex secret code. Sanborn revealed the text of the code only to the former CIA Director, now dead.

While at the CIA, Sanborn observed the large volume of shredded secret documents. He has used this paper pulp in a media similar to paper-mache to make sculptures on which he has inscribed other coded messages, some in Arabic and Russian. The artist also has created a sculpture from three-by-six-inch thin copper screens photoetched with thousands of letters with text taken from KGB documents.

In 1992 Sanborn provided an installation for the Corcoran Gallery of Art entitled Covert Obsolence. This summer he had an exhibit entitled Secrets Passed at the Orlando Museum of Art. He has participated in exhibits since 1973 and has been the recipient of many awards.

POLICE BLOTTER

Based on Information Released by the Greenbelt Police Department

Around 9:45 a.m. on November 5 officers responded to a report of a vehicle driving slowly through the parking lot in the 7800 block of Mandan Road. They found that the driver's license was suspended, and that inside the vehicle were a 38 caliber revolver and some marijuana. As a result, the driver, a 19-year-old nonresident, was arrested and charged with transporting a handgun, possession of marijuana with intent to distribute, possession of marijuana, possession of (drug) paraphernalia, and driving with a suspending driver's license. He appeared before a District Court Commissioner and was held on $5,000 bond pending trial.

While patrolling the 6900 block of Hanover Pkwy. around 5 p.m. on November 11, an officer saw a vehicle swerving in the roadway and followed it to the area of Megan Lane and Craddock Place, at which time its occupants got out. The officer spoke with the driver of the vehicle, a 16-year-old nonresident youth, and then found marijuana and a loaded 32 caliber semi-automatic handgun inside the vehicle. The youth was then arrested and charged as an adult with transporting a handgun and possession of marijuana. He appeared before a District Court Commissioner and was held on $5,000 bond.

Around 2 p.m. on November 6, officers responded to a report of unwanted guests at a residence in 9 Court Parkway and found that the people in question, a 23-year-old nonresident man and a 22-year-old resident woman, had drug paraphernalia. As a result, they were arrested; both were released on citation pending trial.

While patrolling the 7700 block of Hanover Pkwy. around 3 a.m. on November 8, an officer observed a parked vehicle with its engine running and someone asleep inside it. A computer check showed that the vehicle had been stolen in a carjacking. Consequently, the officer arrested the person inside, a 22-year-old nonresident, and charged him with theft. He appeared before a District Court Commissioner and was held on $25,000 bond pending trial.

While patrolling the area of Breezewood Drive and Cherrywood Lane around 7:30 p.m. on November 11, an officer tried to stop a car for a traffic violation, but the car did not stop and the officer followed it. A computer check showed that the car had been stolen. When they got to the area of Cherrywood Lane and Cherrywood Court, the car left the roadway and hit a sign post and the driver got out and ran away. He was apprehended in the 6100 block of Breezewood Drive. The driver, a 19-year-old resident, was arrested and charged with theft. He appeared before a District Court Commissioner and was held on $3,000 bond pending trial.

A breaking and entering of a residence in the 9100 block of Edmonston Terrace was reported on November 8. Electronic games were stolen.

A breaking and entering of a business in the 9100 block of Edmonston Road was reported on November 5. Nothing appeared to have been stolen.

A blue, four-door, 1984 Nissan Maxima, MD tags YCW610, was reported stolen from the 7600 block of Mandan Road on November 6.

A blue, four-door, 1987 Mazda 626, MD tags AXJ064, was reported stolen from the 7500 block of Mandan Road on November 6.

A red, 1989 Jeep Cherokee, VA tags WOV313, was reported stolen from the 9100 block of Springhill Lane on November 7.

Vandalisms to, thefts from, and attempted thefts of autos were reported in the following areas: the 5800 and 6000 blocks of Greenbelt Road, the area of Lakecrest Circle, the 6200 block of Springhill Court, and the 7800 block of Walker Drive.
