Greenbelt Favors Baker But Johnson Wins Race

by James Giese

For most contested offices, Greenbelt voters paralleled county voters in their choices. There were, however, some exceptions, the most significant being in the race for county executive. Countywide State's Attorney Jack Johnson has garnered a significant lead of more than 17 percent over each of the four other candidates for the office. In Greenbelt, Delegate Rushern Baker and County Councilmember Jim Estepp each drew greater than 10 percent more votes than Johnson, with Baker edging Estepp out of the Greenbelt lead by 23 votes. (Volunteers at the four city polling places compiled the unofficial Greenbelt votes for the Greenbelt News Review – see adjacent table.) Estepp carried the Community Center precinct (21-3) and the Greenbelt Elementary School (North End) precinct (21-6) while Johnson carried Springhill Lake Elementary (21-8) and Eleanor Roosevelt High School (Greenbelt East) precinct (21-13). Baker, however, placed second in all four precincts and won the overall Greenbelt vote for this office.

22nd District

Johnson will face Audrey Scott who won handily in the county with 75 percent of the Republican vote over J. Mitchell Brown. In Greenbelt where she has been See ELECTION, page 5 the city's member of the county council, Scott received 90 percent of the Republican primary vote.

Also of interest to Greenbelters were the races for the legislature in the 22nd legislative district, the district in which Greenbelt was placed by court order when boundaries of districts were revised as a result of the 2000 Census. In the Democratic primary, Greenbelt's former mayor, Richard Pilski, failed in his challenge of incumbent senator Paul Pinsky for the senate office. Pilski lost in the county by a greater than 3 to 1 margin. While losing all four precincts in Greenbelt as well. Pilski did garner a greater percentage of the votes (36.1 percent) according to the unofficial returns. His best showing was in the North End (21-6) where he received two out of every five votes cast.

Greenbelters joined the rest of the legislative district in the selection of the new term's three delegates by voting for Tawanna Gaines, Anne Healey and Justin Ross. However, while Ross placed a close third in the district, he finished first in Greenbelt, garnering 1,419 votes to second place incumbent Delegate Tawanna Gaines who received 1,395 votes and third

ERHS SAT Scores Continue High in County and State

by Mary Moien

Scholastic Assessment Test age of 857. White students, the (SAT) scores remained flat for graduating seniors at Eleanor Roosevelt High School (ERHS). The combined verbal and math score for 2002 was 1058, barely down from 1059 the previous year. However, scores have declined by almost 20 points from had a combined score of 890, the recent high of 1076 for second-largest racial group taking the test, had an overall score of 1087 compared with the state white average of 1092 and national average of 1060.

Gender data were also available at the county level. Boys compared with 870 for girls. Girls graduating seniors in 1999.

The ERHS scores continued as highest among those from the 20 public high schools in the county. Schools with the next highest scores were Bowie and Laurel High Schools with combined verbal and math scores of 948 and 936 respectively. ERHS students represented one of every eight students in the county who took the SAT. The combined ERHS score was 38 points higher than those for both the state and national scores, which was 1020 for both.

Countywide test scores declined from 886 in 2001 to 879 this year. Data by race were provided at the county level. African-American students were almost two-thirds of all students taking the test. Their combined score was 836, compared with an African-American statewide average of 848 and a national averscored higher on the verbal segment ($44\overline{5}$ to 440) but lower on the math (425 to 450). Data were not available on race and gender at the individual school level.

Letters to the Editor

Bike4BreastCancer Funds Go to Cause

Recently there have been articles about walk-a-thons, rides and runs that claim to be raising money for health related causes, but see a large percentage of the proceeds being eaten up by fundraising companies or event organizers. I want to make it clear that the Bike4BreastCancer's Greenbelt Pink Ribbon Ride is NOT one of these events. We do not employ fundraisers. Volunteers are doing all the work for this event. The planning committee is made up of Greenbelt residents who have worked very hard to keep expenses to the minimum. We are proud that all the expenses are being underwritten or covered by corporate donations.

Riders and contributors can be assured that their donations and registration fees will be used for services which support breast cancer survivors and aim to reduce fatalities from the disease.

Bone Marrow Donors Sought

Letters to the Editor generally concern local, sometimes, even national issues. However, every now and then, it enriches us to learn about the impact an individual can make on the community as a whole. It is equally important to recognize that there are times when the community can give back to that individual, particularly when such a person is facing a dreadful disease such as leukemia.

P.J. Siegel is one of Greenbelt's unsung heroes. A retired Army major and former president of the Greenbelt Lions Club, P.J. has chaired the Lions Club's International Peace Poster program. The program encourages schoolaged children to convey their thoughts about resolving conflicts through artistic expression. She also was in charge of the City's 60th anniversary poster contest and played pivotal roles in providing scholarships, again, funded by the Lions Club. Siegel has served as chair of the Crime Prevention Committee, and more recently, served as production assistant with the Greenbelt Arts Center's production "Secret Circus." She also has been a contributing member of the Friends of the Greenbelt Museum and Greenbelt Theater.

Now, it is the community's turn to help P.J. Last month she was diagnosed with Acute My-eloid Leukemia. She would have been eligible for NIH's bone marrow transplant program if any of her siblings' bone marrow matched; none did. While NIH will enter P.J. into the National Bone Marrow registry, it seems only fitting that as a community we act as part of an extended family for her.

If you are willing to be Human Leukozyte Antigen tested and become part of the National Registry, please refer to the following site: http://www.marrow.org. One can determine the closest locations and arrange for an appointment to determine if one could be a donor. Greenbelters are, I believe, part of an extended family. Hopefully we can be supportive of an important part of our family as she has supported the community in the past. It doesn't matter what your blood type is. What matters is your overall health and whether or not you take any particular prescription drugs (for instance, insulindependent diabetics are not eligible). You also need to be between 18 and 60 years of age.

Correction

In last week's issue in the article Primary Races Will Bring New Faces; Bigger Turnout?, John Willis was incorrectly referred to as the state treasurer. He is the Maryland secretary of state.

On Saturday, September 21 at 10 a.m. and 2 p.m., Y-ME National Breast Cancer Organization of the National Capital Area will hold workshops in the Community Center on breast-health awareness. These educational sessions, which are free, will focus on healthy lifestyle choices and a three-step approach to early detection with emphasis on breast self-exam. The hour-long workshops will include a video, simulated breast models and handout materials to facilitate learning and encourage participation.

Community Events

Senior Softball

by Irv Salzberg The visiting Crownsville softball team lost an interdivisional ball game to the Greenbelt Seniors 15 to 8 at Schrom Field last Friday. Greenbelt bats got off to a blazing start and by the sixth inning had established a nine-run lead. А by triple long-time Greenbelt resident Don (Lefty) Smith, driving home two runs in the second inning, set the offensive tone. However, the win was a team effort with four players batting 3 for 4. Gerry Jenkins, another Greenbelt resident, led the defense with an outstanding pitching effort backed up by several very fine plays by shortstop Chet Lord and a great catch by Paul Williams in right center field. In the spirit of camaraderie, the Crownsville team graciously complimented Greenbelt on their improved defensive play.

Roosevelt Memorial Tree Stump Removed by City

by James Giese

The city has removed almost the entire Eleanor Roosevelt Memorial Tree trunk on Crescent Road opposite Albert S. "Buddy" Attick Park. The tree, a large white oak, was dedicated as a memorial to the famous First Lady on November 2, 1968. Officiating at the ceremony were a former city councilmember James C. Smith, and representatives of the Greenbelt Woman's Club Mrs. Edward J. (Marie) Castaldi and Mrs. Henley Goode. Smith and the club were instrumental in constructing the memorial. A wrought iron fence was placed around the tree on top of large granite cut stones. A metal plaque was placed facing the street dedicating the tree to the memory of Mrs. Roosevelt and noting that she had observed construction of the new town of Greenbelt from a platform constructed in the tree. Mrs. James A. (Anna) Halstead, daughter of Eleanor and Franklin Roosevelt unveiled the plaque. Also attending was Warren J. Vinton, research administrator of the Resettlement Administration during the 1930s. The Resettlement Administration was the agency responsible for building Greenbelt.

Within a short time after the ceremony, the tree died – possibly from old age or disease, possibly from being disturbed by the placing of the stones around its base. The city removed the > branches and left a tall stump. English ivy grew up the stump and covered the trunk. The tree stump remained that way until a few weeks ago when it was reduced to just a small projection. That, too, is to be removed. The stump had rotted and become a potential hazard.

> > New Trees

The city is planning to plant young white ash trees elsewhere in memory of Mrs. Roosevelt. One will also be planted at the memorial site. Whether or not the memorial remains is uncertain. The problem is that no one now knows for certain that Eleanor Roosevelt was ever on a platform at that location.

The late public works director, Buddy Attick, for whom the park is named, worked for the city for 40 years and before that for the Resettlement Administration as a security guard. Raised on a farm located on what is now the Golden Triangle, Attick knew Greenbelt's origins first hand. He did not believe that the memorial tree was the tree from which Roosevelt observed city construction. For one thing, the city was not built in that area. Attick believed that a platform was built between a large white oak tree and other trees on Gardenway. The first homes, model homes, were built in that area. Later, Franklin Roosevelt toured the model homes, which had special doorways and other features installed to accommodate his handicap.

Summer Program Completed

Due to the increased demand for summer tutoring, Vocational/ Educational Counselor Judye Hering of Greenbelt CARES created a pilot educational program for the summer of 2002.

Limited to elementary school students, the program was held for five sessions through the month of August. English grammar, English literature, English composition and math were taught.

Sixteen students from grades 2 to 7 attended. The students were divided into three groups. To achieve maximum attention, three volunteers assisted the vocational/educational counselor. Due to vacation schedules, various appointments and other commitments, only nine students completed the program.

Nine students and three parents filled out the evaluation form. All parents and students thought that the program was helpful and useful in preparing them for the next grade. Both parents and students recommended that the program be held again next summer and that it be increased in length of hours and days, and that additional subjects such as science and computers be added.

place incumbent Delegate Anne Healey who received 1,153. Running a close fourth was David Merkowitz with 1,082, who ran unsuccessfully on a slate with Gaines and Healey. Merkowitz did better in Greenbelt than district wide and even was the vote leader in the Greenbelt Center precinct. Gaines took the lead in the Springhill Lake precinct while Ross won the other two.

No Republicans filed for either the Senate or House of Delegate races in the 22nd district, so the primary will be tantamount to election for the winning Democratic candidates.

Other Races

In other races Greenbelters cast their ballots for the same people as others within the voting district for the office. For Governor, Greenbelt Democrats cast 89 percent of their votes for Kathleen Kennedy Townsend while statewide she received 80 percent. Townsend will face Republican Robert Ehrlich in the November general election. Ehrlich garnered 93 percent of the Republican vote statewide and 87 percent in Greenbelt.

For comptroller, Greenbelt Democrats preferred incumbent William Donald Schaefer as did the rest of the state, but not quite as well. They gave him 60 percent of their votes while statewide Schaefer garnered 68 percent of the vote. Schaefer will face Gene Zarwell in the November election. Zarwell received 58 percent of the state Republican vote and 53 percent of the Greenbelt Republican vote.

Attorney General Joseph T. Curran ran unchallenged for the Democratic nomination for another term in office. His challenger will be Edwin MacVaugh who barely beat out Republican challenger Jeffrey N. Pritzker with 51 percent of the vote statewide. In Greenbelt, however, Pritzker was the more popular candidate, winning 53 percent of the votes.

For the 5th Congressional District neither incumbent Congressman Steny Hoyer or Republican challenger Joseph T. Crawford were opposed. In Greenbelt, Hoyer received 2,111 Democratic votes, Crawford 203 Republican votes.

Local Races

Douglas Peters received 64 percent of the Greenbelt vote for county councilmember from the fourth councilmanic district against Democratic challenger Darlene Ann Connelly. District wide Peters received 61 percent of the vote. He will face Republican Tom Lee who was unopfor the office of State's Attorney. Since Ivey has no Republican opposition, his election in November is assured.

Incumbent Rosalind Pugh was selected as the Democratic candidate for Clerk of the Circuit Court, receiving 74 percent of the county vote and 69 percent of the Greenbelt vote. Pugh will face Republican Elizabeth J. Pawlak.

Incumbents Wendy A. Cartwright, Albert W. Northrup and Angelo I. Castelli were selected by the Democrats to be their candidates for Judges of the Orphans' Court. Republican Richard J. Landon opposes them.

Michael Jackson easily beat out incumbent Sheriff Alonzo Black for the Democratic nomination for Sheriff, garnering 64 percent of the vote. Although Jackson was leading in the county when this article was written, the race was extremely close with nine precincts still not reported. No Republican ran for sheriff.

Greenbelter Pat Unger was elected to the at-large seat on the Democratic Central Committee from District 22 while Karen Jo Onwukwe and Kurt Walter were elected as District 22 representatives. Walter narrowly beat out Sandra Peaches both in the district and in Greenbelt. Marlyn C. Bitzer was elected to the Republican Central Committee from District 22.

Turnout

Although the number of votes cast in each precinct was not available at press time, an approximation of voter turnout can be gauged by comparing the vote cast for governor (the office for which the largest number of votes were cast) with preliminary voter registration figures. On this basis, about 32 percent of the Democratic registered voters and 17 percent of the Republican registered voters turned out for the primary election. The best Greenbelt precinct turnout for Democrats was Greenbelt Center (21-3) with 41 percent. Greenbelt North End (21-6) was almost that much. The worst was Springhill Lake (21-8) with a 14 percent turnout. At Greenbelt East (21-13), the turnout was 32 percent.

The Republican turnout was much worse with only about 17 percent of those registered voting. At 23 percent, the North End had the best Republican turnout and Springhill Lake had the worst at 12 percent. For the other precincts, the turnout was about 19 percent at Greenbelt Center and 12 percent at Greenbelt East

A Review Shoe Suede Blues Fires Up the Crowd

by Rachel Mirsky

Over the Labor Day weekend, the Shoe Suede Blues band brought music to the Greenbelt community that was refreshing and innovative. Their music, a mix of rock and blues, brought the audience to its feet dancing and clapping.

The three-hour Sunday afternoon show included songs from the band's new album, "Saved by the Blues," such as "Route 66" and "Treat Her Right." They played songs both old and new but the crowd favorites were the rock oldies. Not surprisingly, one such favorite was "Tm a Believer," most recently a hit from Smashmouth, but originally a hit for "Shoe Suede Blues" member Peter Tork's former band "The Monkees."

Initially created for a benefit dance in 1994, "Shoe Suede Blues" quickly captivated audiences. Before the band was put together, three of its members. Michael Sunday, Peter Tork and Tadg Galleran (now a former member) met through mutual friends. They eventually got together to play at a series of charity benefits. Discovering that they worked well together, the three musicians decided to continue as a band once they added current band members John Palmer and Richard Mikuls.

Sunday is the band's bass guitarist. The Alabama native acquired a love of music at a very early age. "When I was six years old, [my parents] took us to a symphony and the symphony was playing songs that kids could relate to like the William Tell Overture, the War of 1812 Overture [with] cannons going off," says Sunday. "I was just flabbergasted by the amount of sound and beauty coming from these instruments. I never recovered from that. That led me to play music later in life."

Palmer became the drummer and percussionist for the band. He was introduced to music through his interest in Gene Krupa. Seeing the movie "The Gene Kruppa Story" with Sal Mineo gave him the idea of becoming a drummer.

Mikuls is the guitarist and vocalist for "Shoe Suede Blues." As a kid he was exposed to many jazz and blues records. Mikuls wanted to be able to make on his guitar the same sounds that he had heard on records.

Tork plays guitar and keyboard and is also a singer in the band. The former Monkee knew what his ambition was at a young age. "What I find is that I wasn't even conscious of having that ambition until many years later," says Tork. "I just kept going there. Tryouts for the theater group. Ok, I'll do that. The DJ on the college radio station. Ok, I'm there. [Playing in an] orchestra. I'm there. I was there without really ever saying to myself, 'I want to be an entertainer.'"

At the age of 23, Tork auditioned for "The Monkees," a band created for the TV series of the same name. Originally meant for Steven Stills (of "Crosby, Stills and Nash"), the part was offered to Tork because the studio wanted someone more telegenic. As a Monkee, Tork met legends such as Jimi Hendrix, Janis Joplin, Mama Cass Elliott and the Beatles and learned about the music business.

In 1968, "The Monkees" disbanded, but they reunited later in 1986 for four years on tour to commemorate their 20th anniversary. "The Monkees" reunited once more in 2001 for a brief tour.

Aviation Museum Presents Kids' Dav

The College Park Aviation Museum located at 1985 Cpl. Frank Scott Drive in College Park is presenting Kids' Day featuring Jay Jay the Jet Plane on Saturday, September 21 from noon to 4 p.m. Jay Jay the Jet Plane is a popular character from the public television children's show of the same name. This is his first area appearance.

Kids' Day also includes balloon animals, arts and crafts, Jay Jay the Jet Plane stories and videos and photo opportunities with Jay Jay the Jet Plane.

The College Park Aviation Museum is an interactive museum telling the story of the College Park Airport, the world's oldest continuously operating airport. College Park Airport is home to many "firsts" in aviation and is particularly significant for the well-known aviators and aviation inventors who played a part in this field's long history. In 1909 Wilbur Wright taught military officers to fly at this site, starting a tradition of important aviation history.

This program is free with regular museum admission.

Living blues legend Nap Turner will host the blues workshop. He hosts a blues show on radio station WPFW-FM (89.3). Barry Lee Pearson will co-host. Pearson is a blues scholar and University of Maryland professor. Catfish Hodge will perform in the Jook Joint.

The festival is sponsored by PGCC, Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission, and the Office of the County Executive.

Five Flying Eagles "Glean" Tons of Spurned Spuds

by Suzanne Lomax

Two hours of hard work by the Flying Eagle Webelos den of Greenbelt Cub Scout Pack 202 brought in a bountiful harvest for Food for Others. On Saturday, August 24 the five boys – Stephen Cox, Devin Gibzell, Jr., Peter Lomax and Danny Parisi - were joined by parents, siblings and others to collect three to four tons of potatoes from a field at the Beltsville Agricultural Research Center (BARC) for the Northern Virginia food-for-the-needy program Food for Others.

The one-acre field was being used by the BARC scientists to collect Colorado Potato Beetles so they would have a ready supply in their attempts to curb this plant menace. It turns out the beetles found another field quite tasty and pretty much ignored this one, so potatoes were plentiful in the newly disked soil. Being close to the ground, the Cub Scouts got into the job, collecting the spuds in buckets that were transferred to larger bins that were loaded onto a truck.

The scout's initial reaction was summed up by Devin, "This is fun; I love potatoes. Other people like potatoes, too. I am glad we could get some to them." However, as the morning went on the challenge of the chore became more apparent and they were unanimous that they did not want to become farmers.

fourth grade students from St. Hugh's School performed their Good Turn for their Citizenship Activity Pin. Boys in grades 1 through 5 who are interested in Cub Scouting can come with their parent to "Join Scouting Night." Recruiting for Pack 202 in Greenbelt will be Thursday, September 19 at 7 p.m. at the Greenbelt Community Church, at Crescent and Hillside Roads.

The gleaners of the field also got something for themselves, as they were able to take some of the harvest with them. The harvest was rich, but even with the boys, the laborers were few and fully one-fourth of the field was left untouched. Anyone interested in collecting fresh vegetables for a good cause can contact the Food for Others volunteer coordinator at 703-207-9173 for more information, or Pam Koch at 703-476-2952. Picking is scheduled for Saturdays until early October. They meet at BARC building 103 on Rt. 1 at 10 a.m. Food for Others would appreciate knowing how many are coming, so call ahead.

By gathering the potatoes, these

On-line Tutoring For Students The Maryland State Department of Education has announced on-line tutoring assistance at all state public libraries. This fall, students in grades 4 through 12 can visit one of their local public library branches or web sites to receive immediate help from qualified tutors. Maryland public libraries will offer Live Homework Help, an on-line tutoring service from Tutor.com that connects students to subject experts in math, science, social studies and English via the Internet by accessing www.tutor.com/maryland.

The service is being made available through the Maryland Library Partnership, a non-profit cooperative library corporation created by the public libraries of Maryland.

Live Homework Help is simple to use. Children and young adults log on to designated computer terminals at their local library or from their home computer and enter their grade level and the subject in which they need help. Students are immediately connected to a subject expert in an on-line classroom for up to 20 minutes of one-to-one help.

Students and tutors can review specific homework questions in the On-line Classroom using features such as controlled chat, an interactive white board and shared web browsing. When the session is over, students can print their session for future reference or to share with a parent, guardian or teacher.

Live Homework Help tutors are certified teachers, college professors, professional tutors and graduate school students from across the country. All of the participating tutors have received a seven-year criminal background check and reference check and have been certified through the Tutor.com Training Program.
