Festival of the Song Triumphs Despite Thunder and Deluge

by Anne Sucher

The power of a group vision, this time the vision of the New Deal Café's governing board to turn the café into a forum for great local music, was manifest this week in Old Greenbelt. It proved the adage that "if you build it, they will come." The third Annual Festival of the Song, an outdoor celebration of local singers and songwriters, began Thursday and continued through Sunday, July 13, in Greenbelt's Roosevelt Center.

The stage was set up in front of the mother and child statue in Roosevelt Center. Underneath a canopied tent 100 feet away the sound equipment was arrayed. The musicians, lounging about on benches in the shade, drinking iced mochas, were determined to perform.

Acoustic and electric guitars, keyboards, fiddles, flutes, harmonicas and even a cello accompanied these diverse groups as they played their sets. From the ethereal voices and harmony of Rick and Audrey (featuring Deanna on cello) to the energetic whimsy of Continuous Play, the eclectic group of musicians gave it all they had. Although microphone checks and set-ups were sometimes irritat-ingly long between performances, these are the kinks that must be dealt with in live performance. Some of the bands had the traditional CDs available for sale, for anyone who liked their music.

Following an open mic that went from noon Saturday to 1:15 p.m., a wide variety of songwriters were allotted an hour apiece, slated to end at 11 p.m. But that was when the last band, ironically called "Continuous Play," got started. "Continuous Play" came equipped with a full PR team complete with video cameras, still photographers and free CDs distributed by girls with bare midriffs as we left the café that evening.

Studies Explore Sedimentation And Pollution Problems at Lake

by Al Geiger

At a Greenbelt City Council worksession on June 18, Mark Burchick, representing Environmental Systems Analysis, Inc. (ESA), summarized two reports that his company had prepared for the City of Greenbelt. The reports were a Greenbelt Lake watershed assessment and a Greenbelt Lake wildlife management plan.

The ESA Greenbelt Lake watershed report described the sedimentation and pollution impacts on the lake of the several sub-watersheds and suggested remedial actions.

Water samples taken during a rain storm on March 20, 2003 indicate that the inflow into the lake of nitrogen, phosphorous, fecal coliform bacteria, oil and grease, aluminum, copper and lead exceeded EPA or Code of Maryland regulation standards for stream water quality but were not a danger to human health. Discharge at the lake spillway also exceeded state standards for nitrogen, phosphorus, oil and grease and copper.

The report recommends stream bed and bank erosion control measures for the Lakewood/Woodland Hills watershed to alleviate excessive sedimentation into the forebay at the lake. This watershed also has the highest rate of organic pollution that the report says is best controlled by reverting the waterway to its natural condition. This would entail removing the concrete channel and replacing it with a heavy planting scheme, grade control structures and bank protection.

Roosevelt Center

Inorganic pollutants from the Roosevelt Center area that flow into the creek from the former "Candy Cane City" are significant, according to ESA. The company suggests that a commercial oil/grit separator or forced infiltration system could be installed under the post office parking lot. Such a system would cost approximately $30,000 and would require periodic cleaning and maintenance.

An alternate suggestion was to construct an off-line storm water management pond in the area between the parking lot and Braden Field.

The Charlestowne North watershed appears to be stable, according to the report, and no management actions were recommended.

The most important factor impacting the health of Greenbelt Lake is the resident Canada goose population. ESA prepared a Greenbelt Lake wildlife management plan including recommendations for mitigation of the negative effects of the geese in terms of water quality and attractiveness.

The plan recommends strongly that the city implement various management strategies. Among these is to capture birds during the molting season (June and July) when they are flightless; those captured could be euthanized and where possible offered for human consumption. Shoreline enhancements could also make the lake and its surroundings less attractive to geese. Kevlar perimeter fencing could protect young plants.

Most important would be implementing a formal policy and deploying signage that prohibit visitors from feeding the geese. Geese could also be harassed with a non-lethal laser gun. Oiling or adding (shaking) eggs on an annual basis might also be instituted.

To date none of these recommendations has been implemented and studies are continuing.

Meet Dorothy Pyles: First Lady of Greenbelt East

by Virginia Beauchamp

"I believe I'm the only living person in Greenbelt to have a tree dedicated to her," says Dorothy Pyles, Greenbelt's Outstanding Citizen of 1993. Although there's no plaque, she takes pride in this living acknowledgment of her past contributions to the city's police department.

Recognized as Outstanding Citizen primarily for her significant contributions to city safety in her work on crime prevention, Pyles created the first crime watch organization in Greenbelt for her Greenbriar neighborhood and worked actively to develop similar organizations elsewhere in the city.

That activity led to her ongoing concern for the well-being of the police department itself, which at the time was housed within the lower level of the Municipal Building.

Given a tour of the locker room facilities in the building's basement, she was appalled to discover how dank and mildewed were the quarters where the officers had to store their woolen uniforms. The walls and ceiling were absolutely dripping, she says.

Later, when some citizens began to express reservations about the importance of constructing a new building to house the department, she led them on tours of that locker room. That was all that was needed, she says, to turn them into supporters.

Federal Worker

When Pyles moved to Greenbelt in 1979, she was within a year of retiring from her position with the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (FDIC), where she had worked for some 25 years, primarily as an auditor. For nine years earlier she had been employed in other federal departments, including some of the New Deal agencies housed at that time in the unsightly and uncomfortable temporary buildings near Constitution Avenue in Washington not far from where the National Gallery of Art was later constructed.

Pyles grew up in Washington, though she spent her childhood at the edge of the New Jersey Palisades across the Hudson River from New York City. She raised her three children in a Washington apartment building overlooking an employee entrance to the zoo, where children of the neighborhood played just inside its gate. Her parents, in the adjacent apartment, helped with care of her children while she, a single parent, was at work.

Neighborhood Focus

When the first developments were built in Greenbelt East, the Baltimore-Washington Parkway, which had always formed the eastern border of the city's residential section, continued for old-timers to feel like the municipal boundary. At that time there was no pedestrian bridge over the parkway, as there is today. Eleanor Roosevelt High School (ERHS) had opened only in 1976 and the Greenway Center began business in 1980.

Greenbelters' attention to the eastern properties focused on the early demolition of forestlands for the construction of Greenbriar. And an even greater concern was the developer's creation of a sewage treatment plant on-site, by which means he was able to evade the county's moratorium

Fireworks Parking Limits Attendance

I understand that Greenbelt's July 4 fireworks were wonderful this year.

I wouldn't know, because I didn't get there.

Ever since I became disabled, my "handicapped" license plates have allowed me to park in Greenbelt Lake's parking lot on July 4. From there, I can manage the short walk into the park itself and enjoy a full view of the fireworks, including the ground displays, and it is one of the highlights of my rather mundane life. This year, however, I arrived at the entrance to the parking lot only to be turned away because the lot was full, and had to return home. I was later told that for the first time this July 4, handicapped permits were not required for the Greenbelt Lake Parking lot.

I think it is a sad thing that I and probably many other disabled senior residents of Greenbelt were deprived of seeing this year's fireworks. Let us hope that this misguided, short-sighted policy change is also short-lived.

Louise Wilding

Fireworks Parking Policy Explained

This letter is in response to Louise Wilding's complaint.

Parking spaces are at a premium at Buddy Attick Park, especially for the Fourth of July celebration. For the most part, it is a "first come, first served" situation. Handicapped placards or registration do not necessarily ensure a parking space. There simply are not enough spaces to accommodate everyone regardless of infirmity.

The parking policy allows for elderly persons to park within the lot. Some spaces are reserved for vehicles displaying handicapped placards or registration. Once the lot is full drivers may drop off passengers but must park elsewhere.

The policy reasonably provides equal access to elders. While it is true that in years past the entire parking lot was reserved for vehicles displaying handicapped placards of registration, even then people were turned away once the lot was full. The only way to assure a space is to arrive early.

Jim Craze,
Chief of Police

A Glorious Fourth

The spectacular fireworks display this year was as grand as ever. Thanks to all the people and volunteers who have put in countless hours to make the 4th of July at Greenbelt a great success from year to year.

As a long time resident of this community, my family and I cherish this day with great pride and patriotism. It reinforces in us the spirit of our colonists who stood up for what they believed to be right, more so since 9/11. A great principle to be remembered and passed on.

Independence Day at the Buddy Attick Park with the scenic view of the lake and surrounding vegetation is a perfect place to celebrate the occasion. The park being filled with people from all walks of life, groups playing basketball, throngs of children at the playground, the air filled with barbeque aroma, lawn chairs with occupants sprawled all over the park and our affectionate four-legged pets to compliment the hot sizzling summer day. A great day indeed followed by a wonderful display of fireworks at nightfall.

Correction

The Public Works Department does collect used tires, according to Bill Phelan, assistant director. A recent letter to the editor gave incorrect information. A resident will need to call the department at 301-474-8004 to request a pick-up. Tires cannot be taken to the landfill, so they cannot be collected with special trash.

"Just throwing them on the curb won't get them collected," Phelan notes. "It takes a call requesting collection and an address where to pick them up."

Bay Foundation Honors Pinsky

In recognition of their steadfast commitment to protecting Maryland's most important natural resource, the Chesapeake Bay, the Maryland Office of the Chesapeake Bay Foundation (CBF) honored Maryland State Senator Paul Pinsky and State Delegate James Hubbard, both of Prince George's County. In addition to their many efforts to pass legislation that protects the Chesapeake, citizens' health and communities, Senator Pinsky and Delegate Hubbard were instrumental in this year's passage of the water penalty bill - CBF's top Maryland legislative priority. The bill significantly increases penalties for violating some of Maryland's most important water quality laws. It brings state penalties for violating some of Maryland's most important water quality laws. It brings state penalties into balance with neighboring Bay states and more in line with federal penalties.

"Restoring the Chesapeake Bay to its natural health calls for aggressive action from elected leaders; the time for empty words and promises, voiced by some, is long past," said Senator Pinsky. "I am pleased to work with CBF to help chart a course that not only protects the Bay from further degradation, but returns it to the health and beauty that Marylanders - and Maryland's future children - deserve."

Explorations Topic Is China Dynasties

Explorations Unlimited will continue the Time Life's Lost Civilizations Series presenting the video "China: Dynasties of Power" on Friday, July 25. Follow the rise of the Great Wall of China, erected by China's leader in the second century B. C., when China faced harrowing attacks from Mongol hordes on its vast, outlying frontier. This video also traces the rise of China's earliest dynasty, the Shang - savage, aristocratic hunter-warriors steeped in superstition and ritual human sacrifice. Also, witness the dawn of the golden age of philosophic enlightenment during the dynasty of the Chou, followed by the rise of Ch'in Shihuang Di, China's first emperor, who would raise the Great Wall on the blood and sweat of his vast slave-labor armies.

Explorations Unlimited is a speaker series held every Friday from 1 to 3 p.m. at the Greenbelt Community Center. This presentation will be held in the senior classroom. Everyone is welcome to attend and questions are always encouraged. Call 301-397-2208 for more information.

Waxing Poetic At Comm. Center

"Waxing Poetic" - an exhibit by artist Pat Goslee is on display until August 23 at the Community Center. A reception with the artist will be held on Sunday, August 3 from 2 to 4 p.m.

Waxing Poetic features encaustic and mixed media paintings. Encaustic paintings use wax colors (in place of paint) fixed with heat which adds dimension to the art. "Working in wax enables me to add a textural dimension to seemingly random patches of color," stated Goslee. More than 30 works are on display.

The Greenbelt Recreation Department has prepared a gallery guide for "Children and their Grown-up Friends" to help them learn more about this type of art and its history. Children can also register for a special class on wax works on July 25 or enter a contest. A wax project to try at home is also described in the guide.

Goslee, a Washingtonian, has a master of fine arts degree from Catholic University and has been creating and exhibiting for more than two decades.

Raymond Stuart Bailey, Jr., age 74, died July 13, 2003, of heart failure while camping in Hagerstown.

When he was 18, Mr. Bailey moved to the Beltsville Farms. He later resided on 1 Court Southway for 47 years where he could be found in his yard working in his garden or fixing someone's bike.

Mr. Bailey served in the United States Army during the Korean War. He was a member of the Washington, D.C. National Guard which was activated on April 1, 1950. He served on active duty until January, 1953 but was not discharged until October. He spent the war years at Fort Stewart, Georgia and Fort Meade. He became a member of American Legion Post 136.

Mr. Bailey began to work for the A.H. Smith Company in 1953 and retired this year after working 50 years. But retirement meant different work as he then went to the Smith farms and helped with the horses.

Most of the time, the family would gather for birthday parties or the Labor Day Festival. He welcomed guests as members of the family. Three things he most believed in were strong family values, hard work and education.

He is survived by his wife of 53 years, Shirley L. Bailey, a Greenbelt pioneer. He was a loving father to his children: Ray, Richard, Debbie, William, Patricia, Robert, Earl, Kenneth and Karen and a caring father-in-law to Christy, Jennifer, Judy, Charles, Robin, Donna, Angie and John. He was a loving grandfather to 20 grandchildren and a great-grandfather to six great-grandchildren.

noon showers to a real downpour around 9 p.m. Spectators were forced to huddle under eaves and inside the café. But despite the rain spirits remained high. "The show must go on," and on it went. All the musicians who were rained out onstage went inside the New Deal Café.

Mom Judy Ollerenshaw Sombar with baby Ben and Lily listen to the concert on Sunday afternoon.

Richard McMullin, board member of the New Deal Café, was the show's primary organizer. The festival was produced by the Friends of New Deal Café Arts with additional funding from the Greenbelt Department of Recreation. Dedicated volunteer Eileen Peterson did the PR, posting flyers that promoted the event at local music venues.

By the end of the evening, a soggy McMullin, in wet T-shirt, bare feet and sporting a beach towel, was ready to go home. He said it was his "competitive spirit" that caused him to work this hard. Peterson, though she was "in her element" and kept smiling throughout, was obviously wilted by night-time from the day's efforts.

Luckily Sunday dawned beautifully sunny and moderately cool. No sign of rain. Fingers were crossed as of this writing. Maybe next year they could cover the entire Roosevelt Center with a tarp in the event of rain and also to keep out the blinding hot sun. As the musical efforts of the New Deal Café evolve, this annual event will no doubt work out its kinks. Perhaps one day it will be widely known throughout the D.C. area as a mecca of original homegrown music! It's a thought. It could happen. It all begins with a vision.

Slithering Visitor

News Review staff member Leonie Penney is surprised by a slithering visitor. Neighbor Jordan Choper took the photo and identified him (or is it a her) as a Southern Rat Snake, not indigenous to this area. Perhaps the snake is someone's missing pet.

POLICE BLOTTER

Based on information released by the Greenbelt Police Department. Dates and times are those when police were first contacted about incidents.

Assault

7400 Greenway Center Drive, July 6 at 1:33 a.m., a 16-year-old nonresident youth was arrested after a fight broke out at a party at Martin's Crosswinds. When partygoers became disorderly the youth punched a security guard, who was attempting to break up a fight, then fled on foot. The youth was apprehended a short time later at the Holiday Inn next door and was released to a guardian pending action by the juvenile justice system.

Beltway Plaza, July 9 at 11:34 a.m., a nonresident woman was arrested after officers responded to a complaint of unattended children in a vehicle. Police found two children, ages one and eight as well as a dog inside the car and determined they had been left there alone for approximately 30 minutes. The woman returned to the vehicle and told officers she had been in a nearby store. During her arrest the woman resisted being taken into custody and damaged a police vehicle. A guardian was found to take the children and dog. The woman was charged with resisting arrest, malicious destruction of property, reckless endangerment, unattended child and cruelty to animals. She was turned over to the Department of Corrections for a hearing before a District Court Commissioner.

Robbery

At the ramp from the outer loop of the Beltway to Greenbelt Road on July 8 at 11:36 p.m. a motorist reported he was struck from behind by another vehicle, a red passenger vehicle with unknown Maryland tags, possibly a Ford, as he was driving home from work. Two men got out of the striking vehicle and approached the man, one of them armed with a handgun. The armed man struck the victim in the head several times and forced him into the rear of his vehicle. The victim's wallet, cellular telephone and money in his briefcase were stolen. The assailants drove with the victim to an ATM machine in the Clinton area and withdrew money from his account before driving him back to the area where the robbery began. They then fled in the vehicle used to strike the victim's car. The assailants are described as a black man approximately 24 years old, 5'10" 160 to 180 pounds with short black hair and a light complexion and a black man in his 20s, 6'2" 170 pounds wearing gray pants and a white shirt. The victim was taken to Prince George's

Hospital Center for a possible concussion.

Drugs

Kenilworth Avenue and Cherrywood Lane on July 2 at 4:43 p.m. officers stopped a vehicle for a traffic violation. On approaching the vehicle the officer detected the odor of marijuana smoke. Found in the vehicle were paraphernalia used to store drugs, a quantity of suspected marijuana and cocaine and a loaded 45 caliber semiautomatic handgun. The nonresident driver was arrested, charged with transporting a handgun, possession of marijuana and cocaine and possession of paraphernalia and turned over to the Department of Corrections for a hearing before a District Court Commissioner.

Kenilworth Avenue and the Beltway, July 4 at 1:51 p.m. a vehicle was stopped for an equipment violation. 6000 block of Breezewood Drive on July 5 at 2:48 p.m. officers responded to a report of a man down. They found a man who appeared to be intoxicated, who could not get to his feet or care for himself. The resident man was arrested, charged with drunk and disorderly conduct and was later released from the station on citation pending trial.

Trespassing

5900 block Cherrywood Terrace on July 8 at 4:25 p.m., officers arrested a nonresident man and charged him with trespassing after he was seen at Springhill Lake Apartments although he had been banned from the complex. He was turned over to the Department of Corrections for a hearing before a District Court Commissioner.

7900 block Mandan Road on July 8, police responded to a report of a suspicious vehicle driving through the parking lot. They stopped a 17-year-old nonresident and found the tags on the vehicle had been reported stolen to county police. New Police Hired

Local Rabies Alert

The first confirmed case of rabies this year has been reported in the City of Greenbelt. The health department has reported that a dead groundhog collected from a home on Megan Lane tested positive for rabies. It is suspected that this groundhog had a den of babies. Traps have been placed in the neighborhood to capture these young groundhogs.

The public is advised not to approach wild animals and attempt to contact or trap the animals. Animals displaying unusual behavior, such as aggressiveness, difficulty walking or discharge around the face, should be reported immediately to Greenbelt Animal Control (301-474-6124) or the Greenbelt Police Department (301-474-7200).

For safety do not allow dogs, cats or other pets outside without supervision. Make sure that pet's rabies vaccinations are up to date and report any contact between pets and wild animals to animal control and the pet's veterinarian. They will advise if monitoring or follow-up rabies vaccinations are advisable.

Please note that animal traps will be placed throughout the community. Do not approach or touch any trapped animal. Contact animal control immediately should you observe an animal secured in a trap.

Information about animal care, protection against rabies or questions about this advisory can be directed to Greenbelt Animal Control Officer Susie Hall at 301-474-6124.

Greenbelt's Business

Board of Education Honors William M. Shipp

William M. Shipp, a partner in the Greenbelt law firm of Fossett & Brugger, has been awarded the first Reginald L. Dunn Education Legacy Award by the Prince George's County Board of Education. The award was presented as part of the board's first annual "Friends of Business/Education" celebration on June 19 at the Greenbelt Marriott.

The Dunn award honors Shipp's years of work as a "tireless advocate for public education," the Board of Education wrote. He "has worked to bring education to the forefront of the business community's agenda," the board continued. Shipp has encouraged businesses to volunteer and become more actively involved as "Partners in Education." Concerned about the shortage of qualified teachers, Shipp was instrumental in securing teacher recruitment and retention incentives. He also worked to increase the numbers of mentors and tutors in schools and to identify additional resources for special programs. He has frequently testified before legislative bodies to obtain additional funding for the Prince George's County Public Schools. He recently secured an arrangement with Jason's Music to provide 12 pianos to schools throughout the county.

For four years Shipp served as a member of the nine member Management Oversight Panel for the Prince George's school system which focused on improving the county school system through the implementation of an extensive performance audit.

A member of the Prince George's Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors, Shipp is a former co-chair of the Chamber's Education Committee. The Education Committee organizes the Chamber's annual awards ceremony recognizing outstanding teachers and administrators. During Shipp's tenure the Committee also donated $10,000 from members of the Chamber to the Prince George's County Education Foundation.

Allfirst Bought By M&T Bank Corp.

Earlier this month, Allfirst Bank branches became M&T Bank branches. As a result of this merger, M&T becomes the 18th largest commercial bank in the United States. It has over 700 branches and 1,600 ATMs in Maryland, New York, Pennsylvania, West Virginia and the District of Columbia.

Co-op Food Store Changes Suppliers

Due to the sudden and unexpected warehouse closing of its longtime primary supplier, the Greenbelt Co-op has a new supplier, Associated Wholesalers, Inc. (AWI). AWI has been in business for 80 years as a cooperatively owned food distributor serving 476 stores in the Mid-Atlantic Region.

According to Manager Bob Davis, AWI offers an extensive and more reliable source of grocery items at competitive prices. The transition to new products and varieties is well underway and should be done soon. Their private label products are marketed under the Shur Fine label and will replace the Best Yet items previously carried in the store. "We are confident that AWI will give us the chance to improve our variety and quality throughout the store," said Davis.

on development until a major new plant at Seneca Falls in Montgomery County would come on-line. (The local plant was later demolished.) Thus, when the first residents of Greenbriar moved into their new apartments, perhaps what we think of as Old Greenbelt seemed less than welcoming.

However, the newcomers early found their own concerns. Among these was the formation of condominium associations and a central governance structure for all the new developments, the Greenbelt East Advisory Council (GEAC).

Even more worrisome was the advent of crime and its increase in these newer sections, where Greenbelt Road, the Beltway and the Parkway provided quick access and escape.

It was concern with this issue that first engaged Pyles in volunteer work within the city; her special focus on this area still continues.

For 15 years she served as treasurer of the Greenbriar Community Association. She has also been Greenbriar's representative on GEAC since the mid-80s when the larger association was formed.

Pyles has also assumed an active role in the beautification of Greenbriar's Phase III where she lives. During one spring, she says, she personally planted some 281 begonia plants at its main entrance and has helped to establish four other gardens nearby. For these contributions her neighbors have dedicated a bench in her honor, complete with plaque designating her "First Lady of Greenbelt East."

She has also been drawn into participation in organizations of the city as a whole. She works in general elections at the polls at ERHS, where she hands out flyers. She also helps to support the New Deal Café and is a volunteer driver for GIVES (Greenbelt Intergenerational Volunteer Exchange Service).

For these and her many other contributions, this Outstanding Citizen of Greenbelt for 1993 was recognized in the following year in a wider circle by the inclusion of her biography in the commemorative volume, Women of Achievement in Prince George's County History.

She is proud of her three children - all now grown. Her daughter, Mary Elizabeth, a scientist in naval oceanography, lives in Mississippi. A son, Paul, manages real estate in St. Croix, the Virgin Islands, where Dorothy spends every Thanksgiving. Her second son, John, a secret service agent and the father of her only grandchild, lives in Burtonsville.

City Notes

The week of July 7, the facilities maintenance crew sanded and began priming the gas pipe and rails on the roof of Springhill Lake Recreation Center prior to painting, repaired the drywall in the men's room at Schrom Hills Park which was vandalized and met with the Community Center supervisor and a locksmith about the new rekeying plan.

The streets crew completed clean-up after the Fourth of July celebration, began cleaning the blacktopped sidewalks in the Lakewood/Stream Valley area in preparation for resurfacing and repaired pot holes and cleaned storm drains and underpasses.

The parks crew cleaned the Lake Park after the Fourth of July celebration; installed new players' benches at Braden Field II; removed three old, large grills in the Lake Park group picnic area and installed three new ones and began work to correct a drainage problem at Braden Field.

The horticulture crew removed the fencing after the Fourth of July celebration and removed four dead trees from the back side of the Lake Park.

The special details crew cleaned up after the Fourth of July celebration, painted crosswalk and stop lines at Gardenway and Ridge Road and painted yellow center lines and curbs around Roosevelt Center and the Community Center.

July Is Recreation And Parks Month

by Barbara Hopkins

The National Recreation and Park Association has selected July as Recreation and Parks month. Mayor Judith Davis presented a proclamation stating Greenbelt's participation in the celebration to Joe McNeal and Julianna McHale, city recreation department employees, at the Greenbelt City Council meeting on July 14. The proclamation reads in part that the aim is to "encourage all citizens to participate in recreation programs, enjoy and appreciate the city's parks and recognize the creativity and hard work brought to bear by our Recreation Department staff in providing programs and facilities that play a large part in making Greenbelt such a special place in which to live."

Mayor Judith Davis presents Julianna McHale and Joe McNeal of Greenbelt's Recreation Department with a certificate proclaiming July Recreation and Parks Month in Greenbelt.
