Clayton S. McCarl, Sr., Dies: Dentist, Pioneer and Joker

On October 3, 2006, Dr. Clayton S. McCarl, Sr., dentist, adventurer, practical joker and beloved patriarch, died from complications brought on by Alzheimer's Disease. When faced with the diagnosis of the disease some years ago, Dr. McCarl merely replied, "Well, we all gotta go from something." As with everything in life, he faced his last challenge with humor and common sense.

Clayton McCarl was born on August 16, 1929, in Baltimore. In the late 1930s, his family moved to the new federal city of Greenbelt after his father, James Walter McCarl, was selected as its sole dentist. Being a pioneer family created a love for the budding community that spanned over 70 years. His early years were busy singing in the glee club, playing the cornet in the town band and acting in school plays. A highlight was his 1941 starring role in "Tom Sawyer." He also enjoyed swimming at Greenbelt Lake (and later the pool), hunting and fishing with his father and most of all, getting into mischief. In elementary school, he and a friend were in charge of taking lunch orders and collecting money from all the teachers. They would walk to the Center to buy the food and drink and return it with the correct change to each teacher. He enjoyed this job because he and his friend would sneak off and buy sodas and play on the playground every day before returning with the lunches.

After serving two years in the army, McCarl enrolled in the University of Maryland. He became president of his fraternity Phi Sigma Kappa and met his future bride Jane Mooney at a picnic at Greenbelt Lake. The two graduated from the university in the spring of 1952 and married that fall. He was then a first-year student at the University of Maryland Dental School, following in the footsteps of his older brother and father.

Dr. McCarl graduated from dental school in 1956 and eagerly settled into the family practice at 28 Ridge Road. His love of dentistry continued to flourish over the next 40 years. He was a founding member of the Greater Washington Dental Research Group and he served as its president from 1970-1973. In 1981, he served as president of the Maryland State Dental Association. In addition, he was an active member of the American College of Dentists, the International College of Dentists, the Southern Maryland Dental Society and the (scuba) Diving Dentists Society.

Beyond his contributions to the various dental groups and societies, Dr. McCarl made a difference in the individual lives

NASA Scientist John Mather Wins Nobel Physics Prize

The Nobel Prize Committee announced Tuesday that NASA scientist and Goddard Fellow Dr. John C. Mather is this year's recipient of the Nobel Prize for Physics. Mather currently serves as senior project scientist for NASA's James Webb Space Telescope program.

Mather shares the prize with George Smoot of the Lawrence Berkeley National Laboratory in Berkeley, Calif. They received the award for their work that helped cement the Big Bang theory of the universe and deepened the understanding of the origin of stars and galaxies.

"I was thrilled and amazed when I found out we won the Nobel Prize," Mather said. "The dedicated and talented women and men of the COBE team collaborated to produce the science results being recognized. This is truly such a rare and special honor."

Mather's and Smoot's work was based on measurements performed with NASA's Cosmic Background Explorer (COBE) satellite, launched in 1989. Together, the scientists could observe the universe in its early

Three Cities Oppose Pawn Shop Special Exception

by Elaine Skolnik

In an action that was advisory, the Prince George's County Planning Board voted four to one on September 14 to deny an application for a special exception for the controversial Best Pawn Shop. Located on the upper floor of an existing building at 5051 Greenbelt Road on the edge of College Park's Berwyn residential district, the proposed pawn shop was opposed by the municipalities of Berwyn Heights, Greenbelt and College Park. The next step is a hearing before the Zoning Hearing Examiner, which may be followed by one before the Prince George's County Council sitting as the District Council.

According to a report by Terri Hruby, Greenbelt's assistant planning director, the action by the Planning Board also included support for a number of conditions that should be included if the Zoning Hearing Examiner and/or the District Council find reasons to approve the special exception. These conditions, stated Hruby, include the community's concerns regarding "signage, sale of firearms and use of the word 'pawn shop' in any window or exterior signs."

Planning Board

The hearing before the Planning Board lasted about four hours. Among attendees opposing the proposed pawn shop were Greenbelt Mayor Judith Davis and Councilmember Leta Mach.

Speaking in opposition to the special exception application were the City of College Park's planning staff and elected officials, Davis and many residents of the Berwyn neighborhood of College Park. The latter spoke about negative impacts they felt a pawn shop within 200 feet of their neighborhood would have on the quality of life for their families as

Council Tables Charter Proposal To Permit Two-to-One Votes

by Thomas X. White

The item engendering most council discussion at the September 25 Greenbelt City Council meeting was the proposed charter amendment resolution that had been introduced at the September 11, 2006, meeting of council. It was on this evening's agenda for second reading and adoption.

The intent of the charter amendment is to delineate certain types of actions by council at their regular meetings where, once a quorum (three members present) is established, an affirmative vote of a majority of the members present shall be sufficient to pass on a matter considered to be administrative.

The language of the proposed amendment does not include a definition of administrative. Some sense of what would be construed as administrative is contained in staff comments accompanying the item and may be included in council's Standing Rules some time in the future.

The observed need for the amendment goes back to the regular meeting of council on February 17, with only three members of council able to attend. Such occurrences are rare but can occur.

An item on that evening's agenda had been the detailed site plan for the Greenbelt Crossing condominium project on the site of the former convalescent center on Greenbelt Road next to the Greenbelt Armory.

With only three members present, the vote on communicating a position of approval by the city, with conditions, to the Prince George's County Planning Board had been 2 to 1. The vote of the two members was deemed sufficient for approval of the action.

Subsequent to the meeting, however, a question was raised as to whether council was empowered to take that action with only two affirmative votes; or, on the other hand, were three affirmative votes (a majority of the full council) required? At its next regular meeting on March 13, with all members in attendance, council reaffirmed the earlier action on Greenbelt Crossing by a 4 to 1 vote.

Also at that March meeting council discussed providing clarification on the questions of quorum and voting procedures within section 8 of the city charter. Advice from the city solicitor at that meeting suggested that either the charter or council's standing rules could be amended to clarify the issue.

At that time the city manager indicated that since the charter would be more formal and permanent, that might be the preferred option. A motion was adopted unanimously directing staff to draft a proposed charter amendment to deal with the ambiguity in the charter by making it clear that a majority of those present may take any actions other than passage of ordinances or resolutions, provided that a quorum has been established, with the exception of those situations already defined in the charter as requiring four affirmative votes.

Later Discussion

When the topic was considered again by council on August 14, there was further discussion of situations where only a majority of councilmembers present could approve an action of the council. Those include: actions reaffirming positions previously agreed upon by a majority of the full council, referral of matters to staff or advisory boards or committees for research or opinion, approving such matters as the use of city facilities or the city logo and approving the purchase of city equipment that is confirmation of an expenditure previously agreed upon in the city budget.

It was also agreed to label these types of actions "administrative" and to provide further detail in the standing rules on what the current council would include in that definition. Four

Solar Alternatives

I was interested to read the articles about Solar Power in last week's News Review. Our house is very shaded, so solar panels do not make sense for us but we recently switched to 100 percent wind power for our electricity. I was surprised to find that it would only add a few dollars to each month's bill. Since nearly one third of all air pollution is caused by coal, oil or gas-fired power plants, this is an easy way for individuals or companies to make an impact on the environment and it is quick and easy to sign up.

There are two companies in this area which offer alternative sources of electricity – Pepco Energy Services (a separate company from Pepco, which is the default electricity supplier if you have not chosen a different company) and Washington Gas Energy Services (a separate company from Washington Gas).

Pepco Energy Services offers "green" power, which comes from 100 percent renewable sources, including hydroelectric, solar, wind and biomass. You can choose 10%, 51% or 100% green power and the price varies accordingly. This option still produces a very small amount of the "greenhouse gases" sodium dioxide, nitrogen oxide and carbon dioxide but considerably less than conventional power sources. For slightly more money, Pepco Energy Services also offers either 51% or 100% wind power, which is totally pollution-free, with no emissions.

The standard package from Washington Gas Energy Services includes 5 percent wind power and you can opt to upgrade to 10%, 25%, 50%, 75% or 100% wind power for just a few dollars more each month. If you are an existing WGES customer, there is a handy calculator on their web page which allows you to type in the number of kilowatt hours you used in the past year (from the back of your electricity bill) and then it tells you how much annually or per month you could expect to pay extra for each option.

Both companies have information, rates and easy online signup on their web pages at www.pepcoenergy.com (click on "Residential") and www.wges.com (click on "Wind Power"). You can also call Customer Services at: 703-253-1800 (Pepco Energy Services) or 1-333-236-WGES (Washington Gas Energy Services.)

THANKS

On behalf of my family and myself, I would like to thank Rick Ransom for the beautifully written "In Memoriam" he wrote about my brother, Bill Devlin, that appeared in the News Review several months ago.

On Monday, September 25, 2006, the U.S. Marine Corps inurned Bill at Arlington Cemetery with appropriate military honors – a beautiful, moving ceremony. There were 60 family members and friends in attendance.

We will forever be thankful to: Rev. Dan Hamlin, Maria Snoddy, Nancy Remenick, Pauline Bordas, Nancy Revis, Greenbelt Volunteer Fire Dept./Ladies Auxiliary and the Greenbelt Community Church for all their love, support and prayers during these last four difficult, difficult months.

I would especially like to thank the City of Greenbelt for lowering the flag in remembrance and honor of my brother (a former Greenbelter).

Bill was one of the greatest human beings I have ever, ever known. He did not know what the word stranger meant. He always extended his heart and hand to anyone and everyone. His greatest love was his family and being Santa Claus to hundreds and hundreds of children for over 15 years. Everyone loved Bill – unconditionally.

He is and will be greatly missed by his friends in the professional sports world, the city of Dunedin, Fla., and hundreds of his close and good friends.

My brother Bill was not only my knight in shining armor, he was my lighthouse, confidant, comforter, supporter, great humanitarian, Santa Claus, best friend but most of all my loving, devoted brother with a million-dollar smile. He will remain in my heart, mind and soul forever and ever.

The loss of my two brothers Bill and Rick is almost too hard to bear. I know with help of great friends, family and through prayer we will make it. We have big shoes to fill and a huge legacy to carry on.

We thank everyone again from the bottom of our hearts.

Kathy Reynolds,
Adele Hallak, Bill, Jr., Gary,

Please Help

I have lived in Greenbelt for two years. And this past summer was the worst summer for the lake. It had algae and we never saw the fish or the beavers. And it really smelled bad.

Someone please clean the lake.

Thank you.

On Screen

"Hollywoodland" Opens

Was it really suicide? Was it a mob hit? Was it a crime of passion?

"Hollywoodland," opening at the Old Greenbelt Theatre this weekend, plumbs the mysteries and rumors surrounding the untimely death of the original Superman. Ben Affleck won the Best Actor award at the Venice Film Festival for his portrayal of George Reeves, the actor who some say suffered from the success of the 1950s television series he starred in. Others, including the actor's mother, refused to believe that Reeves could take his own life.

Adrien Brody, who was the youngest actor to win an Oscar (at age 29, for "The Pianist"), stars as detective Louis Simo, hired to investigate by Reeve's mother. Diane Lane plays Toni Mannix, Reeve's lover and the wife of Eddie Mannix, portrayed by Bob Hoskins, a studio executive rumored to have ties to the Mafia. This is Director Allen Coulter's first feature-length film; he was well-prepared for this project, having directed numerous episodes of HBO's "The Sopranos." Rated R for violence and sexual content, "Hollywoodland" runs 126 minutes.

Ninth Annual Senior Oktoberfest the 13th

The Greenbelt Senior Center will host the ninth annual Oktoberfest for seniors on Friday, October 13 from 1 to 3 p.m. in the Greenbelt Community Center Gym.

Helmut Licht, who has been playing music in the Baltimore-Washington area since 1958, will provide the entertainment, playing dance music, standard line dances and teaching circle dances.

Eleven years ago Licht started a weekly ballroom dancing event at the Belvedere where he teaches two half hour dance lessons and then plays live dance music. His musical combinations range from solos to a full 14-piece big band. Licht was born and raised in Germany before he came to the United States. He will play Oktoberfest music to set the mood but also plenty of ballroom dancing music – fox trots, swings, waltzes, cha-chas, rumbas and tangos. He might even throw in a Polka or two.

Seniors are invited to join in for an afternoon of fun and dancing as the city celebrates fall with its ninth annual Oktoberfest. There will be light refreshments, including apple cider, served following the entertainment. Call 301-397-2208 for more information.

“Daddy Long Legs” Is Free Monday Movie

On Monday, October 9 at 1 p.m., there will be a free showing of the movie “Daddy Long Legs” at the Community Center in the Senior Lounge. The movie stars Fred Astaire, Leslie Caron and Terry Moore. From a story by Jean Webster, an eccentric millionaire glimpses a French orphan and becomes her anonymous benefactor. Her musing over his identity spawns some surreal (and inexplicable) dance numbers but love will conquer all. All are welcome to come enjoy this classic movie.

Greenbelt Combined Choir to Resume

The Greenbelt Combined Choir will be resuming its annual Christmas concert this year. The concert will be on Sunday, December 10 at the Greenbelt Community Church. Rehearsals for the concert begin on Thursday, October 12 at 7:15 p.m. at the church. Rehearsals will also include preparation for Greenbelt’s annual multi-faith Thanksgiving service.

The choir has been singing in Greenbelt since the early 1970s and is eager to resume the annual concert. New members are welcome, while returning members will find a place waiting for them. For further information call Jean Cook at 301-345-2597.

Get a Shot – Beat the Bug!

Low cost flu shots will be available at area locations to help protect Greenbelters during the coming flu season. The shots will be available for $25. Medicare Part B will apply if a Medicare identification card is presented at the clinic; a co-payment may be required.

Anyone wishing to lower their chance of getting the flu can get the flu shot. However, it is especially important for individuals at higher risk for severe complications of the flu. The Centers of Disease Control (CDC) has prioritized this group to include people 50 years or older, health care personnel providing direct patient care, women who are pregnant or who will be pregnant during the flu season and children and adults with asthma and other chronic diseases such as heart disease and diabetes. Flu shot recipients must meet any eligibility criteria issued by the CDC at the time of service. Infants and children under 9 years of age should receive the immunization from their pediatrician.

Where and When

No appointment is necessary. Shots will be offered at the Giant Food Store in Beltway Plaza on Tuesday, October 31 from noon to 6 p.m.

They will also be offered at the CVS store at Beltway Plaza on Tuesday, October 17 and Wednesday, November 1 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. and on Tuesday, November 7 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Greenway Center CVS.

The Greenbelt Safeway at Greenway Center will offer shots on Wednesday, October 11 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. and on Friday, October 27 from 3 p.m. to 7 p.m.

Also, the city sponsored Greenbelt Health Fair will be offering shots on Wednesday, October 12 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Community Center.

The Co-op grocery store is still in the planning phase and expects to offer flu shots in future weeks.

Through City Council persistence, the United States Postal Service (USPS) was providing a mobile postal service van in the center as a stopgap measure. This service will end on October 6 with the city service beginning on October 10.

Services available at the city facility will include stamp sales, Priority Mail, Express Mail, package services (up to 10 pounds) and Certified Mail. A full service post office providing services such as Registered Mail, money orders and postal boxes is available at the new post office building on Ora Glen Drive.

Our sympathy to Jane McCarl and her family on the death of her husband, Clayton S. McCarl, Sr. Dr. McCarl came to Greenbelt as a child when his father became Greenbelt's first dentist. Later he also became a dentist. Dr. McCarl took personal interest in his patients. He will be missed.

Congratulations to:

– Latesha E. Hertson, who has graduated from Columbia College-Fort Stewart in Georgia.

– Greenbelter Katherine Kimble, who will attend Saint Peter's College, Jersey City, New Jersey as a Presidential Scholar. Kimble, a graduate of Saint Vincent Pallotti High School, will join 25 other Presidential Scholars in the Class of 2010. The diverse group comes from seven states and four countries. The Presidential Scholars earned a full scholarship based on outstanding high school performance and Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT) scores.

– Mary and Barry Moien of Woodland Way, who became first-time grandparents on August 13, 2006, with the birth of their granddaughter Sloane Kiara Brown. The proud parents are Kathleen and Michael Brown, both ERHS graduates, who now live in far-off Santa Barbara. Proud aunt is Kathleen's sister, Suzanne McMichael and great-aunt and uncle Allen and Judi Moien, all of Greenbelt.

Berwyn Presbyterian Hosts Guitar Concert

Eric Ulreich will present a classical guitar concert in recital at Berwyn Presbyterian Church on Sunday, October 15 at 3 p.m. Admission is free though a free-will offering will be collected at intermission. Berwyn Presbyterian Church is at 6301 Greenbelt Road. For more information call 301-633-9861.

of his patients. He was often behind schedule at work because he took the time to visit with his patients and share in their lives. As the years went on, generations of families stayed with Dr. McCarl despite their having moved far away from Greenbelt.

As the dental practice grew so did his family. He and Jane had four children and settled into a nearby home in Berwyn Heights. Dr. McCarl loved being involved in his children's activities and could often be found chaperoning trips, speaking to classes, singing in school variety shows and cheering on his children in all their endeavors. Later he was thrilled to welcome daughter Sally into the practice as its dental hygienist and Clayton, Jr. and Jay as dentists. His youngest daughter Kathy branched out from dentistry and became a lawyer.

Dr. McCarl was an avid supporter of the University of Maryland. In 1982, he became president of the University of Maryland Alumni Association International. His support and dedication to the university continued throughout his life.

Family was of the utmost importance to Dr. McCarl and he never faltered in his love and encouragement for all of his children. He also provided them with endless adventures. Whether it was skiing or white-water rafting trips, surfing, elaborate treasure hunts or creating humorous home movies, life in the McCarl family was never short of spontaneity and fun.

Dr. McCarl retired from dentistry in 1996. He and Jane turned their attention to travel, University of Maryland sporting events, endless parties and dotting on their 10 grandchildren. Although the disease slowly robbed him of his memory, it never robbed him of his smile. He was a man who lived his life to the fullest while he was able, and was happy and content to the very end.

Greenbelt has lost one of its pioneers. Those lucky enough to have known him will treasure the memories of his warm smile, beautiful singing voice, wacky sense of humor and embracing bear hugs. And, if one listens very carefully, one can almost hear his yodel from heaven. He has arrived and all is well.

Visitation and viewing will take place on Friday, October 6 from 2 to 4 p.m. and 6 to 8 p.m. at Taylor Funeral Home, Duke of Gloucester Street, Annapolis. Services will be held Saturday, October 7 at noon at the Calvary United Methodist Church, 301 Rowe Boulevard, Annapolis. Burial will follow at Ft. Lincoln Cemetery.

"Verily, in the creation of the heavens and the earth, and in the alternation of night and day, and the ships which sail through the sea with that which is of use to mankind, and the water (rain) which God sends down from the sky and makes the earth alive therewith after its death, and the living creatures of all kinds that He has scattered therein, and in the veering of winds and clouds which are held between the sky and the earth, are indeed signs for people of understanding."

Services will be available Tuesdays-Saturdays between 10am-2pm, on the first floor of the Municipal Building located at 25 Crescent Road. COUNCIL continued from page 1

councilmembers then agreed to direct staff to provide such language in the text of a proposed charter amendment.

Roberts opposed making any changes to the charter because he thought "the matter to be clearly stated already in the charter."

Discussion during consideration of the charter amendment generally followed the rationale that led to its development and the generally comfortable position of most members of council that their action would make the charter more clear regarding the issue. Roberts continued his objection "that the council shouldn't set up a situation where two members of council could take an action."

Citizen Response

When council appeared ready to end discussion and prepare to vote, Davis asked if anyone in the audience wished to speak. This reporter at that time asked to be recognized and expressed his personal viewpoint that he agreed with Roberts and hoped that council would not create a situation where just two members of the elected five member council could take an action.

(Having served on the Greenbelt City Council for 30 years until 2003 and as a reporter for the Greenbelt News Review since that time, I was reluctant to speak publicly but wanted to express my opinion on such an important matter dealing with Greenbelt's governance.)

During following council discussion the issues received further debate with Councilmember Leta Mach emphasizing the focus on only those administrative matters that were important.

In response Councilmember Konrad Herling noted that an administrative action that may be important should require three votes. That fact caused him to rethink his position on the amendment.

Councilmember Edward Putens then moved to table the topic until the next regular council meeting on October 9. His motion was seconded by Herling and passed 4 to 1 with Roberts voting no.

stages about 380,000 years after it was born. Ripples in the light they detected helped demonstrate how galaxies came together over time.

NASA Administrator Michael Griffin said, "I am thrilled to hear that Dr. John Mather has been selected to receive the Nobel Prize in Physics. John would be a world-class scientist no matter where he had chosen to spend his career but we at NASA are enormously proud that he has chosen to spend it with us."

Dr. Ed Weiler, director of NASA's Goddard Space Flight Center in Greenbelt, added, "This is a tremendous accomplishment for John and for the COBE team. It is also important to note that COBE was built entirely 'in-house' and the fact that a NASA civil servant has won the biggest science award possible demonstrates that world-class research is happening here at NASA."

COBE's Purpose

COBE was built at Goddard to measure microwave and infrared light from the early universe. COBE determined that the cosmic microwave background, which is essentially the afterglow of the Big Bang, has a temperature of approximately minus 455 degrees Fahrenheit. This observation matched the predictions of the hot Big Bang theory and indicated that nearly all radiant energy of the universe was released within the first year after the Big Bang.

COBE also discovered slight temperature variations of approximately 10 parts per million in this relatively uniform light. These variations pointed to density differences which, through gravity over the course of billions of years, gave rise to the stars, galaxies and hierarchical structure we see today.

Steven Hawking a decade ago, independent of the COBE team, called these variations "the most important discovery of the century, if not of all time." Alfred Nobel, the wealthy Swedish industrialist who endowed the prizes, left guidelines in his will for the selection committee, that "the prize should be given to those who shall have conferred the greatest benefit on mankind" and "have made the most important discovery or invention within the field of physics."

The 2006 Nobel Laureates will gather in Stockholm on December 10 to receive their Nobel Prize medal, diploma and monetary award from King Carl Gustav XVI of Sweden.

Robberies

September 22, 11:03 p.m., 5800 block Cherrywood Lane, a man was walking home when he was grabbed from behind by two young men. The young men advised him that they had a gun but none was displayed. The man was forced to the ground and the suspects removed jewelry from his neck before fleeing the scene on foot. The youths punched the man, knocked him to the ground, continued to punch and kick him and then hit him in the head with a bottle. Concerned people in a nearby apartment began shouting at the youths from a balcony; one of the youths threw the bottle toward them, breaking the balcony window. The suspects then fled the area on foot. The man declined treatment for his injuries. The suspects are described as two black males, both well as on the county as a whole.

Speaking in support of the application were the applicant, his attorney Tom Haller, a land planning expert, a fellow pawn shop owner and the owner of a shopping center where the applicant already has a pawn shop. The proposed pawn shop would occupy 1,200 square feet on the upper level of the 2,400 total square foot building on Greenbelt Road.

Hruby noted that "the focus of the hearing was on the more subjective requirements associated with a special exception (conformance with approved plans and effect on the health, safety, morals and general welfare of the community)" rather than on objective requirements that would have more standing before the Zoning Hearing Examiner (ZHE).

Hruby opined that, in view of the subjective testimony given at the Planning Board hearing, College Park, for example, should provide some hard data to support its testimony at next week's meeting on October 11 relating to crime statistics for an existing pawn shop in College Park. (Davis told the News Review that 38 pawn shops are permitted in the county with 34 already existing.)

The ZHE is required to base its decisions on law. Under Section 27.394.01 of the county's zoning ordinance, "a pawn shop is permitted by Special Exception provided the structure in which the use is proposed shall be located at least 300 feet from any school, library, park, recreational facility and an historic or National Register Site." The proposed pawn shop project meets this criterion – objective testimony the ZHE will consider favorably. In their testimony, supporters of the pawn shop emphasized the need for a pawn shop accessible to the neighborhood for residents who find themselves in need of ready money.

Opposition

In his September 8 letter to the Planning Board, Mayor Chye M. Calvo of Berwyn Heights wrote: "On behalf of the Council and residents of the Town of Berwyn Heights, I urge the Prince George's County Planning Board to deny Best's Pawn Shop Special Exception Application" because the pawn shop "would be in such close proximity to residential neighborhoods as to pose a threat to the safety, morals and general welfare of the immediate surrounding neighborhood."

Calvo's letter and Davis' testimony stressed that Berwyn Heights, Greenbelt and College Park have worked hard to promote upscale development along and around Route 193. He wrote that the pawn shop would be "in close proximity" to the proposed Greenbelt Station and would "go against the character of this new high priority development and would serve only to undermine our efforts to promote positive economic development in the northern inner-beltway."

Davis pointed out that a pawn shop so close to Greenbelt Station creates the perception that the neighborhood is "going downhill." Davis told the News Review it was demeaning and degrading for people in dire need to have to deal with a pawn shop where they don't get full value for their goods, where interest rates are high and where they have 30 days to recover their pawned items. She envisioned an improved county social service system to help those in such dire need.

"Antony and Cleopatra"

by Gerald C. Martin

The Rude Mechanicals will be serving up their production of Shakespeare's "Antony and Cleopatra" at the Greenbelt Arts Center after previous performances in Washington and Baltimore. The "Rudes" are known for their innovative adaptations of Shakespearean plays and this is no exception. In this version director Jaki Demarest has skillfully interwoven parts from John Dryden's play, "All for Love," with Shakespeare's lines. Some characters have been combined and the play has been shortened considerably. Being a black box performance there are no set changes to disrupt the flow. Costumes are generally simple; business suits for the Romans and leather and mail tunics for the Egyptians. The Egyptian ladies wear semi-exotic garb while Roman Octavia's dress is much more conservative. Though a Roman, Antony's costume shows that he has gone Egyptian.

Musical director Arthur Rowan has chosen some very appropriate pieces to set the mood. They are usually very effective except when they are too loud or too interesting. I missed a lot of lines listening to Vivaldi as the Romans and Egyptians danced while maneuvering for political positions.

It would be well worth while to read the plot summary in the program before the show as there are several battles and other complicated situations which could be confusing. Several years are supposed to have passed in the course of the play but the audience might not realize it. The scenes shift from Egypt to Rome and to places in between with little to clue you in. There are also unfamiliar words but generally the gist of what is going on is pretty clear.

This could be a difficult play to "get." The actors are playing actors rehearsing "Antony and Cleopatra."

We see the players coming onto the stage preparing to rehearse, warming up, putting on their costumes, talking to the audience. There is no attempt to fool you into believing that they are anything but actors. They are making you a part of the performance. Even when the house lights go off and the spotlight comes on and they have become Romans and Egyptians, they occasionally come back to our world to link us to the action.

Hunger seems to be a major theme in this play. Antony's hunger for Cleopatra is never satisfied for long.

"Antony and Cleopatra" will be performed at the Greenbelt Arts Center from October 12 through 14.

Cleopatra's hunger for life, love and power are never satiated. Octavius' hunger for dominance drives him relentlessly, his sister Octavia's hunger for love or even kindness from Antony is never realized. No one in this play is ever satisfied with their situation. By bringing the audience into the play, they are meant to be left with a feeling of dissatisfaction as well. It is intended to make us feel something akin to what these characters feel.

At the end of the play, with a large number of the characters dead, there is a sense that the play is still unfinished. It concludes with a chaotic scene with the players declaiming appropriate lines from other Shakespearean plays. There is no real ending, leaving the audience with a feeling of emptiness or hunger. In the director's notes Jaki Demarest concludes, "And if you come away with nothing more than the sense that it was maddening and intriguing in equal parts, not sure whether you loved it or hated it, you will have come as close to 'getting it' as anyone ever will."

Greenbelter Alan Duda plays Antony as a great man in decline. He has become addicted to the charms of Cleopatra; neglecting his wife, his children and his duties to satisfy his appetite as his world collapses around him.

Only when he is separated from Cleopatra does he show his true heroic character but his hunger for Cleopatra always draws him back.

And Amy Rauch as the bipolar Cleopatra was definitely an appetizing dish at the opening performance at the DC Arts Center. When she is in a good mood she can turn Antony into Jello. But she can also scratch the eyes out of a messenger who brings bad news. Morigan Condo will play Cleopatra on October 13.

The entire cast is very strong. Paul Davis is exceptionally good at portraying the cynical Enobarbus.

Arthur Rowan is commanding and even frightening as Octavius. Greenbelter Bill Jones is superb as Agrippa, showing true Roman virtue by subsuming his own best interests for what he believes best for Rome. Katie Wanschura and Greenbelter Heather Martin are well cast as Charmian and Iras, Cleopatra's dutiful attendants.

Greenbelter Rachel Duda will play Charmian October 12. The acting is worth seeing.

Performances at 7:30 Thursday through Saturday October 12, 13, 14 and at 2 p.m. Saturday, October 14.

Drums, Songs and Dancing; Crafts in Roosevelt Center

by Eileen Peterson

The Greenbelt Drum Circle will signal the beginning of Saturday's Fall Harvest Festival at 10 a.m. outside in Roosevelt Center, as 21 artists begin displaying their handmade creations.

On Saturday, October 7 until 5 p.m. and Sunday, October 8 from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m., the array of arts and crafts displayed for sale will include necklaces, pottery, plant arrangements and all kinds of fabric and paper arts.

Greenbelter Kate Lowell will have samples of woodworking (people can order custom-made small tables, some with stone and tile inlay). She has her own workshop in her GHI backyard.

Her neighbor, Amityyah Hyman, sews table runners and napkins, place mats, accent pillows and even knit Halloween scarves.

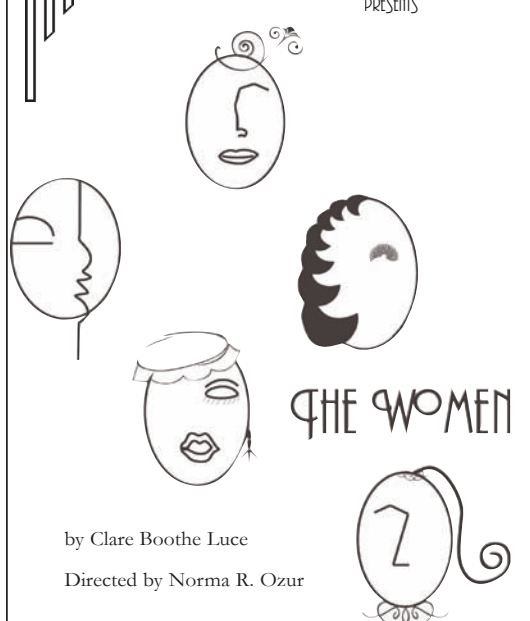

The Greenbelt Nursery School will sell baked goods and their tie-dyed Greenbelt is Great T-shirts and mugs.

Following the drums on Saturday will be Middle Eastern dancers and then hourly music acts and community dancing with the band "Global Warning" until 8 p.m. (see ad on page 3). Greenbelt musicians will be well represented including Giff King, whose band "Honky Tonk Confidential" won a Washington area music award for best country band a few years ago. They will be on stage solo on Saturday. Melissa Sites will sing Appalachian songs unaccompanied.

Some very familiar faces and sounds return – "Shosho" comes here from a stint last Sunday at the Takoma Park Street Festival, Mike Elosh will sing original songs and Doug Alan Wilcox will perform James Taylor-like songs. This is the last free outdoor event this year sponsored by the New Deal Café co-op and the Friends of New Deal Café Arts.
