Greenbelters Support Obama, McCain, Hoyer and Bailey

by James Giese

Greenbelt Democrats strongly supported the candidacy of Barack Obama by a two-toone vote over Hillary Clinton. The Greenbelt Republicans, much fewer in number, gave their support to John McCain, but that endorsement was not as strong as Obama received from Democrats. Congressman Steny Hoyer easily won his party's nomination for another term in Congress, both in the Fifth Congressional District and in Greenbelt.

Collins A. Bailey garnered the most Republican votes in this district to become Hoyer's Republican opponent next November. However, in Greenbelt Bailey beat Mike Hethmon by only four percentage points.

Turnout

Greenbelt North End Democrats, who voted at Greenbelt Elementary School, took honors for the best voter turnout with 57 percent. Greenbelt Center Republicans held their turnout honors with 35 percent, reflecting the lower interest of Republicans in the primary due to John McCain having pretty much sewn up that party's presidential race. The Springhill Lake precinct had the lowest turnout for both the Democrats at 31 percent and the Republicans at 15 percent. That precinct, however, gave the strongest support to both Obama and McCain in percentage of votes cast.

Overall, Clinton did better in Greenbelt than in the county, but not as well as she did in the state. Her strongest support was in the North End where she was only 16 votes behind Obama. In Springhill Lake, however, she received only 18 percent of the votes.

With 32 percent of the votes in Greenbelt, Mike Huckabee placed second to McCain. His support was strongest in the new precinct 21-18, southern Greenbelt East, whose residents voted at the Turning Point Academy on Good Luck Road. There Huckabee received 37 percent of the votes. His support was the weakest at Greenbelt Center with 28 percent.

Weather

As primary election day progressed, the weather grew worse. Light intermittent snow flurries turned into a steady rain that froze on some pavements. Many commuters were long delayed in their returns home by traffic accidents. Maryland extended polling hours statewide from 8 to 9:30 p.m. to give commuters a better chance to get to the polling

There were no significant problems reported from the polling places and the election appeared to have gone smoothly in Greenbelt. All Greenbelt precincts were tallied and reported to the county well before the last of its 223 precincts reported in.

Votes are still being counted throughout the state as extra time is allowed for mail-in absentee ballots to be received and for the canvassing of provisional ballots. The final tally will not be available until after February 19.

Amy Hofstra Is Welcomed As New Community Planner

by Vicki Kriz

Amy Hofstra remembers reading a Washington Post article on the City of Greenbelt soon after she and her husband moved to the D.C. area from Wisconsin. "I remember that it sounded like such a nice place to live," Hofstra said. "I said to my husband, 'How sad if we never get the chance to live there."

Three years ago, Hofstra got her chance to live that dream; in January she became the newest member of Greenbelt's Department of Planning and Community Development, taking on the position of community planner.

Hofstra, currently a graduate student at the University of Maryland in College Park, hopes to receive her master's degree in community planning this summer. It was while taking a course at Maryland that Hofstra met class instructor and Greenbelt Director of Planning and Community Development Celia Craze. Craze offered Hofstra the community developer position in December.

Although still new to the position, Hofstra has already found that she enjoys the wide range of tasks that make up her work for the city.

Principals Update ACE On Their School Issues

by Mary Moien

The Greenbelt Advisory Committee on Education (ACE) held their annual meeting with Greenbelt school principals on January 22. Each principal was invited to speak about special needs and accomplishments at their schools.

Kenneth Jones, principal at the relatively new Turning Point Academy, a public charter school on Good Luck Road (but within the city boundaries), spoke first. Jones said that his school is seeking any assistance in resources and reading related activities. Their school is now kindergarten through 4th grade with 254 students. City Council liaison Leta Mach suggested the school become involved in the Maryland Municipal League contest entitled "If I Were Mayor." Other resources suggested included tutoring resources such as CARES and the county public library's online tutoring program.

THANKS!

Chef Lou's Bakery is Greenbelt Om's sweetheart! Chef Lou heard that Greenbelt Om Community Yoga was celebrating its one-year birthday with a special Valentine's Day Partners Yoga Workshop on Saturday. So as a gift to Greenbelt Om, he made a beautiful batch of little, individual sweet potato cakes, one for each participant (plus several more for teachers and staff). The cakes were delicious: soft and slightly crunchy, with a tiny swirl of icing. In the spirit of a Valentine's Day yoga workshop, each student fed their partner a bite of this lovely treat at the end of class.

Thank you, Chef Lou, for this charming gesture. We love you!

THANKS!

The Greenbelt Farmers Market is off to a great start in planning for a Sunday morning market to open this June at Roosevelt Center. Our new producers-only market is going to be possible in large part thanks to a generous grant from the Greenbelt Community Foundation. We wish to express our thanks to the foundation for giving us this huge boost during our inaugural year.

When we accepted the donation at last Sunday's reception at the Greenbelt Elementary School, we were struck yet again by the unflagging optimism and generosity of our friends and neighbors in Greenbelt whose funds make possible the Greenbelt Community Foundation. We also remain thankful for the close working relationship we have forged with the Co-op grocery store, which serves as our fiscal agent for these funds while we apply for our IRS nonprofit status.

The Co-op is much more than our fiscal agent, however. Bob Davis, Dorrie Bates and the rest of the Co-op board have been working side-by-side with Greenbelt Farmers Market organizers to identify and attract local farmers, as it is our hope that many of the farmers market vendors will also become Co-op suppliers.

In this way, if you can't make it to the Greenbelt Farmers Market one fine Sunday morning to pick up some of your favorite farmer's tomatoes, you will be able to visit the Co-op's produce department on Tuesday and pick up some of those same tomatoes.

The organizers of the Greenbelt Farmers Market are grateful for all the support we are getting. Thanks again to the Greenbelt Community Foundation and to the Co-op. We'll see you at the Farmers Market in June!

Greenbelt: An Oasis

As I contemplate and then record these "Greenbelt Experiences," it should be understood that my residency is currently measured, not in years, months or even weeks. I have actually only been here a few days.

After several days of local wanderings I am astonished by the contrasts I seem to have discovered.

A comparison of the atmosphere and environment surrounding my new home with that of the remainder of the Washington

Metropolitan area has created a sense of having parachuted into an oasis.

This island of unexpected civility lies within a sea of notorious urban/suburban incivility. The region's reputation for high pressure power hungry influence peddlers, road raging lunatics and generally rude, cold or indifferent demeanors is already established.

How is it that I find this little place called Greenbelt managing a resistance to the onslaught of the Washington rat race mentality?

I am experiencing a pleasant form of culture shock! Or perhaps I am hallucinating from my heart meds or too much wine. Is it possible to have too much wine?

Anyway, around town, perfect strangers greet me with hellos or good mornings and drivers don't view an older gentleman with a cane as a target of opportunity. They instead actually slow down or stop and wait for you to cross the street. This is a courtesy that is not extended or practiced to any great degree in most other municipalities.

My favorable first impressions of the denizens of Greenbelt do not end with me. My faithful companion "Walk-About," the Maine Coon cat, is also finding contentment here. He is quite satisfied with his windowsill observations of more than a dozen squirrels scurrying about on the ground below or the occasional visitor in the pine tree branches outside our windows. As a bonus he also received an occasionally tantalizing visit from some mourning doves who I suspect in another month or so will serenade us with their springtime whoo-whooings.

The short spell of mild winter weather has allowed me to engage in a passeggiata each evening. Passeggiata is an Italian word for a casual stroll. With the right person on your arm, it becomes a romantic stroll. The town center seems a perfect venue for this Mediterranean activity with its New Deal Café on one border and the neighboring Beijing across the way.

I have already availed myself of both establishments by celebrating the Lunar New Year with a satisfying dinner of Kung Pao Beef and a pot of hot tea. And then there have been four evenings of surprisingly high caliber entertainment at the Café. I intend to patronize these places as often as my modest income will allow.

If I am in error and the reality of Greenbelt is that it is not the haven of genteel civility that I believe it to be, I hope the residents will not disabuse me of my fantasy too quickly.

And if Greenbelt is truly "different" from the rest of our metropolitan area, I encourage the citizenry to reinforce my first impressions by perpetuating what I have already received.

Should you spot a gentleman bedecked with a beret or bandana taking a casual stroll assisted by a cane, it's probably me. You have my permission to exchange any pleasantries you feel appropriate and if you're shy and need a password, may I suggest OASIS!

As a refugee who has escaped from the clutches of the metro area barbarians, your greeting will be most welcome and may even afford me an opportunity to learn such things as where is the post office located and who is our state senator in Annapolis. Thanks for the warm welcome.

Speed Bumps

As residents on Ridge Road between Lastner Lane and Research Road, we are writing to highlight the speeding problem on this stretch of road that is straight and flat and measures 3/10 mile long. Because there are no stop signs or "strong reminders" to slow down, speeding "just happens" here. Some of the biggest offenders are Prince George's County school buses, UPS, FedEx and DHL vehicles. (But private cars do their share of speeding here, too.) The Maryland University buses are actually really good most of the time. It is a relief to hear vehicles sounding mellow when they respect the 25 mph speed limit.

Presently there is a speed sentry on this section of Ridge Road very close to Lastner Lane. We had high hopes that this would help curtail a lot of the speeding. But we've already seen several vehicles promptly accelerate to 40 or 50 mph (or even more) once they have passed the sentry, leading us to believe that even a speed camera would be treated in much the same way, making it thus quite ineffective.

What can we do to help the speeders remember that this is a residential area, with pedestrians, cyclists and - very importantly - with children walking to and from Greenbelt Elementary School? Could traffic-calming humps be the answer to some (perhaps most) of our speeding problems? When the driver is doing the posted speed limit, going over the hump is felt just as a slight rise in the road. But when crossed at higher speeds, it gives the vehicle a pretty good bump, thus providing immediate, unpleasant feedback. No need to wait for that speeding ticket in the mail - the jolt one feels is immediate, it can damage one's car and it can be totally related to one's own disregard of the rules of this particular stretch of

One of us travels often on Sligo Creek Parkway in Montgomery County. The use of speed bumps on this road is extensive and it is noticeable how "calm" the traffic is on this parkway! In other residential areas in Prince George's County, these traffic calming humps have also been successful in curtailing speeders.

We strongly support their installment on Ridge Road and anywhere they are needed throughout Greenbelt.

On Screen

Oil! Faith! Greed! Blood!

"There Will Be Blood" opens this week at the Old Greenbelt Theatre. Written and directed by Paul Thomas Anderson, the filmmaker behind "Magnolia" and "Boogie Nights," the film is based on the novel of the same name by Upton Sinclair.

Set in New Mexico, 1898, the drama revolves around the competitive relationship between a silver prospector turned oilman and a charismatic faith healer.

Daniel Day Lewis, the oilman, won the Oscar for Best Actor in 1993 ("My Left Foot"). Paul Dano, the preacher, was last seen in Greenbelt as the moody older brother of "Little Miss Sunshine." This movie has been nominated for eight academy awards, including best actor and best picture.

Rated R for violence; runtime is 158 minutes.

Explore Sinatra, Music February 22

On Friday, February 22 Explorations Unlimited will host a presentation by popular music specialist Stephen Kramer. Kramer, who spent 35 years working as an electronics engineer, has collected jazz and big band recordings and videos since his childhood. He is the co-author of "Gene Krupa and his Orchestra," published by Jazz Discographies Unlimited in 1973 and has participated in the production of compact discs by Dick Haymes and Buddy Clark, both prominent vocalists of the 1940s. Most recently, he has conducted classes on American Popular Song via the University of Maryland's Legacy College and at the Prince George's Community College SAGE program. He has also supplied music for the stage production of Clare Boothe Luce's "The Women," presented at the Greenbelt Arts Center.

Kramer's presentation February 22 will focus on Frank Sinatra in the 1940s. He will explore Sinatra's formative years beginning as a vocalist for the Harry James Orchestra in 1939, continuing through his period as the featured male singer with the Tommy Dorsey band between 1940 and 1942 and ending with his emergence as a major recording and film star following the conclusion of World War II. Numerous recordings, radio broadcasts and film clips will be used to illustrate his contribution to the development of American Popular Song as an art form.

Explorations Unlimited is held every Friday from 1 to 3 p.m. at the Greenbelt Community Center. This presentation will be held in the Senior Classroom, Room 114. Everyone is welcome to attend and questions are encouraged. Call 301-397-2208 for more information.

GNS Re-accreditedFor Five More Years

Greenbelt Nursery School (GNS) has been re-accredited by the National Association for the Education of Young Children (NAEYC). The school is among the first in the nation to achieve accreditation under the new, more rigorous and comprehensive accreditation process.

To earn NAEYC accreditation in the new system, GNS went through an extensive self-study process, measuring the program against 10 NAEYC Early Childhood Program Standards and more than 400 specific criteria.

After completing the selfstudy and compiling extensive documentation, the school was evaluated on-site by NAEYC assessors. An independent national panel reviewed all this information and determined that the program meets accreditation criteria. NAEYC accreditation is valid for five years.

Programs must submit annual reports and are subject to unannounced visits by NAEYC assessors. Greenbelt Nursery School's accreditation runs through January 2013

NAEYC is the nation's leading organization of early childhood professionals. The organization created its accreditation program in 1985 to set professional standards for early childhood education and to help families identify high-quality child care and early education programs.

Greenbelt Nursery School, a parent co-op founded in 1942, offers nursery school classes for children ages two, three and four as well as extended day programs for children ages three and four. The school is located at 15 Crescent Road in the Greenbelt Community Center.

For more information call the school 301-474-5570 or visit www.greenbeltnurseryschool.org. To find out more about early childhood education visit www.naevc.org.

GNS will hold an open house and registration on Saturday, February 23 from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. See ad below.

See Lunar Eclipse With Astronomy Soc.

Don't miss the next lunar eclipse, which will occur in the late evening of Wednesday, February 20. Join members of the Astronomical Society of Greenbelt at Northway Field to view this event.

At around 8:30 p.m. astronomers will set up telescopes and binoculars. The moon will enter the earth's shadow at about 8:45 p.m. Totality will begin at approximately 10 p.m. and last almost an hour.

While the moon is in the earth's shadow, it is illuminated by sunlight refracted through the earth's atmosphere. Depending on conditions at that time, the moon may appear gray or copper-colored.

The eclipse will be visible to the naked eye from anywhere in the area, so those who can't make it to Northway Field can just look up at the sky. This is the last good eclipse until December 2010 (in the wee hours of the morning), so the Astronomical Society urges everyone to take advantage of this opportunity.

Margaret W. Leibe

Former longtime Greenbelter Margaret Warfield (Peggy) Leibe, 80, of Ozark, Mo., died January 12, 2008, in Ozark.

Born October 3, 1927, in Washington, D.C., she was the daughter of the late Charlie and Margaret Warfield.

She was a longtime member of St. Hugh's Catholic Church and the Greenbelt Volunteer Fire Department and Rescue Squad's Ladies Auxiliary. Her hobbies included reading, sewing, quilting and other crafts.

Prior to the birth of her twins in 1963 she had been employed by the Greenbelt Federal Credit Union.

She spent many years volunteering at Greenbelt Center School before becoming employed at Parkdale High School, then Friendly High School, both in Prince George's County.

She was affectionately known as "Mom" to hundreds of kids until her retirement in 1993.

Mrs. Leibe then moved to Mechanicsville, Md., where she lived for 10 years. She spent the last 14 years in what she called "God's Country," living in the Ozarks, enjoying the mountains, the big sky and abundant wildlife.

She was preceded in death by her husband, Heinz P. Leibe.

She is survived by her son Paul C. Leibe of Lexington Park, Md.; her twin daughters Lynne L. Hopkins of Nixa, Mo., and Lisa M. Gemmill of Mechanicsville, Va.; nephew John Redick, Jr. of Dunkirk, Md.; four grandchildren; and four great-grandchildren.

Spiritual Progressives Meet at Paint Branch

by Nancy Boardman

The Network of Spiritual Progressives' (NSP) new director of Advocacy and Outreach will address its local Maryland Chapter on February 25.

The Greenbelt community is invited to hear David Hart, the new NSP director of Advocacy and Outreach, present the Network of Spiritual Progressives vision on Monday, February 25 at 7:30 p.m., at the Paint Branch Unitarian Universalist Church.

The network is building an interfaith social change movement that will enable people to live more loving, generous, open-hearted, joyful lives. As an example, the network calls for a Global Marshall Plan which is premised on the idea that generosity and solidarity with all peoples are better routes to homeland security than are domination and control. Believing that taking serious action to improve the well-being of all peoples will help to dry up anti-American sentiment that can provide the breeding ground for terrorism. Such a plan, the network believes, can help safeguard the well-being of Americans while it also provides urgently needed assistance.

The Maryland chapter meeting will also plan for participation in upcoming activities, such as the March 7 Interfaith Peace Witness in Washington, D.C.

Paint Branch Unitarian Universalist Church is located at 3215 Powder Mill Road in Adelphi. Its website for directions is www. pbuuc.org; the church telephone number is 301-937-3666.

GIVE THANKS

Every breath that we breathe is a blessing from God and we learn from the Prophet Solomon (peace be upon him) to recognize these blessings each day. The Holy Qur'an tells us how he never forgot to be thankful to God. He is quoted to have said, "This is by the grace of my Lord, to test me whether I am grateful or ungrateful! And if any is grateful, it is (a gain) for his own soul; but if any is ungrateful, truly my Lord is free of all needs, supreme in - The Holy Qur'an, 27:40

Count your blessings every day. For more information about gratefulness from an Islamic perspective, call 301-982-9463 or email info@searchislam.org or visit www.searchislam.org.

"You're not doing the same thing everyday," Hofstra said.

Hofsta's duties as Community Planner include processing planning requests, reviewing detailed site plans, working with the planning board and the city council, attending to the planning and development needs of other city departments and dealing with the needs of the community, environment and traffic.

A project that Hofstra finds exciting involves the remodeling of the Greenbelt Theatre to its original architecture and improvement of its facilities.

"It will be beautiful," Hofstra said.

As Community Planner, Hofstra's ultimate goal is to promote cohesion among the people of the city's diverse east, west and historic districts. She believes it is the people of Greenbelt that make the city a great place to live.

"It is just a great group of friendly people with diverse backgrounds who really care about their community," she said. "I want to bring benefits to all residents of the city and make sure all residents feel they are important to the future of the city.'

stated that although the school has a terrific volunteer program, they could use more mentors — especially for boys. For example, she would like male mentors to come have lunch with the students. One possibility is partnering with Eleanor Roosevelt High School (ERHS) students for this need. The school is also seeking more business partnerships. Seidel also mentioned how much the students enjoyed the after school Spanish Club provided by the city's Recreation Department.

Judy Austin, principal at Greenbelt Middle School (GMS), described the new International Baccalaureate (IB) program at her school. Organizing the program is a long process that currently is only in the staff training stage. She also described the GMS Reading Incentive Program, where the entire school (800 students and staff) read the same book. A book a month! Students are then able to go to the "School Store" to redeem incentives. It's been quite successful; the school store is running out of items! Austin is also looking for motivational speakers to address the students.

Budget Issues

Concern was voiced about whether county budget issues would negatively impact progress with the IB program. Concern was also raised regarding the budget impact on the plans for the new building for GMS which currently has a start date of September 2008. Discussion included questions about whether the new facility should include a consideration of the county's announced interest in future Kindergarten through 8th grade schools. It was believed that the county is not taking that into account in the design of the new GMS. Mach spoke of a Community Forum she was hoping to organize on the new middle school, including discussions on the county plans to move to a K-8 format.

Linda Sherwood, principal at Springhill Lake Elementary School (SHLES), described the support that they received from their business partner - the Greenbelt Rotary Club. The school would still like to have more business partners. She also described other programs they have including "Strengthening Families" and a pottery program also offered before and after school by the Recreation Department. She spoke about the issues raised by other principals, which is the involvement, or lack thereof, of parents in the schools.

A variety of efforts and programs were discussed. SHLES has had success with a Winter Carnival that gets a great many families involved. Seidel described how GES is working with GMS to prepare and excite students about middle school and they are planning a basketball game that will have the two staffs competing, as a way of getting families involved. Sherwood also made a request for women readers to come and read to students on March 7, during Women's History month. She needs one reader for every classroom.

Reginald McNeill, principal of ERHS, also spoke about the need for more business partnerships. He then described the 9th Grade

Initiative, including tutoring and other activities, as a way of supporting students as they transition into 10th grade. The hope is that fewer students will fall behind. McNeill also spoke of the perennial issue of getting more parents involved and how they were now using the automated phone system to better communicate with parents

Phyllis Gillens, principal at Magnolia School (MES), spoke about the impact of the county hiring freeze on keeping classrooms adequately staffed and how they were addressing the resulting class size issues. Because MES is not a Title I school they were offered less support and less money for all school programs for the year. This reduction required a great deal of creativity including grant writing. Some of those efforts resulted in the school getting a new Tech Lab, used jointly by the school and the county. Gillens was proud to report that five of her teachers were selected for specialized Technology Training.

Recurring Themes

After the individual principals spoke there was more general discussion about recurring themes at most schools, including the need for more community business partners, greater parental involvement with students and schools, more focus on reading curriculums, as well as concerns for implementation of the new Individual Learning Plan (ILP) program which requires a written plan for every student.

Principals were reminded about the Read Across America Program. For the first time, the City of Greenbelt will be participating in this national program. The Read Across America Program will be part of Greenbelt's Artful Afternoon on Sunday, March 2 from 1 to 5 p.m. at the Greenbelt Community Center.

The other man was also arrested after a short foot chase and was found to be in possession of property belonging to the victim. Both suspects were transported to the Department of Corrections for a hearing before a district court commissioner.

February 2, 5700 block Cherrywood Lane, a resident woman was arrested and charged with theft. Police stopped a vehicle for a traffic violation. A computer check revealed that the tags on the vehicle had been reported stolen. The woman was released on citation pending trial.

what makes a school great. Pinsky moved right into the issue of the state budget, stating that he thinks it will be a little leaner this year. "The school system is the underpinning of the county,' he noted and he hates when budget cuts have to be made. He referred to the initiative of investigating shifting sixth graders into middle school in some situations and in other schools having all children, Kindergarten - 8th grade, in a school together. Budget cuts mean that this initiative is now on hold, so, at least, parents do not have to worry about school boundary changes.

Pinsky next addressed the need for teacher quality, needing to have the best trained teachers possible. In the state senate he chairs the education committee and he is committed to having more teachers obtain National Board Certification. He stated that the certification is "a very difficult, rigorous program." He summarized by describing other special interests including climate change and public financing of political campaigns. He then opened the floor to questions.

In response to a question about slots legislation and the education budget, Pinsky indicated that he is opposed to slots and gambling in Maryland. He feels the state should not create a budget based on people gambling. Gambling is based on the poor; the largest number of players are in Prince George's County and Baltimore City. Slots will be on the ballot in November. He commented that people should not believe those who say "If you don't pass slots, you'll hurt education." his opinion only a few people will make a great deal of money. Education money needs to come

Seniors Warned Of Possible Scam

There have been recent reports of someone contacting senior citizens by phone claiming to be a Medicare representative. The caller states that someone will be coming at a specific time to speak about Medicare benefits.

The Greenbelt police have been unable to verify whether or not these calls are legitimate. There have been instances where scam artists have claimed to be representatives of Medicare in an attempt to obtain personal information, such as Social Security numbers and bank account numbers. This information can then be used to steal a person's identity.

They suggest that anyone who receives one of these calls should call Medicare at 1-800-MEDI-CARE. If there is reason to suspect fraud, a call can also be made to the Greenbelt Police Department at 301-474-7200 and the Federal Trade Commission at 1-877-382-4357.

Police caution, "Remember, never give out your personal information to any caller or solicitor."

Experimental Video At Academy Stadium

The Academy Stadium Theatre #1 at Beltway Plaza Mall in Greenbelt will host the Éclectique Moving Images Series on Thursday, February 21 at 8 p.m. The screening will consist of 70 minutes of experimental video from around the globe with a short discussion with the producer, Chris Lynn, following the showing. There is a fee.

In a similar vein, he referred to the "insidious dependence" of some schools on the money provided by snack and soda machines. He commented on the health of the children as they grow up with junk foods and "what length do you go to raise money. We can't have short term thinking." Parents should go to the school board and insist that these machines be removed from the schools.

Another parent commented that tax increases have really hurt her family and what cuts can be made. Pinsky described where much of the state budget goes – 25 percent to health care; 24 percent to K-12 education; 16 percent to higher education. When the budget is cut, education is a large share of the budget. In response to a question about adding arts and recess back into the school day, he commented that the state really needs to look into a longer school day or a longer school year. He commented that teachers are "woefully underpaid" and almost half of teachers leave before five years of teaching in

A couple who may have been grandparents asked if a community could provide something extra to the school, such as physical education or a special class or was there a law against it. Pinsky encouraged them to bring their ideas to the school superintendent. He thought Dr. Deasy would listen to ideas from the community.

In the area of new development and schools, the senator mentioned that in Howard County developers must pay for schools for the homes that are built. It was that way in Prince George's County at one time. Now the county has a surcharge that developers pay toward education but the money goes into the county coffers and not directly to education. Pinsky suggested that the county should review the surcharge issue.

A number of questions were very specific to a family and could not be addressed. Pinsky encouraged them and others to contact him as 301-858-3133 or at www.PaulPinsky@senate.state. MD.US.

PTA Report

The PTA president summarized the many activities they had undertaken since the school year began. The PTA raised $5,000 from their used book booth at the Greenbelt Labor Day Festival. The PTA is in the process of renovating the teachers' lounge.

The Scholastic Book Fair raised $2,000 for school library books. Another $900 worth of books was provided to the individual classrooms, plus $800 cash for the PTA. It was reported that each teacher got the books that she or he wanted. Additionally each child will get to pick a new book of their own to take home.

Police Presentation

The sixth grade chorus has been invited to a competition at Walt Disney World in late May. Case and the students and school are working hard to raise the travel funds. Two Greenbelt police officers presented the school with a check for $500 toward the trip. Case indicated that the cost of the trip is $10,000 and $6,000 has been raised to date.

The video of the meeting may be seen on Channel 71 on February 19 and 21.

The Department is offering a reward of up to $500 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of a suspect in any of the unsolved crimes reported in the blotter.

People may anonymously report suspected drug activity by calling the Drug Tip Line at 301-507-6522.

Greenbelters were sorry to hear of the death of Margaret Warfield Leibe, who died January 12, 2008, in Ozark, Mo.

We rejoice with Mary Gooden of Green Ridge House on the news that the book "Control Unmasked - Trust Him in Spite Of" written by her daughter, Pastor Andra Allen Standberry, of Austin, Texas, has been published. Andra, now a mother of three, grew up in Springhill Lake. The book, first of three planned for the series, is available at Barnes & Noble, Amazon, Borders and Target.

Congratulations to Elsie Forbes of Lakewood, who celebrated her 90th birthday on December 7, 2007. Elsie grew up in rural Nebraska, where she rode a horse to school. Nowadays, she gets her exercise walking around the Lake and helping her grandson Raviv Brooks with his News Review route. A family celebration is planned for later this year.

A warm welcome to Savitri Belizaire, the new GAIL program case manager, who joined the staff at the end of January.

Send us your reports of new babies, awards, honors, etc. to share with our readers. To send information for "Our Neighbors" email us at newsreview@greenbelt. com or leave a message at 301-474-6892.

Reel and Meal At the New Deal

The film "The End of Suburbia: Oil Depletion and the Collapse of The American Dream" will be shown at the New Deal Café on Monday, February 18 beginning at 7 p.m. The Reel and Meal at the New Deal is a monthly film series that explores vital environmental and social issues and is sponsored by several Greenbelt organizations interested in preserving the environment.

There is no charge for admission. An optional vegan buffet meal will be available for purchase starting at 6:30 p.m.

As the population of suburban sprawl has exploded in the past 50 years, so too has the suburban way of life become embedded in the American consciousness. Suburbia, and all it promises, has become the American Dream. But at the beginning of the 21st century, serious questions are beginning to emerge about the sustainability of this way of life. With brutal honesty and a touch of irony, "The End of Suburbia" explores the American Way of Life and its prospects as the planet approaches a critical era and global demand for fossil fuels begins to outstrip supply. There will be a discussion following the film.
