Greenbelt Cooperatives Are Part of a Larger World

by Dorrie Bates

Did you know that there are more than 350 million members of cooperatives in America? That cooperatives give out nearly $79 billion in patronage refunds and dividends? And that the top 100 co-ops generate more than $150 billion in revenue? These are just some of the facts and figures of the cooperative world, a world with considerable representation right here in Greenbelt.

Greenbelt has six established cooperatives: Greenbelt Cooperative Nursery, Greenbelt Homes,

Inc., Greenbelt Consumer Cooperative, Inc., Greenbelt Federal Credit Union, The New Deal Café, and, of course, Greenbelt News Review. Some of these have been around for decades; others are relatively new. All are part of a remarkable movement which began in England in 1843 and has grown to operate in every industry including agriculture, childcare, energy, financial services, food retailing and

by Virginia Beauchamp

What was known as Greenbelt Crossing, a 90-unit condominium development proposed for the former nursing home site between the Greenbelt Armory and University Square Apartments, came partially back to life on Wednesday, October 6. The occasion was a Greenbelt City Council worksession with a prospective buyer of the site, Abbey Road Property Group, an Alexandria, Va., company.

Representing Abbey Road was its president, Matthew Birenbaum. He was accompanied by Steven Varga of Enterprise Real Estate, representing the seller.

Three years ago, when the real estate market went into free fall, plans tanked for development of the property. It had been planned as a luxury, senior citizen-friendly condominium development on the 4.5-acre site. Many Greenbelt residents had expressed interest in purchasing units.

At that time the building was planned as a 90-unit multifamily-style structure with an attached garage of 2.3 parking spaces per unit (211 spaces overall). The

by Kathleen Gallagher

In addition to going to their polling places on November 2, registered Maryland voters will have two new options for casting their ballots in this year's gubernatorial general election. In-person early voting will be available for six days before the election at specified locations. All voters may now also choose to vote absentee, not only those who cannot come to the polling place on election day.

It is now too late for anyone to register to vote in the general election who has not already done so. People may check their registration status, as well as locate their polling place and preview the ballot, by going to <http://www.elections.state.md.us> and clicking on "Find Out Here!"

Note that all contact information for the Prince George's County Board of Elections is given at the end of this article.

Early Voting

People may vote at any early voting center in the county in which they are registered. Prince George's County has five designated centers, the closest one to Greenbelt being the College Park site. Early voting centers will be open 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. from Friday, October 22 through Thursday, October 28, with the exception of Sunday, October 24.

Early Voting Process

Voting during the early voting period is the same as voting on election day. Voters will check in as usual and use the touch screen voting system. The ballot is identical to the one on the voting machines on election day.

Instructions will be available at the early voting centers. Election judges will also be available to answer questions or provide help.

Though not required for voting, it is a good idea to bring identification showing the current address in case of a problem with a voter's registration. For additional information call the Prince George's County Board of Elections at 301-430-8020.

Absentee Voting

Any registered voter now has the option to vote by absentee ballot; there is no longer a requirement to certify one's illness or absence from home on election day.

All five of Prince George's County's early voting centers are accessible to voters with disabilities:

College Park Community Center
5051 Pierce Ave., College Park

Bowie Library
15210 Annapolis Rd., Bowie

Wayne K. Curry Sports & Learning Center
8001 Sheriff Rd., Landover

Oxon Hill Library
6200 Oxon Hill Road, Oxon Hill

Upper Marlboro Community Center
5400 Marlboro Race Track Rd., Upper Marlboro

Requesting a Ballot

If the request for an absentee ballot is being submitted by mail or in person, it must be received at the county board of elections office no later than 8 p.m. on Tuesday, October 26; if faxed, the request must arrive by 11:59 p.m. on October 26.

General Election Ballot Includes Constitutional Convention Issue

by James Giese

Would you like the State of Maryland to have a new constitution? Yes? Well, now is your chance.

Every 20 years the Maryland General Assembly is required to ask voters if they favor calling a constitutional convention to alter the Maryland Constitution. That is a requirement of the present state constitution. Thus, that will be the first ballot question put before voters at the upcoming November 2 gubernatorial election.

Should a majority of voters at this election support calling a constitutional convention, the General Assembly will be required by law to provide at its next session for the assembling of one. The General Assembly will also have to provide for the election of delegates to the convention.

Any new constitution or amendment adopted by the convention would have to be submitted to voters of the state for adoption or rejection at a later election.

If voters do not approve this ballot question, the constitution can still be amended, as it almost always is at each state election. That amendment process requires the Maryland General Assembly to propose the change, which is then submitted to voters for approval or rejection at the next state election. Questions 2 and 3 on the election ballot this year are just such constitutional amendments, which have been proposed by the legislature.

Question 2

Question 2 would limit the right to trial by jury in a civil proceeding to those where the amount in controversy exceeds $15,000. Currently, the right to jury is available to litigants of suits in which claims exceed $10,000.

The amounts do not include the cost of attorney fees that may be recoverable in a civil proceeding. For lawsuits of lesser amounts, a judge, instead of a jury, would determine the verdict.

Since jury trials are an inconvenience to those impaneled to serve on a jury and tend to be more costly and lengthier trials, approval of the amendment would speed up the civil judicial process as well as save money. The downside, of course, is that a litigant seeking lesser damages would not be able to have a civil claim decided by a jury panel of peers.

The proposal does not change the right to trial by jury of those facing criminal charges.

Question 3

State ballot Question 3 pertains to a constitutional amendment affecting only Baltimore City. But both a majority of those voting in the city and those voting throughout the state must approve the amendment.

If adopted, this amendment will require any person seeking the office of judge of the Orphans' Court in Baltimore City to be a member of the Maryland Bar who is admitted to practice law in Maryland. If approved, the amendment will raise the bar for qualifications to be an orphans' court judge in Baltimore City.

Each county in Maryland (except Harford and Montgomery Counties) has an orphans' court with three judges serving. The only requirements for qualifying to be a judge are that the individual is a citizen of Maryland and has resided within the jurisdiction

Donation Recipient Is Greenbelt Foundation

I understand that "GHI is a Winner in Wind Program" in the GNR's October 7, 2010, issue, was from a press release provided by Clean Currents. It is open to misinterpretation.

Clean Currents donates money from its sign-ups to the Greenbelt Community Foundation, not GHI.

It's Greenbelt That Benefits

I request that you print a correction to the 10/7/10 article on page 2 entitled "GHI is a Winner in Wind Program."

It should have read "Greenbelt is a Winner in Wind Program." Our Green Neighborhood Energy Challenge was launched in 2009 by four organizations: a) GHI; b) GCAN (Greenbelt Climate Action Network); c) GreenACES (Advisory Committee on Environmental Sustainability); and d) Greenbelt Community Foundation (GCF).

It was a wonderful cooperative effort. After the first few months, GCAN and GreenACES took the lead on this campaign. In 2009, 86 residents signed up for wind energy; this year an additional 105. For Greenbelters who sign up for Clean Currents, the business contributes money to GCF that they can use for worthy community projects such as the Three Sisters Garden and this year's recipient the Greenbelt Museum's Green From the Start exhibit.

Bag that Poop!

To the very inconsiderate dog owner – you know who you are – who takes your dog for a walk and uses my yard for its bathroom: When you take your dog out, why can't you take a bag?

If you knew how hard it is for me when I step in it and have to clean up wherever I track it My yardman gets dog doo on the wheels of his equipment and into his trailer and we are getting very tired of it.

Have a little consideration for people who would like to be able to walk in their yard and enjoy it. Take a bag!

This has been going on for too long.

Sustainability Circles Start on October 25

Two new sustainability discussion circles start on Monday, October 25. One, "World of Health," will be held in a private Greenbelt home every other week from 7:30 to 9 p.m. for eight sessions. To participate, email lore@simplicity-matters.org or call Lore Rosenthal at 301-345-2234.

The other, "Menu for the Future" will also begin on Monday, October 25 and meets at Paint Branch Unitarian Universalist Church in Adelphi from 7 to 8:30 p.m. every other week for seven sessions. To join this circle, email jrobinson720@yahoo.com or call Jennifer Robinson at 301-906-9966.

Topics and readings for both circles are available online by clicking on "Course Offerings" at http://nwei.org/discussion_courses. Discussion circles combine deep conversation, information, support and action to encourage individuals to make informed choices for simpler and more fulfilling lives, leading to a more sustainable future for Earth and all its inhabitants.

The circles are sponsored by the Simplicity Matters Earth Institute in cooperation with Greenbelt Climate Action Network and Paint Branch Unitarian Church.

Astronomical Society Has Star Party Sat.

The Astronomical Society of Greenbelt (ASG) invites everyone to a public star party on Saturday, October 16 at the Greenbelt City Observatory. Telescope set up begins at dusk and observing will begin at approximately 7 p.m. Among the targets for observers will be the waxing gibbous moon and the planet Jupiter, with its four Galilean satellites.

In addition to the 14" Schmidt-Cassegrain telescope in the observatory, ASG members will have their personal telescopes set up. This offers an opportunity for those considering buying a telescope to see various kinds and to discuss the issues involved in selecting a telescope. New telescope owners are invited to set up and ask any questions about using and care of telescopes.

The star party is open to all, with no admission charge. Because space on the top of Observatory Hill is limited, plan to park in the lot unless bringing a telescope.

Reel & Meal Film At Café Monday

The next in the Reel & Meal at the New Deal film series will be "Green Towns USA: A New Deal," to be shown on Monday, October 18 at 7 p.m. One in a series of monthly films exploring environmental and social justice issues that is sponsored by a consortium of four Greenbelt community organizations, the film is free. Food purchases are available at 6:30 p.m.

Planned and built near major cities in the 1930s as alternatives to inner city slums, Greenbelt, Greenhills, Ohio, and Greendale, Wis., were Depression-era experiments in federally-directed suburban planning. When the federal government withdrew its support, each of these towns had to make it on its own. The planning principles involved, the effectiveness of the solutions and the state of the towns today are the subject of this documentary by June Finfer. The story is told by Glory Southwind, president of the National New Deal Preservation Association, who grew up in one of the towns.

"Green Towns" is being shown again by popular demand as part of the Utopia Film Festival kickoff. For more details email Steve Kane at srkane@gmail.com.

Correction

In last week's page two article about Clean Currents' wind power awards, we incorrectly reported the recipient of the Clean Currents commission per sign-up. It is the Greenbelt Community Foundation which received a payment per sign-up.

On Screen

Wall Street, Round Two

Opening at Old Greenbelt Theatre on Friday, October 15 is "Wall Street: Money Never Sleeps." A semi-chastened Gordon Gekko (Michael Douglas), anti-hero of the 1987 film "Wall Street" (his motto then: Greed is good) returns to his old stomping grounds after eight years in prison for insider trading. Now son-in-law (Shia LaBeouf) presses ahead in a far more loaded market; Gekko tries to reconnect with his daughter; and director Oliver Stone calls on a range of characters played by such as Charlie Sheen (pivotal in Stone's Wall Street I), Eli Wallach, Josh Broline, Frank Langella and Susan Sarandon. Mega-bucks, if not megalomania, underscore this cautionary tale.

PG-13. Running time is 133 minutes. Note: Showings take turns with "It's Kind of a Funny Story," which was previewed in last week's News Review.

Obituaries

Cheryl Ann Chappell

Cheryl Ann Chappell of Chesapeake Beach, formerly of Riverdale, died on October 7, 2010.

Ms. Chappell touched the lives of many children and parents during her 20 years at Greenbelt Nursery School and her time with Kindercamp through the Greenbelt Recreation Department. She enjoyed gardening and picking flowers to share with the children. She also enjoyed cutting hair and had many clients in Greenbelt throughout the years. Ms. Chappell was a huge fan of the Washington Redskins and wore the colors proudly. She was a kind, gentle and loving person who always had her arms out for a hug.

She is survived by her father Ralph R. Moody; daughter Jaclyn Douglass (John) and son Michael Chappell; grandchildren Savannah and Scarlett Douglass; and six brothers.

There was a service at Lee Funeral Home Calvert in Owings, Md. on Thursday, October 14. There will be a memorial service at Greenbelt Nursery School at a later date.

MAD Players Offer "Sound of Music"

by Debra Dusterwald

Residents of Greenbelt and the Music and Drama Club (MAD) at Greenbelt's NASA Goddard Space Flight Center are presenting a Fall Dinner Theater musical, "The Sound of Music" by Rodgers and Hammerstein from October 22 through November 20.

The "Sound of Music" premiered on Broadway on November 14, 1959. It was an instant hit. The songs from the original musical include Maria, My Favorite Things, Do-Re-Mi, Sixteen Going on 17, The Lonely Goatherd, So Long, Farewell, Climb Ev'ry Mountain and Edelweiss. A very popular movie was then made in 1965, based on the original play, with Julie Andrews starring as Maria.

Fans of the movie will notice that there are several differences between the movie and the original play. My Favorite Things is sung by Mother Abess and Maria in the corridor of the Abbey, Do-Re-Mi is sung in the living room of the Von Trapp Villa by Maria and the Von Trapp children and the Lonely Goatherd is sung in Maria's bedroom during the thunderstorm. Two new songs, I Have Confidence and Something Good, were composed for the movie. The MAD production will include these two songs as well as all the original songs from the play.

The following cast and crew members are Greenbelt residents: Jon Gardner (Franz); David Gardner (sound/lights), a 7th grader at Greenbelt Middle school; Elizabeth Gardner (Marta), a 5th-grader at Greenbelt Elementary; Rebecca Gardner (Gretl), a first-grader at Greenbelt Elementary; Scott Candy (sound/lights), a 7th grader at Greenbelt Middle school; Mairead Alexander (postulant), an 8th grader at Thomas Pullen performing arts school; Katerina Sanders (postulant), a 9th grader at Eleanor Roosevelt High School; Wendy McGill (nun); Scott Ritz (stage manager); and News Review staffers Anne Gardner (violin, costumes) and Helen Sydavar (viola).

The show runs every weekend between October 22 and November 20. Come enjoy a Friday or Saturday evening or a Sunday matinee. The show is double-cast, so check the schedule on the website if hoping to see particular friends and neighbors on stage.

More information and ticket sales information is available at the MAD website www.madtheater.org.

Debra Dusterwald, a Goddard employee, is a member of the Goddard MAD Players and is also cast as a nun in the production of Sound of Music.

for the past 12 months. Thus, in Prince George's and all the other jurisdictions with orphans' courts, judges do not have to be lawyers.

In Harford and Montgomery Counties, the county circuit court also serves as the orphans' court. Since circuit court judges are required to be attorneys, the judges who sit as orphans' court judges in those two counties are attorneys.

Judges of orphans' courts hear all contested matter regarding a decedent's estate, including validity of wills and legal questions involving transfer of properties. They also supervise estates that are probated judicially; approve accounts, awards of personal representatives' commissions and attorney's fees in all estates and have concurrent jurisdiction with the circuit courts in the guardianship of minors and their properties.

County Questions

Six Prince George's County questions will appear on the ballot, all required by the county charter. All are questions seeking approval for the county to issue bonds.

The bond moneys sought for authorization would be used for the design, construction, reconstruction, extension, acquisition, improvement, enlargement, alteration, renovation, relocation, rehabilitation or repair of the types of facilities set forth in the bond question. The county government cannot borrow more than the amount authorized but could borrow less.

These are general obligation bonds requiring the pledge of the county's full faith and credit. Any money borrowed will have to be paid back with interest over a period of time out of the general revenues and tax yields of the county.

The topic for the workshop is "What is Anosognosia (and how do you say it?)," which will be presented by Aileen Kroll, JD, legislative and policy counsel for the Treatment Advocacy Center.

How is it possible to get help for someone who doesn't know they're sick? Kroll's presentation will focus on a neurological symptom which affects approximately 50 percent of those with severe mental illnesses. Refreshments will be served.

The amount of the bonds to be authorized and the purpose for which the money can be used are as follows:

Question A $62,255,000 Public Works and Transportation Facilities (including roads, bridges, parking lots and maintenance facilities).

Question B $25,200,000 County Buildings

Question D $42,227,000 Community College Facilities

Question E $85,835,000 Public Safety Facilities (including Fire Department facilities)

Question F $28,675,000 Environmental Facilities

Top 5 Dental Procedures For a Beautiful Smile

Dr. David McCarl, Dr. Clayton McCarl, Dr. Monica Mattson, Dr. Jay McCarl
McCarl Dental Group

Are you self-conscious about your smile? A healthy smile contributes more than just beauty; it is a vital component of good overall health. Every day dental patients ask about options for improving the health and appearance of their smile. The great news is that dental procedures and especially cosmetic dental procedures have improved dramatically over the last 10 to 15 years. As a result, there's an array of affordable options that are no longer a luxury limited to Hollywood celebrities. There are a wide range of choices available for improving the health and appearance of your smile. Speak to a dental professional who can help you determine which dental procedures are best for your needs.

If you've thought about improving your smile, this guide can help you learn about the latest techniques in dentistry and cosmetic dental procedures.

Invisalign Orthodontics is a simple and convenient way to straighten your teeth. Clear, thin Invisalign trays straighten teeth and correct your bite. Unlike metal braces, almost no one else can tell you are wearing Invisalign. Straightening crooked teeth with Invisalign orthodontics is more comfortable, more convenient, less expensive and usually faster than metal braces. For most adults, treatment time is just under one year. Overall gum and bone health are improved when teeth are properly aligned and fit together with an ideal bite. Straight teeth are not only important for a beautiful smile - they contribute to a healthy smile!

Dental Implants are an excellent example of the benefits of new dental technology and are often an ideal solution for replacing missing teeth. A dental implant serves as a tooth root and anchors a replacement tooth, bridge or denture to your jaw. When dental implants are restored with porcelain crowns, they look, feel and function like natural teeth. One of the most common uses of mini dental implants is stabilization of dentures. Anchoring a denture with one or more dental implants solves problems commonly associated with dentures, including concern and discomfort from loose and poorly fitting dentures.

Teeth Whitening or Bleaching with professional whitening gel often reduces or eliminates tooth stains and discoloration that occurs over time. Patients have great success with the Zoom and DayWhite custom take home whitening tray systems. The results can be achieved quickly and you can enjoy whiter teeth for a long time.

Porcelain Veneers are a thin layer of porcelain applied to the front of teeth. Veneers allow dentists to change the color, size and shape of teeth for a more aesthetic smile. Porcelain veneers are an excellent option for people with tooth discoloration or heavy stains that do not lighten with professional tooth whitening.

Dental veneers are custom made. The thickness of the veneer and the amount of tooth reduction necessary varies with each patient's specific needs.

Crowns are used to cover or "cap" damaged teeth starting at the gum line. In addition to strengthening the damaged tooth, a crown can be used to improve the tooth's appearance, shape or alignment. In the past, porcelain crowns were fused to metal and were less natural looking. Today, all-porcelain crowns are more durable, comfortable and much more attractive.

distribution, health care, insurance, housing and telecommunications, as well as purchasing and shared services.

Cooperatives are businesses that are owned and controlled by their members, not by investors. They return surplus revenues (income over expenses and investment) to members proportionate to their use of the cooperative, not proportionate to their ownership share. In general co-ops are motivated by service to their members, not by profit. All of the cooperatives in Greenbelt ascribe to cooperative principles including voluntary membership, democratic organization and economic involvement.

There are four main types of cooperatives: Consumer cooperatives are owned by the people who buy the goods or use the services of the cooperative. Consumer co-ops include credit unions, child care cooperatives, electric and telecommunications cooperatives, food co-ops, health care co-ops, housing cooperatives. Producer Cooperatives are owned by people who produce similar types of products and collectively market them to improve their incomes. The News Review is a Producer Co-op.

Worker-Owned Cooperatives, like Equal Exchange in Boston, are owned and governed by the employees of the business while Purchasing/Shared Services Cooperatives, such as Ace Hardware, are owned and governed by independent business owners that band together to enhance their purchasing power.

Of course cooperatives operate differently depending on their mission. Some, like the Greenbelt Nursery School, make use of both paid staff and member participation as they offer a creative educational environment to its member families. Others, like the Greenbelt Consumer Cooperative (the Co-op), offer members a share in the earnings when the business shows a profit.

Often cooperatives are born of necessity. GHI arose when the government decided it no longer wanted to be in the housing business. It is now one of more than 6,400 housing cooperatives which provide homes for 1.5 million households. Others result from a shared love or activity. Wanting a place to gather and hear music, a group founded The New Deal Café in 1995. It's a nonprofit member-owned cooperative overseeing the operation of a restaurant and coffee house, offering food, music and art exhibits by local artists.

Cooperatives can serve specific groups or communities. Greenbelt's first financial facility, Greenbelt Federal Credit Union, was formed in 1937 to "promote thrift among its members and provide them with a source of credit for provident or productive purposes." It was one of the first credit unions to offer checking accounts. Its field of membership includes anyone who lives or works in Greenbelt as well as anyone who is a member of the Greenbelt Consumer Cooperative.

Many of our local cooperatives have influence far beyond our city limits. GHI often hosts visitors from here and abroad who want to learn more about their unique history and management. And of course the News Review, in pursuing its mission to provide clear information about issues facing the local community, had a legal case go all the way to the Supreme Court which they won!

As a cooperative community, Greenbelt shares in a grand tradition of service and innovation. The philosophy and principles which underlie the cooperative movement continue to benefit businesses and communities throughout the world for the good of all.

Dorrie Bates is former chair of the Co-op (GCC) and a member of the Greenbelt Cooperative Alliance. This article is a reprint from October 22, 2009.

prospective buyer requests that council agree to reduce the number of spaces to 1.75 per unit.

According to his letter of July 19 to Assistant Planning Director Terri Hruby, Birenbaum argues that "actual parking demand" for similar projects in the Washington area "typically falls in the range of 1.5-1.6 spaces per unit" – in other words, less than what he offers.

Birenbaum also requests some building footprint modifications in order, as he says, "to improve the efficiency of the parking structure." These changes might possibly increase "slightly" the "length of the parking structure," his letter says.

At the same time this change might slightly "reduce the footprint of the residential building," his letter concedes but "would not increase the overall total building footprint on the site in any material way."

At the October 6 meeting Birenbaum had with him the original project designs which the city's Advisory Planning Board and council had approved in 2005 and which were later agreed to by the Prince George's County Planning Board. The former developer had then received all required approvals and building permits.

Rental Request

The major change Birenbaum requested, however, was city permission to allow possible rental occupancy. Previously condominium purchases had been envisioned and approved by council.

But the real estate market had changed markedly, Birenbaum argued. "Companies need to know there is an alternative to get paid," he said. "There is nothing worse than a failed condominium project," he emphasized.

Mayor Judith Davis speculated about the time frame they were talking about. She estimated that county approvals for the proposed changes would take some nine months, that it might be nine to 12 months to start construction and that it might be 15 to 18 months before the project could be completed. Implicit in her speculation was that the real estate situation, particularly as to a buyers' market, might have turned around by then.

Rodney Roberts spoke up. "There are too many apartments in the city," he said. "A senior housing facility is needed," he added, "but not an institution in a regular apartment building." Later in the meeting he re-emphasized the point. "I would be comfortable building co-ops there," he said, "but not condos."

In response to a query about rental fees, Birenbaum "guessed" – his word – that it might be something like $1,800 for a two-bedroom unit and $1,400 for a one-bedroom unit.

Councilmember Leta Mach wondered if Birenbaum had looked at cooperatives as a possibility "that you might be able to sell?"

Birenbaum responded indirectly that the selling of condominiums "tends to move in cycles."

Style of Units

Councilmember Silke Pope wondered about the kind of units being envisioned. Birenbaum responded that the current market was moving toward smaller units. "It's a different generation," he said.

He emphasized that, as envisioned, there would be parking "on your level." There would also be more open spaces, he said, "and areas where residents can congregate, spaces for more social interaction." The builders would be constrained, he added, "by what people can afford."

Stressing his personal experience with condominiums, he said, "I've owned them, I've developed them, I've lived in them."

Mach commented that she believed two- and three-bedroom units would sell better than one-bedroom units. "The second bedroom could be used as a den," she said.

Councilmember Emmett Jordan spoke about the proposed structure's "wonderful location." He wondered about the possibility of the developer's "investing in transportation," possibly a shuttle.

Davis asked about storage rooms, possibly bike rooms. "You need to have storage space," she said.

Councilmembers went back and forth about considering the possibility of rental apartments instead of condominium sales. "It should be either co-ops or condominiums," Councilmember Edward Putens said. "That should be our goal – not more apartments."

Davis concurred. "We don't want to start rental developments," she said. "We want something high quality – and green. It would be attractive to a lot of professional people," she added.

Councilmember Konrad Herling stressed the timing factor – "so we wouldn't end up with 90 rental units." His was the last word.

But Jordan had perhaps best expressed the tone of the meeting. "It was a thoughtful presentation," Jordan said.
