Summit Meeting at Franklin Park Explores Upgrades and Policies

by James Giese

The owners, managers and representatives of Fieldstone Properties, new owner of Franklin Park at Greenbelt Station, hosted a "summit meeting" on April 6 on redevelopment of the garden apartment project. The complex, originally known as Springhill Lake, was more recently renamed Empirian Village before its current name.

Greenbelt Mayor Judith Davis, one of seven city officials at the summit in the former Giant training center in the shopping center within the apartment community, said she was impressed by the organization that went into the event. According to a Franklin Park press release, more than 50 representatives of state and local government bodies, federal government agencies, military bases, utility companies and universities attended.

The summit served multiple purposes. The current owner hoped to show what has been done so far and what is planned to upgrade the 2,900-unit apartment complex and to make the property more accessible to Metro, the University of Maryland and Fort Meade, where military base reorganization is expected to bring in large numbers of new personnel.

Owner representatives also sought $15 million in public funding and political support for undertaking some of the proposed improvements. Such an amount would match Fieldstone Properties' investment commitment in

Arbor Day and Earth Day To Be Celebrated April 16

by Barbara Hopkins

Arbor Day will be celebrated in Greenbelt this Saturday, April 16 with tree plantings at Schrom Hills Park beginning at noon. Mayor Judith Davis read the Arbor Day proclamation and presented it to members of the city's Advisory Committee on Trees (ACT) at the city council meeting on April 11.

Charles Jackman, chair of ACT, accepted the proclamation from the mayor and said burr oaks, black gum, bald cypress and possibly crape myrtle trees will be planted to honor the occasion.

The proclamation says Arbor Day was first celebrated in 1872 when settlers of Nebraska planted nearly a million trees for "shade, shelter, fruit, fuel and beauty." It also notes that in recent months Greenbelt joined the Baltimore-Washington Partners for Forest Stewardship, a consortium formed in 2006 with a mission of developing a comprehensive forest stewardship management plan for the last large (nearly 26,000 acres), unfragmented forest in the Baltimore-Washington corridor. This green space surrounded by dense development is under federal management by the U.S. Army at Fort Meade, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service at Patuxent Research Refuge, NASA/Goddard Space Flight Center and the Henry A. Wallace Beltsville Agricultural Research Center. The Maryland Department of Natural Resources and the non-profit Center for Chesapeake Communities also joined in 2006. The properties include over 3,000 acres of forest and another 3,000 acres of wetlands.

In Greenbelt, Earth Day festivities also will take place this Saturday, with the planting of a

Hiring New GHI Manager, Rehab Are Board Issues

by Sue Krofchik

The Greenbelt Homes, Inc. (GHI) board of directors, in a rare special meeting on April 5, met to focus on rarely occurring topics. The first concerned hiring a recruiting firm to identify candidates to replace the 17-year general manager, Gretchen Overdurff, who will retire in December.

The other two items required writing specifications for, and arranging the financing of, a pilot project that at its conclusion will determine the type and extent of the coming "rehab." The last such project took place in 1980.

A vote on first reading of a motion to hire Transition Guides to conduct an executive search and plan the transition to a new general manager did not occur. This issue was tabled after an extended, and sometimes passionate, discussion about spending $30-to-$35,000 to hire a search firm when a qualified and interested candidate is already in-house.

Treasurer Sylvia Lewis reminded the board repeatedly that a search does not exclude in-house applicants. "We can't short the co-op by doing a shoddy job," she said; "a search will allow the board to know their options so the best possible candidate can be selected."

Hiring from within would save money and increase morale, according to Laura Moore and Irv Wartell, respectively. "GHI has the talent and expertise in-house," said Tokey Boswell, and "anyone coming from outside would need six months to learn what GHI is."

Questions posed by Ed James brought out that recruiting a

Request for Four More Officers Enlivens Police Budget Review

by Kathleen Gallagher

On April 6 the Greenbelt City Council met to review the police and fire portion of the proposed Fiscal Year 2012 city budget including a last minute request for four more patrol officers. Nearly 40 percent of the city's general fund budget is devoted to public safety, with the police department budget (96 percent) making up the lion's share. The balance comprises fire and rescue contributions, animal control and traffic control. With $9,622,900 allocated to the police department out of the $10,018,800 proposed budget, the proposed public safety and police department budgets are within about 1 percent of amounts budgeted for the current year.

Since animal control falls administratively within the Department of Planning and Community Development and traffic control is administered by Public Works, those two portions of the public safety budget are considered at other worksessions.

All councilmembers were present at the worksession, as were the entire police command staff, City Manager Michael McLaughlin and City Treasurer Jeff Williams.

An unusual happening at the worksession took place at about 10:45 p.m. By this time council had heard presentations of the police department and reviewed the police budget.

Just when the meeting seemed to be over, Capt. Carl Schinner, commander of the patrol division since last year, distributed to council copies of a March 28 memo he had written to the city manager and to Chief James Craze addressing a need for four additional patrol officers.

Midnight Issues

Noting that at midnight only four officers are on patrol, Schinner said response options are limited at that time, especially if a decision to pursue making an arrest takes an officer outside the city. He said good practice would dictate that the department be able to respond to two priority crime events simultaneously without compromising either one or endangering safety.

Often the department cannot handle two events adequately, however, he said, or can do so only with the assistance of officers working secondary employment if they should happen to be available. Schinner concluded that, as patrol commander, he was concerned that both officer and resident safety were being compromised by inadequate patrol staffing.

This new request was over and above the proposed budget by the manager. This need had also not been mentioned in the presentation on the patrol division, although allusions had been made throughout discussion of the police budget about the need for personnel for extra duties, at least in part following recent retirements of experienced officers.

The topic had not been raised as well at previous discussions of the proposed FY12 budget. Nor was it mentioned in the budget document section addressing police department issues and goals for the upcoming year. The estimated cost for one officer is $100,100, including salary and benefits and such ancillary costs as uniforms, vehicle and weapons.

Determining the size of the work force is a management function not subject to negotiation under the city's collective bargaining agreement with the F.O.P. That organization did not make a presentation at the meeting.

Officer Ratio

Mayor Judith Davis asked whether Greenbelt did not already have a high officer-to-resident ratio relative to the rest of the county. Chief Craze said that

THANKS!

This week's News Review is one of the best I have ever read. I am so lucky to live in Greenbelt. I was particularly touched by the cribbage article and the write-up on the Mac 'n Cheese demo. Oh, Greenbelt!

Thank you so much for all you do and please keep up the great work!

Eileen Boswell

THANKS!

Thanks for Celebrating LeRoy's Life.

Words cannot express my deepest appreciation for all the comforting words expressed after the death of "my" beloved dog, LeRoy. One thing is for sure, he was a "community" dog, having touched the hearts and spirits of many besides my own.

I also would like to thank everyone who attended and helped with the celebration of LeRoy's life. Special thanks to the New Deal Café for welcoming over 40 people to gather, reminisce and celebrate.

As I reflect on the past several weeks, I am struck by how fortunate we are in Greenbelt. We have well traveled pathways and intersections which allow us to meet and get to know one another and share in each other's lives in ways that truly give meaning to the word "community."

"ONLY IN GREENBELT!"

Octava Duo Signals Coming Of Spring in Annual Concert

by James Giese

For the past 10 years a sign of spring's arrival is the annual Octava Piano Duo concert offered by Wei-Der Huang and Hsien-Ann Meng at Greenbelt Community Church. This Sunday, April 10, Mother Nature greeted the pair by turning a cold, blustery day into a sunny, warming afternoon shortly before the concert. Huang is music director for the church and a professor of piano at Howard University. Her friend since graduate studies, Meng is also on the Howard faculty.

The Duo's concerts always produce the highest quality of performance of a form of music rarely heard these days but once common in parlors throughout the world. This year's performance was no exception.

The program consisted of four pieces written by French Romantic composers Poulenc, Chabrier, Bizet and Debussy and a modern work in similar style by Canadian Denis Bédard. Of these, the piece that appeared to this non-musician to be the most challenging and spectacular was Francis Poulenc's 1918 composition "Sonata for Piano Four-Hands." With runs, chords and melodies bouncing back and forth between the lower and upper registers of the piano and sweet sounds mixed with mild dissonance, the work enabled the duo to show in six minutes their skill, dexterity and musical virtuosity.

Emmanuel Chabrier's "España" is a very familiar orchestral piece with four-hands offering an equally rich rendering of the work. Less familiar to me was Georges Bizet's "Jeux d'enfants, Op. 22," although I did recognize some of the melodies. It consists of 12 parts with subtitles like "The Swing," "The Doll," "Leapfrog" and "The Ball," the latter being an exhilarating gallop

NAMI Support Group Meets

The local chapter of the National Alliance on Mental Illness (NAMI) will hold its regular New Carrollton Area Support Group at the Hanco Building at Beckett Field, 8511 Legation Road, New Carrollton on Monday April 18 from 10 a.m. to noon. This supportive work group prepares the mailing and provides other volunteer tasks while sharing their mental health experiences, challenges and solutions.

Greenbelters were shocked and saddened to learn of the cancer death of Bill Souser, 79, on Sunday, April 10, 2011, after a short illness. He was well known to all who attended activities at the Community Center and was an active member of the Golden Age Club until just a few weeks ago. He had served as president of the club several times. Funeral arrangements are pending.

Condolences to the family and friends of Cecilia Estherlee "Mama" Williams Eugene, 86, who died March 31, 2011. Mrs. Eugene resided in Greenbelt with her daughter Diana Eugene. A native of New Orleans, she came to Greenbelt with her husband (now deceased) after Hurricane Katrina and had made many friends here. Funeral services have already taken place in New Orleans but the family is planning a memorial service to be held in Maryland at a later date.

providing a peppy conclusion to the work. The Claude Debussy "Petite Suite," although not very familiar to me, is a fine example of the rich soft harmonies typical of this composer.

Denis Bédard is unknown to me. In first listening to his "Duet Suite" for organ (played by Huang) and piano" I was surprised to find it to be quite in harmony with the other Romantic pieces. I love their combined sound. In this case, the melodic line often bounced back and forth between the two instruments, providing pleasant contrasts. However, I found the work to leave me with an incomplete feeling. I wanted it to end with a rousing finale in which the full sounds of both instruments blended into one glorious ending to an otherwise perfectly delightful and well-executed musical afternoon.

Bravo to the Octava Piano Duo for once again bringing to Greenbelt another superior classical afternoon.

Franklin Park.

According to Davis, among those present at the meeting were a representative of Congressman Steny Hoyer's office, Aubrey D. Thagard of the County Executive's office, Prince George's County Council Chair Ingrid Turner and staff and representatives from state and county housing agencies. Military personnel were also present, as well as university representatives including student and graduate student association presidents of the University of Maryland. Pepco was also represented.

Representing the city were Davis, City Councilmembers Emmett Jordan, Konrad Herling and Edward Putens, City Manager Michael McLaughlin, Police Chief James Craze and Planning and Development Director Celia Craze.

Both Fieldstone Properties owner partners from New Jersey were also there, Davis added. Sharon Thames, once with AIMCO Empirian Village, now executive director of business development and government affairs for Fieldstone, was a spokesperson at the meeting as was Debbie Dillon, on-site executive vice president. Davis said Fieldstone is now represented by advocate Michael Arrington and attorney Norman Rivera, who had previously represented AIMCO and Empirian Village.

Upgrades

In a press release Fieldstone representatives described as "unprecedented" their effort to upgrade one of the largest apartment communities on the East Coast. Their hope was to provide safe, comfortable, convenient and affordable workforce housing.

As part of that effort, Fieldstone Properties will offer incentives for those who protect and serve, including veterans, displaced veterans, police officers and firefighters. The owners had recently signed Rental Partnership Agreements with Fort George G. Meade, Fort Myer and Joint Base Anacostia-Bolling. Representatives also seek agreements with the University of Maryland.

Davis said the city council had been skeptical when Fieldstone first arrived. However, she said the firm had been very cooperative in working with city staff and its departments.

Code violations, a critical problem with former owners of the property, have been reduced by 80 percent she said, and residents now call management, instead of the city, to complain, "because there is someone there to answer the phone and listen to them," she added. Armed robberies, a serious crime problem, have also been significantly reduced.

"Unlike so many owners and developers seeking to convert close-in properties to luxury housing," Dillon said at the summit, "Fieldstone Properties is committed to working closely with the community and government to provide high-quality, affordable housing for people who live, work and study in this area. By operating efficiently and buying in volume, we can offer renovated apartments with luxury finishes while keeping rents affordable for those with household incomes starting at $37,000."

Since acquiring the property last fall, the new owners have renovated 85 of the property's 2,877 rental apartments. They plan to continue renovating apartments at the rate of 80 to 100 per month.

Individual apartment upgrades include all-new gourmet kitchens and baths with "condominium" finishes, refinished hardwood and new ceramic tile floors, designer lighting fixtures and refurbished balcony railings. Building entries are also being upgraded with secure energy-efficient doors and new signage.

Fieldstone Properties has also made community-wide security improvements, including call boxes and security camera enhancements. They also continue to fund a dedicated police officer for the community.

There is now free weekday shuttle transportation to both the Greenbelt Metro Station and the University. In addition, management has received and completed a backlog of over 10,000 tenant work order requests, according to the company's press release.

Tour

Davis said everyone afterward went on a shuttle bus tour to see a remodeled apartment. In the process they passed some good things about the community and things still to do. The apartment they saw had been furnished for occupation by students.

A unique feature Fieldstone is offering, Davis said, is multiple student leases for one apartment. One student thus has rights to his or her room and common apartment areas but is not responsible for actions or failures to make payment by apartment mates.

According to the press release, the company has set aside $15 million for both external and interior renovations. In addition to updating the 40-year-old apartments, Fieldstone Properties plans to upgrade existing community amenities and add a state-of-the-art fitness center and day care provider.

The owner is seeking additional funding, however, to achieve these transformational goals. Fieldstone hopes to obtain approximately $15 million in tax-increment financing (TIF) for a variety of public infrastructure improvements, including a pedestrian walkway and bridge to the Greenbelt Metro Station. The owners also are working with Pepco to help finance major improvements in energy efficiency.

TIF

Tax-increment financing is a way to use government borrowing at lower interest rates to finance public improvements required to serve the needs of new development. The bonds issued are repaid from increased tax proceeds resulting from the new development and the government's full faith and credit are not pledged in support of repaying the debt.

(TIF's were commonly used to finance public improvements for new developments prior to the real estate bubble burst. Greenbelt had agreed to do a TIF, for example, for the Greenbelt Metro Station - South Core. Bond financing for TIFs evaporated, however, before this borrowing could take place and the South Core project is currently on hold.)

The proposed new TIF is apparently being asked of the county. Both Davis and McLaughlin said the city is not involved.

The proposed pedestrian walkway was first considered when the Greenbelt Metro station was planned. It was never seriously considered, however. It would have run from Springhill Drive and Cherrywood Lane to the Metro station, shortening the walking distance from the apartments to the station. Such a walkway, however, must cross state lands acquired to preserve woodland and flood plain, and would need to be bridged to cross Indian Creek and the flood plain. Providing security would also be difficult because of the long distance involved through dense woodland and away from public thoroughfares.

Turner, whose district includes Greenbelt, is "excited to partner with Fieldstone on the revitalization of the project." She added, "I understand their success is contingent upon public-private partnerships."

search firm had not gone out for bid. He softened his remarks by saying if an internal candidate were selected, GHI would have access to applications for the newly vacant position.

The elephant in the room was being ignored, however. Finally Assistant General Manager Eldon Ralph, previously director of maintenance, was asked to comment on his qualifications and his interest in the position.

Ralph said he wants "GHI to get the very best person for the organization. I am that person." He felt a search "would give assurance that the person selected is the most qualified. GHI has an $8 million budget," he said, and "$35,000 is not a large amount to pay compared with the budget and implications of decisions made by the general manager."

The motion to table engagement of a search firm was passed 5 to 3, with board president Suzette Agans, Lewis and Boswell opposed. Maker of the motion Laura Moore reiterated that her intent was not to "kill" the motion.

Agans asked, incredulously, "Why table? What other information do you need?" No such information was identified.

Lewis had earlier reminded the board that seven to nine months are needed for outgoing and incoming general managers to work together.

Pilot Funding

Previously the board had passed motions for financing the pilot project if it does not lead to a community-wide upgrade (CWUG). Replacement Reserve funds and Addition Maintenance Reserve funds have been, and continue to be, collected for such improvements as replacing windows and doors in all homes and also replacing siding and waste pipes in frame units. These items will be replaced even if no broad rehab occurs.

Also being tested during the pilot project are items for which no funds have been collected. These include correcting building environment/indoor air quality, member comfort and energy efficiency, which will be paid for by borrowing money or with grants.

The 28 pilot project test homes consist of three rows of block homes, two brick rows and two rows of frame homes. Also included are 13 additions.

A memorandum of understanding will be executed both by GHI and each member participating in the pilot study to avoid potential confusion about costs and payments. The memorandum will also include the following motions unanimously agreed upon:

- Spending no more than $222,940 from replacement reserve funds in the pilot project to replace doors and windows on the 28 pilot homes and siding and waste pipes for eight frame homes.

- Spending no more than $13,075 from addition maintenance reserves to install building envelope upgrades on 13 additions included in the pilot program.

- Making a loan of $255,511 from replacement reserve funds to finance building envelope upgrades on the 28 pilot homes and borrowing $18,870 from addition maintenance reserves for 13 additions.

- Paying for cost of the contract to write bid specifications as part of financing the CWUG.

- Paying the costs to help pilot participants cope with the loss of running water during waste pipe replacement (in frame homes) as part of financing the CWUG.

- Paying reasonable repair costs for damage done to kitchens and bathrooms during waste pipe replacement from replacement funds.

- Including the cost of anticipated replacement repairs of waste pipes the next time the replacement reserve fund is reviewed.

- Storing of air conditioners by GHI during the pilot project until a decision is made about heating/air conditioning upgrades in the CWUG.

- Lending two portable air conditioning units for each home of members who are required to remove through-the-wall or window air conditioners for the pilot study. These portable units will be purchased by GHI and resold when no longer required.

- Paying for hired labor to assist members in removing and returning attic items as part of financing the CWUG.

Specifications

The second reading of a motion was passed authorizing a contract with Falcon Engineering, Architecture & Energy Consultants (Falcon Group) to provide written specifications for the planned pilot project that will focus on energy upgrades to 28 homes. The cost is $12,995, plus 15 percent for contingencies, for a total not to exceed $14,944.

Falcon Group will prepare technical design documents to specify the scope of work and quality control requirements for implementing the building envelope.

population is no longer used to determine the size of the necessary force. Too many factors not taken into account in Greenbelt's case, for example, are highways, pass-through traffic and crime.

Councilmember Rodney Roberts said he had always been supportive of the need for more patrol officers but in the past getting more officers had not seemed to result in more officers on patrol. He also alluded to examples in the department's earlier evening presentation of activities bringing prestige to the department and to the city.

These had included, for example, officer participation in accrediting agency activities, K-9 events, school programs, training requests from other communities and honor guard presentations for other organizations. While not questioning the value of these activities Roberts asked to what extent such special assignments were making officers unavailable for core police work.

Craze replied that some officers had been hired in part with community policing grants supporting certain types of city goals and activities. He thought that determining the type of police department the city wishes to have is ultimately a political decision for council. McLaughlin added that under any circumstances he saw significant value in the cross-training that allowed officers to take on various roles.

Eight Needed

Councilmember Leta Mach noted that Schinner's memo said that eight new positions were needed but only four requested. She asked what might be accomplished if two more positions were added. Schinner and Craze both said two would be of further benefit.

At this point, Kelly Ivy asked to speak as a resident. He said council had not been making the necessary tough decisions and that it was obvious many in the department were wearing multiple hats.

Ivy challenged the nature of the questioning to the command staff. He said the police must be a priority over other parts of the budget and that the Greenbelt police "have never asked for more than what they've needed." He was critical of money budgeted for what he considered to be less essential programs and high salaries for lower-level staff in other departments.

Mayor Davis and Councilmember Konrad Herling addressed council's responsibility to look at needs and concerns of the city as a whole. The mayor also took umbrage at the implication that staff members at any level with long service to the city should remain at entry-level salaries.

Councilmember Emmett Jordan said he found it puzzling that anyone could think the city council was attempting to underfund the police department when nearly 40 percent of the proposed budget is devoted to public safety.

Resident Molly Lester also spoke briefly. She agreed with Ivy's central point that without strong public safety, the city's other programs, as good as they may be, would not mean much.

Public Hearing

Mayor Davis suggested that Ivy and Lester both come to the first public hearing on the budget (April 26) with specific recommendations on what they thought should be cut. Mach suggested that the $400,400 be placed on the "wish list" of items requested but not budgeted, with further information to be provided.

When asked later about the timing of this request, McLaughlin said that although Capt. Schinner had initiated discussion on this subject during the department's preliminary budget meetings, McLaughlin believed more analysis and evaluation were necessary than would have been feasible within the time constraints for completing this budget.

Indeed, the middle part of the meeting dealing with the police department budget, proceeded in the usual fashion. The proposed budget, in most categories, is almost the same as that for the current year. A rise in computer expenses reflects software maintenance for the new computer-aided dispatch and records management system.

A decrease in the new equipment line, however, reflects a limitation of new-vehicle requests to no more than six. The salary line continues to drop as well, as experienced officers retire.

Revenues generated are projected to be largely unchanged with increases in red light camera fines as cameras come back on line and the possible introduction of speed camera fines.

Staffing levels are unchanged in the proposed budget, with 54 sworn officers and another 15 staff members in records, communications and other support roles. At the time of the worksession, the 54 officer positions were accounted for, with the inclusion of three recruits currently enrolled at the Anne Arundel County Police Training Academy.

There was an increase of 55 percent this year in the number of slides shown by the department in its comprehensive presentation covering crime statistics; department staff, programs and initiatives; upcoming accreditation renewal; public/private partnerships; and awards and achievements. A marked trend toward the enhanced reputation and leadership of the department beyond municipal borders was noted as well and appreciated by council, as were efforts to cover as many of the school resource officer programs as possible, since the retirement of one of the two trained officers.

Crime Trends

The police department's analysis of recent crime statistics, presented at the worksession, has been previously reported in this paper's March 24 issue. When questioned by the mayor about the comparative rates of 5.4 and 6.8 victims per 1,000 population for Prince George's County and the City of Greenbelt respectively, Chief Craze said rates for communities inside the Beltway tend to be higher than for those outside and that Greenbelt's rate has historically fallen in the middle, reflecting its regional location.

The mayor said with the trend toward lessening crime in Greenbelt West and increasing crime in Greenbelt East, residents have concerns about whether the police will shift resources to reflect the changing needs. Craze assured her the department does so on an ongoing basis and is aware of the needs.

Councilmember Ed Putens asked if the department could look into getting comprehensive information on crime at the Greenbelt Metro Station, because three jurisdictions share responsibility: Greenbelt, WMATA and College Park.

Councilmember Silke Pope asked if any new neighborhood watch groups were forming. MPO Kelly Lawson said they were having recruitment problems, that the center city group was down in membership and that consideration was being given to combining smaller groups to cover larger areas.

Included among issues to be addressed and management objectives achieved in the new fiscal year were moving forward to take full advantage of and complete the mobilization of the Computer Aided Dispatching (CAD) and Records Management Systems (RMS), now installed and implemented; making full use of the nearly completed 700 MHz interoperable radio communications system, now installed, that will permit communication among public safety agencies throughout the region; moving forward with a plan to implement a speed camera program; and preparing for the department's third accreditation certification review by the Commission on Accreditation for Law Enforcement Agencies (CALEA), to be completed in fall 2012.

Speed Cameras

Built into the proposed budget is an estimated $200,000 in revenues anticipated from installation over the year of one or more speed cameras. In his presentation of the budget, McLaughlin said that because revenues from speed cameras drop quickly as compliance increases, they would be unlikely to supply a steady revenue stream, he proposed to earmark these monies for rebuilding the city's fund balance to the targeted 10 percent of total expenditures.

Discussion at the worksession, however, suggested a number of issues would need to be resolved before Greenbelt could move forward on speed cameras. Current law requires that a sworn police officer verify film and sign off on all speed camera citations. A bill had been defeated in the current General Assembly session that would have permitted appropriately trained civilian staff to undertake this work.

The city has not yet determined whether the police department is adequately staffed to assign a sworn officer to this duty. Chief Craze said he did not see a way to share an officer with another jurisdiction because an officer can be "sworn" to one place only. Other options may be possible, he said, including participating in the Howard County partnership, which might allow for sharing of staff.

Fire Department

Usually the opening act of the public safety meeting is the Greenbelt Volunteer Fire Department and Rescue Squad, for which the city provides some funding for equipment replacement. Because no one was present, however, to represent GVFD&RS, review of this part of the budget will be rescheduled.

In addition to the $60,000 proposed for the Greenbelt department, contributions of $5,000 each have also been budgeted for the Berwyn Heights and West Lanham Hills Fire Departments in recognition of their high level of service to Greenbelt.

of your teeth. The American Dental Association recommends preventing periodontal disease and its associated medical complications with proper diet, brushing, flossing and routine dental visits.

If you have symptoms of periodontal disease, please take it seriously and contact a dental health professional for a thorough dental exam!

Your oral health is connected to many other health conditions beyond your mouth. Sometimes the first sign of a disease shows up in your mouth. In other cases, infections in your mouth, such as gum disease, properly known as periodontal disease, can cause problems in other areas of your body. Periodontal disease is a chronic bacterial infection of the gums, and the byproducts of oral bacteria can enter the bloodstream. When oral bacteria escapes into the bloodstream it increases inflammation throughout the body and can injure major organs. Chronic inflammation is recognized as a significant factor in aging and disease.

Over 75 percent of Americans over the age of 35 have some form of periodontal disease. Do you notice any of these signs of periodontal disease - bleeding gums when brushing or flossing; red, swollen or tender gums; loose teeth; persistent bad breath; or receding gums?

Bacteria and inflammation from periodontal disease is associated with a number of serious health problems including:

- Heart disease
- Diabetes
- Dementia
- Rheumatoid arthritis
- Premature birth

Sometimes there are no obvious signs of periodontal disease. That is why routine professional dental exams are so important to your overall health.

Periodontal disease ranges from simple gum inflammation, called gingivitis, to a more serious disease, called periodontitis that causes gum tissue to pull away from the teeth forming pockets that become infected. Periodontitis results in damage to the bone supporting your teeth, and ultimately the loss
