Labor Day Festival

Labor Day Festival Features Art, Photos, Sports and Competitions

by Jon Gardner

Competition has always been part of the Labor Day Festival and this year is no exception. Talented Greenbelters can compete with their best artwork and photos in the Community Art Show and Photo Show, submit their cakes and canned goods to the Retro Town Fair or compete in the many sporting events. Even Greenbelt's four-legged friends can get into the act in the Children's Pet Show.

The Art Show dates back to the first Labor Day Festival in 1954. Barbara Simon has run it for more than 20 years. She has seen the best local artists compete in the various categories, including sculpture, painting, drawing and fine crafts.

Ribbons and prizes in the Art Show are awarded for adults, age 19 and older and children and teens in various age groups. Adults are allowed to submit four pieces and children can submit three pieces. The artwork should be submitted on Thursday or

Friday prior to the start of the Festival. The Art Show rules are on the Labor Day Festival website. Simon said, "Over the years it has been fun to see children work their way up through the age categories and finally compete as adults."

The Photo Show is run by Keith Zevallos. For Zevallos it is a family tradition; he took over running the show from his father, Prospero Zevallos, in 2000. The third generation is also involved; his children help him to set up the show after the contestants submit their photos on Thursday or Friday evening. Zevallos said, "Last year we had a great Photo Show, with over 150 pieces submitted." All contestants can submit two photos each; each must be in a frame measuring less than 16 x 20 inches. Photos by children aged 12 and under are judged separately from the adult entries. For rules and the entry form, see the website.

The Retro Town Fair was introduced last year and this popular event will be repeated this year on Sunday during the weekend. Entries can include flowers, vegetables, baked goods, canned goods and needlework.

The Festival includes a wide variety of sporting events, from archery to table tennis, from slow-pitch softball to horseshoes. There are strategy games, table tennis, basketball competitions and the Larry Noel memorial

Bill Rowland, Former News Review President Dies

Longtime former resident and former News Review president William E. Rowland, 88, died in Michigan July 27, 2013. He was born to Ernest and Ena (McManus) on September 10, 1924.

Mr. Rowland served in the U.S. Army Air Corps with the 351st Bomb Group 510th Bomb Squadron. After discharge in 1945, he attended Wooster College, graduating in 1948.

On June 18, 1949 he married Jeanne Lupton Schaeffer. They moved to Denver, Colo., where he graduated in 1951 with a master's degree in social work from the University of Denver.

The Rowlands moved to Greenbelt in 1953 and were later the first to sign a contract to buy a house in the new development of Lakewood in 1958.

Mr. Rowland worked in personnel for several different departments in the federal government and retired from the Department of Labor in 1979. He served on the Personnel Advisory Board for the city of Greenbelt. In 1980, he joined the staff of the Greenbelt News Review as a reporter covering city council and served as president of the Board of Directors from 1986 to 1993.

Mr. Rowland loved sailing. In retirement, many days were spent sailing the "Rolltop Two" on the Chesapeake Bay and in Bear Lake, Mich.

He is survived by his wife Jeanne of 64 years; sons Bill Jr. (Laura), David and John; sister Claire Burkhardt; granddaughters Darla Rowland, Candice Rowland and Rachel McCarthy; and grandsons Matthew Rowland, Michael Rowland and Lucas McCarthy.

Determined Dorothy's Dizzy Minutes Do Days' Double Duty

Greenbelt's former City Clerk, the late Dorothy Lauber, had a perceptive sense of humor she generally kept to herself. But from time to time she would express it in some way, particularly following a city council meeting she felt didn't go the way she would have liked. City Manager Michael McLaughlin recalls that, "Every now and then the spirit would move . . . [Lauber] . . . to write a second set of [city council] minutes as 'Dorothy saw things.' They were always a riot!"

Recently, Lauber's daughter, Alexa, came upon a set of old "minutes" written when Lauber was secretary to City Manager James Giese and substituted for the then city clerk, Gudrun Mills, on the rare occasions she was unable to attend a council meeting. These are about a June 9, 1980, meeting at which Mayor Gil Weidenfeld presided and three of the four other councilmembers attended: Richard Castaldi, Charles Schwan and Thomas X. White. Here is a portion of Lauber's unofficial minutes of that meeting:

"In the absence of the City Clerk Dorothy Lauber was designated as Acting City Clerk.

"For almost four hours, from 8:02 p.m. til 11:45 p.m. this Council meeting exemplified what has made the Council-Manager form of government the best form of local government in the United States.

"For almost four hours, Council with dignity and dispatch, deliberated, decreed, decided, directed, declaimed, debated, discoursed and dispensed with the matters brought before it. Diplomatically and discretely, diligently and dutifully, council made its determination which delighted some but displeased and dissatisfied a few. Perhaps there was a little doodling on the part of one Councilman [Note: Schwan was well known for his elaborate doodles during meetings], but there were no dull or downcast Councilmembers at this meeting, and none were in a dither, although at one point or another (during decisive debate) each expressed a desire to have his druthers. Except for one bit of silliness when Tom was tacitly tactful, this meeting was a perfect illustration of what the Council-Manager form of government can accomplish.

Developer Proposes Change To Plans for South Core

by James Giese

The News Review has received notice of plans by the developer of Greenbelt Metro Station South Core, now Virginia-based NVR, Inc., to submit a conceptual site plan (Application No. CSP-01008/020) for that project that would modify the approved conceptual site plan. The South Core is an 87-acre mixed-use site for which the city had previously approved up to 983 residential units for development. The revisions relate to relocating a stream valley trail and modifying or eliminating requirements to provide commercial development in the South Core. The purpose of the notice provided by Bryan Turton, project manager of Dewberry Consultants LLC, is to provide interested parties the ability to interact with the applicant prior to the acceptance of the application by the Maryland-National Capital

Park and Planning Commission (M-NCPPC). Also provided are mandatory time frames for taking action steps imposed by law taking place.

The first modification is to relocate a planned stream valley trail along Indian Creek from the west side of the stream to the east side. The east side is publicly owned lands. This trail is an extension of the Indian Creek Branch of the Anacostia River pedestrian/bicycle trail.

Another modification would remove an existing requirement to construct a two-story building of four condominium units with the two on the first floor becoming commercial retail/office space and the top two becoming residential units and, if successful, also permitting the developer to construct additional similar building units.

Balancing Ethical Concerns Is Vital

I was surprised to read in last week's News Review that members of the city council may reduce their civic participation to avoid possible ethical concerns.

Mayor Judith Davis has resigned from the GIVES board. GIVES uses a city-provided desk and phone in the Senior Lounge. Councilmember Konrad Herling is on the GATE board by council appointment and GATE uses a room in the Community Center. Both organizations involve many volunteers to support our residents.

We need to adopt common-sense ethics rules that encourage community engagement, not discourage it.

The public-private partnership between our city government and the volunteer organizations is a key factor in the success of our community. Nearly all of the major community activities, such as the Labor Day Festival, involve some city resources.

Another community success factor is the willingness of councilmembers to engage actively in our community activities and organizations, in addition to their numerous official meetings.

Disengaging council members from participating actively in community organizations is not the right answer.

We need a better balance.

Kudos to Staff, Good Samaritan

On Friday morning, August 2, after working out at the Aquatic and Fitness Center, I discovered that I had lost a set of house keys somewhere between the Center and my home on Ridge Road. Frantic because the key chain included several plastic key bobs for local retailers, I retraced my steps home. I assumed the keys would be easy to spot because of the plastic Jesus (in a bright red robe) flashlight on the key chain. Alas, after three trips back and forth to the Center and combing my front yard and court parking lot, I could not find the keys.

Nearly five hours later, I got a call from the Greenbelt Library. A Good Samaritan had found the keys near the Center and noticing the library key bob, had walked to the library to see if someone there could determine who the keys belonged to. As it turned out, I knew the Good Samaritan!

I would like to thank Carol and Julie who were at the Fitness Center Front Desk on Friday and took the time to search for the keys. I would also like to thank Elizabeth, the Greenbelt librarian, who called me.

Most of all, I would like to thank my Good Samaritan John, who found my keys and walked them to the library. When we talked on the phone John said to me, "When I saw Jesus, I knew you would be frantic for your keys." I replied, "I've been looking for Jesus all morning!"

And there he was, on the other end of the phone.

Thank you, Greenbelt!

Leonie Penney, a Loss And an Inspiration

Leonie Penney was not only a Greenbelt Outstanding citizen; she was an outstanding example of living a full rich life. We met when she became the secretary of the Greenbelt Internet Access Co-op.

After it became the Greenbelt Computer Club, she was a regular attendee of the Thursday monthly meetings, including the one this past May. She always said she wasn't "old" but that she was "long-lived." That attitude kept her active and seeking knowledge for 95 long lived years.

Leonie may have thought it was wonderful to live in Greenbelt; however, her many friends and acquaintances knew Greenbelt was wonderful because Leonie Penney lived in it.

Clarifications

Two of them, both in the July 11 article on the Greenbelt Day History Hike (page 12). The first, an error injected by editing that tried to bring clarity to a "100 unit apartment building" that we incorrectly called Green Ridge House. It was one of the four sites considered for Green Ridge House.

The second, in column 2 under Citizen Intervention, was feedback author Susan Barnett has received from readers who say what were called WWII "victory" gardens actually pre-date WWII so those should perhaps be called "the original garden plots" to distinguish them from "victory" gardens though they served that purpose during the war.

Running from the Past

Long promised on Old Greenbelt Theatre's marquee, "Mud" opens this Friday, August 9. Two boys pull up on a remote island in the Mississippi to find a boat stuck up in a tree and a rugged-looking man (Mathew McConaughey) hiding out. He calls himself Mud. The boys (Tye Sheridan and Jacob Lofland) are drawn into his troubled life, meet his girlfriend (Reese Witherspoon) and are confronted by the police. Director Jeff Nichols digs deeply into the conflated currents that swirl around Mud.

PG-13, with violence, sexual aspects, profanity and smoking. Running time: 130 minutes.

Woody Allen's new film, "Blue Jasmine," is projected to start at the Old Greenbelt Theatre on Friday, August 16.

Obituaries

George W. Neumann

George Wallace Neumann, 86, a longtime Greenbelt resident, died peacefully at his home in Mount Airy, Md., on Saturday August 3, 2013. He was born on February 26, 1927, the only son of Ralph Nelson Neumann and Beret Toline Hanson of Chicago, Ill., who later moved to Greenbelt.

Mr. Neumann graduated from Greenbelt High School in 1945 and married Joan Reid on August 12, 1950. They were longtime members of Greenbelt Community Church and theirs was the church's first wedding ceremony.

He received a bachelor's degree in engineering from the University of Maryland and a master's degree in electrical engineering from George Washington University. His career included active naval duty from June 1945 until July 1946 on the USS Randolph. He then became a career Navy civilian employee retiring as the technical director of the Naval Electronic Systems Command Test and Monitoring Systems program after approximately 35 years of service. He continued an active professional career working from 1982 until 1993 for Giordano Associates.

Mr. Neumann's hobbies included a love of both playing and watching sports. He was a regular participant in Monday night men's gym at the Greenbelt Youth Center. He played softball on several teams and was most recently a member of the over-75 league team, The Bears, in Albuquerque, N. M. In his later years, George and wife Bonnie enjoyed extensive traveling, a passion for live music and dining out. They split their time between homes in Albuquerque and Mount Airy.

Mr. Neumann was predeceased by his wife of 50 years Joan Arden Reid and a sister, Virginia Fowler.

He is survived by his wife of 13 years Bonnie Neumann and his three children: Gail Voigt of Beltsville, Nancy Bruce of Mount Airy and Douglas Neumann of Lexington Park; stepson Randall Sirbaugh of Ogden, Kan.; and grandchildren Todd Voigt, Hannah Bruce and Robert Grimsley Bruce, IV.

Recycling, Reusing Extends To Last Sunday's Artful Plan

by Amanda Salvucci

An old water bottle lies on the art table, ready to undergo its transformation. At Artful Afternoon, it's not a piece of trash. It's an artist's material to create a mobile.

Artful Afternoon is a free art workshop held once a month in Greenbelt and open to the community. The event is designed to be open to people of all ages.

"We're here to encourage people to participate in the arts and to encourage people to become part of the community and get people to interact and bounce ideas off of each other," said Kelly Wargo, the Greenbelt arts education specialist who helps run the program.

This past Sunday's workshop focused on using recycled materials to create mobiles and other works of art.

"We live in a community that's very eco-conscious, always recycling. That's how Greenbelt is and we wanted to encourage them to think," Wargo said.

Little Miss Greenbelt Ashley Wickline and Junior Miss Greenbelt Caroline Casey participated in the program.

"What we're doing today is making little objects out of recycled materials," she said, showing off her mobile made from half a water bottle with strings holding bottle caps and paperclips.

The plan was to inspire residents to think outside of the box on how to repurpose old items and incorporate them into their lives instead of throwing them out.

The next Artful Afternoon program will be on October 6 and will feature a performance. September's first Sunday will be a busy time with the four-day Labor Day Festival.

Hypertension . . . Silent Killer

As people age certain health conditions become more prevalent. One of the most common is hypertension, also known as high blood pressure. Since high blood pressure can be present without noticeable symptoms, many times it is left undiagnosed and untreated, which can cause major health concerns. Hypertension can lead to heart and kidney disease, cardiovascular disease, stroke and heart attack. It is important for everyone and especially the elderly to be screened for high blood pressure and understand ways to prevent and treat this condition.

Screening for hypertension is easily accomplished by having a simple blood pressure measurement by a qualified clinician. Hypertension is any reading higher than 140/90 mm Hg.

Blood pressure is measured by two numbers, the top number being the systolic pressure, which is the pressure inside blood vessels when the heart beats or contracts. A normal systolic reading is less than 120; any number above 140 is considered to be hypertension. The second number is the diastolic number, which is the pressure in blood vessels between beats, when the heart is at rest. A normal diastolic number is less than 80; any number greater than 90 is considered hypertension.

Some factors that contribute to an increase in hypertension after age 65 include:

- A tendency to oversalt food because of decreased taste bud sensitivity
- Changes in the walls of arteries and other blood vessels
- A decrease in the efficiency of the heart in pumping blood through the body
- Increase in abdominal fat

Hypertension can be prevented or treated if it is properly diagnosed. The most effective form of prevention is a healthy change in lifestyle – incorporating a healthier diet (i.e., reducing salt and adding vitamins, fiber and minerals) and participating in an exercise routine. Doctors recommend decreasing stressful living environments, stopping smoking and limiting alcohol consumption. When hypertension is diagnosed by a physician, medication may also be prescribed for effective blood pressure control. Blood pressure should be checked during doctor visits or at least once a year. More frequent checks may be advised for those at risk of or diagnosed with hypertension.

More information about high blood pressure is available by calling the American Heart Association at 1-800-242-8721 or visiting the AHA website at <http://www.americanheart.org>.

Three Artists Exhibit at New Deal Café

Three local artists are exhibiting their works at the New Deal Café through Sunday, September 8: Nora Simon's screen prints in the back room, Zsundayka Nzinga's surreal works, abstract portraits and expressionist oils in the front room and Susan DePlatchett's cigar boxes in the display case.

Nora Simon

"In the depth of winter I finally learned that there was in me an invincible summer." – Albert Camus Invincible Summer is a collection of screen prints by Simon. "My images are celebratory of summer and of its freedom and spirit of adventure. They are also nostalgic. From childhood through art school, I always planned elaborate summer vacations for myself, even though I knew I'd never have time to do everything on my list.

"Although the days seemed endless, the three months flew by much too fast. Now that I am older, I have found that the spirit of summer stays with me all year long.

"These images were printed using the photo emulsion method of screen-printing. This past winter I taught myself how to screen-print in my studio using very basic equipment that I constructed myself. After researching screen-printing and making friends with other screen-printers and sharing ideas, I figured out the least expensive method of printing.

"One of the reasons I love screen-printing is because of this 'whatever works, works' experimental quality. Another reason I love screen-printing is because of the ink's saturated and vivid colors. The brightness of these colors evokes the spirit of summer."

Zsundayka Nzinga

Nzinga (Day Acoli) is an art activist from Denver who has promoted entrepreneurship via the arts for over a decade, creating arts programs, teaching and lecturing, running a gallery and boutique and creating arts festivals.

She recently relocated to Washington, D.C., to further her career. Her work is largely based on the feminine in surrealist works, abstract portraiture and expressionist oil paintings. Her work can be seen at Flava of Wazobia next to the Howard Theater and Busboys and Poets at 14th and V in Washington, D.C. She also has a mural featuring all female images and her poetry on Georgia Avenue between Euclid and Fairmount Streets.

Susan DePlatchett

"In her heart she knew she was an artist," a quote from an unknown source, best describes Greenbelter DePlatchett. Throughout her life, she has always been intrigued by style, design, color and art forms of many kinds. From music, to cooking, to home design, she brings the eye of an artist to all aspects of her life.

Always dabbling in one form of art or another, DePlatchett's newest interests are in paper crafting, multi-media work and altered art. Her altered cigar boxes, along with a few other pieces of her creative work, have been on display at the Café since July and continues through the end of August.

When not creating in her "studio under the stairs," DePlatchett road race. If the competition gets to be too much, relax with the Bee Fusion yoga demonstration.

The traditional Talent Show has been combined this year with Greenbelt's Rising Stars, providing an opportunity for local children and teens to perform on Sunday during Labor Day Weekend. The Talent Show and Rising Stars are not competitions; the audience and the performers are all winners as tomorrow's superstars take the stage in the Community Center gym. Make sure to collect their autographs; they will be valuable when these kids become famous!

Rob Spearman, manager of Ledo Pizza, stands outside the new storefront restaurant in the Cipriano Square shopping center.

A Review

Greenbelt Road Is Location For Newest Ledo Pizzeria

by Jim Link

Has gorging on Ledo's pizza long been a guilty pleasure for you? Well it's even easier to succumb to temptation, now that a new Ledo's franchise has opened in Cipriano Square, directly across the street from the Greenbelt Road entrance to Goddard Space Flight Center.

This cozy, clean, well-lit place consists of seven booths lining the walls, two tiny tables in its center and a busy cadre of servers. Paris and Kiera, two quick, cheerful teens, served me my square-sliced sausage and mushroom pizza-square "because Ledo's never cuts corners." Please don't tell my doctor.

My Italian wedding soup (meatballs, lentils, carrots, spinach) had only 340 calories, though.

More disciplined and health conscious diners than I can nosh on gluten-free pizza, veggie pizza, pizza topped with goat cheese and apples. Ledo's "under 500 calories" salad menu has exotic offerings like "skinny avocado and Mediterranean tuna salad." Their menacing meat lovers' calzone is countered by their virtuous veggie calzone.

Alas, this family-friendly emporium has neither booze nor late hours. No beer, wine or liquor and it closes at 10 p.m. on Fridays and Saturdays – earlier on all other days.

When I asked Kiera if Rob Spearman, the manager, was a good boss, she said, "He is! He's very hardworking . . ."

Audubon Leads Free Half-Day Bird Walk

For more information call 410-765-6482.

Luther Goldman Trail Evening Bird Walk

On Thursday, August 15 at 6 p.m., the Prince George's Audubon Society will host a free guided bird walk at Lake Artemesia's Luther Goldman Birding Trail for migrating and resident songbirds, waterfowl and other birds. The paved walk loops around the 38-acre lake and along Indian Creek.

Meet at the parking lot at Berwyn Road and Balew Ave. in Berwyn Heights. All are welcome; reservations are not required. Binoculars are suggested.

For more information call 301-459-3375.

Weight Loss Surgery Seminar at Hospital

On Monday, August 12 at 6 p.m. there will be a free weight loss surgery seminar for those at least 30 pounds overweight. The seminar will take place at Doctors Community Hospital in the Professional Office Building ground floor conference room.

The third modification would change a condition to require the developer to designate a 0.5-acre site adjacent to the planned central park in the South Core and west of Greenbelt Station Parkway (the connector road that runs through the South Core from the Metro Station to Greenbelt Road). If, prior to issuing 450 building permits for the development, "the retail is not economically feasible (demonstrated by executed sales or leasing agreement), the 0.5-acre area can be converted to public parkland.

Previously, city officials and planners had been advised that residential dwellings above commercial space have not worked well in relatively isolated suburban locations. Council last discussed this concept change at a March 20 worksession with the developer representatives. Not reported as being discussed at that time was the proposal to relocate the stream valley trail.

At this time, Turton advises, no government agency has reviewed the new application, (although the changes in concept were discussed with city officials and others). Contacting the applicant through Dewberry as soon as possible will help facilitate an interested party's ability to receive information and/or establish a time when a meeting with the applicant can be held. Once the application is filed and accepted, the M-NCPPC can be contacted at 301-952-3530. Anyone wishing to become a person of record for this application can do so by submitting a written request to the Development Review Division of the M-NCPPC, 14741 Governor Oden Bowie Drive, Upper Marlboro, MD, 20772.

Turton may be contacted at 301-731-5551 or at www.dewberry.com.

Recycling Dos & Don'ts for City's Good Citizens

by Sue Krofchik

It was a win-win-win-win situation on July 27 when, from 9 a.m. to noon, 187 vehicles wove their way through the grounds of the Greenbelt Department of Public Works (DPW) to reach its warehouse. This was one of four Saturday mornings set aside each year by the city to collect electronic items for recycling.

Everybody wins something. People who dropped off items got more room or less clutter in their homes. Landfills got to save some space. Companies processing recyclables got business. Employees got work. The biggest winner of all was the environment, a finite resource.

Every three months, usually the fourth Saturday of January, April, July and October, the city sponsors electronic recycling. This latest event produced 17 pallets of various electronic-related items.

What to Bring

What's the most often recycled item? "It varies," said DPW Recycling Coordinator Luisa Robles. Bulky and heavy televisions used to top the list. As they stopped working and prices for flat screen televisions fell, old style sets began being phased out.

The same pattern applies to previous generations of computer monitors. A typical recycling event still receives a good number but now an increasing number of flat-screen monitors and laptops is being seen.

Other items in this category for recycling are CPUs, keyboards, mice, printers, scanners, fax machines and surge protectors. Cameras, telephones, radios, speakers and recording equipment are also accepted.

People should also save electric cords, wires and cables to recycle. Metals can be extracted and used for other purposes. One should cut cords off appliances when they are being discarded. The types of appliances do not matter whether refrigerators, washers, stoves or dehumidifiers. (The city will pick up large appliances on the last Friday of every month at no charge but arrangements must be made in advance. To do this, call the Department of Public Works at 301-474-8004.)

For those unable to wait for the next quarterly electronic recycling day, take wires, cords and cables to Best Buy. They also accept CDs, DVDs, jewel cases and ink and toner cartridges. The nearest location is at 4710 Cherry Hill Road in College Park, phone 301-982-2639.

Batteries

There are two types of batteries, rechargeable and non-rechargeable. Neither should be put in the trash. The city recycles only non-chargeable batteries. For those, get a box or bag and save them in a safe manner until they can be disposed of properly.

Place tape over one end of the battery using masking, duct or electrical tape. Federal and state laws require that this be done prior to recycling to help prevent battery fires.

When a large number of batteries are kept or stored in random fashion, if some have even only a small amount of charge left, the ends may touch and heat up. When this happens with large quantities, a fire can result.

"This happened several years ago in a warehouse and caused a big fire," according to Robles. It also happened in a truck going cross-country while the truck was in motion.

Rechargeable batteries are collected for recycling at My Organic Market (MOMs) located at 9827 Rhode Island Avenue in College Park, phone number 301-220-1100. Non-rechargeable batteries may also be left there.

Lighting

Always keep compact fluorescent lights (CFLs), both tubes and bulbs, in their original containers until use. The city does not recycle them but they must be recycled and not put in the trash. Fluorescent lights contain mercury, are fragile and when broken emit toxic mercury fumes. When they are no longer needed, place them in a safe container and take them as soon as possible to a CFL recycler. The nearest one is MOMs, noted above.

A broken CFL is a serious matter. If this occurs, immediately open windows to air out the area and try to avoid breathing in the fumes. Do not use a vacuum to clean up the pieces because this will spread the fumes. Use a broom or brush and dustpan to retrieve the pieces. Put the items in a plastic bag and wipe the area with wet paper towels. Add them to the bag and seal it tightly.

A broken CFL is considered hazardous waste and must be taken to a facility approved to accept such material. The nearest authorized place is the county landfill at 3500 Brown Station Road in Upper Marlboro, phone number 301-952-7622.

Styrofoam

Expanded polystyrene, also known as styrofoam #6, can be recycled in Greenbelt. This material is used as packing to protect and secure items in their boxes. The city does not recycle foam cups, egg cartons and food trays. Those can go in the trash.

Styrofoam #6 is kept until volunteers break down the large pieces into small ones. Then it is sent to Alliance, a foam packaging recycler in Crofton.

The Process

DPW employees sort recyclables as they are dropped off by putting items in designated bins. Each bin sits upon a pallet and is approximately four feet by four feet by three feet. Staff bails each bin's content in shrink wrap.

UNICOR picks up and processes the day's bounty by separating and breaking down the materials into their components. These are then sent to vendors who process metals, plastics or glass. UNICOR is a third-party recycling business certified as meeting requirements of the Environmental Protection Agency and the Occupational and Safety Health Act as well as state and local regulations.
