

Election 2013

Greenbelt East Sponsors First Council Candidates Forum

by Thomas X. White

The first candidates forum was held by the Greenbelt East Advisory Coalition (GEAC) Thursday, October 3, at the Greenbriar Community building. Meeting hosts Tom Crandall and Terese Benedick introduced a different format for the evening.

Instead of the nine council candidates sitting together up front at a large table and providing their backgrounds and reasons for standing for election for council scheduled for Tuesday, November 5, each candidate was assigned to an individual table with four chairs. At those nine stations, candidates could have one-on-one or group discussions with the attendees and the attendees could circulate among the tables.

Midway through the evening, Crandall called each of the candidates up to the podium to speak for three minutes about their candidacy for council. Those brief remarks were followed by a return to the individual candidate tables for additional discussions with attendees. At the end of the forum, candidates were invited back to the podium for brief final remarks.

The attendees numbered about 30 people, with most representing either Greenbelt East or center city neighborhoods. Greenbelt's new House of Delegates representative, Alonzo Washington, also attended. Unlike traditional Greenbelt candidate forums there was no open questioning of the candidates from either the meeting hosts or the overall audience.

Opening Remarks

Susan Stewart is making her first run for the Greenbelt City Council. She and her husband and son have lived in Greenbelt for seven years. She has been taken by the spirit of the community and is well into the volunteering culture of Greenbelt. Her activities have been directed mainly to environmental issues, including the Chesapeake Climate Action Network. With her candidacy, she said, she is offering more strategy in how the council addresses governmental issues.

Silke Pope, a two-term councilmember, is seeking a third term. She and her family have lived in Greenbelt for 15 years. For most of that time she has worked in the Prince George's County Public Schools system. She indicated that she likes the new format for the forum and asked attendees to stop by her table. She expressed support for traffic calming devices and speed cameras, mainly to create safe routes to schools and to protect pedestrians. She also welcomes smart growth and development.

Konrad Herling is completing his fifth term on council. His focus is on unifying the city and developing a smarter economic development strategy for the city as well as an increased capacity for economic development programs within the city government. He continues to advocate for improved public transportation access for Greenbelt and more bus shelters. With his long-standing participation in Greenbelt arts programs, he also

by Stephen Waldron

Greenbelt's Rotary Club has led community service projects and sponsored fundraisers in the city for over 25 years but none of its current members are Greenbelt residents. The club's president, LeRoy Tillery, says that Rotary aims to change that fact.

"We're actively working with the city government to have somebody from the council as a part of Rotary," said Tillery, "Since we do so many things in Greenbelt, we'd love to have their participation."

Tillery became president in June and joined the club four years ago. He says it was the club's community outreach projects that appealed to him.

As for Rotary's current lack of Greenbelt residents, Tillery believes that it might be caused by time constraints or the recent economic decline. Many members of the club work in the Greenbelt area, including Tillery who works in commercial lending for local banks. Rotary's weekly meetings take place early in the morning so that members can attend before work.

Louis Pope is a real estate broker in Greenbelt and joined Rotary because he wanted to improve the community where he works. He looks forward to the club's weekly meetings to discuss how the members can help Greenbelt.

"I live and breathe it every week and if I have a pet project, they listen," said Pope. "Most of my charitable donations are

Rodney Roberts Seeks Re-election to Council

Incumbent Rodney Roberts has submitted his biography for publication in this week's News Review. His nomination form has been certified by City Clerk Cindy Murray along with those of incumbents Judith Davis, Konrad Herling, Emmett Jordan, Leta Mach, Silke Pope, Edward Putens and challengers Susan Stewart and William Orleans.

Biographies of Davis, Putens, Pope, Mach, Herling and Jordan were published in prior weeks. The biographies are prepared by the candidates.

Rodney Roberts

Rodney Roberts, 55 years old, is a life-long Greenbelt resident, who lives with his wife, Tara. He attended Prince George's County schools and was active in sports with the Greenbelt Boys and Girls Club.

A 1975 graduate of the National Technical Institute, College Park, Roberts is the sole proprietor of a small business that specializes in on-site repairs of various types of equipment and vehicles (celebrating 15 years in business).

Roberts is serving his 11th term on council. He attended nearly every council meeting during the four years prior to his being elected to council in 1991, becoming known as an

Answers To Our Question

This year, the Greenbelt News Review poses one question to all candidates for election to the Greenbelt City Council and asks that candidates provide their answers in writing to the News Review no later than Monday, October 7 for publication in an October issue of the News Review. Each week answers from three candidates will be published in the order received. Answers are limited to 500 words or less.

Question: If elected to the Greenbelt City Council what will be your three most important objectives to be accomplished during your term in office and how do you expect to succeed in accomplishing each objective?

Konrad Herling

Priority #1: Create an office of economic development, or, at minimum, hire an economic development director. Of the five most populous cities in our County, Greenbelt is the only one which does not have either a director of economic development or an office of economic development. It is time that we seriously explore this approach. Why should we consider this approach?

First, by effectively marketing our assets and location, we could attract new businesses, particularly environmentally based ones, to Greenbelt. Further, pending County legislation to provide tax credits to environmentally based firms if they locate in Prince George's County could reinforce such efforts in Greenbelt. This would help put a dent in the significant office vacancy rate, which has been as high as 25%.

Second, revenue derived from greater vibrant economic activity could be allocated towards city services. Over the last three decades, a higher percentage of City revenue has been derived from personal property tax rates to pay for our excellent programs and services. Greater revenues derived from economic development could stabilize that trend, perhaps making it possible to reduce property tax rates, while maintaining our high level of services.

Third, effective marketing, including promoting Greenbelt's activities at Metro's green line stops, could very well result in increased patronage of programs and amenities which make our City special.

Citizen input will be key to the City's movement on this issue.

Museum Lecture Is Tuesday On Selecting City's Pioneers

On Tuesday, October 15 at 7:30 p.m. a free lecture on selecting Greenbelt's pioneer families will be held in Room 201 at the Greenbelt Community Center.

Sponsored by the Friends of the Greenbelt Museum (FOGM), the lecturer will be Sally Sims Stokes, a faculty librarian with the University of Maryland Art and Architecture Libraries. A Greenbelt resident, Stokes is a FOGM board member and museum volunteer. She will discuss her Resettlement Administration research on the selection process.

ERHS Performing Arts Festival Mon. – Thurs.

Next week Eleanor Roosevelt High School (ERHS) will hold a Greenbelt Community Creative and Performing Arts Festival from Monday, October 14 through Thursday October 17 in the school's auditorium. It is free and open to the public. ERHS is at 7601 Hanover Parkway.

Programs will be held daily from 7 to 8 p.m. each night, with a Visual Art Show of student artwork in the lobby from 6:30 p.m. Scheduled performances are: drama and piano Monday, October 14; band Tuesday, October 15; choir and dance Wednesday, October 16; and strings Thursday, October 17. All are invited to attend to see and hear arts and performances by local students.

Schools participating in the festival include ERHS, Greenbelt Middle School, Robert Goddard Middle School, Hyattsville Middle School (Drama) and Greenbelt, Springhill Lake, Magnolia and Glenarden Woods elementary schools.

Credit Union Holds Shredding Day

On Saturday, October 19 from 9 a.m. to noon the Greenbelt Federal Credit Union will sponsor a Shredding Day in the parking lot between the credit union and the Municipal Building.

There is a limit of five boxes of personal papers. No unattended papers can be accepted or shredded.

Dems Club Oct. 18 Meeting Cancelled

The Eleanor & Franklin Roosevelt Democratic Club meeting with the Governor Oden Bowie Democratic Club on Friday, October 18 has been cancelled. It will be rescheduled at a later date.

The speaker will be announced closer to the November meeting date.

Nominations for next year's board of directors are currently being solicited. For more information or to submit a nomination call Konrad Herling at 301-345-9369 or email kongeneherl@gmail.com.

FOGL DVDs Stolen

The Friends of the Greenbelt Library (FOGL) are sad and angry to report that on our fourth day (Oct. 4) of operating on the honor system, with payment for items deposited in a lock box, someone stole all of the DVDs in our bookstore.

At $2 per DVD, we estimate a loss of sales of perhaps $400 to $500. As we use this money primarily to pay for the Greenbelt library's Summer Reading Program, this is a loss for all the youngsters who enjoy the events that are part of the program.

We are discussing the feasibility of installing a camera in the bookstore.

We sincerely hope that the person who took our DVDs will either return them or, please, put payment for them in the lockbox located just to the right of the shelves emptied when the DVDs were taken.

Thank you.

Jim Link to Explore Love Poems Oct. 18

On Friday, October 18 Prince George’s Community College Seasoned Adults Growing Educationally SAGE instructor and Greenbelter Jim Link will explore a “fistful” of love poems at Explorations Unlimited.

Link, who has taught SAGE classes in Greenbelt for many years, plans to present tender, cynical, vengeful, joyous and special little gems of poems by Carol Ann Duffy, Anne Bradstreet, John Donne, William Shakespeare and Dorothy Parker. This presentation will be held in Room 114 of the Greenbelt Community Center.

Explorations Unlimited is held every Friday from 1 to 3 p.m. at the Greenbelt Community Center. All are welcome to attend and questions are encouraged.

Call 301-397-2208 for details.

Co-opoly Game Time Is at Café Oct. 19

On Saturday, October 19 at 2 p.m. there will be a special game time for teens and adults held at the New Deal Café in honor of Co-op Month. The Co-opoly game, sponsored by the Greenbelt Cooperative Alliance, is one in which everyone wins or everyone loses.

Unlike Monopoly, where everyone is out for him or herself, players work together to run a business democratically. In order to survive as individuals and to work for the success of their co-op, players make tough choices regarding big and small challenges while putting their teamwork abilities to the test. It is a game of skill and solidarity, where the entire team wins – or everyone loses.

Co-opoly is a party game with work cards players draw and then act out a charade or describe a specific word or phrase. The roll-of-the-dice and move-the-piece mechanics make the game easy for players at all skill levels to learn. Players discover the unique benefits, challenges and operations of the cooperative world – as well as the skills needed to participate in a co-op.

Annual Pumpkin Walk, Zombie Dash Next Sat.

On Saturday, October 19 at 10 a.m. there will be two season-themed events at Northway Fields in a bow to 25 years of Pumpkin Walking. The tradition continues with both pumpkin carving and a Zombie Dash.

Committee to Save the Green Belt started the Pumpkin Walk in 1988. This year’s event organizer is Allison Smith-Bolten.

At 10 a.m. people of all ages are invited to bring a pumpkin or carve one supplied by the organizers. The pumpkins will be used for the Pumpkin Walk beginning at dark that evening and lasting until 9 p.m. Walkers should bring a flashlight. The walk is held rain or shine. Afterward there will be free hot cocoa and cider.

At 11 a.m. all are invited to the Zombie Dash. The zombie participants should arrive dressed at 10:30 a.m., runners at 10:50 a.m. The Zombie Dash is free and family-friendly.

Obituaries

Flora Hawvermale

Former resident Flora "Babe" Ward Willard Hawvermale died at her beach home in Bethany Beach, Del., surrounded by her family on Saturday, October 5, 2013.

Mrs. Hawvermale was born in Catawba, W. Va., and grew up in Morgantown. She graduated from West Virginia University in 1948 with a degree in education.

She married Jack Willard and they moved to Greenbelt where they raised their daughters Diane and Jackie and spent many happy years. After his death in 1980 Mrs. Hawvermale married Bob Hawvermale and moved to Berkeley Springs, W. Va., where she lived until her death. She also spent many happy times with family and friends at her favorite spot - her home in Bethany Beach, Del.

Mrs. Hawvermale was a Prince George's County junior and high school physical education teacher and basketball coach for more than 30 years.

She loved to travel, the beach and was always looking forward to her next adventure.

A celebration of Mrs. Hawvermale's life to which all her friends are invited will be held on Friday, October 11 from 4 to 7 p.m. at 210 Grove Heights Road, Berkeley Springs.

Donations in Mrs. Hawvermale's memory can be made to St. Mark's Episcopal Church, 180 S. Washington St., Berkeley Springs, WV 25411 or Justin's Beach House, PO Box 29L Atlantic Ave, Box 120, Ocean View, DE 19970 with checks payable to Justin's Beach House or donations online at <http://justinjennings.org>. The mission of Justin's Beach House is to support and maintain a home in the Bethany Beach area as a place of joy and peace at the beach where families with cancer can have a place of respite and enjoy family fun time.

Thursday, October 17 at 3 p.m. the Prince George's Audubon Society will host a free guided bird walk at the Luther Goldman Birding Trail at Lake Artemesia. The birding trail loops around the 38-acre lake and along Indian Creek. Meet at the parking lot at Berwyn Road and Balew Avenue in Berwyn Heights. All levels from beginners to experts are welcome. Binoculars are suggested. Call 301-509-2212 for more information.

Congratulations to:

- Eleanor Roosevelt High School juniors Adedayo Adebajo, Oluwakonyinsola Adesoye, Tania Evans, Miles Harriston, Sydney Holman, Ahmed Kamil, Chiamaka Ogwuegbu, Chimdiya Onwukwe and Jasmine Salters, who have been named semi-finalists in the 2014 National Achievement Scholarship Program for 800 Achievement Scholarship awards totaling more than $2.5 million due to their outstanding performance on the 2012 Preliminary SAT/National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test. Of 160,000 juniors nationally qualifying, 1,300 will be selected in January to advance to the finalist level.

- Councilmember Leta Mach and Sylvia Lewis, representing Greenbelt Homes, Inc., who appeared on a WOL radio show Thursday morning with Vernon Oakes, president of the National Association of Housing Cooperatives in honor of National Cooperative Month, talking about cooperatives' best practices and programs.

Send us your reports of new babies, awards, honors, etc. to share with our readers. We'd especially like to hear more from neighbors in Greenbelt East and Greenbelt West (Franklin Park). To send information for "Our Neighbors," email us at news-review@verizon.net or leave a message at 301-474-6892.

GCAN Holds Fall Priorities Meeting

On Tuesday, October 15 at 7 p.m. the Greenbelt Climate Action Network (GCAN) will hold its fall Maryland priorities meeting, with an update on each.

The Cove Point project of Dominion Resources is for a massive plan to export liquefied natural gas out of Cove Point, near Lusby south of Baltimore. That plan expands the controversial, under-moratorium fracking process throughout the region, with fears it could trigger earthquakes, sea-level rise, ozone pollution and possible fireball-type explosions along the Chesapeake Bay.

GCAN is working to see the moratorium, which expires in 2014, extended in the Maryland legislative session that begins January 8.

Passage of a measure in the 2014 General Assembly is being sought to assure adoption of a renewable portfolio standard to require that 40 percent of electricity be obtained from clean sources by 2025. A coalition of environmental, faith, health and business groups is working to get the ambitious but achievable goal made law in the 2014 legislative session.

The speaker will be Leslie Morrison, the director of the Healthy Communities Campaign at the Chesapeake Climate Action Network, where she's been for four years focusing on dirty energy, cleaning up and fighting coal plants, waste incinerators and natural gas infrastructure.

For more information call Lore Rosenthal at 301-345-2234, email lore@simplicity-matters.org or visit www.chears.org/gcan/.

Synagogue Holds Walk For Homeless Oct. 20

Sunday, October 20 the Social Action Committee of Mishkan Torah is sponsoring a Fannie Mae "Help the Homeless Walk" starting at 12:45 p.m. Walkers meet at Mishkan Torah, 10 Ridge Road, then will walk around Greenbelt Lake. All are invited to join this autumn day community effort to combat homelessness, which affects all so adversely.

There is a registration fee for those participating in the walk; see ad on page 3. Those who cannot walk are invited to sponsor a school child's registration and walk.

As a prelude to the walk Laila Riazi of nonprofit Community Crisis Services, Inc. will speak at Mishkan Torah's Friday night service October 11 at 8 p.m. to which the community is invited.

The synagogue hopes for wide participation, with registration and donations from the entire community.

Holy Cross Church Chili Cook-off

On Sunday, October 27 Holy Cross Lutheran Church will host a chili-tasting event after the 9:30 a.m. regular worship service.

The entire community is welcome to join in the service as well as the chili tasting afterward at about 10:30 a.m. A free-will offering is asked, with all funds raised going to the church mission project supporting a Haitian seminary student.

Holy Cross Lutheran Church is at 6905 Greenbelt Road across from the American Legion. For details call 301-345-5111.

We, verily, have made music as a ladder for your souls, a means whereby they may be lifted up unto the realm on high; make it not, therefore, as wings to self and passion.

advocates more support for those programs.

Emmett Jordan, currently mayor pro tem, also is seeking a third term on council. He has resided in Greenbelt for 15 years and touts its great access to transportation. He thinks Greenbelt is a great place to live and work. He says he is very open to new ideas and has been accessible for residents to let him know what they are thinking. He also recognizes the rich diversity that makes up the Greenbelt neighborhoods. If re-elected, he says his program would include more openness and transparency regarding public safety topics, code enforcement, economic development and the city's ongoing organizational assessment.

Edward Putens is the longest-serving member of council, having served 16 terms. He considers himself one of the GEAC pioneers. He supports more efforts by council in economic development issues. He sees the role of council as one of setting policy, while the role of the city manager is overall management of the city's programs. He noted the dire straits with city budgets over the past four years with nearly $2 million in budget cuts. He sees the number one issue as constituent service.

Leta Mach is completing 10 years on council. She and her family have lived in Greenbelt for 39 years. She is proud of her record on council and her work on behalf of Greenbelt on regional, state and national municipal organizations such as the National League of Cities, Metropolitan Council of Governments and the Maryland Municipal League (MML). Her efforts in those areas have resulted in grants for Greenbelt playgrounds and the Geocaching contest for MML cities. She is one of only two sitting councilmembers who have been honored as Greenbelt's Outstanding Citizen (2000).

Bill Orleans is a candidate for council for the second time. He indicated that he preferred the older format for candidate nights and thought the modified format was "odd." He is seeking a seat on council to promote more democracy and equity in Greenbelt.

Rodney Roberts grew up in Greenbelt and has been a Greenbelt activist for the past 25 years. He touts his skills

Star Party Planned At City Observatory

Weather permitting, on Saturday, October 12 the Astronomical Society of Greenbelt (ASG) will sponsor a star party at the City of Greenbelt Observatory at Northway Field in celebration of International Observe the Moon night. The observatory is temporarily closed for routine maintenance and cleaning; however, several members will have set up their personal telescopes and binoculars for the enjoyment of all.

Observing will begin as soon as it is dark, probably around 7:15 p.m., although telescopes may be set up earlier.

The star party will be canceled without notice if it is too cloudy. Attendees are asked to park in the ballfield lot, not up on the hill, unless bringing a telescope. All are welcome. There is no admission charge.

with working with people. He believes there is no place like Greenbelt with its commitment to planning, parks, community centers and the forest preserve.

Judith Davis is completing her 20th year on council and has served seven consecutive terms as mayor of Greenbelt. She is concerned about the growing divisiveness at the national, state, county and city levels. Her sense is that there is too much to lose if you don't look calmly at the issues faced by Greenbelt. Current issues are the city's responsibilities, lowered tax assessments and overall city needs. During the campaign she is interested in hearing voters' concerns and suggestions.

Closing Remarks

At the end of the candidates' night there was an opportunity for candidates to make brief closing remarks from the podium. On the modified format for the evening, Pope and Herling indicated they like the new format, while Mach and Davis found it to be an "interesting" format. Other candidates did not comment on the format itself but some noted that the one-on-one table sessions were useful and candid.

Several candidates repeated issues such as economic development and the theater renovation from their earlier presentations. Orleans repeated his concern that substantive change (on council) is necessary, noting that the presiding officer speaking condescendingly to residents should not be allowed.

Roberts used his time to extol the quality of life in Greenbelt, saying he was privileged to grow up here. He is proud that youngsters now living in Greenbelt are able to enjoy the same things he enjoyed. He also noted that in his years on council he has never missed a meeting.

Davis and Jordan specifically noted their preference for the Federal Bureau of Investigation to be located at the North Core development site at the Greenbelt Metro Station. Most of the candidates ended their remarks by encouraging attendees to "get out to vote," "get your neighbors to vote" or vote early.

GAVA/GATE Youth Film at Utopia Fest

On Sunday, October 20 at noon the youth-made GAVA/GATE short films for last year's Greenbelt 75th Anniversary Animation project will be shown at the Municipal Building as part of the Utopia Film Festival, along with other animation works made by students over the last 15 years. The showing is free and suitable for all ages.

The students in the GAVA/GATE program, held at the GATE studios at the Community Center and produced by community arts nonprofits Greenbelt Association for the Visual Arts (GAVA) and Greenbelt Access Television (GATE), include youngsters from 10 to 18 years old.

The 75th anniversary special was funded by the Co-op's Jim Cassels Award, the Greenbelt Community Foundation and Prince George's County via a grant through Councilmember Ingrid Turner.

through Rotary."

The club is also eager to add local members because it is the primary sponsor for Greenbelt's Outstanding Citizen Award, which has been presented annually to a city resident for the last 40 years. As reported in the News Review September 5, this year's award was presented to photographer Eric Zhang, who moved to Greenbelt three years ago.

Zhang took over 9,000 pictures of daily life in Greenbelt and posted the images to his blog. According to chairman of the award committee Bob Zugby, the award is typically given to a longtime resident of the town but the committee was impressed by Zhang's work.

The Rotary Club has helped sponsor the award for almost 20 years, according to Tillery and it would love to add some of Greenbelt's residents to its ranks.

The club is responsible for many charity and fundraising projects in the community from helping the Greenbelt Fire Department purchase equipment to its monthly "Feed the Homeless" event in Hyattsville. According to Pope, the club also runs an annual Super Bowl pool, where 50 percent of the proceeds are donated to local charities.

Part of the club's philosophy is also collaborating with other chapters to work on larger projects. Peter Kyle, district governor of Washington-area Rotary clubs, visited the Greenbelt chapter September 24 to encourage members to work together with other clubs.

Greenbelt Rotary partnered with several other Rotary clubs to hold an international curling tournament at Laurel House. The event brought in over $700 for charity, according to Pope.

The Greenbelt Rotary also offers support to local schools, including Greenbelt Elementary School. According to Tillery, they maintain a supply closet at the school to provide teachers and students with additional tools.

The club also helped to build a butterfly garden at Greenbelt Elementary as a science project for the students. Tillery said Rotary members planted bushes and maintain the garden. Children then put in specific plants that attract butterflies.

Greenbelt Rotary also partners with DuVal High School and Tillery expressed interest in adopting other local schools in the future.

Helen Svensen has been a Rotarian for 15 years and still finds it as rewarding as when she joined. "I love my Rotary work because it always involves doing something good for the community," said Svensen.

She also enjoys meeting members of different chapters. Rotarians are expected to attend a meeting each week at any chapter they choose. With 29,000 chapters in 160 countries members can find a meeting almost anywhere.

Svensen has gone to Rotary meetings in Ireland, Croatia and Thailand. She says the club has a way of uniting people, despite cultural barriers.

"We're all speaking the same language because we all believe in Rotary," said Svensen, "and it brings us together."

Greenbelt's Rotary club meetings are open to anyone interested in joining. They take place every Tuesday at 7:30 a.m., at the Marriott Hotel in Greenbelt.

outspoken and effective community activist. During his 22 years on council, Roberts has never missed a council meeting.

Roberts often volunteers his professional skills to groups such as Greenbelt Intergenerational Volunteer Exchange Service (GIVES) as well as to individuals in need. When the New Deal Café was in danger of closing, Roberts donated over 100 hours of his time working with a small group of volunteers to install a commercial kitchen. The Café was able to install a state-of-the-art commercial kitchen for less than $30,000, a savings of more than $70,000, giving the Café a new lease on life. It is now a thriving part of Roosevelt Center.

In 1991 Roberts proposed and worked through to implementation, a community policing program that included the city's first police bicycle patrols. Since then, he has continued to advocate for more bicycle and foot patrols throughout the city and to use police substations in Greenbelt East and Beltway Plaza.

Roberts was a leader in the citizen movement that resulted in the city's acquisition of 184 acres of woodland that had been part of the original "Green Belt."

Roberts' continued advocacy resulted in the 2003 passage of a city ordinance establishing a Greenbelt Forest Preserve consisting initially of 225 acres.

Roberts testifies on behalf of the city before state and county officials concerning development, transportation, recreation, environmental and fiscal issues. In 2004 he testified before the State Board of Public Works (consisting of the comptroller, governor and treasurer). Overcoming initial opposition from Comptroller William D. Schaefer and Governor Robert L. Ehrlich, he secured $648,000 in Open Space Funds for the purchase of 10 acres known as the "Sunrise Property" in Greenbelt East, one of Greenbelt's newest forest preserves. Roberts has consistently opposed yearly city tax increases for non-essential hiring and other items.

Roberts is one of the longest serving members of the Council of Government's Transportation Planning Board, with nearly 22 years of service. He is also council liaison to the Youth Advisory Board and Forest Preserve Advisory Board. Roberts is a member and former chair of the Committee to Save the Green Belt and a founding member of the Greenbelt Foundation for the Arts.

Priority #2: Renovate the Greenbelt Movie Theater. It is a critical part of our city's renowned history and of the Roosevelt Center's economic and cultural activity. We have to move quickly on this issue but we must move intelligently and in concert with community-based organizations such as the Friends of the Greenbelt Theater and Greenbelt Community Development Corporation, as well as the theater's management staff. It is my contention that certain expenses, such as installing a new HVAC system are not necessary to the theater's operation, as the current system is working well. I continue to advocate working with the League of Historic American Theaters from whom we can learn how other cities, including those in our region, saved on costs and were better able to focus on items which required greater attention.

Priority #3: Continue our efforts to secure the FBI at Greenbelt Metro's North Core. I am heading a task force, in concert with our Four Cities Coalition (Greenbelt, Berwyn Heights, College Park, and New Carrollton) to produce a video promoting our Metro site as the ideal location for the FBI to relocate.

Aside from the obvious boost to our local economy, there is the potential that some of its employees would seriously consider putting down roots here in Greenbelt, even considering the closest residential site, Franklin Park. This could stabilize that market and neighborhood. Perhaps it could prompt management to consider moving a percentage of their market from rental to for-sale units for career employees.

Currently, we're in a competition with Fairfax County – we must continue to give it our best shot.

Susan Stewart

Support our Historic Community Gardens. Ensure our Community Gardens have the same level of respect as our Forest Preserve. They are important historical properties in this community and a source of recreation and joy for many of its residents. Yet, they have been neglected by the city for many years. Instead they should be a leading example of community gardens in the area. The city must recognize it has an obligation to proper upkeep. This must be done in harmony with efforts of committed stewardship of the forest and wildlife and preservation of the nearby historical cemetery site.

Moving towards Zero Waste. Start the development of a Zero Waste initiative program. Landfills are filling up and getting more expensive, while raw materials from recycling are becoming more in demand. I want to support a robust recycling program in our town, explore creating a secure screened mulch facility and have the city assist setting up a cooperative-run composting facility. We also need a pet waste program that provides pet owners with biodegradable bags along walking paths, thereby reducing our need for plastic bags. To keep costs down, we can solicit sponsorship from pet stores or local veterinarian offices.

One Greenbelt with one Greenway. Uniting Greenbelt together with a "Greenway." This project would be a walking/biking path that goes through the different areas around town and connects them together in one safe, fun pathway. We can plan desirable attractions along these paths such as art gardens, additional play areas, walking labyrinths, and so forth. Finally, it should have safe, clear access to the Indian Creek trailhead, our connection to the Anacostia Tributary trails. If possible, we could re-explore a bike share program, and incentives for a bike sale/rental shop to move in closer to the Indian Creek trailhead.

Silke Pope

If I am re-elected to Greenbelt City Council, my top three priorities would be:

Budget. With the property assessments at an all-time low, it is more important than ever before to evaluate how each and every dollar is spent. We all want to protect our current level of services – services that are needed and valued by so many of our citizens – but other needs such as revitalization of our aging infrastructure have recently become an urgent and necessary priority. Projects such as the historic Greenbelt Theatre renovation (including replacing the heating and air-conditioning system) must be started as soon as possible. The Buddy Attick Lake dredging and dam repair also must begin immediately because the State of Maryland has given us a deadline – we either begin repairs or we will lose the lake. As a member of City Council, I have the burden of making necessary decisions and choices, many of which are extremely difficult and often unpopular. But, I chose to take on this responsibility when I decided to run for City Council.

Transportation. Many other U.S. cities are far ahead of Greenbelt in their design of safer roadways for cyclists and pedestrians. The absence of Sunday bus service and deficiency of planned, safe, useable bike lanes in our community is a serious concern. Greenbelt promotes itself as a "walkable" and "bikeable" community yet we need safer ways to walk and bike in our community. I want to find ways to improve bus service – addressing both bus shelters and adjacent crosswalks. Greenbelt has just completed a decade-long project which resulted in a Bicycle and Pedestrian Master Plan. We must find ways to begin instituting this plan in the very near future.

Economic Development. Economic development is a must-have discussion in our current economic environment. As a small community, we are well aware of our need for usable revenues. Creating new sources and avenues of revenue can be a challenging task and it requires a strong and lasting commitment from both the community and its leaders. I am also committed to developing and incorporating cost-effective sustainability improvements within the City. Economic development does not have an easy or fast solution. Many of our surrounding municipal neighbors are already taking the lead by employing economic development advisors and we must follow. Economic development is truly a long-term pursuit and we have to be very diligent and careful in the decisions that will be required.

As to whether I will achieve my goals, this will depend on the agreement and willingness of the rest of council to begin implementation of the needed projects. The Council works as a team of seven. I am optimistic, given the progress we have made to date, that these projects and plans will stay on schedule.

It is always difficult to evaluate one's own performance. Since I am fully aware that there is always room for improvement, if re-elected, I will continue to work to exceed the expectations of my constituency.

Election 2013

Early Voting and Absentee Voting Will Start Next Week

by Kathleen Gallagher

So many ways to vote – at the polling place on Election Day, at home, on paper, on a voting machine, early, in the middle of the night or just in time to take a hayride. For real – a hayride!

Nine candidates are running to serve two-year terms on the seven-member Greenbelt City Council. Not only will the ballot determine which seven are elected but it likely will determine which two will serve as mayor and mayor pro tem on Greenbelt's 40th council. It is up to the newly elected councilmembers to choose the mayor and the mayor pro tem but historically council has followed the popular vote by electing the highest vote-getter mayor and the second highest mayor pro tem.

Most Greenbelt voters will visit with neighbors and cast their ballots in the time-honored tradition at their precincts on Election Day, which is Tuesday, November 5. Those who prefer to vote earlier or in the comfort of their own homes have two other alternatives. Absentee voting by machine-readable paper ballot opens next Wednesday, October 16. Early voting using a voting machine at various neighborhood polling places will begin Saturday, October 19.

Any qualified city voter who wishes to vote early or vote by mail may do so. It is no longer necessary for the voter to provide an "excuse" for not being able to go to the polls on Election Day.

Absentee Voting

The first step in voting absentee is to apply for a ballot. The voter can print the application form from the city's web site at greenbeltmd.gov, pick one up at the city clerk's office in the Municipal Building at 25 Crescent Road, or call 301-474-8000 to have one mailed. In lieu of the form, a letter requesting an absentee ballot may be sent to the city clerk that includes the voter's full name, Greenbelt residence address, phone number and original signature.

Once received and filled out by the voter, the ballot can be returned by mail or in person. Applications for absentee ballots must be received no later than noon on Monday, November 4. In order to be counted, absentee ballots must be received by the city clerk no later than 6 p.m. on Election Day, November 5. Once an absentee ballot has been issued, the voter may vote in that election only by using the absentee ballot.

Early Voting

Early voting will be held on different days in Greenbelt West, Greenbelt East and center city but qualified voters may choose to vote at any of these locations.

Greenbelt East: Voting will be held at the club house at Schrom Hills Park, 6915 Hanover Parkway, on Saturday, October 19, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. and on Sunday, October 20, from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Greenbelt West: Voting will be held at the Springhill Lake Recreation Center, 6101 Cherrywood Lane on Saturday, October 26, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. and on Sunday, October 27, from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Center city: Voting will be held at the Municipal Building, 25 Crescent Road, from Monday, October 21 through Friday, November 1 from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., with extended hours on Tuesdays until 8 p.m.

For additional information on absentee or early voting call the city clerk's office at 301-474-8000 or visit the city website at greenbeltmd.gov, then click on "City Council Election Information" in the "News" section.

And, oh yes – about that hayride. Early voting at Schrom Hills Park on Saturday, October 19 is immediately followed by the city's annual Fall Fest celebration at the same location. Go to Schrom Hills to vote and stay for hayrides, games, pumpkin patch, live music, art activities, refreshments and more!

Learning and Enjoyment Are Focus of Fall Harvest Festival

by Kelsey Sutton

Over 100 people passionate about the arts, music, good food and sustainability gathered at the annual Fall Harvest Festival at Roosevelt Center on September 22.

The Fall Harvest Festival partnered with the Chesapeake Education, Arts & Research Society (CHEARS) so the group could raise awareness about environmental issues and sustainability. Robert Cahalan, who has lived in Greenbelt for over 20 years, founded CHEARS with his wife Maggie in 2006 as a way to combine their love for sustainability with volunteering and community building. He said he hopes the event will get Greenbelters thinking about alternative energy sources.

"Humans emit millions of tons of carbon dioxide, CO₂, annually," said Cahalan, who is director of the Sun Climate Research Center at Goddard Space Flight Center in Greenbelt. A whopping 50 percent of CO₂ emissions stays in the atmosphere for centuries and those emissions are the biggest contributors to global climate change, he said.

But the greenhouse gas effect does not have to be all bad news. That's when Cahalan gestured to a black contraption to his right.

The trapezoid-edged box, called a Sun Spot solar oven, had two layers and a glass top. Condensation collects on the inside of the glass, fogging the interior. Upon a careful and closer look, one could see two metal pots inside.

Cahalan said solar energy collected inside the box but the glass prevented the heat from escaping. The solar oven works in the same way as greenhouse gases – when solar energy gets trapped inside the earth's atmosphere, he said.

After about two hours, Cahalan pulled out the pots – one full of diced pears, the other brimming with potatoes. Fall Harvest festivalgoers were welcome to try the sustainably cooked snacks.

Maggie Cahalan, co-founder of CHEARS, organizes the Three Sisters Garden Project. She works for the Council for Opportunity and Education during the week and is a member of Greenbelt ACES and said she and other volunteers work in the demonstration gardens to promote organic land care. The organization's magic number is three, partly because there are three gardens in the east, west and center of Greenbelt, called the Three Sisters Gardens so the gardens traditionally plant three different plant species that work in a cooperative association, "like the Native Americans did," she said. Corn, beans and squash provide different benefits to a garden when they are grown together. For instance, beans can climb on corn without harming it.

"Inclusive diversity is key in Greenbelt," Cahalan said, emphasizing that she meant both the garden and the city.

About halfway through the day, Cahalan hosted a painting project where interested festivalgoers could paint signs for the Three Sisters Gardens. At the end of the day the group had procured several brightly colored bricks with "bean" and "pumpkin" carefully painted on them.

Throughout the day, musicians performed on and in front of a makeshift stage constructed in front of the Mother and Child statue. A guitar case and several brightly painted hand drums crowded the narrow sidewalk near the New Deal Café. Greenbelters led dogs around Roosevelt Center and children rode around on scooters with neon helmets strapped under their chins.

The Greenbelt Drum Circle played in the morning much to the delight of some children, who danced gleefully. Robert McMullin, who organized the music and craft vendors for the event, played guitar and sang with his brother, Mike, at lunchtime.

"My interest is the music," McMullin said. "I believe that communities are better, that people are better, when they can experience live music."

McMullin got into event planning several years ago because he didn't know why Roosevelt Center was empty year-round. It's easy to get people to come and volunteer, "like stone soup," he said.

McMullin explained he was referring to a legend about soldiers who came to an encampment without any food. Nearby villagers would not spare their food because they did not have enough. So to begin making soup with no ingredients, one soldier dropped a stone in the middle of a pot of water on top of the fire. Soon, villagers came out of their houses to see what the soldiers were making. One tasted it and decided it needed some salt. Another thought some carrots would make it better. Still another brought onions to make it taste just right. And in the end, everyone had a delicious soup because everyone contributed.

"It's a great story about community sharing," said McMullin.

McMullin said he makes real stone soup at the Fall Harvest Festival every year. Not only does it help use up ingredients from Greenbelters' gardens but it gives everyone a chance to contribute to the community.

Co-op Seeking New Board Candidates

The Greenbelt Consumer Co-operative has openings for two positions on its board of directors. Candidates will be presented and voting will take place at the cooperative annual meeting on Saturday, November 2 at the Community Center. One incumbent, Bill Stoddard, is running for another term.

Board members are responsible for the operation of the supermarket and meet once a month.

Any voting member of the Co-op may be nominated for a position on the board. Those interested need to fill out a nominating form, available from the cooperative's office and must obtain signatures of at least five voting members in support of their candidacy.

Completed forms must be returned to the store office by Monday, October 21.

For more information call Donna Hoffmeister at 301-441-9377 or the store office at 301-474-0522.

Synagogue Project Cleans Local Creek

On Sunday, October 13 from 9 a.m. to noon the Mishkan Torah Synagogue Social Action Committee will hold a Beaverdam Creek clean-up at Long Branch, also known as the Goddard Branch.

The clean-up is being billed as a "reverse tashlich." Traditionally performed on Rosh Hashanah, the Jewish New Year the tashlich refers to the Jewish custom of throwing crumbs into a body of water to symbolically rid oneself of bad habits. In this modern twist, the reverse tashlich is to undo effects of bad habits by helping clean up a local stream. All are invited to participate in the clean-up, organized in conjunction with the Beaverdam Creek Watershed Watch Group.

The meeting place will be between the end of Northway and the City of Greenbelt mulch piles. Participants should be there at 9 a.m. with boots or sturdy shoes, work gloves, a water bottle and long pants which can get wet. They should be prepared to navigate one steep portion of the slope.

More information about Beaverdam Creek and the Watershed Watch Group is available at www.beaverdamcreek.org. Questions can be directed to socialaction@mishkantorah.org.

Acorns A Go-Go Vegan Fest to Be Held Oct. 12

This Saturday, October 12 from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Roosevelt Center will be the site for the new fall festival first-ever Acorns A Go-Go Vegan Fest. It will kick off unofficially at 9:30 a.m. with a go-go beat drum vegan drum circle – people are invited to bring a bucket or synthetic drum during set-up to join in.

The event is free, family-friendly and will go on rain or shine, with bands moving inside the New Deal Café in case of inclement weather. The goal is to have a fun time while introducing as many people as possible to the vegan philosophy and lifestyle based on the belief that animals are not for people to wear, eat, experiment on or use for entertainment. The festival will be hosted by New York City "The Vegan Drag Queen" Honey LaBronx, a bona fide activist and celebrity with her own YouTube vegan cooking show, a radio podcast "Big Fat Vegan," who uses performance to spread the vegan message.

The event, named using the abundance of acorns in the fall, in addition to the drum circle, will have kids' activities from 11:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m., a variety of speakers and an array of musical offerings during the afternoon, along with a hula hoop contest around 4 p.m. Other attractions will include henna hand-painting, dancing, various vendors with food and samples. More information is available at <https://www.facebook.com/Acornsagogo> and on Twitter at AcornsAGoGo2 and in the classified ad for the event on page 14.

Greek Dance Open House Is on Sun.

Sunday, October 13 at 4:30 to 6:30 p.m. Syrtos, the Greek Dance group of Greenbelt, will resume Greek dance sessions in an open house session in the dance studio of the Greenbelt Community Center.

In addition to the first hour's demonstration and instruction for beginners in the most basic Greek dances at local festivals, the second hour will teach new dances to the entire group and open dancing by specific request. People of all ages and levels of expertise are invited to join the group; no partner is required in this dance genre.

Greek dancing is therapeutic exercise that is fun – remember Zorba? – Greeks dance when they are happy or sad. It also offers stress relief and lively social interaction – members, many dancing with the group for years – are warm and welcoming to new members. Group outings include trips to local festivals, with a chance to dance to live music, enjoy Greek food and mingle with the Greek community.

Some members will have attended and will be able to share their experience at a festival this weekend at the Ukrainian Orthodox Church on New Hampshire Avenue; a church that also currently houses St. Constantine and Helen's Greek Orthodox, itself is in the process of building in Olney.

Those interested in Greek dance classes can sign up for them. There is a fee. For more information call instructor Chris Tennant at 240-582-7488 or email GlobalConcerns@aol.com.

City Notes

Greenbelters Make Greenbelt Great!

C.R. Gibbs Presents Lecture On Mysteries, Marvels of Africa

by Charis Pannell

"We can't box in Africa," said historian and author C.R. Gibbs on October 1 during a lecture on the lost kingdoms and ancient mysteries of the continent. At the lecture, one of several in a series scheduled at the Greenbelt Library, Gibbs explained why Africa was and is more than a place of misery. From architecture to science, Gibbs detailed some of the marvels and accomplishments of the continent from ages ago as well as of mysteries remaining today.

He discussed the famous pyramids of Giza as well as pyramids in Nubia, now Sudan, and questions that still surround their construction. He commented on the "sophistication of underground tombs" found in Africa and detailed the remnants of tobacco in some of those tombs and what these remnants may mean – whether they suggest trade or crops not thought to be in Africa at the time.

Gibbs spoke of evidence that revealed an ancient Egyptian zoo and other evidence of ancient African dentists. He displayed images of an ancient African prosthetic toe rivaling similar prostheses of today. Gibbs highlighted the hieroglyphics and art of early Africa, including two busts of Nefertiti. One bust, less known, shows her with fuller features than the more famous bust he described as having "European features."

Ancient Kenya

Gedi, Kenya is an ancient port city no longer near water, showing evidence of the reshaped landscape of Africa, Gibbs said. He noted ancient crocodiles as well that swam in waters where the Sahara desert is now and of Africa's version of the Loch Ness Monster.

Dominique Scott, an audience member from Lanham, said she is "really glad they are having these presentations" and found the lecture "enlightening." In regard to Gibbs she said, "As a spokesperson he was quite clear."

What is also clear, according to Gibbs, is that there is "more and more to learn about Africa."

The lecture series on African history and culture continues into November.

Police Blotter

Based on information released by the Greenbelt Police Department, <http://www.greenbeltmd.gov/police/index.htm>, link in left frame to "Weekly Report" or http://www.greenbeltmd.gov/police/weekly_report.pdf.

Dates and times are those when police were first contacted about incidents.

Robbery

September 27, 10:35 p.m., Behind the Springhill Lake Recreation Center on Cherrywood Lane. A pedestrian realized three men were following him. They confronted him and one man produced a handgun and demanded his shoes, jeans and cell phone. After obtaining these items they fled on foot.

Miscellaneous Arrests

September 27, 8:27 a.m., 9100 block Edmonston Road. A 35-year-old Greenbelt woman was arrested and charged with leaving a child unattended after a two-year-old was found walking alone in a parking lot. She was released on citation pending trial.

September 27, 2:45 p.m., Academy Stadium Theatre. A 28-year-old nonresident man was arrested and charged with unauthorized recording in a movie theater. He was taken to the Department of Corrections for a hearing before a district court commissioner.

Theft

September 26, 3:30 p.m., 5800 block Cherrywood Terrace. Two men approached another man as he was walking down the sidewalk. One of them took his cellphone and both fled in a green 4-door car. One man is described as black, 18 to 20 years old, 5'10" to 6'1" tall weighing 150 to 170 pounds, with medium-length dreadlocks, wearing a white T-shirt and blue jeans. The other man is described as black, approximately 18 years old, 5'5" to 5'8" tall weighing 150 to 160 pounds, wearing a green and white striped T-shirt and blue jeans.

September 28, 4:30 p.m., Martin's Crosswinds. A cell phone was taken from a purse.

September 29, 9:15 a.m., Safeway. Credit cards were taken from an unattended purse.

September 30, 3:20 p.m., 7601 Hanover Parkway. A cell phone was taken.

October 1, Greenbelt Exxon. A woman noticed a silver car with temporary tags pull up behind her car as she was pumping gas. She then saw a man lean inside her car. She yelled at him and he got back into the silver car and left the area. She then noticed her purse was missing.

Burglary

September 26, 9:28 p.m., 6900 block Hanover Parkway. A laptop computer, running shoes, coffee maker and other items were taken.

September 28, 6 p.m., 6000 block Springhill Drive. An attempted burglary occurred when a door knob assembly was damaged but entry was not obtained.

September 30, 9300 block Edmonston Road. Jewelry was taken.

block Breezewood Court. A television, jewelry and checks were taken. Entry appears to have been made by forcing open the kitchen window.

October 2, 9:49 p.m., 6800 block Springshire Way. Jewelry, a mountain bike, video game player and an iPad were taken. Entry was gained by forcing open the basement door.

Drug Arrest

September 27, 6:42 p.m., Cherrywood Terrace/Breezewood Ct. A 19 year-old Greenbelt man was arrested and charged with possession of marijuana. The man, who was standing in the intersection, fled from police and was apprehended after a short foot chase. He was released on citation pending trial.

Vandalism

October 2, 1:51 p.m., 5506 Cherrywood Lane. A woman entered the Sprint Store and became involved in a verbal dispute. She threatened employees and vandalized several phone display holders and the front door before fleeing.

September 26, 1:43 a.m., 7400 block Greenway Center Drive. An exterior window was broken.

Vehicle Crime

A license tag was stolen in the 9100 block Springhill Lane.

A Chrysler Sebring stolen from the 6100 block Breezewood Drive was recovered the same day by Prince George's County police near Laurel/Bowie Road and Muirkirk Road in Laurel. No arrests were made.

An Oldsmobile Alero stolen August 5 from the 6100 block of Springhill Terrace was recovered September 26 by D.C. Metropolitan police in the 1300 block of Quincy Street N.W., Washington, D.C. The tags on the vehicle at the time of theft, D.C. registration EH0185, were not recovered and remain stolen.

A Ford Crown Victoria reported stolen to Prince George's County police was recovered in the 6000 block Springhill Drive. No arrests were made.

Tools, stereo equipment and a cell phone were taken from a car in the 5900 block Cherrywood Terrace.

Vandalism occurred in the Greenbelt Youth Center parking lot (rear passenger side window was broken) and in the 6000 block Springhill Drive (tire was slashed).

Police Find New Techniques For Fingerprints Arresting

by Kathleen Gallagher

Crime doesn't pay – except for when it does. The Greenbelt Police Department is poised to purchase a state-of-the-art fingerprinting system that will bring the department into compliance with current law enforcement efforts to make the old "ink and roll" fingerprint cards as obsolete as carbon paper sets and mimeograph stencils. At its September 23 regular meeting the city council approved purchase of a 3M Cogent Live Scan Booking Workstation that will meet the requirements of the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) and the Maryland State Police for local agencies to submit fingerprints electronically. According to Chief of Police James Craze, the $33,283 cost of the equipment will be funded entirely through the department's collections of forfeited drug money and vehicles with no direct cost to the taxpayers.

The benefits of electronic submission are significant. Corporal Tim White told the city council that the new system will capture fingerprints and photographs of subjects and instantly transmit the data to the state and FBI data bases. In addition, it greatly increases the accuracy and legibility of the biometric data.

Mobile Scanners

Purchase of nine 3M Blue-check II Mobile Remote Fingerprint Scanners for $13,176 was also approved by the city council on the consent agenda. These mobile scanners will be funded entirely by a grant from the U.S. Department of Justice's Edward Byrne Memorial Justice Assistance Grant (JAG) Program. In the past the city has used JAG funds to provide mobile data terminals in police vehicles and for purchase of Panasonic Toughbook laptop computers.

Whereas the Live Scan workstation is a large machine used to scan and send new biometric data to the state for inclusion in the system, such as when a suspect is booked or a background check is being conducted, the small mobile scanners are for use in the field to scan fingerprints directly from suspects or others for immediate purposes of checking identity. The mobile scanners are used to receive information by allowing officers to gain direct access through their mobile data computers to the state's and FBI's automated fingerprint identification systems. Greenbelt police have been testing the mobile scanners for more than a year and have found them to operate very successfully.

White pointed out that in addition to police fingerprinting, the Live Scan will facilitate civilian background checks: for example, those for Recreation Department employees who must undergo screening prior to working with children. His suggestion that other civilian groups could be allowed to use the equipment for a fee was met with enthusiasm from councilmembers.

Mayor Judith Davis asked about the fingerprints parents get of their children for purposes of identification if they should be lost or abducted. White replied that since the parents keep those fingerprint cards, rather than the data being entered into a national data base, he thought ink would probably continue to be used for that purpose. When Councilmember Leta Mach asked White if he thought the city should continue to provide that service, he agreed it should. In response to a question from Councilmember Emmett Jordan, White clarified that the state is the keeper of the data sent in by the Police Department, with none of it being stored in the city.

Audit Suggests Changes

Greenbelt has been a little late in coming to the digital fingerprint game. The decision to purchase the Live Scan workstation was made in response to an audit of the city's criminal history record system by the FBI's Criminal Justice Information Services (CJIS) division. The FBI stopped accepting hard-copy (ink) fingerprint cards or other hard-copy biometrics such as palm prints in April of last year. It was acceptable for local agencies to submit fingerprints electronically via other agencies that had that capacity.

The audit found that Greenbelt was submitting some "ink and roll" fingerprints in addition to submitting some via Live Scan at the Prince George's County Department of Corrections (DOC). The arresting agency is responsible for the completeness, accuracy and timeliness of fingerprint submissions no matter what agency submits them. The evaluations under the audit found 95 percent of Greenbelt's submissions through the DOC to be rated good or fair and found 52 percent to be timely. The audit recommended that Greenbelt work with the DOC to get up to speed on both the quality and the timeliness in order to comply with the recommended best practices. Instead the department is moving forward by acquiring the technology that will make most of that old ink disappear.

Hear Star Stories At the Planetarium

On Friday, October 11 at 7:30 p.m. the Howard B. Owens Science Center will host a free planetarium show called "Star Stories and Stellar Science" for parents, students and community members.

The stars of autumn offer a wealth of mythology from different world cultures. The show will cover several examples, such as the Japanese Tanabata festival, celebrating the love between the stars Vega (a weaver girl) and Altair (a cowboy). In Hindu astronomy, four stars in Pegasus are actually a bed where the Moon can rest. Learn to identify these stars and others in the autumn night sky and discover the intriguing science behind them.

Puppetry Added to Artful Afternoon

by Tisha Claudia Lim

It has been a wonderful and pleasant afternoon for residents and nonresidents of Greenbelt to enjoy a series of puppet theater performances and marvel at the "Reflections of Imagination" at the Artful Afternoon on Sunday, October 6.

The Artful Afternoon is a monthly community event organized by the city at the Greenbelt Community Center on the first Sunday of each month.

This month, visitors and families not only got to marvel at the various artwork displayed at the center, they were also able to watch puppetry performances that lasted for an hour. In addition, they had the opportunity to talk to the resident artists about their creations and inspirations in their respective art studios.

Of course, the event does not exclude Rebecca Gardner, one of the many children who participated in the Fabric and Bead Jewelry Workshop. She enjoyed making a beaded necklace. Her mother, who is originally from England but settled in Greenbelt, said that she has brought her older children since the center first started the event years ago and the overall experience has been a fun one for her children.

Reflections of Imagination also on exhibit in the building is a non-competitive challenge open to the Greenbelt Pottery Group that required potters to span their horizon of creativity and to put their inspiration onto a 9 x 9 inch Ikea mirror. The aim of challenge does not just focus on the artwork itself, but also to develop a sense of community as well as to foster relationships between people within the community.

The idea was initiated by four people of the Greenbelt Pottery Group, according to Kerstin Hendrickson, one of the four.

"We were kind of standing around here . . . thinking this is a great idea for a community event."

The finished artworks were mainly composed of ceramics and there were potters who used collage, mosaic and fabrics to complete their pieces, Hendrickson said.

In one of her artwork called "The Living Log Cabin," Hendrickson incorporated birds, squirrels, cabin logs and other elements of nature in that, to some extent, resemble her home country, Sweden, which she left 40 years ago.

She did, however, face challenges during the project. "I was just building and thinking I wanted some grass that is growing up the cracks in between the logs and then during the firing it, it got into a whole crack . . . so I did fix it with some other clay in between."

She placed two pre-cut papers under the stencil and painted a specially-made green paint on the other side of the stencil.

She then used both hands to press a tool known as "squeegee" and drag it down until the ink had fully covered the cutting of the pictorial and penetrated into the paper. And voila, two fully painted trees appear.

The artwork will be taken down after displaying for three to four months in pottery showcases, according to Henderson.

Visitors also get to walk into the individual art studios and take a look at the artwork created by the respective artists and, of course purchase pieces if interested. They could also talk to the artists about their work and creations

Each resident artist specializes in his or her work. Nora Simon, who shares a studio with another artist, specializes in block printing and screen-printing.

Since the whole process of screen-printing is comprehensive and hard to master, Simon demonstrated only the most basic process for the visitors.

pictorial of For the last hour of the event, visitors gathered at the Community Center gym to watch a string of puppet performances and listened to folk songs sung by a pair who called themselves "Rattle Snake Hill."

The first puppet show was particularly memorable as it did not conclude with the usual happily ever-after ending. Instead Princess Elizabeth does not marry Prince Ronald, who was unable to save her from the dragon. The audience cracked up in laughter on the unexpected and slightly satirical closing.

The next Artful Afternoon will be held on November 3 at the Community Center.

Electric Poles Are Now Being Replaced throughout Town

by Sue Krofchik

Phone poles. Electric poles. No matter what they're called, the proper name is joint-use pole and they are being replaced throughout town. New transformers and wires are also included in this effort by PEPCO to make electric service more reliable. Work began in early 2013 and is expected to last a full year.

The C.W. Wright Construction Company from Richmond, Va., is the subcontractor for this project. One crew of workers in the Greenhill Road area of the city hails from across the country, including Tennessee, North Carolina, New Jersey, New York and Oklahoma. Justin LeBoeuf's home is the farthest away, Washington state. Only two crewmen are able to go home each night, John Gochnour to Baltimore and John Hare to Prince Frederick.

Eddie Rivera goes home to New Jersey every Friday and leaves there at 3 a.m. each Monday to return to Greenbelt on time for work.

They "follow the work," be it the Greenbelt project or assisting companies throughout the nation restore power after major outages. "I have things in storage in Florida, Texas, Oklahoma and Maryland," says foreman Anselmo Salazar.

All sites were surveyed before work began and about 600 poles, 350 transformers and miles of wiring were ordered. Replacing these items is a four step process. Dig the hole, set the pole, pull the wires and remove the old pole.

Holes and Poles

Holes must be dug by hand in all residential areas to avoid damage to pipes and, in some areas, underground wires. A seven-foot depth is required to support new 45-foot long poles. Poles for Greenbelt came from Florida, are typically pine and are treated to withstand weather and termites. No creosote is used.

They come in sizes one through five, depending on girth and use. Size one is the largest. "Mostly twos are being used here, larger than needed," said Larry Young, northern area manager for Wright Construction. PEPCO is making every effort to increase reliability.

Setting Poles

Poles are transported on a flat-bed trailer from a holding area in either the Public Works yard or a recycling area in Greenbelt East. A crane lays the pole on the ground and a rope and hook are attached just up from the middle of the pole. A second crane lifts it until almost perpendicular. Two men hover carefully around the butt end of this 2,504 lb., 8 oz. pole and guide it to the hole. Once positioned in the ground the pole is plumbed and the hole backfilled and tamped using a pneumatic device.

Pulling Wires

Two first-class linemen, one for each bucket, don yellow rubber gloves and sleeves and enter their own bucket. (Rubber boots and hard hats are mandatory for everyone.)

The bucket also holds eight-foot long orange rubber sleeves to cover existing wires. The sleeves are placed over those wires to increase safety and keep them from touching new wires. An on-site PEPCO official could not confirm voltage of these wires because of security issues, he explained.

New wires are on the ground and prepared for pulling. Buckets are raised and in some sites must be threaded between numerous tree limbs to reach the top of the new pole set a few hours earlier.

Wires are pulled up from the ground to a sag position, dead-ended and energized. Power is switched from old wires to new. Old wires are de-energized and removed.

At this point, two wires are on the new pole. One, the primary wire, carries electricity to transformers. Three secondary wires, bundled into one tri-phase wire, go from the pole to each individual home. Previously these three wires were separate. All new wires are surrounded by more insulation than previous wires had.

Transfer of power from new lines to homes is done one home at a time after each customer is told power will be off for about 20 to 30 minutes. The workers feel it is never convenient for customers but they try their best to accommodate those with special needs.

After power is restored to the new pole the top of the old pole, where connections had been, is removed. The lower end can then safely be removed by a subcontractor.

Other Facts

It takes about five years to learn this trade and it proceeds from the ground up. A groundman begins at apprentice level one, then two and three, moving to lineman class three, class two and then class one. A class one lineman has the knowledge and skills to perform any task.

At 45 feet, new poles are about 10 feet higher than old poles. Only electric wires can be placed at or above 25 feet. All other wires such as for telephone and cable television and any for forthcoming technology must remain below the 25-foot level.

Eddie Rivera (left) and Brian Parks wrap rubber sleeves around the existing primary wire as a safety measure in preparation for "pulling." Existing three-phase wires on existing pole are already wrapped in sleeves. New pole, right, is about 10 feet higher than existing pole.

A Review

Puppets Gone Wild

by Jim Link

First praise, then a mild gripe from my inner Jerry Falwell or maybe my Mrs. Grundy. Avenue Q, the Tony Award winner for Best Musical in 2004, now at the Greenbelt Arts Center, is an unmitigated success.

The pre-play buzz was palpable on opening night and the 80-some audience members cheered, clapped and hooted through two-and-a-half hours of parodic fun. The principals are large puppets in search of their higher purpose in life as they scramble to survive in this coming-of-age story set in the unforgiving big city.

John Decker's brilliant, imaginative set design, executing quick scene changes by rearranging just a few props; director Jeff Lesniak's sound design; Dennis Giblin's lighting; Rikki Howe's choreography and music director Paul Nahay's band all conspire to give the audience an evening of raucous joy. And the actors are excellent, too!

All the characters except three are puppets, hand-held by sleek, black-clad humans. This motley colony lives in the cheap housing way down on Avenue Q in an apartment complex whose landlord is Gary Coleman (Temple Fortson), the vertically challenged TV comedy star down on his luck. "It sucks to be me," he sings.

Princeton (Stephen Backus), fresh out of college with a B.A. in English, needs a job ("I can't pay the bills yet, 'cause I have no skills yet") to impress ingenue Kate Monster (Melissa Berkowitz). Her rival for Princeton's attentions is Lucy the Slut (Jenna Brouma), a Mae West-ish vamp.

Rod (Michael Iocone) and Nicky (Adam Newland) eventually acknowledge their homosexual attraction to each other.

Christmas Eve (Lauren J. Lowell) marries Brian (Jim Adams) and Joe Rolandelli plays the crude porn-loving puppet Trekkie Monster.

My gripe is that the use of puppets as characters tames the edginess of the play. The puppets, who aren't real people after all, displace, sublimate and anesthetize the serious issues they depict. The inherently dark content is thus made to seem innocently cheerful.

Songs like "If You Were Gay," "Everyone's a Little Bit Racist" and "The Internet Is for Porn" are oddly and relentlessly sunny.

One big number, "You Can Be as Loud as the Hell You Want When You're Making Love," features acrobatically fornicating puppets that bring the Kama Sutra to life. Wildly daring, yet adorably cute!

Of course Avenue Q is a musical comedy. The chances are you'll agree with Gary Coleman when he says, "I haven't felt this good since I sued my parents." Go see it through October 26 on Fridays and Saturdays at 8 p.m. and on Sundays October 13 and 20 at 2 p.m.

Co. Homeownership Program Funded, Open

The Prince George's County Department of Housing and Community Development has announced its "My HOME" homeownership assistance program has been funded and began accepting applications this week.

Over the next three years over $8 million has been committed to the county by federal and state sources, with the "My HOME" program being a key housing policy strategy to enable low, moderate and middle income households to obtain affordable home ownership and stimulate the economy while establishing owners' investment in their neighborhoods and tax income. The program is to be managed by the county's Redevelopment Authority.

Eligible first-time homebuyers can receive deferred payment loans for down payments and closing costs of up to five percent of the purchase price. All must meet strict debt ratio requirements and also make a minimum cash contribution toward the purchase.

Other information about the program and how to apply is available at <http://redevelopment.mypgc.us> by clicking on "Services" or calling 301-883-7323.

Hospital Holds Patient Information Programs

During the next week Doctors Community Hospital is holding three free patient programs next week:

On Tuesday, October 15 at 7 p.m. there will be a Breast Cancer Support Group meeting for women newly diagnosed or recovering from breast cancer. Meetings are held monthly on the third Tuesday of each month in Room 415 on the fourth floor of the hospital's North Building. Call Terrie Trimmer at 240-542-3034 for more information.

Wednesday, October 16 at noon the Lymphedema Support Group meets in the fifth floor DSE Room at the hospital North Building. Those with lymphedema share experiences while learning about the latest treatment and management options. Call Michelle Williams at 301-552-8144 for more information.

Thursday, October 17 the hospital will provide a range of breast health events in the Center for Comprehensive Breast Care, Suite 110, of the Professional Office Building adjoining the hospital, including screening mammograms from 7:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. to insured and uninsured women. There will also be sessions on free clinical breast exams from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. and free bra fittings from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. For more information call the Center at 301-552-8524.

NAMI Talk Explores Depression and Aging

The National Alliance on Mental Illness (NAMI) will hold a workshop on Thursday, October 17 from 7 to 9 p.m. at the New Carrollton Municipal Center, 6016 Princess Garden Parkway. This month's topic, Aging and Depression, is presented by Kim Burton, director, Older Adult Programs, Mental Health Association of MD.

Although depression is a common problem among older adults, it is not a normal part of aging. The signs, symptoms and causes of depression in this population are, at times, less obvious and different than in others. It may therefore, be overlooked. Burton will discuss how to recognize this problem and seek help for older loved ones.

Free Brazilian Dance Workshop Offered

On Tuesday, October 15 from 7:30 to 9 p.m. the Publick Playhouse in Cheverly offers a free dance workshop: Brazilian dance with Sonia Pessoa. Experience Brazilian culture in this introductory lesson in Afro-Brazilian, Samba, and Samba-Reggae.

Reservations are recommended; call 301-277-1710 to hold a spot.

Contestants Sought For Red Ribbon Week

The theme for the 28th Red Ribbon Week (October 23 to 31) is "A Healthy Me Is Drug Free."

The drug abuse prevention organization National Family Partnership and the federal Drug Enforcement Agency are holding a contest for parents and students to decorate the front door, mailbox or fence with a red ribbon and suitable message for this year's theme.

The 10 winning families nationwide will win $1,000 for their school and an iPad for their homes. To enter, submission of a photo of the family and their Red Ribbon Week "A Healthy Me Is Drug Free" decoration must be uploaded to www.redribbon.org/contest by a person 18 or older no later than Monday, November 4.

Afterward online voting will be held from November 5 through 18 at www.redribbon.org/vote. Winners will be selected on December 6.

More information about the contest is at www.redribbon.org/contest.

Orchid Show Moved To Behnke's Nursery

On Saturday, October 12 and Sunday, October 13 from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Monday, October 14 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m., the 66th Annual Orchid Show will be held at Behnke's Nurseries, 11300 Baltimore Avenue, Beltsville. The show has been relocated to Behnke's since the National Arboretum is closed by the government shutdown.

For more information call 301-937-1100 or see Behnke's website at www.behnkes.com and click on Events.

Doctors Host Free Mammograms, Exams

October is Breast Cancer Awareness Month. On Thursday, October 17 Doctors Community Hospital will offer an array of events - free screening mammograms, clinical breast exams and bra fittings for women insured and uninsured.

Appointments can be scheduled or handled on a walk-in basis for women who have not had a mammogram within a year or more. To schedule in advance, call 301-552-8524.

The event will include refreshments and giveaways.

History Lecture At Montpelier

On Wednesday, October 16 at 7:30 p.m. Mike Lucas, an archaeologist for the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission, will share findings on the War of 1812 at Nottingham along the Patuxent River. The event is free with light refreshments served. For details call 301-377-7817 or visit www.pgpparks.com.

M-NCPPC Open On Columbus Day

The Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission (M-NCPPC) Parks and Recreation Facilities and Programs in Prince George's County will operate on regular schedule on Columbus Day Monday, October 14. All facilities will be open regular hours; recreation classes that meet on Mondays will also be held.
