Utopia Film Festival Presents “Mr. Stokes” to “Led Zeppelin”

by Susan Gervasi

Lights! Camera! Action! From Saturday, October 19 through Sunday, October 20 Greenbelt’s Utopia Film Festival 2013 will screen more than 40 independent documentaries, dramas, short films, foreign films, animated films by-and-for kids and experimental works. Many filmmakers will be available to answer questions after films ranging from war and peace to rock and roll – with civil rights, community-building, sci-fi and other diverse subjects in the mix.

This year’s festival also features several East Coast premieres, movies with Greenbelt links and works by Washington-area directors.

“I love telling stories from my suburban Maryland universe, and the story of Led Zeppelin’s first local concert in a nearby gymnasium – and whether it actually happened or not – was irresistible,” said Silver Spring Director Jeff Krulik, whose critically-acclaimed documentary “Led Zeppelin Played Here” screens at 2 p.m. on Sunday, October 20 in the P&G Old Greenbelt Theatre.

Krulik’s film aims to get to the bottom of an enduring truth – or fiction: that on a cold night in 1969, Led Zeppelin played for a crowd of 50 at the Wheaton Youth Center. Krulik and Greenbelt resident and author Mark Opsasnick – who appears in the film – will take questions afterward.

Besides the P&G Old Greenbelt Theatre, Utopia will include three other venues: the Greenbelt Community Center, the Greenbelt Municipal Building and Beltway Plaza’s Academy Theaters.

Another local filmmaker, Sam Hampton, directed the documentary “Mr. Stokes’ Mission,” which focuses on a 1951 civil rights protest by students at a segregated Virginia high school – an action which became part of the landmark 1954 Supreme Court case “Brown v. Board of Education” outlawing school segregation. Hampton will offer a Q&A after his film, which shows at 4 p.m. on Sunday, October 20 in the Municipal Building.

“I wanted to explore how it felt, from various perspectives, to be a young student in the middle of a situation in 1951 where racial discrimination was occurring,” said Hampton. “And challenge the viewer to think about what that history means for us today.”

Though many Utopia 2013 films come from around the world and across the nation, the short film “From Hell to Here” was shot locally and explores combat post-traumatic stress disorder. This is the film’s Washington-area premiere. Greenbelt resident Robert Mitchell, its lead actor, and Director Rachell Shapiro will answer questions following a second film, “DPRK: Land of Whispers.” The two-film program starts at 2 p.m. on Saturday, October 19 in the P&G Old Greenbelt.

“DPRK: Land of Whispers” follows a young filmmaker on a quirky visit to North Korea, where he doggedly attempts to record the streets and people of the isolated nation – despite censorship by tour guides who want to show off glitzy – but empty – hotels, restaurants and casinos. But his camera still manages to capture rarely-seen glimpses of North Korean people and little-known North Korean

Stream Restoration Plan Gets Contingent Approval

by Diane Oberg

At its October 14 regular meeting, the Greenbelt City Council gave preliminary approval to a proposal to do stream restoration work in Greenbriar Park. It also referred the report to the Greenbelt Advisory Committee on Environmental Sustainability (GreenACES) and made their approval contingent upon a favorable report from or resolution of any issues identified by that committee. If GreenACES recommends against the project or has issues that could not be resolved with the developer, the project would come back to council for a final decision.

The work would be done at no cost to the city as an off-site stream mitigation project required to offset stream impacts from a commercial development on Route 1 in Beltsville, known as the Jara property. The mitigation work must be done somewhere within the Anacostia Watershed. Using the 2010 “Anacostia River Watershed Restoration Plan and Report,” the developer’s consultant, Environmental Systems Analysis, Inc. (ESA), picked the Greenbriar site as a possible mitigation area. The park is located near the intersection of Hanover Parkway and Mandan Road.

In an earlier meeting, council expressed its interest in the project and authorized further planning. Working with city staff and deciding to use the streambed itself as the roadway for construction vehicles during the restoration work, ESA has reduced the tree loss in Greenbriar Park from 20 in the original proposal to nine. There will be some loss of other vegetation and the plan includes extensive replanting. The stream will continue its meandering ways since the streambed will not be realigned as had been previously considered.

Degraded System

In a letter to city staff, ESA President Kevin Kelly described the Greenbriar stream as a “degraded system with significant side-slope failures and channel incision.” He noted that the stormwater pond at the site “was designed under older standards and does not provide any channel protection volume controls to the stream,” which he termed an “ephemeral ditch” that only flows when it rains.

Kelly estimated that the work

Election 2013

Susan Stewart Seeks Election to Council

Challenger Susan Stewart has submitted her biography for publication in this week’s News Review. Her nomination form has been certified by City Clerk Cindy Murray along with those of incumbents Judith Davis, Konrad Herling, Emmett Jordan, Leta Mach, Silke Pope, Edward Putens, Rodney Roberts and challenger William Orleans.

Biographies of Davis, Putens, Pope, Mach, Herling, Jordan and Roberts were published in prior weeks. Biographies are prepared by the candidates.

Susan Stewart

I was born in Washington, D.C., and raised here in Maryland; however my parents met across the world from here during the Vietnam War. My mother is from South Vietnam and my father is a veteran of the U.S. Army from Talledega, Ala. A middle child to an older brother and younger sister, I grew up living in the Walter Reed army section in Wheaton most of my childhood, until we moved to Silver Spring close to Sligo Creek Park, where my parents still live.

A serious student who excelled in every subject, I pursued a music degree in hopes it would fulfill my passions, while still allowing me time to raise a family and teach children. I received

Election 2013

Answers to Our Question

This year, the Greenbelt News Review poses one question to all candidates for election to the Greenbelt City Council and asks that candidates provide their answers in writing to the News Review no later than Monday, October 7 for publication in an October issue of the News Review. Each week answers from three candidates will be published in the order received. Answers are limited to 500 words or less.

Question: If elected to the Greenbelt City Council what will be your three most important objectives to be accomplished during your term in office and how do you expect to succeed in accomplishing each objective?

Leta Mach

The spirit of Greenbelt is working together. If re-elected, I would work with council members, city staff and Greenbelt citizens to address issues. I have identified three priorities: renovate the movie theater, manage the budget and work to bring all areas of Greenbelt into one community.

Renovating our historic movie theater has been on my agenda since my first election. I testified in Annapolis in support of the state bond to help fund the project. For a number of reasons, it has taken longer than wanted. A few years ago, I decided to become a “broken record” and push us to begin by using city funds to match the grants we have and complete as much as these funds permit. We now have a plan to begin the first phase of the renovation, which will complete much of the needed work including some new upgrades to the equipment that were not anticipated when this project began. Even though it appears we will begin very soon, I intend to be a “broken record” on this project until it is done.

I will respond to budget challenges by carefully evaluating services, exploring partnerships, seeking grants and fostering economic development including new cooperatives. Citizens of Greenbelt support programs that enhance our quality of life. We must look carefully at our programs to see that they are fulfilling our needs. This starts with the budgeting process as departments make proposals, which Council and citizens review.

I’ll encourage opportunities that help promote and market our

DOT Letter Sets Plan For Southway Ramp

October 10, 2013

Ms. Judith Davis, Mayor
City of Greenbelt
25 Crescent Road
Greenbelt, MD 20770-1886

Subject: Southway Entrance Ramp
Baltimore Washington Parkway

Dear Ms. Davis:

Thank you for your letter of September 9, 2013 expressing concern about the condition of the ramp onto the southbound Baltimore-Washington Parkway from Southway in the City of Greenbelt. The Baltimore-Washington Parkway is owned by the National Park Service. The Federal Highway Administration, Eastern Federal Lands Highway Division is partnering with the National Park Service to complete needed repairs to the Parkway.

We developed plans for the repaving of a section of the Parkway between Maryland 450 and I-495, south of the City of Greenbelt. During plan development for this project, concerns were raised regarding the Southway Ramp. Our Pavement Engineer visited the city in June of this year and observed the separation of the top layer of asphalt from the bottom layer, as noted in your letter. In order to repair this condition, the entire top surface will be removed and replaced with a new layer of asphalt. In this instance, patching the failed locations will not provide a long term repair, as you have experienced. Due to the condition of the Southway Ramp, we coordinated with the National Park Service to include this work with the designed section of Parkway described above in order to accelerate the repair. This project is scheduled to be awarded this winter with paving starting in the spring of 2014.

If you have any further questions or concerns regarding the repairs to the Southway Ramp, please contact Kim McCool, the Eastern Federal Lands Project Manager, at (571) 434-1569. You may also contact the National Park Service Project Manager, Karen Arey, at (202) 619-6376.

Sincerely yours,
[signed]
Melisa Ridenour, P.E.
Division Engineer

Notice

Next week, October 24, will be the last issue for anyone to write a story or letter to the editor that for the first time broaches a new issue concerning the city council election. This is to give everyone an opportunity to present the other side before the election.

It is our policy not to permit an attack on any individual to be published in this newspaper whether in an article, a letter to the editor or a paid advertisement.

Last week's What Goes On gave incorrect information about the start time for the GHI Candidates Forum Tuesday evening, October 15. P.S. We were not the only ones to get the time wrong.

Explorations Unlimited Visits King's Poetry

On Friday, October 25 Explorations Unlimited will feature a presentation by Anne King on Astonishing Poetry: Serious and Silly.

King will take a new look at some old and new poems and some creative poetic excesses. Astonishing forms will include limericks and concrete poems. Some listeners choose to remember – or to forget; to hate – or to love – to laugh at or to weep for.

Explorations Unlimited is held on Friday afternoons at 1 p.m. in Room 114 at the Greenbelt Community Center. All are welcome and questions are encouraged. For more information call 301-397-2208.

Beaverdam Creek Has Membership Meeting

Next Thursday, October 24 at 7 p.m. the Beaverdam Creek Watershed Watch Group (BCWWG) will hold a membership drive meeting in Room 109 at the Greenbelt Community Center.

BCWWG is seeking new, dedicated people to help carry on the work the group has been doing since 2005. It has offered many activities for all ages to educate about the Upper Beaverdam Creek subwatershed of the Anacostia River that includes a good portion of Greenbelt and parts of Beltsville. Most of the watershed is on Beltsville Agricultural Research Center (BARC) property and includes NASA's Goddard grounds and most of the Greenbelt Forest Preserve.

Some BCWWG activities include forums on vital watershed issues, bird walks, bat walks and frog identification trips – the group has sponsored several BARC biodiesel bus tours and Anacostia River guided canoe trips, tree plantings and trash cleanups on the watershed.

Beltsville Garden Club Has October Meeting

The Beltsville Garden Club will meet on Wednesday, October 23, at 7:30 p.m. in the cafeteria of the James E. Duckworth School, 11201 Evans Trail, Beltsville.

This month's speaker, Lisa Tayerle, will talk on "Winter, Spring, Summer – Deer Resistant Bulbs for Your Garden." Tayerle has worked as a gardener at Brookside Gardens for 12 years. She combines experience from her architectural and visual arts degrees and horticultural training to design unique summer annual and spring bulb displays, including plantings that are deer-resistant.

Refreshments will be served after the meeting. Club members are asked to bring a plant or plant-related material for the club's door prize table. The public is welcome and admission is free.

Additional information can be found at the club website at www.beltsvillegardenclub.org.

UM Wind Ensemble Gives Free Concert

In a free concert on Friday, October 18 the University of Maryland Wind Ensemble will introduce audiences to new works for wind band, while continuing its tradition of performing some of the most respected works in the repertoire. The ensemble will perform one of Paul Hindemith's most popular works, Symphonic Metamorphosis; a wind band arrangement of Bach's Fantasia in G major for organ; and Ralph Vaughn Williams' famous work for military band, Folk Song Suite.

The concert will be held in the DeKelbourn Concert Hall of the Clarice Smith Performing Arts Center at 8 p.m. Admittance is on a first-come, first-seated basis, beginning at 7:30 p.m. locales, while offering a quirky take on the nation's authoritarian mind-set.

Former Greenbelt Community Center pottery instructor Courtenay Singer will be here from California to screen her film "Out of the Fire" – about a Virginia potter who specializes in the wood-firing of pots – an ancient-but-revived pottery technique. The film screens at noon on Saturday, October 19 in the P&G Old Greenbelt. There will be a question and answer session after the documentary.

Many Utopia films offer fascinating glimpses of foreign nations. "Flying Paper," about some Palestinian children who want to break the Guinness Book of World Records for the most kites ever flown at once, makes its East Coast premiere at Utopia. The film will be introduced by Chris McGrath of the United Nations Relief and Works Agency for Palestine Refugees in the Near East. McGrath will take questions about life in Gaza following the film. "Flying Paper" screens at 2 p.m. Saturday, October 19 in the Municipal Building. Another film deals engagingly with the beginnings of computer science in the Stalinist Soviet Union.

"I made my film to shine a spotlight on a significant chapter of computing history and to acknowledge Russian computer scientists, who are still relatively unknown in the US," said filmmaker Anya Belkina, whose brilliant animation about her grandfather's difficult life will screen at 4 p.m. on Saturday, October 19 at the P&G Old Greenbelt.

But social issues here in the United States, past and present, have always been part of Utopia. The poignant documentary "A Girl Like Her" looks at the plight of unmarried and pregnant young women and girls in the 1950s and 60s, when attitudes forced many into hiding away and relinquishing their children to closed adoption. "A Girl Like Her" will screen at noon on Sunday, October 20 in the P&G Old Greenbelt, with two relinquishing mothers heard in the film to take questions.

Several free programs will also be offered: a program for youngsters (noon to 2 p.m. Sunday in the Municipal Building), a workshop on documentary filmmaking (5 p.m. Sunday in the Municipal Building), and from 8 to 10 p.m. Sunday, a special free program of Utopia selections at Beltway Plaza Mall's Academy Theaters. For the other venues there is a fee.

Utopia venues are: P&G Old Greenbelt Theatre, 129 Centerway; Greenbelt Community Center, 15 Crescent Road; Greenbelt Municipal Building, 25 Crescent Road; and Beltway Plaza Academy Theaters, 6198 Greenbelt Road. For full film descriptions and schedule, see <http://www.utopiafilmfestival.org/>.

Canine Good Citizen Tests to Be Sunday

Sunday, October 20 from noon to 3 p.m. Canine Good Citizen Tests will be administered by Allie W. Lee, professional obedience instructor and American Kennel Club (AKC) Certified Canine Good Citizen Evaluator, at the Greenbelt volunteer fire house, 125 Crescent Road.

Dogs will be tested in the order they arrive and register – the actual test takes 10 to 15 minutes so those bringing a dog should allow a half hour for each one to be tested.

There is a fee for each test, with all proceeds donated to the Greenbelt Volunteer Fire Department and Rescue Squad. For more information go to <http://greenbeltdogtraining.com>.

History

The AKC created the Canine Good Citizen test in 1989 to aid owners in evaluating how they and their dog will react to sudden distractions.

Those who ever wondered how they and their dog would react in a crowd when any number of distractions happen – a horn blaring, a cyclist coming out of nowhere, a child approaches the dog too quickly – will be aided by the feedback.

More information about the test is available at http://www.akc.org/dogowner/training/canine_good_Citizen/links.cfm.

Other Activities

Other associated activities will be available for purchase including a micro-chip clinic by Roxie's Fund Rescue group and photos of pets and owners for holiday cards and other purposes.

Evaluation will also be available of dogs that pass the Canine Good Citizen test for their suitability as potential therapy dogs.

City Notes

Animal Control staff reports a ferret was found running at large, an injured/sick raccoon was picked up and owners surrendered two guinea pigs and one rabbit.

Planning staff is working with a contractor to finalize details to proceed on the Safe Routes to School construction project at Springhill Lake Elementary School.

Repairs have been completed on the pedestrian signal device on Crescent Road near St. Hugh's Catholic Church.

Horticulture crew installed fencing to protect National Lands Day plantings at the Greenbelt Lake shoreline.

The Springhill Lake Recreation Center gym is scheduled to be closed for floor refinishing on October 29 for 7 to 10 days. Work on the replacement of the Youth Center gym floor continues. The air flow vent system was installed and gym benches were improved. The gym is expected to reopen later this month.

Hear New and Old Trombone Music

Guest trombone soloist Moises Paiewonsky will join University of Maryland trombone studio students and faculty on Sunday, October 20 at 7:30 p.m. in the Gildenhorn Recital Hall of the Clarice Smith Performing Arts Center for a free concert featuring contemporary music and arrangements of popular classical music for trombone. The program will include Samuel Barber's Adagio for Strings, Rachmaninoff's Elegy in E-flat minor, Op. 3, Eric Ewazen's Sonata for Trombone and Piano and more.

Admittance is on a first-come, first-seated basis, beginning at 7 p.m. For more information, visit claricesmithcenter.umd.edu or call 301-405-2787.

a bachelor's in music performance for violin with a minor in mathematics from James Madison University in Virginia and was awarded a scholarship to pursue my master's in music from the University of Notre Dame in South Bend, Indiana. While performing on the side, I was teaching music students of all ages, from 3 to 70, with at one point about 60 students under my tutelage.

We moved to Ohio while my husband pursued his law degree. Unhappy with the corruption in local and national politics, I looked back to Maryland, in search of a home in a community that understood the needs of families but was also wise to corruption that ruins communities. A friend turned us on to Greenbelt and it has been my haven these past seven years.

On my return to Maryland in 2004 as a stay-at-home mother, I have become more deeply involved with many progressive and environmental issues. Working to fight climate change and protect the environment, I volunteered with groups such as the Chesapeake Climate Action Network, 1Sky, 350.org, and the Prince George's chapter of the Sierra Club. I have leadership training with Progressive Majority and Wellstone Action and I also have attended many conferences hosted by progressive and environmental groups such as The Campaign for America's Future, Peace & Justice Coalition, Powershift and Progressive Maryland.

Here in Greenbelt, I have been actively involved with the Greenbelt Climate Action Network, where last election I helped to organize a panel for city candidates on issues concerning the environment and justice. An active member of the Greenbelt Elementary School (GES) PTA, I have been chairing/co-chairing the Labor Day book sale for the last three years and volunteer throughout the year in the school library. Volunteering for the Greenbelt Farmer's Market, I started a project called Treadle Tree to make reusable bags from old t-shirts using my treadle-powered sewing machine, to help our community reduce our use of plastic bags. We live in GHI and my husband is a member of the GHI Audit Committee. I am also a member of the Executive Committee for the Prince George's County Sierra Club chapter, where we are focusing on zero-waste solutions.

My son, age 10, attends GES and is a student at Tai Yim Kung Fu school in Kensington. My husband is an attorney for a government agency and he attends pottery classes at the Community Center. In addition to keeping busy as a citizen lobbyist and volunteer in the community, I also keep a thoroughly neglected bed of plants in the Community Gardens and I enjoy any excuse to pull my violin out and play.

city such as the MML Geocache Trail and support the continuation of partnerships that help fund police officers and cooperative purchasing programs that help reduce expenses.

There are bottom-line programs and services that I support. First, public safety including police protection, property inspections and response to hazardous conditions such as downed trees, snow and ice. We must continue the city's Living Wage policy and support our employees. We must provide for those who are most in need by continuing the Greenbelt Assistance in Living Program and the city property tax credit for low-income homeowners.

Greenbelt spreads from East to West with an historic core; roads divide us. We have some disconnected citizens who do not realize they live in Greenbelt. I would begin to address this problem through information and marketing. This will be particularly important as we welcome residents of the soon-to-be-built Greenbelt Station South Core.

Signage on our borders can visibly identify Greenbelt. The "Three Lake Walk" that I proposed also takes people on a visible tour throughout the city. To help people get around and learn about our city, I will work to implement the recommendations of the Pedestrian and Bicycle Master Plan.

We should promote Greenbelt organizations, businesses, and services throughout the city and welcome new residents by continuing to produce Welcome to Greenbelt packets. I will also continue to push for information kiosks throughout the city. Together we can pursue common goals and work to improve all of Greenbelt.

Bill Orleans

If elected this member of council would hope to see more participation from residents, more transparency from Council and less of an opportunity for commercial "property owners" to skate on their taxes. Any success in these objectives would depend on the resolve of residents expressing their will.

Council belongs to Greenbelt residents not those elected to it. What distinguishes council from residents is that council has the responsibility to vote: on the budget and on policy, directing city management to effect same. I would add the council has the responsibility of listening to residents more and more talking less and itself specifically not responding to counter what residents may say.

Too many meetings are attended by too few residents because council wastes too much time on the mundane and celebratory. Too frequently residents speaking at council are condescended to or simply ignored. If elected

I would challenge whomever is presiding if that practice were to continue, and were my fellow council members continuing to babble on, as is now the practice, I would challenge them individually; collegiality does not mean suffering boos gladly. I would not obstruct, but hopefully instruct, constructively.

Council is Greenbelt's political voice; in our town which is chock-a-court with varied political interests, a petition to council to resolve support or opposition to some good or bad end should be respected by council and voted "yay" or "nay"; council should not evade its responsibility to be accountable by their vote. I would move any petition to a roll call on presentation. We all make mistakes: any resolution which is passed and later regretted, on reflection, could always be rescinded.

Council is permitted, not required, by state statute to conduct certain city business in executive session. Except when propriety requires it all city business should be conducted in public. Interviews with applicants for appointment to advisory bodies, most consultations with counsel, and certainly the performance review of the city manager and the renewal of the contract with the city solicitor are public business that should be available for the public to observe. On council I would move to that end.

Several very large tracts in Greenbelt are commercial properties that when assessed can appeal for an abatement. When that has occurred in Greenbelt in recent years the city has not challenged the appeal. Why, I do not know, how many appeals have been made and by which "property owners," I do not know. I have asked for some time but city management and council are unwilling or unable to say.

Unlike homeowners, commercial "property owners" are engaged in the practice of capitalism. Because the "owners" are not receiving what they consider an appropriate return on their investment is not a reason that homeowners should have to pay a higher rate – or that Greenbelt should have to curtail services. Indeed the city should challenge all commercial assessment appeals. I would move that council direct the city manager to track . . . all appeals affecting Greenbelt and direct the solicitor to challenge every appeal.

Edward Putens

The answers are about our money, our priorities, and our future.

1. Our immediate priority is surviving the current financial times. Our property assessments have dropped sharply, significantly reducing City revenues. This is good news for our property taxes but bad news for the City budget. The next State assessment will help, but in the meantime we need to tough it out.

An organizational assessment is now being completed that will help the City identify organizational and cost efficiencies. The Council has already made over $2,000,000 in budget reductions, and deferred many good projects to better times. My personal priorities until then are to (1) maintain the high quality of our public services and (2) preserve the jobs of our City employees in recognition of their loyalty to us.

2. The City's most important priority right now is to persuade the FBI to move to Greenbelt. The location would be in the Greenbelt Metro area, which we all remember as the site of the once-promised high-class commercial area that never showed up.

This is a realistic objective for several reasons. The FBI is almost definitely moving from its downtown D.C. location. Greenbelt is on the short list of possible sites. The Council has officially conveyed its strong interest on behalf of the City. We have firm support from Maryland political leaders. Most of all, Greenbelt would be a great location and a welcoming place for the FBI.

Having the FBI in the City would do a lot for us too. It is well known that I have over many years pushed for the revitalization of Greenbelt West. We have seen some success, including the new middle school, new ownership in Franklin Park, and the new housing planned for the South Core area closer to Greenbelt Road. Having the FBI here would lead to new commercial development, higher property values, higher City revenues that might help with the budget problem, and a stronger Greenbelt. I believe we will get an answer from the federal government soon.

3. Finally, there is the City's most important current improvement project: the renovation of the historic Greenbelt Theater in Roosevelt Center. The Council has unanimously committed to this project, and the City has raised outside money to help with the cost. This renovation is urgently needed, and in truth, too long delayed. Thanks are owed to those who have continued to advocate for the theater over the years and those who have continued to patronize the theater and buy all that popcorn.

This project is another important step in our continuing commitment to improvements in Roosevelt Center and surrounding area. One of the most rewarding things about my service on the Council is the long list of positive changes that have taken place in Greenbelt's historic center during my tenure.

Racial Injustices Are Recounted in Lecture

by Charis Pannell

In his lecture, "Breaking the Phalanx: Smashing Jim Crow in the Nation's Capital," historian C.R. Gibbs discussed racial injustices that occurred not only in the South but also in the Washington, D.C., area in the Jim Crow era.

At the Greenbelt Library on October 8, Gibbs explained that Jim Crow began as entertainment that portrayed African Americans as "singing, dancing, grinning fools." Soon, however, Jim Crow became a "web of laws" with the goal of "reducing black ability," Gibbs said.

Using historical photos and publications, Gibbs detailed the struggles African Americans faced in and near the District of Columbia. Images of African American families living in shacks in alleys reflected the inequality African Americans had to endure.

Gibbs explained that African Americans had no choice but to live in these shabby "interior dwellings" because most renters and property owners did not rent to African Americans because of prejudice or laws prohibiting such arrangements.

Education and Employment

Blacks not only faced inequality in housing, Gibbs explained, but in education and employment. "Our ancestors," Gibbs said, "wanted education, land and work."

Gibbs detailed the determined efforts by individuals and institutions in achieving these goals. Gordon Parks, the first African American photographer for Life magazine used his camera "as a weapon" against Jim Crow, he said.

Churches also played a key role in fighting against Jim Crow discrimination. Gibbs showed advertisements in which pastors urged African Americans to boycott certain stores. He also described the Bolling v. Sharpe court case, which challenged segregation in schools in the District of Columbia.

the lecture. She has attended Gibbs' lectures "for a while," and said she enjoys them because they address "so much that is not in any books."

Ellen Utley of Lanham, former branch manager of the Greenbelt library, said she enjoyed the lecture. "Greenbelt is fortunate to have C.R. Gibbs here to enlighten us."

The lecture series on African history and culture continues into November.

Greenbelters Make Greenbelt Great!

Time Bank Organizes, Schedules Training

by Michael Hartman

Marjorie needs help with iTunes, setting up a playlist and uploading music and Lore needs help in weeding her garden. Marjorie can help with gardening and Lore can teach people how to use gmail. Bill needs a cat sitter and Michael can help with that. Michael needs help in organizing, Annie can help with packing boxes and Aileen can provide help with legal issues. These are services that most people pay for. But we live in Greenbelt where neighbors help neighbors.

Sometimes, though, we don't know all the skills that our neighbors have to offer and they do not know ours. There are lots of other Greenbelters, some newly arrived who we don't even know, who need help or can offer work or services to others.

What can we do as a community? How can we help bring people together?

Welcome to the Greenbelt Time Bank where Greenbelters can offer and request help and it doesn't cost anyone anything but sharing their skills and abilities. It has taken a considerable amount of time and effort by a dedicated core group of local residents (all volunteers, of course) to make it happen, but the Greenbelt Time Bank is happening now and has 17 members.

Everyone who lives, works, plays in or visits Greenbelt is invited to join the Greenbelt Time Bank.

The Greenbelt Time Bank is a community system through which a person who volunteers one hour of time to help someone else gains an hour's time credit. The volunteer can use that time credit or accrued time credits to receive help from someone else. Everyone's time is equal no matter what each hour is spent doing. So far, 43 hours have been exchanged on the Time Bank.

The organizers created the Greenbelt Time Bank to develop a stronger sense of community through this system of offering and requesting work and services without exchanging any money. Also it is hoped this will help Greenbelters during these difficult economic times.

The members of the Core Planning team are: Annie Shaw, Luisa Robles, Shirley Middleton, Mary Ernsberger, Lore Rosenthal, Jane Young, Michael Hartman, Ellie Isaacs, Aileen Kroll, Kevin Fisher and Carolyn Lambright-Davis.

Over the next few weeks, the Greenbelt Time Bank will invite people to sign up and train them to use the time bank.

The following times and locations have been scheduled: Thursday, October 24 from 7 to 9 p.m. at Club 125 in Roosevelt Center; and Thursday, November 14, 7 to 9 p.m. at the Springhill Lake Recreation Center Clubhouse. All are invited to training and orientation to learn the many advantages of participating in the time bank. A small voluntary contribution toward the cost of room rentals will be asked from those able and willing to help in that way.

Organizers also plan a training session in Greenbelt East and are still working on a date and location. Anyone living in Greenbelt East who knows of a location is asked to email a suggestion. More information is available at <http://www.GreenbeltTimeBank.org>.

Those interested in joining, training and being involved can email greenbelt.timebank@gmail.com or, for those not using computers, call 301-474-2646.

City Council Discusses Community Concerns with Verizon, Comcast

by Angelique Crusoe

On September 25 City Council held a worksession on services provided by Verizon and Comcast. Lawrence Graham and Darian Gill represented Verizon and Karmen Walker Brown represented Comcast at the session. Discussion focused mainly on Verizon because of recent concerns that the company might get rid of landlines powered through copper wire.

In 2005 Verizon began a transition to operating its landlines through wireless FIOS. Since then the company has encouraged customers to drop their copper-wired landlines and use FIOS. Mayor Judith Davis asked Graham the difference between copper-wire and FIOS systems.

"They differ in a few ways," he said. "Copper runs off electricity while FIOS depends on a wireless network. When copper needs to be repaired it takes longer because some wires are hard to locate. FIOS is a much faster landline base and upkeep is cheaper."

Councilmember Konrad Herling asked Graham the typical time for a copper landline repair. Graham said that there was no typical time. Some repairs can be done instantly from an office while others require dispatchers. Most concerns are handled in one to two days.

Verizon continues to install FIOS lines although many seniors prefer to keep copper-wired lines, said the city's Public Information and Communications Coordinator Beverly Palau. For example, during storms, landlines with copper wire will work as long as the lines remain intact. Landlines that rely on FIOS, however, only last eight hours on a backup wireless battery if affected by severe weather. Last fall the victims of Hurricane Sandy were able to make calls using their copper-wired landline phones long after FIOS backup batteries had died.

People who switch to FIOS and have their copper lines removed will never be able to return to copper-wire landline service. Herling asked whether customers could keep their copper wire but still get a FIOS-based landline. Graham said that if the copper wire is cut but not removed, the customer could return to copper-wire landline service in the future.

Graham asserted that Verizon is not discontinuing maintenance of its copper lines. Technicians hired are taught to repair both FIOS and copper lines and he said that Verizon has no future plans to cut repair services to copper-based landlines.

Also discussed at the worksession were reports of a drop in broadband speeds of Verizon's Internet service. The company representatives urged residents to report any loss of broadband speed so the company could correct it.

Comcast

Brown, the local government liaison for Comcast, addressed the company's efforts to respond to damaged exterior Comcast boxes. Vandalism appears to be a major cause of the problems. Comcast is working with Greenbelt Homes, Inc. to repair or replace boxes throughout GHI. Brown encouraged residents to contact Comcast to report any damage to exterior boxes.

WHEN BUDGETS ARE TIGHT

Our property taxes are down. That's good. So our City revenues are also down. That hurts. The Council has made over $2 million in budget cuts to stay within our revenue. So what should our priorities be over the next two years until our revenue improves?

- Return loyalty by protecting the jobs of City workers.
- Postpone most new projects until revenues increase.

Federal Job Furlough Affects Greenbelters

by Kelsey Sutton

After October 18 resident Cynthia Newcomer won't receive a paycheck from the federal government.

"For now I am holding tight where I am and curtailing unnecessary spending," she said. "I have put off buying tickets for a trip later this year and am delaying other planned purchases, as well as some health care that I normally pay out of pocket."

Until October, Newcomer worked for a federal contractor as a content marketing manager on an HIV prevention program. But she, like many other Greenbelters, has not been back to work since a partisan dispute over the Affordable Care Act in Congress led to a federal government shutdown October 1.

"Unemployment compensation is not adequate to cover a fraction of most people's expenses and not everyone has family who can assist financially," said Newcomer, who lives on Laurel Hill Road. "So a shutdown of even a few weeks can really cause damage to people's lives."

Newcomer considers herself lucky that she will receive payment until the end of the week. Some people, she said, are not as fortunate. Her parents, retired, rely on Social Security and Medicare programs. Other friends are the only income earners in their families.

"People are in all kinds of situations," she said. "They may live paycheck to paycheck."

Darryl Munsey, who lives on Research Road, is active in the American Federation of Government Workers (AFGE) at the National Archives and has worked 40 years for the government. The National Archives was deemed nonessential. He and his wife Cindy were both furloughed.

"We have enough savings that I'm not worried that I can't eat," he said. "But young people in lower-grade positions can't live very long without a paycheck every two weeks."

The shutdown, he said, is "unfair to people who do their jobs."

Anne Marigza, a furloughed conservator for the Holocaust Memorial Museum, said the shutdown put about 45 percent of museum staff out of work indefinitely.

"I don't know what to expect when I go back," she said. "Some projects that I was working on may be going on without me. Or perhaps they've been delayed."

Marigza, who lives in Greenbelt's Windsor Green community, said she and other furloughed workers have been watching Congress intently.

Nationally, almost 800,000 federal employees have been furloughed indefinitely. Greenbelt has been hit hard. The city, nestled close to Washington, D.C., Annapolis and Baltimore, is a desirable living community for federal employees. NASA's Goddard Space Flight Center in Greenbelt and the U.S. Department of Agriculture's close proximity to the city also attract federal workers.

The U.S. House of Representatives unanimously passed a bill, The Federal Employee Retroactive Pay Fairness Act, which guarantees that furloughed federal workers receive full pay after the shutdown is over. But Munsey thinks the back pay will be an "administrative nightmare."

"The 'what-ifs' get more complicated the longer we're out of work," he said.

The government shutdown is not only affecting families with federal jobs. Local businesses that rely on people spending their government paychecks are also suffering.

"It seems people are cutting back," said Donna Hoffmeister, a senior program analyst who has worked for the U.S. Department of the Treasury for 12 years. "Restaurants in Greenbelt are saying they've lost half their business."

Hoffmeister, who lives on Plateau Place, faces deadlines at her job for January's filing season and doesn't know how she and her coworkers will catch up, she said. To aid furloughed employees, Greenbelt's Aquatic and Fitness Center is issuing a one-dollar discount off day rates for admission.

Reel & Meal Shows Dhamma Brothers

On Monday, October 21 at 7 p.m. the monthly Reel and Meal at the New Deal film showing will feature The Dhamma Brothers documentary that is the story of an overcrowded violent maximum-security prison in Alabama that is dramatically changed by an ancient meditation program. An optional vegan buffet is available for purchase at 6:30 p.m.

The Dhamma Brothers tells a dramatic tale of human potential and transformation as it follows and documents the stories of inmates at Donaldson Correctional Facility as they enter into an extended arduous, intensive Vipassana retreat. The prison, the end of the line in the state prison system, houses over 1,500 prisoners many of whom will not rejoin life in the outside world, who live behind security towers, live electrical fence and double-row barbed wire. The retreat requires a 10-day, 100-hour program of emotionally and physically demanding silent meditation that tells a dramatic tale of human potential and transformation as it follows their journeys.

More information about this month's event is available from Susan Barnett, susnbarn@earthlink.net. The Reel & Meal is a collaborative effort held the third Monday of every month by the Prince George's County Peace and Justice Coalition, Beaverdam Creek Watershed Watch Group and Green Vegan Networking.

How the Green Belt Was Saved with Walks, Booths and Pumpkins

by Susan Barnett and Kristin Fletcher

This year marks the 25th anniversary of the Greenbelt Pumpkin Walk. Ever wonder how the tradition got started? Believe it or not, it began in 1987 when the last of Greenbelt's woods were threatened with development.

In 1987, many Greenbelters who were prone to roaming the last of the original "Green Belt" had no idea that their beloved woods didn't actually belong to the town of Greenbelt. These woods (officially known as Parcel 1 and Parcel 2) had been sold to developers in 1954 by the Greenbelt Veterans Housing Corporation (which in 1957 came Greenbelt Homes, Inc.). In fact, over time, all of the original 800 acres of the green belt had been sold. Although the city subsequently purchased some of this land, much had been developed. But not Parcels 1 and 2.

In the 1960s, there was a plan for Parcel 1 and 2. The Prince George's County Board of Education had purchased parts of both Parcel 1 and 2 – a total of 72 acres – to build a three-school complex. Concerned citizens joined together to form SOCC (Save Our Community Committee) and defeated this effort. Eventually the Board of Education selected another site for Eleanor Roosevelt High School and the 72 acres was acquired by the city. The city also proposed another 38 acres of Parcels 1 and 2 to purchase a narrow green belt and later purchased the remainder of Parcel 2. The woods of Parcels 1 and 2 were left intact and free to grow for more than 20 years.

Citizen Action Tours

On November 19, 1987, the developers who owned the remaining 103 acres of Parcel 1 presented council with their plans to develop it into town homes and detached homes with roads and infrastructure. When the front-page story "Townhouses, Detached Homes Proposed for Undeveloped Parcel 1 in North End" ran in the November 26 News Review, many citizens were in shock. Leonie Penney wasted no time offering her home as a place for woods wanderers to join her in discussing how to save the much loved green belt or The Great North Woods as they were often called.

Many folks came to the meeting and signed up for what they thought they could do best. That night was the beginning of what emerged as the Committee to Save the Green Belt, the group that led the community on the path to saving the woods. Four citizens at the meeting found common ground in creating the Activities Committee: Yoni Siegel, Paul Downs, Bill Rich and Rodney Roberts. They immediately agreed that it was critically important to lead the townspeople on tours of the Green Belt.

The following week's News Review ran six letters to the editor in support of saving the Green Belt. The letters and authors were: "Need Wild Land" by Tina Rhea; "Save the Green Belt" by Leonie Penney; "Phantom Green Belt" by B. Sue Benson; "Last Call" by Tom X. White, Jr.; "Last Call for Deer" by Matt Durintine; and "Last Call for a Hike" by Paul Downs. The last letter announced a tour of "100 beautiful acres . . . before the destruction takes place . . . meet at 1 p.m. on Saturday at the end of Northway extended . . . there'll be free sandwiches and drinks."

This last letter marked the beginning of an ongoing effort. For the next several years the Committee to Save the Green Belt hosted weekly Tours of the Green Belt. Nearly every Saturday they led hikes and provided free sandwiches and drinks. They brought hundreds of townspeople into the woods so they could better understand the natural beauty of the forest that would be lost.

Labor Day Booths

In 1988, the Activities Committee participated in the Labor Day Festival with a booth that won second prize. Photos of that year show a young Doug Love helping in the booth. In 1989, with more elaborate plans to sell pictures of the woods, the committee worked hard for weeks in advance on their booth. Rodney Roberts rode in helicopters and planes to take aerial photos of the woods. Other photos were taken by Bill Rich and Greg Fisanich. Frames were constructed out of wood from the GHI scrap yard. An elaborate booth was built for their well known sign, "Save the Green Belt," which eventually was changed to "Keep it Wooded." That year, the booth won first prize.

Every year thereafter for 15 years, the Committee to Save the Green Belt had a Labor Day booth. Over the years they had various themes and they continued to win prizes. Many folks helped them in the booth, including Bob and Jean Rashkin, Terri Rutledge and Craig Tooley, Val Elliott, Dorian Winterfeld, Amethyst Dwyer and others.

Pumpkin Walks

Also in 1988 Activities Committee member Paul Downs suggested a Halloween Tour of the woods. A small notice placed in the News Review encouraged the town to join them on October 21 and 22: "The fun starts with a short walk down the trails. There will be lots of pumpkins along the way and a 20-foot ghost that flies. There will be candy and hot cocoa with marshmallows."

Using the money raised at the Labor Day Booth to buy pumpkins, the committee carved as many as they could. The pumpkins glowed in the night woods – and the townsfolk loved it! While the carving has taken place in different locations – at Roosevelt Center, inside or outside of the New Deal Café or on Northway – the tradition has endured for 25 years. Before his death, Doug Love would regale the visitors with some scary and not so scary stories on the walk. The Phantom and Goatman were regular apparitions. Many others joined it to help make it a great success year after year.

Community Effort

There was always the core group of four Greenbelters – Paul Downs, Bill Rich, Rodney Roberts and Yoni Siegel, who, driven by their passion for the woods, persisted from Labor Day to Labor Day and Halloween to being willing to attend meetings, volunteer for events and embrace Greenbelt's namesake. The Committee to Save the Green Belt offered leadership, innovative ideas and a strong core of long-term volunteers. Council listened to residents and responded by acquiring the remaining 103 acres with the help of the federal government and aid of the city's senators and congressman and eventually voting to create the Greenbelt Forest Preserve.

Because of the ability of the community to come together, new generations will be able to enjoy a very special natural wild world right in their own backyard, 225 acres of rare urban wilderness, sheltered and safe from the march of mankind. And the trees will stand. And the wildlife will thrive. And we thank those who acted and spoke for the Green Belt.

would take two to three months. ESA would like council's approval of its approach so ESA could begin the permitting process, which he estimated would take at least six months.

At the request of council, the Greenwood Village Homeowner Association and Greenbriar Phase II Board of Directors have reviewed the plans and indicated their support.

By federal regulation, the developer must monitor the site for five years and repair any issues. However, Kelly stated that the project, similar in nature to the stream restoration work done near Greenhill Road, is designed to be maintenance free. If problems develop during the monitoring period, the city could request further monitoring.

Split on Issue

Council was split on the issue. Mayor Judith Davis called the proposal a "no-brainer." She had walked the property earlier in the day and reported that the stream bed is badly eroded. Later Councilmember Leta Mach said it is a very eroded stream, with an embankment taller than she is. Many of the trees, she said, have half their roots off the land and could fall in with the next big storm. She said that it is in Greenbelt's interest to have the stream fixed.

Councilmember Konrad Herling agreed, saying, "My eyes tell me that work needs to be done." He asked about concerns that residents near the Greenhill site have raised regarding mosquitoes.

Kelly thought since the stream only flows when it rains, there should not be permanent ponds of water. However, if such ponds did develop, so could a mosquito problem, he said.

Councilmember Rodney Roberts had a different view. He also reported having walked the Greenbriar site recently and said that he did not see a lot of erosion. His main concern, however, was whether the Anacostia Watershed would get equal value with what had been done at the Beltsville site.

With agreement from other councilmembers, Davis ruled that line of questioning out of order. ESA was not involved in the Jara work and only serves as the developer's consultant for mitigation work, the extent of which will be determined by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.

Aquatic Life

Roberts asked Kelly what would be done to protect the aquatic life in the stream, such as frogs and lizards. Kelly said they could capture and relocate them as had been done on other projects. As it is an intermittent stream, there are no fish.

Councilmembers Emmett Jordan and Silke Pope voiced concern that if the work started next fall, school would be in session and construction trucks would be on the road with students traveling to Eleanor Roosevelt High School. Kelly said they would work with the city on routes and timing and other approaches to minimize the impact.

Roberts, noting that there is "some really nice mountain laurel" on the stream bank, asked if it would be cut. Kelly said that there were some areas of mountain laurel that would be cut, but not many. Roberts then moved that the proposal be referred to GreenACES.

Davis pushed to obtain approval of the proposal contingent upon a favorable review by GreenACES, which will not meet until after the October 28 council meeting.

After extensive discussion, some raised voices and discussions of council and parliamentary procedures, the motion was approved on a 6 to 1 vote with Roberts opposed. Roberts said he thought contingent approval was unnecessary and that the proposal should have been referred to GreenACES and then come back to council for approval.

Absentee ballots are available.
Early voting begins Oct. 19

RE-ELECT KONRAD HERLING TO CITY COUNCIL

Last year, Greenbelt celebrated its 75th anniversary, traditionally regarded as the diamond.

I see Greenbelt as an exquisite diamond with many brilliant facets.
The characteristics of the diamond determine its value.

Our characteristic facets - the strength, resilience, and richness of our diversity – make Greenbelt the inclusive and welcoming city that we all cherish.

Join me as we all continue to work to bring all our facets together towards the precious diamond we call "One Greenbelt".

We are a city with a rich history. We are also a city of the future.

Our city was so described at the 1939 World's Fair in New York

Let us continue to build on that legacy for Greenbelt and all of its citizens.

If re-elected, I will continue my efforts to accomplish the following in order to bring our community together:

Community Development, Inclusion, and Diversity

- Give greater attention to mental health and independent living services for people in the gap between middle age and Social Security, Medicare, and Medicaid.
- Hold City Council Work Sessions in all parts of town.
- Provide greater city response to emergencies through expanded access to WiFi; explore use of Low Power FM Radio.
- Encourage citizens to take the "Welcome Wagon" to a higher level by greeting new Greenbelters in person, with tickets for events and discounts for local businesses. Provide the city's Information booklet in both English and Spanish.
- Create a formal way to resolve Landlord and Tenant disputes; improve living conditions and management communication.
- Establish an Advisory Committee on Diversity and Inclusion (ACDI) and develop a Strategic Plan for Diversity and Inclusion.
- Foster community interest in an International Cultural Festival.
- Continue efforts for expanded public transportation services.

Expanding the Arts in Greenbelt

- Encourage greater diversity of programming at the Greenbelt Movie Theater in collaboration with the Greenbelt arts and business communities.
- Complete the historic Greenbelt Theater renovations, as promised.
- Expand arts programming throughout all of Greenbelt.

Business and Economic Development

- Retain existing businesses and attract new and "Green" enterprises, including new cooperatives.
- Work with stakeholders to encourage an improved consumer experience at the city's shopping centers.
- Promote more effective outreach and inclusion of all Greenbelters in Community Development projects, like the Greenbelt Theater.
- Create a Greenbelt Office of Economic Development.
- Reduce office building vacancy from the current high rate, increasing revenues as a result.

Health and Public Safety

- Promote cultural activities at the Spellman Overpass area, and encourage people to use the bridge more frequently.
- Increase safety for pedestrians, bicyclists, seniors, and individuals with disabilities across major intersections and around shopping areas. Include the use of smartly-designed over and underpasses.
- Encourage public-private partnerships with police department. Consider increased bicycle patrols.
- Design and implement plans for easier navigation and access across the city for people who do not use cars.

Environmental Initiatives

- Implement both the Greenbelt Environmental Sustainability Framework and the Pedestrian and Bicycle Safety Plan.
- Strengthen storm water management programs and initiatives.
- Return Greenbelt Lake to its original condition and purpose.
