by Thomas X. White

The Greenbelt City Council meeting on March 24 took a festive note early on and then settled down to take care of its regular business. All members of council, along with County Councilmember Ingrid Turner, School Board Member Peggy Higgins and members of the Greenbelt Advisory Committee on Education (ACE) were present for the annual reception and awards ceremony honoring educators from Greenbelt schools.

The ACE awards were then followed by an impromptu photo opportunity displaying “We’re All In” campaign posters promoting the choice of Greenbelt for

Opening Budget Worksession Offers Few Changes from 2014

by Thomas X. White

The Greenbelt City Council held its first worksession on the city manager’s proposed Fiscal Year 2015 Budget on Wednesday, March 26. All councilmembers were present. City Manager Michael McLaughlin and Assistant City Manager David Moran, were joined by Jeff Williams, city treasurer and Dale Worley, information technology director.

McLaughlin started discussion by highlighting the General Fund Summary of the budget document, which displays summaries of city revenues, departmental expenditures and annual fund balances for the past three fiscal years. It also showed the respective revenues, expenditures and target fund balance for FY15.

McLaughlin noted in his presentation that for the current fiscal year ending June 30, 2014, revenues are lower, expected tax abatements also trend lower and Fiscal Year 2014 expenditures are expected to come in about $350,000 higher.

Fund Balances

Labeled as undesignated and unreserved fund balances, McLaughlin considers these funds a measure of Greenbelt’s fiscal health. Generally the target for these funds is 10 percent or more compared to actual or expected city expenditures for a given fiscal year. The fund balance acts as a sort of self-insurance by the city against serious losses of revenue.

For the past three years the percentage has been: 11.5 percent in Fiscal Year 2012, 13.5 percent in Fiscal Year 2013 and an anticipated 10.3 percent for the current FY14 (11.5 percent had been the expected target). For the proposed FY15 McLaughlin projects a 10.3 percent level for the fund balance, while hoping for an 11.5 percent target for the adopted budget for FY15.

The actual total Fund Balance for past years were $3,058,778 in FY12, $3,812,999 in FY13, while only $2,886,099 is expected for FY14. The proposed FY15 budget also projects $2,886,099 for the total Fund Balance.

While council agrees with the fund balance concept, there are usually differences among councilmembers for either the levels deemed sufficient or for the potential uses of undesignated funds from time to time for certain needed projects, as, for example, the Greenbelt theater renovation project.

Revenues

As noted, city revenues have been flat for the past several years mainly due to the national economic downturn. The proposed FY15 budget projects $25,195,000 for total revenues, down $577,700 from the current year’s adopted budget or $917,100 more than expected revenues for FY14.

Most of the proposed revenue increase is due to increased income taxes and revenue from other agencies. Other sources of revenue for Greenbelt are flat or decreasing. While revenue from city apartment developments is increasing because of a nearly 90 percent occupancy rate, home owner real estate property taxes are down. McLaughlin has his fingers crossed that expected tax abatements will be much less than those experienced last year.

Licenses and permits are expected to increase slightly from the prospect of growth at the South Core near the Metro Station. Service charges are expected to increase by about $25,000, due to proposed increases in

Children, Teachers Discover Tree Loss behind Magnolia

by Bob Snyder

It began around March 18. Earth moving and tree/vegetation removal equipment began the clear cutting of eight acres of wooded land to make way for the construction of a 135-bed nursing and rehabilitation facility on the northeast side of Doctors Hospital adjacent to Magnolia Elementary School.

One can access this construction site on Mallery Drive just east of the entrance to the hospital on Good Luck Road. This facility will have a 73,500 sq. ft. footprint when completed in the spring of 2015 and will comprise state of the art rehabilitation and care equipment and furnishings.

The two-acre facility will be a one-story structure with several open air landscaped courtyards with ample parking. This type of sprawling design seems to be quite popular these days rather than multiple floors which use and disturb less earth.

A neighbor who lives in a single family home nearby stopped by the site to ask what was happening while I was also inquiring at the site about the project after school. This homeowner said she had not seen any notices or signs posted in her neighborhood, or heard in anyway what this project was about.

She said she attended Magnolia when she was in grade school. Her children went there too. They are now in middle and high school. She surmised that people didn’t have time to oppose the facility being built up the hill on the forested land, rather than on existing paved parking areas. We speculated that perhaps hospitals and care facilities are exempt from the requirement of notifying the public of proposed new building projects.

One of the project employees told us that they will be removing about six acres of woods on the eight-acre project area, but they were leaving a one-acre strip of woods as a buffer in the back of the property (north end). Unfortunately, most of the woods that served as a beautiful backdrop behind Magnolia for decades will be coming down and will be gone by mid-April weather permitting. Snow flakes began falling again.

From inside a second grade classroom while teaching an art class one morning I noticed students pointing out the window. We noticed a large, orange, closed-cab bulldozer knocking down trees and all vegetation as

Letters to the Editor

A Salute to the Women of the Greenbelt News Review

As we turn the page on another issue of the Greenbelt News Review this April 2014, following the national celebration of Women's History Month, I feel compelled to write a letter of appreciation to the women staffers of the Greenbelt News Review. I believe that these women's volunteer service to this independent newspaper uniquely parallels the Women's National History Project (www.wnhp.org) theme: Women of Character, Courage & Commitment.

An examination of the News Review masthead for this historic newspaper is evidence of the significant contributions women make to the newspaper. I believe that their service reflects the 1980 Women's History Month message to the nation by former President Jimmy Carter when he said, "Too often the women were unsung and sometimes their contributions went unnoticed. But the achievements, leadership, courage, strength and love of the women who built America was as vital as that of those men whose names we know so well."

The News Review women have significantly contributed to the history of journalism in America. Together with the men of the News Review and the Freedom of the Press Committee, the News Review prevailed over a lower court decision in the 1970 landmark U.S. Supreme Court libel case against the newspaper. That history was again documented with a woman's byline in the News Review, March 2014.

The 2014 Women's History Month Proclamation words, "As we honor the many women who have shaped our history, let us also celebrate those who make progress in our time," written by President Barack Obama, seem fitting for this recognition of the women of the Greenbelt News Review. He proclaimed, "Let us remember that when women succeed, America succeeds."

It was also great to read the Women's History Month observance and articles by men and women about Greenbelt women of significant accomplishments whose stories are not well known here in a series coordinated by David Lange.

Greenbelt News Review women and men, working together, have contributed to this paper being published without interruption since 1937 even as a lawsuit threatened to silence it. In this 21st century of diminishing print newspapers, the News Review women's (and men's) commitment to producing a credible weekly newspaper remains strong. These women writers demonstrate character, courage and commitment to consistently meet weekly deadlines. They have mentored generations of women writers.

The Greenbelt News Review women staffers deserve our collective thanks and appreciation for a job well done. In addition to their work for the newspaper these women represent diverse occupations and accomplishments.

The newspaper has survived through depression and recession, in times of myriad economic crises and economic booms in technology and into the emerging digital divide. To meet the challenges of the times, women of the News Review have generated feature articles and advertising that can be viewed weekly in print and online via the Internet (www.greenbeltnewsreview.com).

Each Thursday, since 1988, I have looked forward to receiving the Greenbelt News Review at my door. The women's bylines cap feature stories from A-Z about the administration of the city, Artful Afternoons, Beltway Plaza, blood drives, council, community events, Greenbelt Community Foundation, Co-op, New Deal Café, environment, families, friends, Old Greenbelt Theatre, Greenway Center, Greenbelt Library, neighbors, Greenbelt Museum, obituaries, parks and recreation, police, Eleanor and Franklin Roosevelt Democratic Club, Greenbelt Republicans, Greenbelt Elementary School, Greenbelt Station development, Greenbelt Middle and the Blue Ribbon School of Excellence – Eleanor Roosevelt High School, Franklin Park, veterans, voting and weather, keep me informed.

The Greenbelt News Review women ensure timely coverage of community news and events through detailed writing, reporting, editing, proofing, headlines, captions, photographs, lay-out, advertising and community-wide distribution that is only possible through professional collaborative efforts.

I hope that everyone reading this Women's History Month Appreciation to the Women of the Greenbelt News Review staff will keep the goal of Women's History Month recognition of women alive.

You can show your appreciation to the women of the News Review in myriad ways: please extend a special thank you with a letter, sign-up to volunteer and or make a donation to the Greenbelt News Review in honor of Women's History Month.

I am certain that your thank you to the women of the Greenbelt News Review in words, deeds and monetary contributions will surely be appreciated and help to offset the Greenbelt News Review publishing expenses for this fine independent newspaper we Greenbelters enjoy weekly and still for free.

ERHS Drama Students Perform Contemporary Version of Crucible

by Chiamaka Ogwuegbu

The Drama Department of Eleanor Roosevelt High School (ERHS) performed Arthur Miller's The Crucible from March 26 through 28 in the school's Gerald R. Boarman Auditorium.

The Crucible tells the tale of how the town of Salem, Massachusetts, is torn apart by accusations of witchcraft among the town's residents and the trail of lies that results as the residents attempt to clear their own names.

The play was directed by Christopher Mannino, who is in his first year as the head of the ERHS Drama department. Mannino drew inspiration to have The Crucible as a school production from an experience he had at his previous position at a middle school after the Sandy Hook shooting.

"In my school there was an overwhelming number of teachers who wanted to arm all teachers in the building. It felt like a mob mentality," said Mannino. "It was that same sort of mob mentality you had in McCarthyism, you had in the Salem witch trials, you have in other issues as well. So The Crucible is still definitely a relevant play for today."

The production deftly blended the original 1950s theme of the play with a more modern set and transitions between scenes that featured hip-hop music. These elements highlighted the contemporary nature of the issues presented within the play.

John Proctor, one of the play's main characters, finds himself accused of witchcraft and eventually is sent to the gallows after he attempts to defend his wife, who is also accused of witchcraft.

Proctor was portrayed by ERHS senior James Fahey, who especially enjoyed his time working with the cast and crew.

"They are a good cast," Fahey said. "They'll sit down with you, they'll listen to you, they'll work with you on what you have to work on. They're good on the professional side of things and the social side of things."

Noel Monardes came to the show to see his son, Montana Monardes, who played Reverend John Hale, but found himself enraptured by the play's story.

"It's interesting," Monardes commented. "I'm familiar with McCarthyism and was reading about it here. It's an interesting way of portraying that period in time."

Talk on Montpelier Mansion Artifacts

On Saturday, April 5 at 2 p.m., Paul Kreisa will provide a lecture at Montpelier Mansion on Snowden's Surprise: How Archaeology and History Reveal Previously Unknown Details about Life at Montpelier Mansion.

In 2013 Montpelier Mansion was closed to the public for repairs to the drainage system and foundation and removal of two circa 1920s terraces and other projects. Because this work would impact areas around the foundation known to contain artifacts associated with the Snowden's residency, the Prince George's County Department of Parks and Recreation and Oak Grove Restoration undertook archaeological investigations that yielded thousands of artifacts. Some of them will be on display at the talk, along with two surprises.

There is a fee. Reservations are required. Montpelier Mansion is at 9650 Muirkirk Road (Muirkirk Road at Route 197) in Laurel. For more information and to make reservations call 301-377-7817, TTY 301-699-2544 or visit www.pgparcs.com.

Fishing Opportunities At Research Refuge

As of April 1, Cash Lake, located at the Patuxent Research Refuge South Tract, is open for fishing. In previous years, the fishing area, off Maryland Route 197, did not open until mid-June. In addition, fishing hours have been extended to sunset to coincide with new extended hours for the South Tract grounds. Fishing season runs from April 1 through October 12 from sunrise to sunset, except on federal holidays.

The Blue Heron Pond at the North Tract, 3.6 miles from Cash Lake, is now also open for fishing. Vehicle access is available for mobility-impaired anglers. It is open from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. daily, with the exception of federal holidays. Visitors must check-in at the Visitor Contact Station.

All anglers must possess a current Maryland non-tidal fishing license and a free seasonal Refuge Fishing/Parking Pass issued by the Refuge. Anglers must bring their license to either the National Wildlife Visitor Center (between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. daily) or the Patuxent North Tract Visitor Contact Station (between 8 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. daily).

ERHS Best of Coffee House Musical Showcase on Friday

by Patrick Gleason

Friday, April 4 at 7 p.m. is the date for the Eleanor Roosevelt High School (ERHS) twice-yearly Best of Coffee House musical showcase by students in the school's Piano, Guitar and Recording Technology program.

The program, which started 29 years ago as a small gathering in the school's media center has evolved into a concert-like event in the auditorium with 20 performances – and a crowd that often overflows into the upper seating area.

Produced by Piano/Guitar and Rec Tech teacher Kevin Hawk, the performances – including live sound and recording, lighting, stage managing and hosting – are entirely student-run. Musical acts ranging from guitar and piano solos to full band sets and covers of contemporary hits are selected through auditions. Recordings of the night's performances by Raider Studios are also available for purchase.

There is a fee for admission. Patrick Gleason is an education student at the University of Maryland and an English class intern at Eleanor Roosevelt High School.

the proposed relocation of the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI).

That demonstration was followed by City Manager Michael McLaughlin's presentation of the Proposed Fiscal Year 2015 city budget. Around 9:15 p.m., council tackled the business part of the meeting.

An overview article of the manager's budget presentation appeared in last week's News Review. A more extensive report on the 2014 ACE Educator Awards will be covered in a later article.

Mayor Emmett Jordan orchestrated the promotion for the FBI relocation issue by engineering a smooth segue from the ACE Awards photo-op into another group photo with council and staff holding "We're All In" placards over their heads and chanting "WE'RE ALL IN."

These placards were part of an earlier rally by federal, county and state officials at the University of Maryland to generate support for the U.S. General Services Administration (GSA) to select the Greenbelt Metro site for a proposed new consolidated headquarters for the FBI.

TIF District Creation

The first item of business was the introduction of a resolution for first reading that would create and define a contiguous area in Greenbelt West as a tax increment financing (TIF) development district to specify the properties from which TIF revenue can be derived to provide public funds for construction of a proposed Greenbelt Station Parkway. This would serve the new residential community at the Metro Station South Core, connecting it to the proposed development in the North Core and ultimately to a new eastbound ramp to I-495.

The TIF item had been the subject of a council worksession on March 3 and is one condition of the 2006 annexation agreement entered into between the city and the then-owners of the Greenbelt Station development. (See News Review article in the March 13 issue.)

Petitioning council to create the TIF district are the current owners of the real property described in the resolution (NVR MS Cavalier Greenbelt LLC, NVR, Inc. doing business as NVHomes and NVR, Inc. doing business as Ryan Homes). Collectively the owners and Atapco Properties, Inc. are the petitioners requesting council to create the TIF district.

The resolution expressly provides that the city does not by adoption of the resolution obligate itself to authorize or issue any tax increment financing bonds. It is only the first step if future public funding is to be made available.

Councilmember Judith Davis introduced the resolution for first reading. A public hearing on the resolution and approval of the TIF district is scheduled for the next regular council meeting on April 7.

Other Business

Two additional items of business were on the agenda. One was a staff-recommended award of purchase for lawn mowing and landscape services for various areas of the city. Jim Sterling, assistant director of Public Works, provided the report and recommendation to council.

About 12 firms have been invited to submit proposals and the city has received six responses, ranging from $44,820 to $438,716. Those respondents also provided alternate bids for the same types of services for parts of Mandan Road and Hanover Parkway. The e-bids ranged from $8,433 to $180,507.

Public Works reviewed the three lowest proposals for both the specified services and the alternative services from Brickman ($53,262), Blue Lake Landscaping ($73,320) and TruGreen Landscaping ($77,184). Staff determined that the three companies would be capable and dependable contractors for the services required.

Brickman and TruGreen have performed such services for the city in the past and Brickman currently provides similar services for other property owners in the same general areas covered by the city's requests.

Based on their review, staff recommended that council award the contract for both specified and alternative services to the Brickman firm for a total cost of $53,162.

Councilmember Rodney Roberts said that he had objections to the staff recommendation and suggested the city initiate a program where temporary use of Greenbelt youth might be utilized for the proposed services under supervision of the Public Works staff.

Councilmember Edward Putens joined with his concern about Brickman's and other contractors' work on Greenbelt East homeowner developments. He was particularly concerned about the mulching practices of the outside firms. No motion was made to approve the staff recommendation. Instead, council opted to table the topic until the next meeting.

Outdoor Movies

The other item was a Recreation Department proposal to provide outdoor film presentations at Roosevelt Center during the time the Old Greenbelt Theatre would be closed to the public for its expected renovation. Greg Varda, acting assistant recreation director, presented the proposal to council.

Varda indicated that the proposed location for the film presentations would be in the sloping grassy area behind the Mother and Child statue. The film selection would be family-oriented and shown just after dusk, with viewers supplying their own lawn chairs or blankets.

Depending on the actual time period that the theater would be closed for renovations, the movies would be shown every other weekend from May through October, with approximately 12 showings.

The department estimates the cost to be about $2,400 for the films, plus staff cost for set-up and breakdown. Council was favorable and approved moving ahead with the proposal.

There was a suggestion that the actual venue be flexible, depending on potential conflicts with other Roosevelt Center/city events.

BUDGET continued from page 1

Aquatic and Fitness Center fees.

But fines and forfeitures are down slightly, the likely cause being decreasing fines for the city's red light and school zone cameras, as motorists begin to change their behavior. Miscellaneous Revenue is flat.

Expenditures

Demonstrating that the city is trying to hold the line on expenditures is reflected in only a $343,000 difference between the FY14 budget amount of $24,851,200 and the proposed $25,195,000 for FY15. Similarly, total expenditures for the proposed fiscal year are $9,800 less than the expected actual FY14 expenditures.

Most proposed FY15 expenditures accounts are either flat or slightly less than projected expenditures for FY14. Only one expenditure account, Public Works, will be increased for FY15. Proposed expenditures for Public Works in FY15 is $146,700 more than in the $2,964,800 adopted budget for FY2014.

General Government is about $14,000 over the projected FY14 amount; Planning & Community Development is $41,700 over their projected FY14 amount; but Public Safety, the largest expenditure account, is about $600,000 less than the expected $10,691,400 for FY14. Other items include Greenbelt CARES, with $924,000 proposed for FY15, about $24,000 more than for FY14; Recreation and Parks, the second largest expenditure account, at about $7,000 less than expected FY14 actual expenditures; Miscellaneous expenditures at about $5,000 less than the FY14 expected expenditures. Non-departmental expenditures are proposed at $1,068,500 for FY15, about $30,000 less than what had been budgeted for FY14.

Overall, city expenditures for FY14 were about $353,600 more than had been budgeted. McLaughlin advised council nearly $200,000 had been due to a delay in vehicles purchases for Police Department in FY14 as compared to FY13. Other unbudgeted expenditures were $25,000 for the Economic Development Study and $135,000 for FY14 snow removal and overtime.

General Government

There are nine separate accounts within the General Government portion of the budget. Total expenditures proposed for those functions for FY15 are $2,721,400 or $56,700 more than had been budgeted for FY14. The proposed city council budget is slightly higher than for last year at $133,700. The Administration budget account is also slightly higher than for last year at $674,100, including funds for a consultant to advise on a strategy for improving economic development within the city.

Since no elections are scheduled for FY15, the Elections account is about $10,000 less than was expended in FY14 ($28,600).

The largest account within General Government is Finance & Administrative Services. This account is proposed to expend $855,000 in FY15, or about $20,000 more than in FY14. About 90 percent of this account is for salaries and employee benefits.

The proposed budget for Information Technology, at $490,200 in FY15, is also just slightly higher than had been budgeted in FY14. Funds for Legal Counsel are close to what had been budgeted for FY14 and will be at $92,000 for FY15.

On this issue, McLaughlin announced that the city's long time counsel, Robert Manzi, will retire this year but that his associate, John Shay, will assume the position. Manzi's services will also continue to be available on request.

The Municipal Building Account is proposed for nearly the same amount as for FY14, at $69,700. A question was raised about an increased expenditure during FY14, which McLaughlin noted had been caused when a generator was replaced this year.

The Public Information and Community Promotion account for FY15 is also slightly more than for FY14, a proposed $355,500. One objective of this account is to transition the city's meeting agendas to electronic formats, a subject of particular interest to the mayor and council since the project could lead to their use of electronic information and associated hardware at council meetings.

The last account within General Government is the Public Officers Associations and accounts for councilmembers' participation in regional and national municipal associations. The proposed budget for this account is $51,100, just slightly above the FY14 amount.

Organizational Issues

As possibly a harbinger of upcoming budget worksessions, council interest in the Organizational Assessment Study (OAS) of the city government may color or influence its review of the FY15 proposed budget, especially concerning departmental budgets.

In the initial review of the General Government budget at this first budget worksession, the impact of the Organizational Assessment recommendations was felt, perhaps overshadowing the usual review council undertakes. Since the General Government Budget section covers Administration, Finance and Information Technology it was not surprising that issues related to the OAS came to the fore.

The proposed General Government Budget contemplates the transfer of the Information Technology function from the Finance Department to Administration. This proposed change generated much discussion at the meeting. Council was interested in the impact from this proposal and, in general, the fulfillment of the OAS recommendations.

As Williams expressed concern regarding the IT transition from Finance to Administration. He felt the city payroll requires IT support and that from a payday-to-payday standpoint the department is called upon to address errors and mistakes associated with city employee time sheets. McLaughlin said he is just as interested in bringing on board a management analyst.

IT Director Dale Worley, responding to council questions regarding IT needs in the department, indicated that the results have been mixed. Some departments have developed, or have within their staffs, individuals able to "champion" computer and software applications (Recreation and Police Departments being examples), while other departments (Public Works and Planning & Community Development) are not as proficient. He felt IT capability should reside in the departments since they must use it every day.

Councilmember Edward Putens did most of the probing related to potential impacts of OAS recommendations. Other councilmembers focused on training needs and the city's need to focus recruitment efforts for new employees on IT literacy. Councilmember Judith Davis opined that younger employees are likely to be more computer literate. She suggested that city job descriptions be updated to include IT capabilities.

Arts Advisory Board Meets To Review Status of Groups

by Sam Stern

The Greenbelt Arts Advisory Board met on March 4 to review three community-based organizations' applications to become Recognition Groups within the city.

"Groups seek this status [of Recognition Groups] to get free meeting space at the Greenbelt Community Center, which gives them a home base," explained Nicole DeWald, the staff liaison to the board.

Representatives of the Greenbelt Writers Group, Greenbelt Pottery Group and Transitions Theater appeared before the board at separate times throughout the meeting. Each speaker answered questions about the current state of their organization, as well as their plans for the future.

Each group, while focusing on a different discipline of the arts, seeks to involve Greenbelt residents in an engaging learning process. Both the Greenbelt Writers and Pottery Groups hold instructional seminars while Transitions Theater is focusing on a play about mental illness.

The Greenbelt Pottery Group and Transitions Theater received a decidedly more positive reception than the Greenbelt Writers group during the board's deliberations. Members of the board submitted ratings sheets to DeWald to be compiled and analyzed at a later date.

Board member Mark Gransfors-Hunt mentioned the potential issue of fitting these groups into city space. "Realistically can we actually find space for these groups?" asked Gransfors. No decision about the applications will be made until a later date.

Sam Stern is a University of Maryland journalism student currently writing for the News Review.

The Department is offering a reward of up to $1,000 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of a suspect in any of the unsolved crimes reported in the blotter.

Alight Dance Theater Offers Sneak Peek Season Preview

Alight Dance Theater is offering a look behind the curtain at some of its newest works on Friday, April 11 and Saturday, April 12 with a "Sneak Peek" Season Preview and Dance Party. The evenings will feature restaged versions of two projects, "Dependent" and excerpts from "Stargazing," along with showings of works-in-progress, "Frontline" and "Dance in the Garden." The performances will take place at 8 p.m. at the Greenbelt Arts Center.

Members of the community are invited to participate in the creative process by providing feedback and asking questions about the projects in development. "Frontline," choreographed by Alight's artistic director and Greenbelt resident Angella Foster, tells the story of the War of 1812 from the perspective of women who lived through it.

"Frontline" will premiere at Bowie Arts Center in October. "Dance in the Garden" is a three-part, site-specific work that will take place at demonstration gardens located in Greenbelt. The piece, created in partnership with the Chesapeake Education, Arts and Research Society, will be performed on April 26 outside the Springhill Lake Recreation Center; June 1 outside the Greenbelt Community Center; and October 18 in Schrom Hills Park.

The performance of other pieces from Alight's repertoire will give audiences an up-close-and-personal look at these works. "Dependent," which premiered in March, is choreographer Wayles Haynes' investigation of public perceptions and personal experiences of military families in this contemporary era of war. Foster's "Stargazing" tells the story of a starry night from the spectacular death of a star to the splendor visible from our own backyards.

Both evenings will include a performance by Bedlam, a musical group based in Bowie. The ensemble of seven musicians arranges and performs contemporary versions of period music from early America. For this program, they will present selections that will eventually be used in the Alight production of "Frontline." Saturday's performance will also include a dance party with a live DJ, hors d'oeuvres, cocktails and silent auction.

Founded in Greenbelt in 2010, Alight Dance Theater is a community-based, nonprofit professional company that uses the power of dance to tell stories that move and inspire. Since its inception, Alight has performed at the John F. Kennedy Center Millennium Stage through a local dance commissioning project, Arena Stage, Dance Place, Atlas Theater's Intersections Arts Festival, the Source Festival and Velocity DC, along with other venues.

Tickets may be purchased by visiting www.greenbeltartscenter.org or calling 301-441-8770. For more information about Alight Dance Theater, visit www.alightdancetheater.org. (See ad on page 7.)

Six acres of woods start to become neatly piled logs as Doctors Hospital builds a new rehabilitation center adjacent to the Magnolia Elementary School playground.

it slowly chewed its way along the hospital side of the chain link fence which separates the hospital property from the school property. The school did not receive any notification as to the work being done before the clearing started. The next day, I noticed that several of the 3rd grade students drew sad faces on their people (was it my sad face influencing their art?) in their watercolor landscape paintings of early spring.

The next day at recess the students outside were pointing out to each other and the several teachers on duty, including myself, the work and the falling trees along with the cracking sounds and thuds as they fell. The children were wondering what was happening to the woods. Several kids were pointing, then stopping to stare a few minutes and then soon were running around and chasing each other as usual. Some were using the playground equipment, taking it in stride. Several seemed a bit more agitated than usual with all the noise associated with this work. They were unaccustomed to hearing these new noises outside their school during recess and outdoor physical education.

The wooded area behind the hospital had been left relatively undisturbed and many of the trees appear to be 40 years or older. A 4th grader who lives in the townhouses of Greenbelt east ran up to me during recess when I stepped outside to take some photos the following day and said, "Mr. Snyder, why are they cutting down all those trees? They shouldn't do that. That's not right, and they are knocking down all those green pine trees too!" I put my arm around her shoulder and we stared at the activity for a moment. I said to her, "You are so right, it's a shame to lose all those beautiful trees.

Maybe they are building a road or something in back of the hospital." She didn't seem convinced. Children sense when things are not quite right.

After work stoppage for a few days due to very rainy weather, the work continued at week's end (March 27); however, this time an even larger yellow piece of equipment with a huge claw on its arm appeared and began grasping and then sawing down trees (some as large as 2 feet in diameter) in a matter of seconds. These were being knocked down, de-limbed, dragged and stacked as the other two pieces of equipment continued scraping the land and digging up roots and such. There were no longer any birds or squirrels darting about as there had been in these woods. There was an eerie stillness ahead of the claw-machine. It soon became obvious this was no road. They were going to take down all the trees!

Several of us teachers having cafeteria duty during the last lunch shift gathered together at one end of the cafeteria and were talking about the cutting and clearing going on outside. Someone reminded us that the mayor had just visited us a week earlier. What would he have thought seeing all these trees coming down behind the school had he been here this week instead? "Maybe the students and teachers can organize a protest," a teacher said. "It's probably too late," another replied. We all agreed. "Have a nice weekend!" a teacher said. "You too," we said.

Some of us will feel apprehensive upon returning after spring break and seeing the inevitable behind our school. After decades, progress had finally arrived to engulf the woods near Magnolia.

Mayor Jordan of Greenbelt Visits Magnolia Elementary School

by Demetrice Bettis and Leonor Fernandez

On March 14, fourth grade students of Magnolia Elementary School had an informative conversation with Mayor Emmett Jordan. The activity was initiated to provide students first-hand information about mayoral responsibilities that students would use in writing their essay "If I were Mayor I would . . ." The students welcomed the mayor with great smiles and words of hospitality.

Jordan began his speech by telling students how someone is elected to the position. He proceeded by asking the students what they thought were some of the mayor's duties and responsibilities. Some of the responses were: the mayor attends a lot of meetings, takes care of the environment, provides safety and security and builds parks and recreational centers.

The mayor emphasized to students that all their responses were absolutely right. Jordan told the students that one of the most important functions of being a mayor is to bring people together and find out what they need. The next step would be to review city projects to determine if the community's needs are being met. According to the mayor, public safety gets the biggest allocation of the city budget.

Selena Zheng asked, "Is it hard to be a mayor?" Jordan responded, "Well, it is pretty hard to get people to trust you, but once you make them feel that you have the commitment to serve and help them achieve what they need, they give you their 100 percent trust."

Mayor Jordan was asked if he dreamed of becoming a mayor when he was a young child. He responded that even at a young age he already had genuine interest in public service and had manifested leadership inclinations. Jordan concluded his discussion by encouraging students to have a well-rounded education, take one step at a time and find out what they aspire to be in the future.
