

Secret Circus by Chris Cherry Delights Crowd

by Rebecca Winner

The 2015 Greenbelt Youth Musical takes on a theme that young people have always struggled with: when you're different, how do you find your place in the world? Secret Circus, written and directed by Christopher Cherry, explores the quest to discover and be one's true self in a dazzling spectacle of romance, wonder and adventure.

The story begins in the present with Anya (Allison Lehman) consoling her bullied granddaughter (Elta Goldstein) by recounting her own struggles as a disabled person in a long-ago Europe threatened by the Paper Doll Presidium, a ruthless organization determined to eradicate differences they see as defective.

Fleeing the Paper Doll Police, Anya is taken in by the Circus Magnifique, where she encounters a tremendously diverse community. The circus is full of people she longs to be like, such as tightrope walker Marco (Jack Brittan-Powell), and those she dreads to be compared to, the prodigies of the circus sideshow.

Anya wishes desperately that she could dance or fly like the acrobats. But Titania the Elephant Princess (Isobel Springer) and Rufus the Seal Boy (Aidan Larkin) constantly remind Anya of what she dislikes about herself and she spurns their friendship.

In her life at the circus, Anya struggles with physical limitations caused by her crooked spine and with preconceptions caused by her prejudices. She is helped by the friendship and advice of the circus' fortune-teller, crafty but kind-hearted Madame Zara (Kristen Beauchamp), and by Marco's cheerful, sensible sister Musette (Megan Winner). When the circus is threatened by Colonel Maximoff of the Paper Doll Police (Scott Candey), Anya finds that the crookedness she despises might actually be her greatest asset.

Story's Honesty

Some of the power of the story comes from its honesty; See CIRCUS, page 6

Hearing Loss Is a Growing Concern

by Sharadha Kalyanam

When Greenbelt resident Catherine Callaghan walked into the Community Center on Friday, February 27, she was seeking answers to questions on her mind after years of living with people with hearing loss.

"My grandfather was hard of hearing, my mother is hard of hearing, my brother is hard of hearing and that doesn't mean that they were deaf. When my mother, near the end of her life lost her eyesight, her hearing came back. I will never know what that was about," Callaghan said.

She had just attended a talk on hearing aids and how to manage hearing loss organized by the Hearing Professionals – Doctors of Audiology, a personalized hearing care and balance center. The talk, which had been delivered by Dr. Julia Vadakkumpadan, audiologist, taught Callaghan a bunch of new things. "I was very interested just because I look at the relationships that I have had with people that were deaf," she said. "I was able to participate because it is my family experience. My mother did; she was brilliant when she learned how to lip read."

Vadakkumpadan, who works at the Hearing Professionals office in Laurel, said the issue of hearing loss is now gaining significance because hearing loss is being connected with other disease processes like diabetes, high blood pressure and memory problems.

Memory Loss

Vadakkumpadan said that the connection of hearing loss to memory loss was revealed from recent research studies and that dementia is now a huge public health concern. "They are projecting that by the year 2050, about one of every 85 people will have some sort of dementia or memory loss," she said. "So if we can at least prevent the onset of that in any way then that's great and paying attention to overall health, including hearing health, ties in with that." She said that, according to studies, one third of the people who had hearing loss had memory problems. People with hearing loss get more easily frustrated in

Obituary

Pioneer GVFD&RS Chief W. "Vince" Dutton Dies

Walter Vincent Dutton, past chief and president of the Greenbelt Volunteer Fire Department & Rescue Squad Inc. (GVFD&RS), died February 11, 2015. He was 94 years old and a resident of Charlotte Hall Veteran's Home in Charlotte Hall, Md.

On January 19, 1955, the Greenbelt Rescue Squad and the Greenbelt Volunteer Fire Department merged. Among a group of very special men who inspired citizens to support their community was a young "Vince" Dutton who took the pledge to help forge the fire service in Greenbelt and was sworn in as a charter member of the department. His leadership and caring for his community helped strengthen the department's mission.

His commitment to the Greenbelt community started when he and Mrs. Dutton, Cleo, his bride for 74 years, moved to Greenbelt.

Mr. Dutton became a charter member of the department in 1955. He served as chief from 1957 to 1960 and again from 1964 to 1965. He served as president from 1961 to 1962. In 1963, Mr. Dutton was named GVFD&RS Firefighter of the Year. He held other offices and trustee positions in the department throughout his tenure as an active member. He was also a delegate to state and county associations, where he was named president of the Prince George's County Volunteer Fire & Rescue Association from 1966 to 1967. He also served on the board of directors for the county.

In March 1970 Mr. Dutton was bestowed life membership in the department.

While president in 1961, Mr. Dutton oversaw the relocation of the department to its current firehouse location on Crescent Road. On July 4, 1961, there was a great community celebration with a parade, carnival and fireworks announcing its new home.

Mr. Dutton was a career employee of the U.S. Postal Service. He retired with over 37 years service from the Riverdale Distribution Center as a safety officer.

Upon retirement, he and his wife moved to Palmetto, Fla. When Cleo died more than a year ago Mr. Dutton returned to Maryland. Mr. Dutton is survived by three children, Toni Marie Hunt, Richard J. Dutton (Sandi) and Michael W. Dutton (Donna), and by many grandchildren.

Another legacy of Mr. Dutton is the service of his children to the volunteer fire department. Son Richard also has served as chief. Grandson John Vincent Dutton continues to actively serve and is now a life member of the department.

A celebration of his life will be held at the Greenbelt Fire Station on Sunday, March 8, beginning at 11 a.m. Funeral services will be held at Cheltenham Veteran's Cemetery on Monday, March 9 at 11 a.m. and will include American Legion services.

Letters to the Editor

Co-op Not Prepared For Passover

The Greenbelt Co-op prides itself on being a community-based store, focused on being responsive to its member base. It is, therefore, disconcerting that the Co-op is blatantly disregarding the needs of its Jewish neighbors.

In December, I was floored by the complete absence of Chanukah foodstuffs and related items. I brought this to the attention of General Manager Bob Davis who said he would "do better."

Now it's time to prepare for Passover and, once again, the place to go that has a wide array of choices is not our Co-op but the Beltway Plaza Giant.

Serving the needs and wants of those who celebrate Christmas and Easter is to be commended. Ignoring the needs and wants of others is not.

To the Editor

Page 2 of last week's issue of the News Review included a photo of a carriage drawn by two horses submerged in the Baltimore Harbor. I was the photographer and the event was the Baltimore Kinetic Sculpture Race. The first Saturday of each May, artist-engineers race human-powered sculptures 13 miles in Baltimore, through mud and sand obstacles, and into the harbor at Canton. The photo shows the 2009 entry, Happily Never After. Its spectacular foam horses are now in the youth musical Secret Circus, showing this weekend at the Community Center.

You can read more about the Kinetic Sculpture Race online at KineticBaltimore.com and more about Secret Circus at GreenbeltMD.gov.

Not a Violation

As always, thank you to the News Review for its coverage of Greenbelt and particularly City Council. However, I would like to make a small clarification to the story last week about the award of the operations contract for the theater. Although I did ask that language be added to the contract in relation to first - or second-run films, it was not because I was concerned that first and second run films would not be shown. It was to ensure that when these films are interrupted for the purpose of theme showings and festivals such as the Utopia Film Festival, that this is not considered a violation of the contract. I have every confidence that the Friends of the Greenbelt Theater will operate the theater in a manner that will make Greenbelt proud.

Environmental Bills Before Legislation

Thank you for the wonderful article in the February 26 News Review, summarizing the Beyond Coal event at the Roosevelt Democratic Club. The event included an excellent video and several excellent speakers.

I would like to add a few additional points that were discussed that day.

In addition to the health problems and water pollution from the mining of coal, the burning of coal also emits carbon dioxide, worsening the impact of climate change. Organizations such as the Sierra Club advocate against "extractive technologies" that result in the burning of fossil fuels, including coal, fracked gas and tar sands oil.

There are currently four major bills in the Maryland General Assembly addressing the use of energy:

HB1042 [Nitrogen Oxide Emissions – Pollution and Combustion Control Technologies] – to reinstate the MDE regulations limiting smog from coal-fired power plants. Nitrous oxide emitted from the plants causes smog, which is a major health hazard causing problems, such as asthma.

SB409/HB449 [Protect our Health and Communities Act] – Moratorium on fracking for eight years, while longitudinal studies of the effects of fracking are conducted.

HB0377/SB0373 [Renewable Energy Portfolio Standard – Revisions (Maryland Clean Energy Advancement Act of 2015)] – to increase the amount of renewable energy required by each utility, up to 25 percent by 2020 and 40 percent by 2025.

SB0481/HB1087 [Electricity – Community Solar Energy Generating System Program] – allowing the development of small community solar projects where subscribers would have their share of electricity generated show up as a credit on their

Beaverdam Creek Clean-Up March 15

On Sunday, March 15, Mishkan Torah Synagogue is sponsoring what is billed as a Reverse Tashlich from 9 a.m. to noon.

Usually performed on the Jewish New Year, Tashlich refers to the ancient custom of throwing crumbs into a body of water to rid oneself, symbolically, of bad habits. In a modern twist, Mishkan Torah is sponsoring a Reverse Tashlich, to reverse the effects of bad habits by cleaning up Beaverdam Creek, a local stream.

All are welcome to join in the clean-up, which is being co-sponsored by the Beaverdam Creek Watershed Watch Group (beaverdamcreek.org). The event coincides with the Greater Washington Jewish Community's Good Deeds Day 2015 (shalomdc.org).

The clean-up will take place behind Greenbriar Condominiums, 7600 Hanover Parkway. Drive as far as possible through Greenbriar Condominiums parking lot to the end of the units and closest to Route 295. Carpooling is encouraged as parking spaces are limited. Interested persons may meet at Mishkan Torah, 10 Ridge Road, at 8:45 a.m. to carpool.

 Many Greenbelt residents have contacted their state representatives (Paul Pinsky, Tawanna Gaines, Anne Healey and Alonzo Washington) about these bills and the Greenbelt City Council will meet to discuss their opinion on these bills at their next council session.

Attendees also mentioned a number of "positive solutions" as alternative sources of electricity rather than continuing to burn coal. These include solar, wind, geothermal and hydroelectric. Audience members brainstormed current options available to Greenbelt residents. One option is putting solar panels on your home through a lease agreement or purchase. Another option is purchasing 100 percent wind power through an electricity supplier. For example Greenbriar (where the meeting was held) is 100 percent wind powered. Greenbelt municipal buildings are also 100 percent wind powered (as are the Greenbelt Community Church and the New Deal Café). Sara Henry mentioned that residents can also sign up for wind energy through the non-profit Groundswell. Twice a year Groundswell negotiates a lower rate for wind energy through a group purchase. More information will be available later this month.

Solutions are available to all of us now. There is nothing to stop us from a cleaner, healthier future.

it does not minimize the pain experienced by those who don't neatly conform to societal categories. In one deeply moving scene, crippled Anya is able to experience the feeling of walking without her cane with the help of a safety rope used by the acrobats. Lehman perfectly captures Anya's delight and wonder in the experience and her later terror and disappointment as the magical moment ends.

In another such scene, Rufus the Seal Boy wonders about the future he could have had in If I Had Hands. Larkin's beautiful delivery of the song brings out Rufus' longing, sorrow and resignation. The audience feels the sadness and frustration of these characters who must inhabit a different and more difficult place in the world. It makes their eventual happy ending all the more satisfying.

Despite its serious message, the show is fast-moving and funny. Ezra the Lion Who Has Never Learned To Roar (Charles Fahey) and Malarkey the Circus Dog (Sam Goldstein) provide several of the show's laugh-out-loud moments, ably aided by Vittoria the Lion Tamer (Maeva Ballantine), who never realizes what is going on in her charge's mind. Marco's ongoing, endless flirtations with every available village girl (all played by Elizabeth Voigt) are also played for laughs.

Talented Performers

The cast is full of talented young performers, bringing these multi-dimensional characters to vibrant life. The show's inventive and ambitious staging includes jugglers, tumblers, a stiltwalker, rope spinners and some cleverly deployed puppets, together creating a real circus atmosphere.

The cast also does a great job delivering some supremely hummable tunes. Beauchamp's Madame Zara delighted the audience with her gleefully cynical take on fortune-telling in All You Have to Know. Springer brings swagger to the Elephant Princess' I Don't Believe in Travelling Light.

Secret Circus is a treat for the eyes, with stunning costumes, artwork, puppets and props, the handiwork of local artists who volunteered their time under the direction of Nicole DeWald. Choreography was arranged by Angella Foster, and accompaniment and incidental music is provided by musical director Stefan Brodd. Ian Brown-Gorrell served as assistant director.

Secret Circus will be performed again at the Community Center on Saturday, March 7 at 2 and 7 p.m. Tickets may be purchased in person or by phone (301-397-2208) from the Community Center main office during business hours or, if available, thirty minutes before show time. Greenbelters who have attended previous shows may be surprised by the layout of the seating. Risers ensure good views for all, but it does mean that seating is more limited than in previous years. The February 28 show sold out, so early ticket purchases are encouraged.

certain situations like in offices and it is a common thing, Vadakkumpadan also said. "People who can't hear well become suspicious because they don't hear the conversations about them," she said.

Vadakkumpadan also explained that people with hearing loss aren't getting all the sound inputs their brain actually wants. "With hearing loss you have to put forth more energy to listen and hear than someone who has normal hearing. The brain does not have reserve left to give to other tasks," she said.

Patients should be persistent with using a hearing aid, Vadakkumpadan said. "It takes the brain four months to hear sounds that come through a hearing aid. It takes time for the brain to get accustomed."

Hearing Aids

She added that while buying hearing aids online is fine, patients should be careful about the brands they select and also ensure they find all the information associated with the hearing aid. Patients should ask what is included in the purchase price.

"Make sure you get the information in writing," she said.

Vadakkumpadan noted that hearing aids are available for a wide range of prices between $4,500 and $7,500 and that they typically last for five years, though some patients get much longer use from them than that.

When another member of the audience asked about courses on lip-reading, Vadakkumpadan said they were very useful too.

John Henry Jones, a resident of Greenbelt, was at the talk with his wife Elaine Jones who has hearing loss and uses a hearing aid. "Twenty-nine years ago, I worked with persons with hearing problems. So every time I hear of something like (the talk) that's close, and we just live right here in Greenbelt, I try to come over and see what's happening to keep my mind open," he said.

ASK Dr. HAT

QUESTION: My teeth seem to be getting longer. Am I in danger of them coming out?

ANSWER: As we age, gums and the supporting bone around each tooth recedes. This makes the tooth seem to look "longer." The expression "long in the tooth" indicates age and wisdom. The best treatment is to use fluoride toothpaste to protect the roots. Proper brushing technique and flossing are essential to good oral health.

These are just a few of the great buys you will find at Co-op this week!

Police Assessors Seek Public Comment

The Commission on Accreditation for Law Enforcement Agencies, Inc. (CALEA) will begin re-evaluating the Greenbelt Police Department's accreditation on Sunday, March 15. Assessors will spend several days examining the department's policies, procedures, management, operations and support services.

Part of this assessment, which is conducted every three years, includes opportunities for departmental employees and members of the public to comment. Three options to comment are available and all comments must address only the department's ability to comply with CALEA standards. A copy of the standards is available from the accreditation manager of the police department located at 550 Crescent Road.

Members of the public can call 240-542-2105 on Tuesday, March 17 from 1 to 3 p.m. They and agency employees can comment at a public information session to be held on Tuesday, March 17 at 6 p.m. in the Municipal Building Council Chambers, 25 Crescent Road. Oral comments are limited to five minutes. Written comments may be mailed to the CALEA, 13575 Heathcote Boulevard, Suite 320, Gainesville, VA 20155, Attn: Mr. John Gregory, program manager. He may also be reached by calling 703-352-4225.

The Greenbelt Police Department was originally accredited in 2006 and re-accredited in 2009 and 2012. Maintaining this status is an ongoing process and requires constant monitoring and updating of policies and procedures to assure the department meets commission standards. Re-accreditation is a formal recognition of the agency's continued professional excellence.

The CALEA assessment team is composed of law enforcement practitioners from similar but out-of-state agencies. The team reviews written materials, interviews individuals and visits various areas throughout the city where compliance can be observed.

After CALEA assessors complete their review, they report to the full commission, which then determines if the agency is to be granted re-accredited status.

Tax Return Fraud

The Greenbelt Police Department is investigating a series of recent tax return frauds in which personal information of residents was obtained by unknown means and fraudulent returns were filed in an attempt to obtain money.

Persons affected are usually not aware of the crime until they attempt to file a return, only to find out that it has already been filed. All possible steps should be taken to protect personal information.

If affected by this crime, contact Greenbelt police at 301-474-7200. Victims may also contact the IRS Identity Protection Specialized Unit at 1-800-908-4490.

ERHS Basketball Teams Are County Champions

by Patrick Gleason

While the ultimate goal lies ahead as the state playoffs begin this week, the Eleanor Roosevelt High School girls and boys basketball teams completed exciting tune-ups as they swept the Prince George's County championship games on February 25, both defeating Largo High School.

The girls were challenged by an inspired Largo squad and came from behind to win 57-53 – their first county game of the year won by fewer than 20 points. Although the Lady Raiders have overwhelmed the majority of their opponents en route to a 20-3 record – their three losses were to highly touted out-of-state opponents – their 4A title defense has faced adversity as their emotional captain and leading rebounder Tolu Omokore suffered a torn ACL in January.

Roosevelt has turned to senior Alannah Baiyina and 6' 2" sophomore Jaala Henry for post purposes and senior Daijah Davis is an always calming backcourt presence. The scoring load rests upon super-athletic junior Kaila Charles and sharpshooting sophomore Octavia Wilson.

Freshman revelation Aisha McCalla has also stepped up as needed, dropping 27 points against private power Good Counsel in December. With victories against Suitland and Flowers, the Lady Raiders will set themselves up for another regional championship game on Saturday, March 7.

Boys Game

The boys downed Largo 58-51 with a familiar formula – defense. They held the D.C. area's leading scorer, Abdulai Bundu, to half his usual total for their second county title in three years. While Roosevelt enters the playoffs with a number one seed, their season began in flux after a season opening loss to DeMatha was followed by senior leader Larry McCan's move to California.

However, coach Brendan O'Connell's focus on team defense and discipline quickly unified a team that has dropped only one league game all winter. Roosevelt relies on the scoring of seniors Oladoyin Fadojutimi and Ishmail Jabbie, although the team bench is more likely to celebrate a strong defensive stand than a made bucket. Delascio Dancy and Naji Marshall have also assumed larger backcourt roles since McCan's departure. With two wins the Raiders will place themselves back in the regional championship (also Saturday, March 7) as they look to return to the state tournament and add to a trophy case that includes the 2002 and 2013 state titles.

Both boys and girls playoff brackets can be found online at mpssaa.org.

Patrick Gleason teaches English at Eleanor Roosevelt High School.

Insurers Are Fined For Student Plans

Four health insurance companies paid a combined $280,000 in fines to the Maryland Insurance Administration (MIA) for selling unapproved health insurance plans to college students in Maryland.

Student health benefit plans are only available to be purchased through a college or university. Beginning January 1, 2014, all student health plans offered in Maryland were required to meet the same coverage and cost-sharing standards as all other individual health plans in Maryland. When the 2014-15 school year began and only one company had updated its filings, the MIA launched an investigation into all student health plans.

Over the past five weeks, consent orders were issued against Aetna Life Insurance Co., CareFirst of Maryland Inc., National Union Fire Insurance Co. of Pittsburgh and UnitedHealthcare Insurance Co. The final order was signed this week. Fines ranged from $20,000 to $140,000 depending on the number of colleges to which a company was selling plans.

Students who believe they were improperly denied coverage for a procedure or visit, or who believe they were overcharged, should contact the MIA at 1-800-492-6116.
