

Who Maintains Greenbelt Station Access Considered by Council

by James Giese

It's a complicated but minor problem needing to be resolved. The first 120 feet of Greenbelt Station Parkway, plus a bridge over Branchville Road, initially provides the only road access to the new development in the South Core of Greenbelt Station. The road was built there by the developers with county permission. One end connects to a state highway, Greenbelt Road. It is located in the Town of Berwyn Heights. North of the bridge, it is within the city of Greenbelt.

Since Prince George's County has agreed to maintain the bridge, maintenance of that first 120 feet was the issue for discussion at the August 3 Greenbelt City Council worksession. Nearly all councilmembers reluctantly agreed that the city would have to participate even though the road is outside the city limits.

At the time the city was negotiating an annexation agreement for the Smith property (now the South Core), Berwyn Heights quietly annexed other properties on both sides of Branchville Road. Branchville Road runs parallel to Greenbelt Road on the north side providing the only road access to these properties. Most likely the property owners agreed to be annexed for fear of otherwise being annexed to Greenbelt, which has a higher tax rate.

While the South Core has frontage on Branchville Road, the developers sought and obtained direct access to Greenbelt Road. At this point, Greenbelt Road is at a much higher elevation than Branchville Road as it is ramped up to cross the CSX Railroad and Metro tracks.

Access

With the acquisition of a 120-foot-deep parcel of land between Branchville and Greenbelt Roads and by building a bridge over Branchville, the South Core developers were able to build the access sought to Greenbelt Road. The bridge and 120 foot connection were completed in 2007 according to Jessica Bellah, Greenbelt Community Planner. But the ensuing building slump delayed development until just recently.

Greenbelt will maintain that part of Greenbelt Station Parkway that is north of the bridge and within the city limits once the city approves the construction done by the developers. The road will provide Greenbelt Station residents and future businesses or other occupants with access to Greenbelt Road and will eventually connect to the Greenbelt Metro Station and Capital Beltway to the north.

Prince George's County will maintain the bridge that crosses over Branchville Road because Branchville Road is a county road. The soon-to-be-formed homeowners association for Greenbelt Station will be made responsible for maintaining brick walls and a stairway from the new road to Branchville Road because those were built to benefit the new development.

But what about that first 120 feet of Greenbelt Station Parkway between the bridge and Greenbelt Road that is within the town limits of Berwyn Heights? Greenbelt city staff believe the city

National Night Out in Greenbelt Community Trumps the Rain

by Amy Hansen

It rained on August fourth, but people showed up anyway. With free food and a promise of good times with neighbors, the National Night Out was celebrated in Greenbelt in half a dozen different locations.

National Night Out was started in 1984 by the National Association of Town Watch, an organization that promotes crime prevention programs. These programs include neighborhood watch groups, law enforcement agencies and other organizations devoted to safer communities. The evening brings together neighbors, businesses, police and fire departments. While most of the night is just fun, food and demonstrations from the talented K9 (dog) police officers, the real aim is to build trust.

"People feel a lot of security at the event," said Janubi Devendra, Director of Marketing for the Beltway Plaza Mall and coordinator of the event for the Franklin Park area. "It's good to know the police, fire, businesses and Franklin Park are all working together."

Devendra said that each year the event has been improving, gathering more businesses and more residents. "It definitely sends out a very positive message."

On the other side of town, Greenbriar also enjoyed National Night Out. Resident Bunny Fitzgerald said she won a gift certificate to Chevy's but more importantly enjoyed time with her neighbors, as well as the mayor (Emmett Jordan) and Police Chief James Craze.

There were also celebrations in Roosevelt Center, Windsor Green, Hunting Ridge, and Schrom Hills. Holding the event in neighborhoods, instead of one central location, is part of the community-building theme. The many locales, however, make for a busy, night for councilmembers, and other dignitaries who move from party to party around town.

"I made it to all the locations," said councilwoman Silke Pope. "And I talked to many res-

Green Team Volunteers Strive For Zero Waste at Festival

Signs from the Green Man Festival will be reused to label trash bins as recycling, compost or landfill.

The 2015 Greenbelt Labor Day Festival will be the greenest one yet as it evolves into a zero waste event. Reduce, Reuse, Recycle or Compost is the message. As part of the efforts a new program will be introduced: Greenbelt Water Works. For the program, multiple locations around the center city will offer free water bottle refills. Everyone is encouraged to bring a reusable water bottle and to fill up at Greenbelt Water Works locations. Signs will indicate which locations around the Roosevelt Center and which public buildings are participating.

The motive behind Greenbelt Water Works is to reduce the use of single-use plastic water bottles. Be sure to check in with the Green Team/GreenACES booth so a tally can record how many community members bring a reusable water bottle. A map showing the Greenbelt Water Works locations and water fountains will be at the booth.

Volunteer Opportunities

The Green Team/GreenACES booth will rely on volunteers to lead fun educational children's games and a scavenger hunt of Greenbelt Water Works locations. Another volunteer opportunity will be to educate community members in how to identify recyclables from landfill trash and how to choose the right bin for each. The Green Team expects mainly students as volunteers but will also need adults to provide light supervision.

In the spirit of zero waste, the signs from the Green Man Festival will be reused to label trash bins as recycling, compost or landfill in order to increase visibility and distinction. Throughout the Labor Day Festival, volunteers will monitor the bins for contamination and promote zero waste event efforts.

Leftover food scraps will be collected from vendors and delivered to the MOM's of College Park BiobIN. The compost ma-

Omissions

In the Foundation story last week we missed an important ingredient to the success of the evening. Carol Malveaux, vice president of the Foundation, organized the event.

Last week's new classified ads met with disaster as they were in an unexpected file and thus not found as we made up the page. The ads from the previous week were used by mistake. We apologize for the inconvenience to many especially those with yard sales.

Playground Alternatives?

Cathie Meetre's article What Would Eleanor Say If She Could See Us Now in the August 6 issue was very informative. I always love learning more about the history of Greenbelt. In the 40's 70 children and their parents enjoyed the convenience of playgrounds at the 33 Court of Ridge Road. Today a different type of tenant occupies these homes and in many other areas of Greenbelt. Some are young singles while others are retirees who are downsizing. Not many children are in need of the playgrounds. What would Eleanor say – repurpose the playgrounds into something that will bring these individuals outdoors. Some senior exercise equipment, places to gather for talking/checkers/an early evening social, if sunny a community garden/flower patch or just a quiet place to sit and get fresh air. Eleanor would be proud.

Professionals Needed

As Donna Almquist mentions in her ad "Who Will Protect the Greenbelt Forest Preserve?" it is important to adhere to the city's Forest Preserve Guidelines. If there is to be an assessment of the condition and health of the Forest Preserve then it should be done by a professional biologist/ecologist.

Our Forest Preserve (225 acres) was officially set aside by Council in 2003 as a preserve to protect undisturbed forested lands from development and intrusive human activities.

It is troubling to see that city staff is seriously considering several engineering firms that have a forester or forest management perspective or mindset more suitable for a city park (such as Buddy Attick) to conduct an assessment of the Forest Preserve.

One of the firms being considered displays the slogan "Consulting Engineers" on their letterhead and cover letter, and the first page of their proposal sent to the city states they will provide "...forest stewardship and management strategies."

Another firm being considered by the city had been employed in the past to design and construct several stream and water culvert projects and to administer the use of herbicides and chemical treatment to control invasive plants, by the city and Greenbelt Homes Inc., respectively.

In addition, this firm states on page one of their proposal) that they "will inventory forest stand delineation using Maryland's DNR (Dept. of Natural Resources) protocols established in their 1997 technical manual." Again, this is a forest management or 'forester-for-hire' timber monetary value perspective not suitable for an assessment of our natural undisturbed Forest Preserve.

A senior city staff member stated previously that she favored these firms since they had done work previously for the city. This familiarity seems to be the major reason these firms are being considered, rather than making an effort to seek a qualified professional biologist/ecologist as directed by City Council.

If the city were to employ one of these firms or another of a similar perspective then the city would be violating the purpose and intent of the city's Forest Preserve Guidelines.

"Enemies" Shares the Screen

Opening on Friday, August 14 to share the screen at Old Greenbelt Theatre (with Woody Allen's Irrational Man) is Best of Enemies. Almost 50 years ago, a pair of sharp-tongued authors and cultural icons – conservative William F. Buckley Jr. and liberal Gore Vidal – faced off in a series of 10 confrontational television debates. Key portions are replayed, including Vidal accusing Buckley of being a "crypto-Nazi" and Buckley shooting back that Vidal, in that mostly closeted era for gays, was a "queer." And now, buttressed by this look back, we're entered in a new election cycle that will test the perquisites of current commentators.

Reel and Meal At The New Deal

On Monday, August 17, Swine Country will be the feature film of the Reel and Meal at the New Deal series, held at the New Deal Café. The free film is directed by local film director and Adelphi Friends Meeting member Tom Clement. It starts at 7 p.m., after an optional vegan buffet served from 6:30 p.m.

Swine Country explores the negative health impacts of commercial hog farming in eastern North Carolina; it was a collaborative project between the Rural Empowerment Association for Community Help and the Cape Fear River Basin Studies Program at Guilford College, Clement's alma mater.

Discussion following the film will focus on what can be done to reduce agricultural pollution. Discussion leaders include Frederick Tutman, well-known grassroots community advocate for a cleaner Patuxent River, Maryland's longest intrastate waterway; Kathy Phillips, Assateague Coastkeeper, who monitors the local coastal watersheds for signs of polluting activities; and film director Tom Clement.

The Reel and Meal series is a collaboration of three Greenbelt groups concerned about social justice, environmental and animal rights issues: Green Vegan Networking, Beaverdam Creek Watershed Watch Group and Prince George's County Peace and Justice Coalition. Peace and Justice planned this month's event; for more about the program, contact justpeacepg@earthlink.net or 301-441-9377.

Obituaries

Mary Madden Doman

Mary Madden Doman, 77, died peacefully with family at her side on August 3, 2015, in Grapevine, Texas. Mary Madden was born February 10, 1938, in Washington, D.C. Shortly thereafter, she moved to Greenbelt with her parents, thus becoming one of Greenbelt's Pioneer children. She loved growing up in Greenbelt and was one of the early employees of the McCarl Dental practice. She graduated from St. Patrick's Academy and attended George Washington University while working at the Treasury Department.

While there, she met Michael Doman. They were married and lived in various locations around the country, finally settling in Dallas where they shared a wonderful life together with their four children.

After working at St. Patrick's Parish in Dallas for many years, she owned and operated Mary's Mail Center in Dallas for 10 years. She enjoyed being an active member of her community and her church and was kind to everyone she met and she was known to help those in need. She was a wonderful wife, mother, grandmother, sister, aunt and friend. Nothing brought Mrs. Doman greater joy and pride than her children; she loved raising them and her home was always open to their friends. She cherished her grandchildren and enjoyed being with them and getting their phone calls and visits.

Recently, Mrs. Doman moved back to Greenbelt to be near her brothers and sisters and after a short time, shared her Greenbelt home with her sister Kathleen. She and her siblings had wonderful times together and Mrs. Doman enjoyed shopping at Co-op, getting her hair done at Maria's, eating at Joe's and Beijing and counted on the guys at Sunoco to take care of her car, which they did, at times walking to her house to jump start it. After a few years, she returned to the Dallas area to be near her children.

Mrs. Doman was preceded in death by her husband Michael and her parents, Greenbelt pioneers Anthony and Catherine Madden. She is survived by her children, Mark (Alice) Doman, Jeffrey Doman, Diane (Steve) Dalri, all of the Dallas area, and Michael (Amy) Doman of Carmel, Ind. and nine grandchildren, Meghan and Sarah Doman, Joaquin Doman, Brooke and Paige Dalri, and Katy Beth, Michael, Jeffrey and Nicholas Doman. She is also survived by her sisters, Kathleen Dunleavy, Therese Stringfellow, Patty Molden; and brothers Marty Madden and Michael Madden and numerous nieces and nephews.

will have to maintain it because the road's users will be city residents and because nobody else will have maintenance equipment nearby. To assume this responsibility, city staff recommends that the city enter into a memorandum of understanding (MOU) with all the concerned parties.

As construction is new, the most immediate maintenance need is snow plowing. Since the city will have to run its plow trucks over this roadway in order to turn around, it is only a matter of keeping the plows dropped when they pass over this section. At the worksession City Manager Michael McLaughlin told council that it would probably be 10 to 15 years before the road would require more costly maintenance.

Recommendations

In making its recommendations, city staff believed that the 120 feet was a road that no one had assumed responsibility for, but Justin Frye, a construction manager for the developers, Woodlawn Development LLC, told council it was his understanding from county staff that this was a county road, but that the county wanted Greenbelt to maintain it.

Director of Planning and Community Development Celia Craze said this was new information to her and she would have to check it out.

Most councilmembers, although reluctantly, agreed that the city would have to assume maintenance because the road served Greenbelt residents. Councilmember Judith Davis reflected that point of view, noting that it would be a low level priority for Berwyn Heights to maintain it. "You can stand on principal," she said, "but the best thing for our residents is for the city to maintain it."

Councilmember Rodney Roberts, however, took exception. He disagreed with those who felt that Berwyn Heights would never remove the road from its boundaries and that the city could accept it. Roberts thought the obligation to maintain it would be sufficient for the town to rid itself of it. He objected to the city maintaining another jurisdiction's road.

Councilmember Edward Putens was concerned about who would maintain the brick entrance walls and the stairway from Greenbelt Station Parkway to Branchville Road. He also felt there was a need for a sidewalk along Branchville Road from the stairway to Greenbelt Road. He was told that one had been built alongside the South Core property, but that none existed adjacent to any other property.

Payments Sufficient

Frye said that the homeowners agreement, which was being prepared, would provide sufficient payments from each property to assure adequate reserves to undertake major repairs when the time comes. These reserves would also cover maintenance needs for the private streets and other common property of the development. He noted that some developers will sell their homes with very low homeowner association dues in order to make easy sales, not worrying that there would be insufficient reserves when needed. Frye said that would not be the case here.

Norman Rivera, legal counsel for the developers, urged a speedy resolution to the problem as the road and bridge have been built for many years but the construction bonds required by the county, worth millions of dollars, were being held up pending resolution of the issue of maintenance.

Staff is to clarify the county's role in this matter and may return with a MOU.

materials will be added later to the Prince George's County compost pilot program. Ultimately, less methane gas will be emitted from a landfill, and high quality compost will be produced for use by gardeners and others.

To Volunteer

Those interested in serving as a zero waste volunteer are encouraged to attend a training session on August 20 or September 1 from 7 to 8:30 p.m. at the Public Works facility. Students or other volunteers can receive community service hours and/or a recommendation as appropriate. Volunteers will learn how to teach others which items are accepted as recyclables and how to entertain Festival goers while educating. Participants are asked to bring their own water bottles. Pizza will be provided by Generous Joe's.

Anyone who would like to learn more about serving as a zero waste volunteer should contact Luisa Robles, Greenbelt's sustainability coordinator, at lrobles@greenbeltmd.gov or John and Jane, GreenACES, at jrmlipert@aol.com or 301-507-6765.

Recycling Tips

If one's waste is recyclable—and most will be—discard it into a recycling bin, not the trash can. This year, food vendors will provide mostly recyclable dinnerware. Look for the chart on the recycling bins showing the items to recycle (in green) and the few that can't be (in red). Also, put only recyclables in the recycling bins.

Think taxes should be used for something other than trash? The less money spent on trash collection, the more the city can use those savings for other programs and activities. Greenbelt is charged $56 per ton brought to landfill but actually gets money back from recyclables.

Greenbelt is a leader in sustainability. One great way to educate friends and neighbors and to encourage the practice of recycling is to raise awareness during the Labor Day Festival.

The Labor Day Zero Waste effort is a project of the Zero Waste Circle comprised of members of the Green Team and affinity groups with support from the Greenbelt Department of Public Works and the Chesapeake Education Arts and Research Society (CHEARS).

Susan Barnett and Jane Young contributed to this article.

Wristband Vouchers

Wristband vouchers are on sale at the Greenbelt Co-op Grocery Supermarket for the Greenbelt Labor Day Festival. They are good for all rides on either Saturday 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. or Sunday noon to 4 p.m. of the Festival Weekend. This is a pre-sale and good till all vouchers are sold or Friday, September 4 before noon, whichever comes first. (See ad for more information.)

The Labor Day Photo Show displays photos taken by Greenbelt residents. The show will be held in the Community Center and open for viewing on Saturday through Monday of Labor Day weekend.

There are 16 categories including Those Who Protect and Serve Us, Greener Living in Greenbelt and Pets. It's free to enter but because space is limited, no more than two photos per photographer can be submitted and frames must have outside dimensions of 16 x 20 inches or smaller.

Photos and registration forms should be submitted to the Photo Show volunteers on Thursday and Friday before the Festival. One may download the forms from greenbeltlaborday.com.

Retro Town Fair Returns to Festival

The Retro Town Fair will return to the Labor Day Festival this year on Sunday, September 6. The location has changed due to the expanding craft fair and will be on the grassy area behind the Mother and Child statue. The categories are the same as in years past, with the exception of one addition: an Open Craft Class (examples: jewelry, woodworking, dollmaking).

This will be the 4th Annual Retro Town Fair. Look for entry forms on the Greenbelt Museum website, on greenbeltlaborday.com, in the News Review and at the Greenbelt Co-op.

MakerSpace For Labor Day

Volunteers are gathering at the Greenbelt MakerSpace continuously through the end of the month to work on this year's activities for the Greenbelt Labor Day Festival and our epic entry in the annual parade. While it may seem impossible to top last year's award-winning "Turtles in Spaaaaace" bicycle powered float, the team is hard at work to do just that. Engineers and artists of all types and all ages are invited to join in on the fun. Stop by the MakerSpace and grab a tool, from hammer to brush, to help us convert our everyday utility carts into a float that represents the mission and vision of the MakerSpace.

Another conversion project is in the works, though as a much more serious venture. While we are quite happy with our location on the Roosevelt Center plaza, adjacent to many good friends and home to some fine programs, we would like to reach more people in our Greenbelt neighborhoods and surrounding communities. To do so we have a plan to convert a small van into a mobile MakerSpace vehicle. This will allow us to visit more community centers, churches and schools to reach more families and kids looking for hands-on activities to experience and learn science, technology, arts and crafts. To join our team in planning and supporting a crowd funding campaign, please visit our website, make125.org, or stop by the MakerSpace at 125 Centerway.

New Deal Café to Host Special Blues Concert

Harvey sings a fusion of bluegrass, folk, blues and soul, and will perform as part of Kiss and Ride, a high-energy blues ensemble.

Who Will Protect the Greenbelt Forest Preserve?

The council should stop the city from contracting with a Forest Conservation Act (FCA) Service Provider to assess the health of the Forest Preserve. The city intends to include language in the contract asking the FCA Service Provider to recommend changes to the city code and to the Forest Preserve Management and Maintenance Guidelines (Guidelines) which together have protected the Forest Preserve for the past twelve years.

In October 2003 the council passed legislation creating the Forest Preserve which consists of over 200 acres of forested areas in Greenbelt managed as protected, undeveloped, and undisturbed areas for the benefit of current and future generations. The council, at the time, determined the residents should be stewards to protect the natural qualities of these areas and appointed a task force to write the Forest Preserve Guidelines. The Guidelines include a provision for a forest biologist/ecologist to provide a health assessment if such an assessment were deemed necessary. They did not require a health assessment be done.

On November 24, 2014, council passed three important motions. (1) According to draft minutes, Rodney Roberts moved that council proceed on contracting with a professional forest biologist/ecologist to assess the health of the Forest Preserve. Mayor Jordan responded by encouraging staff to seek a professional forest biologist/ecologist. (2) According to the minutes, Judith Davis moved that council direct the Forest Preserve Advisory Board to review the Forest Preserve Guidelines and prepare a list of recommended changes to council. (3) Judith Davis also moved that council direct city staff to review the Forest Preserve chapter of the city code and update it as needed and that proposed changes be referred to the Advisory Board for review and then to council.

A Request for Proposal (RFP) was written by the city. According to Celia Craze, the city sent over 120 solicitations for proposals. These primarily went to firms identified as Forest Conservation Act (FCA) Service Providers listed on the Maryland Department of Natural Resources (DNR) web site. Only five solicitations went to individuals or firms suggested by Advisory Board members. According to Celia Craze, only five proposals were received by the city. All of the proposals are from FCA Service Providers.

FCA Service Providers are entities approved by the Maryland Department of Natural Resources to assist developers in creating the Forest Conservation Plan that is required for certain planned developments in Maryland. The list includes foresters, landscape architects, and others. The mindset is controlled development rather than preservation and ecology.

According to Dr. Marc Lapin, ecologist and environmental studies professor at Middlebury College, a forest biologist/ecologist (as required by the Forest Preserve Guidelines) is a better choice than a forester to do the assessment (if one is done at all). A forest biologist/ecologist has a broad perspective of the relationships between plants, animals, soils, water and rocks. In contrast, a forester's perspective puts more emphasis on 'managing' the forest for use and economic gain.

A contract with a FCA Service Provider will be inconsistent with Robert's motion (approved 7-0), Mayor Jordan's encouragement, and the Forest Preserve Guidelines.

Please contact the members of council and the city clerk to let them know that you want the process to award a contract stopped and to leave alone the documents that protect the forest preserve. The contact information is:
