Forebays Project to Help County Clean Water Goals

by Jill Connor

A group of more than 20 people gathered at the Greenbelt Youth Center parking lot and walked down to the forebays of Greenbelt Lake to talk about the future of the water quality in Prince George's County and how Greenbelt Lake can improve our water supply.

The Clean Water Partnership is an agreement between county government and Corvias Solutions to retrofit up to 4,000 acres of impervious surfaces using green infrastructure, according to the partnership's website. The county is federally mandated to complete the retrofit of 8,000 acres of impervious surfaces by 2025, according to the Prince George's County website. The Greenbelt Lake forebays work is one of the larger projects the Clean Water Partnership is working on currently, said David Washington, program executive.

The Greenbelt Lake forebays project will mitigate a "high amount of acreage for a reasonable price," said Ken Dunn, managing member of Soltesz, the consulting firm hired by Corvias. Dunn said that "Greenbelt serves as a stormwater management facility in everything but name but it's missing something critical: your forebays were not designed to handle the volume that the lake itself has." The forebays are supposed to filter silt and debris that washes into Greenbelt Lake from upstream. "What doesn't get trapped here, goes right over there," said Neil Weinstein, executive director for the Low Impact Development Center, pointing from the forebays to Greenbelt Lake.

The lake itself is not planned to be dredged because, Dunn said, "for purposes of water quality the forebays that we are improving and enlarging serve our purposes." When speaking to the group of residents and local representatives, Dunn explained that the project will "identify the

by Cathie Meetre

The Greenbelt Community Foundation's (GCF) Explore Your Greenbelt Program (also sponsored by Paradyme Management and Beltway Plaza) asked the newspaper to create an event as one of 14 that celebrate GCF's role. A GCF grant helped the paper redesign its website. The paper responded with an Open House on Sunday, July 10 from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. to recognize this partnership and give the community a chance to see the paper in action. By running at the same time as the Farmer's Market, the open house should be convenient for market-goers enjoying that GCF-supported activity to stop by on the same outing. It's just 100 feet from the corner of the market to the door of the newspaper and access is next to the sloping lawn where many sit in the shade and enjoy a picnic lunch. A yellow-brick-road made in sidewalk chalk will direct market visitors to the newspaper office and vice versa. The open house will show visitors how the staff make the paper happen and provide the opportunity for some hands-on activities using the processes of yesteryear to mockup a newspaper page. Visitors can even see the physical paper from their birth week and type on 1920's vintage typewriters. These days, the paper is produced mostly electronically by its members. It takes 20 to 30 staff to produce each issue – many work just a few hours a week and a particular role, for example retrieving email may be shared among three or four people – making effective communication an important element and providing the bench strength and cross-training needed to cover absences and changes of staff. A diligent back office staff takes care of billing, bookkeeping and the general business needs of the paper.

From a publication point of view, the week revolves in a predictable cycle, interrupted only when a major holiday falls on a

Thursday, when we start and finish a day early.

A Week in the Life:

Each day of the week has a rhythm. Recent improvements in our process have reduced the overall time it takes to prepare for publication – especially in reducing the potential for very late nights. By focusing on reducing errors in the early stages of preparation, the staff has maintained or improved the quality of the paper and almost eliminated last-minute flurries of activity prone to error from tired eyes and minds.

Sunday through Tuesday: When a story comes in, sometimes as the result of an assignment and sometimes unsolicited, it has to be retrieved from email, formatted into a readable draft, edited and corrected and readied for placement in the paper. The staff starts processing email on Sunday and by the end of every

by Kathleen Gallagher

The Greenbelt City Council meets with the Board of Directors of Greenbelt Homes, Inc. (GHI) every year to share information on topics of mutual interest, update one another on projects and plans and, occasionally, to resolve differences. The 2016 meeting, which included a bit of all of those components, was hosted by the city at the Municipal Building on June 13. The first part of the meeting covered GHI concerns about recently adopted county legislation (CB-49-2015, CB-50-2015 and CB-58-2015) that will impact the cooperative and other "common ownership communities" in the county. County Councilmember Todd Turner was present for the discussion. This article covers only the discussion on these bills. Other issues covered at the meeting will be reported separately.

Although it was GHI that raised a hue and cry about the common ownership legislation, the new laws will apply to condominiums and homeowner associations (HOAs), as well as to cooperatives. The GHI Board is primarily concerned with the requirements and implementation of the newly adopted laws regarding complaint and dispute resolution processes, but it has also taken exception to the fact that neither the city nor the county government provided advance notice of these actions or sought input from GHI on the potential impacts of the legislation despite its longstanding experience in this area.

Turner said that last year, when the three bills related to common ownership communities were being considered by the county council and went up for public hearing, GHI conveyed its concerns, and GHI General Manager Eldon Ralph went to Upper Marlboro to the public hearing prior to the adoption of the bills.

Turner gave an overview of the events leading up to the enactment of the bills, which had their origin in a work group started in 2013 as a result of discussions that took place with the county council's Transportation, Housing and the Environment (THE) Committee, which Turner now chairs, regarding resident complaints about the practices of their HOAs, condominiums or cooperatives. An earlier 2006 common ownership task force had also made recommendations.

In 2012 the council adopted legislation creating a Common Ownership Communities Program within the Office of Community Relations to collect data and provide training and education in common ownership communities. At the time, there was disagreement on whether a dispute resolution process should be provided. Eventually a 22-person task force was set up under the Committee. Ingrid Turner, who was the county councilmember for District 4 at the time, appointed now-Mayor Emmett Jordan to the task force, with Jordan then recommending that Derek Thompson of Windsor Green take his place.

The task force reviewed and evaluated the recommendations of the 2006 group, bringing forward those to strengthen the community ownership program, enable the regulation of property management companies and institute a dispute resolution program, for which they received authorization to charge a fee. Draft legislation accompanied the recommendations of the task force, and by late 2014 the county council was ready to move forward. Turner

Letters to the Editor

Peace Month Summary

Greenbelt Peace Month 2016 included about the usual number of events, but the diversity of activities this year was especially striking. Just to name a few of them, Peace Month incorporated:

Art: The pictures drawn by students at Dora Kennedy French Immersion School, on exhibit there June 3.

Music: The tribute to peace by the Greenbelt Concert Band June 4 and a sing-along at the Chesapeake Education, Arts and Research Society (CHEARS)/Peace & Justice Summer Solstice celebration June 18.

Poems and stories: Joe Murray's account of Native American traditions June 12, presentations at Greenbelt Writers Group June 17, and the feature film at the Reel & Meal program June 20.

Inspiration: Remarks on peace and justice at the Good Samaritan

Lutheran Church June 5, as well as others at June 18 and June 20 events mentioned above.

Outreach: A welcome to newly naturalized citizens at the U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services ceremony June 5.

Service projects: CHEARS gardening work, Baha'i Community's collection of "bikes for the world" June 5.

Many thanks are extended by Prince George's County Peace & Justice Coalition to the City of Greenbelt for once again proclaiming Peace Month, to the sponsors for organizing events, to the News Review for giving thorough publicity and to all community residents who came out to participate. We feel hopeful that many ways of striving for peace will prevail in Greenbelt all year round.

On Screen

Three for the Roads

A trio of compelling, wide-ranging new films opens at the Old Greenbelt Theatre on Friday, July 8. Our Kind of Traitor, based on a novel by John le Carré, lures an innocent young couple on holiday in Morocco into hard-driving contretemps across Europe between the Russian Mafia and the British Secret Service. Rated R, the film runs 108 minutes.

In Genius, legendary Scribner book editor Maxwell Perkins (Colin Firth) discovers and/or develops – just as in real life – such authors as Thomas Wolfe, Ernest Hemingway and F. Scott Fitzgerald. Supporting the endeavor are such far-flung actors as Nicole Kidman, Jude Law and Laura Linney. PG-13, running time 104 minutes.

Cellist Yo-Yo Ma started The Silk Road Project in 2000, and by now a rewarding mix of musical, cultural and philosophical activities have been presented and performed, mostly in Asia. A lively documentary, it is PG-13 and 96 minutes.s

Community Events

Learn How to Hold Dynamic Meetings

Believe it or not, community organization meetings can clip right along, lift the energy of participants and accomplish a lot. Learn the basics of dynamic community governance on Sunday, July 10 from 1 to 2 p.m. Experience new meeting methods such as selecting people for tasks and responsibilities in a way that leaves everyone satisfied.

Greenbelters who have already had training in dynamic community governance are invited to participate from 2 to 4 p.m. in a community peer learning circle to ask questions about implementation, to network with others and to learn new skills. To register (free) for either event, email Aileen at Aileen@dynamic-governance.org.

The meetings will be held in the Greenbelt Youth Center conference room.

Participants Sought For Information Day

Those interested in participating in Information Day at the Greenbelt Labor Day Festival on Saturday, September 3 can sign up at the website greenbelt-laborday.com. Information Day welcomes groups, businesses and other organizations to share information about themselves with festival attendees. Non-food giveaways and hands-on activities work well and businesses can distribute coupons or brochures. Sales or other financial transactions are not allowed at Information Day.

For details about registering for Information Day, go to the website listed above and click on Get Involved and then Information Day. For further information, go to the contact section of the website at greenbeltlaborday.com/contact-2/.

Participants Solicited For Labor Day Parade

Make plans now to participate in the Greenbelt Labor Day Parade. Community, school and government groups, local businesses, political incumbents and candidates or even informal groups formed just for the parade are invited to submit a parade application, obtainable from the parade participants website: greenbeltlaborday.com/get-involved/parade-participants/. Create a float, put together a performance, show off an antique or otherwise unique vehicle, or simply march together displaying signs advertising a group. All parade participants must pre-register no later than August 26 by emailing a completed parade application to GreenbeltLaborDayParade@verizon.net.

The 2016 Greenbelt Labor Day Festival Parade will take place on Monday, September 5 from 10 a.m. to noon. The parade route is along Crescent Road, from Greenhill Road to Southway. Participants are asked to line up in the staging area along Crescent Road between Lastner Lane and Greenhill Road between 8 and 9:30 a.m. More detailed information is available from the parade participants website listed above.

Greenbelt Park Events

Saturday July 9: Reading Ranger. Join a park ranger to read Owl Moon and learn about the life of an owl. Following the reading, there will be a videotape showing about the owl characteristics. The presentation is appropriate for ages 6 to 8. Meet at the Ranger Station classroom at 11 a.m.

Mondays, July 11, 18 and 25: Furs and Friends. Join a park ranger for a hands-on education session to learn about the different animals in the park, followed by a trail walk. Children should be accompanied by an adult at all times. Meet at the Ranger Station at 11 a.m.

Tuesday, July 12: Junior Ranger Tuesdays, Everybody Needs a Home. Explore the basics of habitats for all of the creatures at Greenbelt Park. Meet at the Ranger Station at 10 a.m.

Saturday, July 16: Volunteer Trail Crew. Join the Greenbelt volunteer corps to improve the park through stewardship projects. This is a great opportunity to get outdoors while working on a trail maintenance project. Meet at the Ranger Station at 8:45 a.m. (three hours).

Menu for Senior Nutrition Program

The Senior Nutrition Food and Friendship program provides lunches for seniors Monday through Friday at the Community Center beginning at noon. Meals must be reserved by 11 a.m. two days ahead so that enough food is ordered. Call 301-397-2208 ext 4215.

All meals include margarine, coffee or tea and skim milk. Menus for the week of July 11 are as follows:

Monday, July 11: Apple juice, Swiss steak, potatoes, glazed baby carrots, wheat roll, fruit cocktail.

Tuesday, July 12: Orange juice, breaded pollock, potatoes O'Brien, diced beets, wheat roll, tartar sauce, fresh fruit.

Wednesday, July 13: Pineapple juice, chicken Marsala, bow tie pasta, green beans, wheat roll, sliced peaches.

Thursday, July 14: Grape juice, roast beef with gravy, lima beans, honey mustard vegetable, wheat bread, diced pears.

Friday, July 15: All sites closed for sanitation training.

Golden Age Club

by Bunny Fitzgerald

Greenbelt is alive with music and camp kids involved in activities at the Community Center, the pool and the playgrounds. Remember to drive carefully and watch out for kids now that school is out.

On July 13, Donna Peterson will speak at the Golden Age Club. She is the docent at the Dr. Mudd House Museum. She will wear a period costume and talk about Mudd, who treated the injured John Wilkes Booth and later worked as a doctor while he was in jail.

The club has several trips planned for the summer. Sign up at the Community Center.

Summer has arrived so try to stay cool. Drink lots of fluids.

See Pluto, Other Planets At Saturday Star Party

On Saturday evening, July 9, the anniversary (minus five days) of the New Horizons Pluto flyby, the Astronomical Society of Greenbelt is planning to observe Pluto at its star party at the City Observatory located at Northway Fields. We will start by observing Jupiter, the Moon, Mars and Saturn before moving on to Pluto, which is a much more difficult observational object. Time permitting, deep sky objects to the south will also be observed. As always, visitors are also welcome to set up their own telescopes on the hill.

The event is free and open to the public. Observing will begin at around 9:30 p.m. and continue for about two hours. Attendees are asked to park in the ballfield lot, not up on the hill, unless bringing a telescope. The star party will be canceled without notice if it is hopelessly cloudy.

Events at MakerSpace

Thursday, July 7, school's out and it's time for building with Legos from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Friday, July 8, Little Makers will be making big creations from 5 to 6:30 p.m.

Marion Vaughn

Marion Vaughn

Marion Vaughn died April 2, 2016, at her home in Halethorpe, Md., just shy of her 74th birthday. Born Marion Hieber in Washington, D.C., she lived in Greenbelt for almost 40 years, from 1942 until 1985, except for a couple of moves as a child to Denver, Colo., Atlanta, Ga., and Avondale Estates, Ga., for a total of about four years. In 1985 she moved to Halethorpe, where she lived, worked and thrived until her death.

Marion attended Greenbelt Center Elementary, Greenbelt Junior High and High Point High Schools. She was briefly married to her high school sweetheart, Neil Vaughn. She joined the workforce as a teen, working briefly as a keypunch operator before training in computer programming in the early 1960s. She soon earned a position as a systems analyst. She then moved from private industry to the U.S. Treasury Department. Most of her federal career was spent working on the national budget in the collections division.

Ms. Vaughn attended night classes at the University of Maryland, including two years of studying German prior to a month's vacation in Europe with her daughter. Following her travel to Europe came two trips to Hawaii. Bermuda followed. Ms. Vaughn loved to travel and was able to do so in part by living modestly in an Old Greenbelt townhouse and driving dated, reliable VWs. She and her daughter made trips all over the country, coast to coast, including to New York, Florida and California, usually driving.

As a child, Marion loved to spend Saturday mornings walking around her neighborhood visiting dogs. A life-long animal lover, in 1985 she purchased Oak Park Kennels in Halethorpe, a suburb of Baltimore. She owned and operated the boarding facility for over 30 years. In 1990, her daughter, Dee, and her husband joined her. A few years later, her granddaughter was born.

Ms. Vaughn's daughter's childhood friends will remember her as a fun mom, sledding, ice skating and playing on monkey bars with the children. She often included Dee's friends on their weekend trips.

Even as a child, Ms. Vaughn loved to roller skate and climb trees. One of her sister's most memorable photos shows Marion, age 4, at the top of a 20-foot tree, having climbed it wearing a dress and roller skates.

Ms. Vaughn's parents, Tom and Mildred Hieber, of Greenbelt, predeceased her, as did her brother Tom, of Oceanside, Calif. She leaves her daughter, Dee, of Halethorpe; her granddaughter, Laura, of Cobbs Creek, Va.; her sister, Janet, of Thousand Palms, Calif.; and her brother Jim and sister-in-law, Sandy, of Williamsburg, Va.

At Ms. Vaughn's request, there was no service and no funeral. Anatomy Gifts Registry received the gift of her body. What science didn't utilize was cremated, and her ashes will be released to nature's spirits.

Anne Marie Trapper Keller

Ann Marie Keller, 93, former long-time resident of Greenbelt, died peacefully on June 24, 2016, at the Conway Medical Center, near the family's retirement home in Surfside Beach, S.C. She was born in Buffalo, N.Y., on December 4, 1922. Mrs. Keller and her husband Andy spent nearly 20 years in Greenbelt, on Olive-wood Court off Lakeside Drive, and were active members of St. Hugh's Catholic Church. Starting in 1965, seven of their 11 children went to St. Hugh's School.

Ann Marie (Trapper) Keller married Andrew King Keller, a West Point graduate, on D-Day June 6, 1944. Mrs. Keller was a devoted Army wife and helped raise their seven boys and four girls while her husband served 22 years in the military, retiring as a lieutenant colonel in the United States Army. In 1982 they retired to South Carolina. After 52 years of marriage, which included winning a dance contest with her husband, Lieutenant Colonel Keller died in 1996.

Mrs. Keller coordinated a pregnancy hot line for many years. She was a Eucharistic Minister and an active member of the Secular Franciscan Order. She was generous of her time and talent, and even into her 90's continued to serve St. Michael's parish doing volunteer work in the church's gift shop.

Mrs. Keller is survived by five sons and four daughters: Michael Keller and wife Karen, Lake Oswego, Ore.; David Keller and wife Carmen, Jacksonville, Fla.; Mark Keller, Portland, Maine; Ann-Marie and Robert Eakins, Mount Vernon, Wash.; Susan and Jeff Mevissen, Conway, S.C.; Mary Keller, Sparks Glencoe, Md.; Teresa and Art Kurz, Cary, Ill.; John Keller and wife Elena, Ellicott City, Md.; and Thomas Keller, Conway, S.C. She is also survived by her sister-in-law Sally (and Larry) Wilke, sister-in-law Rosemarie Trapper, many nephews and nieces, 22 grandchildren and 13 great-grandchildren (with 2 more on the way).

Mrs. Keller was pre-deceased by sons Paul and Andrew (Drew). Burial will be at Arlington National Cemetery in the same burial lot as her husband.

Marsha Voigt: Expands Reach; Still Outstanding

by Carol Griffith

“Renaissance woman” was how Marsha Voigt was described here in 2006 when she was selected that year’s Outstanding Citizen. And she continues to be a most outstanding citizen by giving immense amounts of her time and talents to the Greenbelt community. She is still involved in many of the activities for which she was recognized in 2006 but has also expanded her reach in the community through other avenues.

Marsha Voigt continues to give her time and talents to the Greenbelt community.

Voigt is a water aerobics instructor at the Greenbelt Aquatic & Fitness Center (GAFC) and has been leading classes there for 17 years. She volunteers as instructor for a senior class once a week. Recently, she learned to teach Ageless Grace at GAFC, a method of improving body and mind through chair-based free-flowing movements set to music. She is very enthusiastic about the new classes.

For Help-by-Phone, an organization that provides county residents emergency food and sponsors cold-weather homeless shelters, Voigt has served in many roles. She and husband Larry purchased and delivered food for the seven food pantries throughout the county for several years. She’s been chair of the board of directors for the past 10 years, and takes a day per week to answer the phone for county residents who need assistance as she has done for 17 years. Voigt, in conjunction with the Greenbelt Community Church, United Church of Christ, has arranged every year since 2004 to shelter homeless men during Christmas week, another effort of Help-by-Phone called the SafeHaven program. Also in partnership with the Community Church, Voigt coordinates serving lunch periodically for those facing hunger at the Community Place Cafe, held at a Hyattsville church.

Voigt plays an active part in the life of the Community Church. She has served on all of its boards but most recently the church council and board of trustees. As chair of the board of trustees, she oversaw a major renovation of the church’s sanctuary, including arranging for a repainting of the original 1952 mural.

She finds time to volunteer for Greenbelt Intergenerational Volunteer Exchange Service and has served as president, and the Friends of the Greenbelt Library, for which she is currently treasurer. She is also vice president of the county Friends group, composed of members from each of the 19 branches. In that role she has often advocated for library funding before the county executive and staff.

The activities Voigt has been involved in during the 10 years since being named Outstanding Citizen are many and varied. She was very active with the Lions Club, served as a court-appointed special advocate for children under the jurisdiction of the court system for five years, taught conversational English, helped the Animal Rescue League, tutored schoolchildren in math and helped with the Labor Day Festival. She also served on the boards of the Greenbelt Consumer Cooperative, Greenbelt Community Foundation and Greenbelt Community Development Corporation.

She still finds time to read her favorite type of book (murder mysteries), take SAGE classes, attend the Old Greenbelt Theatre once a week as a member of the Friends of the Greenbelt Theatre and travel with Larry to an amazing number of exotic South American and European places.

Greenbelt’s Renaissance woman has found those places where her talents shine.

Crab Feast Saturday

The annual Bowie-Vansville Association (BVA) Crab Feast will be held on Saturday, July 9 from 2 to 5 p.m., rain or shine, at the Magnificent Obsession Farm (Knauer Place), 8712 Beaver Dam Road, Beltsville Agricultural Research Center (between Research Road and Soil Conservation Road). There will be all-you-can-eat crabs, hot dogs, chicken, sides, salads, desserts and drinks (BYOB) as well as a playground, games, horseshoes, music, door prizes, horses and more. There is a fee, but children under 12 are free.

Since 1921, the BVA and its historic “clubhouse” have anchored a membership centered in the Beltsville Agricultural Research Farm and focused on country life, practical agricultural education, service and fellowship.

WSSC Responds to Water Main Break on Laurel Hill Road

by Tom Carter

Residents of Laurel Hill Road were without water Sunday for several hours after a water main broke. WSSC showed up quickly but had to wait for a tow truck to remove a car parked over the broken water main when the owner could not be found. Once the car was moved they then had to wait for utility officials to indicate where underground cables from the other utilities were located so they wouldn’t damage them. WSSC worked on digging up the area of the break and pumping it out so they could find the main and patch it up. Once all that was done it took no time to fix it and the water was turned back on.

WSSC workers start digging to find the broken water main.

Giant Turnip Comes to Town

On Saturday, July 9 at 11 a.m., there is a free performance of The Giant Turnip at the Greenbelt Movie Theater in Roosevelt Center. Beech Tree Puppets’ whimsical and humorous telling of this Ukrainian folk tale celebrates community and caring for the earth. An old man and his wife who, after lovingly preparing and tending their garden, manage to grow a vegetable so large they can’t pull it up by themselves. The story is told with hand-crafted rod-puppets, and much singing. Shadow puppets reveal what happens under the ground, including a helpful and jolly root gnome. Classically trained singers, Ingrid and Ole Hass delight audiences with their spellbinding show. Admission is free and the show is suitable for ages 3 to 103.

said he had apologized to the GHI Board for not alerting them to the legislation earlier.

GHI Board Treasurer Chuck Hess asked how many cooperatives had been represented on the task force and how many were self-managed. He said he found it very disturbing that he had not even heard anything about these laws until after they were enacted.

"We're the biggest cooperative in Prince George's County, probably in the state, and one of the largest in the nation," he said. "I was taken aback with how this was sprung on us." He added that, among other problems, there is "a world of difference" among cooperatives, condominiums and HOAs.

GHI Board President Steven Skolnik commented that regardless of how or why it had happened, Turner had been very responsive since the problem had been brought to his attention. He said GHI's single greatest asset was that it has a longstanding and well-vetted procedure for handling member complaints that the new legislation may very well contravene, an eventuality that they really do not want to see happen. He stressed that although GHI may have arrived at the table late because of not knowing about the legislation, the cooperative is highly interested in participating in the further planning and implementation of the program.

"We very much want to have a member on the commission that is to be set up," Skolnik stated. Turner suggested that he send a letter to that effect to him and to the county executive. The county executive will make the appointments, which must be confirmed by the county council.

At this point, Turner stressed, the program is still very much a work in progress, which has a good way to go before reaching implementation. Budget implications are also a significant concern. As far as whether the program can work and be useful, however, he explained that it is modeled on existing programs in Montgomery and Charles Counties, which apparently are working well.

He said the reason for establishing the program is that there is currently no vehicle in the county to hear complaints or appeals from residents of common ownership communities, and these complaints are often made to county councilmembers. At this point, a person with a grievance would have to go to the attorney general's office. "Imperfect though it may be right now," he said, "the broad picture is that there needs to be something in between."

Councilmember Leta Mach commented that she would be very surprised if there had been any members of cooperatives on the task force, given the legislation that had come out of it. She said not only would the legislation likely undermine the existing governing practices of cooperatives but likely would also conflict with their legal documents. Mach added that while the education and training requirement would apply to boards and comparable bodies, the legislation does not provide for the education of members on their rights and responsibilities, which is just as important.

Councilmember Rodney Roberts asked how much of a new workload this legislation would create for the county. Turner said that was one of many unknowns and that he could only say that there has been little use of the dispute resolution process in Montgomery and Charles Counties.

GHI Board Member Aaron Marcavitch, who also serves as chair of GHI's recently established Legislative and Government Affairs Committee, said another major concern is the potential for long turnaround time for county review on top of what is already a substantial time for GHI to review the complaint. He said it takes Montgomery County 169 days to process a case. There are 700 common ownership communities in Prince George's County, adding up to a great deal of time and cost.

Councilmember Edward Putens said this sounded to him as though they had created a trap the size of a car to deal with a problem the size of a mouse and in the process were creating a monster. He suggested that the county back up and rethink the process and move forward with a qualified, experienced task force and clear goals. He pointed out that the documents lacked good definitions of all the many parties involved: owners, members, renters, occupants, sub-letters, etc., since these laws don't just impact co-ops. Councilmember Judith Davis commented that these definitions and distinctions also play a role in the important issue of determining who even has status to appeal to the county.

Turner replied that they always have the option of making changes or amending the legislation.

Heading off a tendency to get too far into the weeds of the issue, Skolnik intervened, saying that this was not the venue for continuing the discussion. Instead, he said to Turner, "You've heard the tenor of the room. You may well end up with GHI being a major supporter if you let us into the process. We have a lot of experience that could be of benefit to you." He added that Putens and others were right to stress that these actions affect not only coops and should be of broad interest.

Davis thanked the GHI Board for making the city aware of the legislation. She and other councilmembers said they had heard of it but were not aware of its implications.

volume you need, then scoop out the dirt, haul it away." Dunn also said maintenance is critical. Without maintenance the forebays will fill back with sediment.

This work will include maintaining the native vegetation that will be planted to replace removed invasive species as well as "doing inspections to monitor the sediment depth." "We will do a test on the depth of the sediment. When it reaches that 50 percent then we go into a maintenance operation to remove that before it fills up again to this degree," said the general contractor representative Theodore Scott, executive vice-president of Stormwater Maintenance and Consulting.

The project, whose planning phase started in November 2015, is projected to take four weeks for each forebay, barring weather issues, said Scott. The initial pre-construction meeting is scheduled for the week of July 4 and the construction should start soon after that.

The initial plan involved clearing a lot of trees, said Ken Dunn, managing member of Soltész. "Trees are a resource, water is a resource. You want to try to limit the removal of one for the other, so we really tightened up our limited disturbance," said Dunn. "We are doing a little bit of clearing but we are going to come in with a mitigation plan." The mitigation plan was conceived because both Greenbelt and the Army Corps of Engineers wanted it, said Dunn. The plan will involve installing native plants to replace vegetation that will be removed and maintenance, said Dunn.

Concerns had been raised as to access to the path that goes along two sides of the northern forebay, including over the bridge that covers part of the drainage into the lake. Dunn said, "99 percent of the time, this is going to remain open to the public," although "there will be an occasion when we may have to shut down the path for a brief period of time while construction equipment moves back and forth, just for safety purposes."

There should not be access issues at the second forebay as the paths are much farther away, said Theodore Scott, executive vice-president of Stormwater Maintenance and Consulting.

When asked about the impact on local wildlife, Dunn said, "We generally know what's here because we've all worked in these kind of environments. We've taken a lot of time to be careful about any amphibians and or any animal life that resides in or around the area of work." The company wants to ensure "we don't damage their habitat as much as we possibly can but mostly we just don't want to damage them." Dunn said they plan to relocate the wildlife and, "If they come back we'll move them again." When asked how this would be achieved, Neil Weinstein, the executive director of the Low Impact Development Center said, "We will hire a company that specializes in inventory and relocating before we can begin construction."

The project is being funded by the clean water fee associated with property taxes, according to the Clean Water Partnership and Prince George's County websites.

"This meeting right now is our first attempt to reach the community at large," but more are planned, said Luisa Robles, the sustainability coordinator for Greenbelt. "There is going to be a continuation of education," said Terri Hruby, the assistant planning director for Greenbelt.

"There will be a nice permanent signage at the end," said Tasha Brokenberry, community outreach manager for the Clean Water Partnership. "For us, as well as the county, it is a win-win situation that we're adding a benefit to the Greenbelt community where we are restoring the forebays as well as achieving the compliance goals of the county of treating impervious acres." Counterfeit Money

June 23, 5:38 p.m., 6000 block Greenbelt Road. A woman attempted to pay her bill at African Braids with counterfeit money. When told that the currency was counterfeit, she paid the bill with genuine money and left.

Burglary

June 22, 12:15 p.m., 9100 block Springhill Lane. A man inside the bedroom of a residence heard someone who was possibly using a key to enter through the front door. It was later discovered that a cell phone had been taken.

June 29, 10 a.m., 6600 block Lake Park Drive. A purse containing cash and jewelry was taken from a closet in a residence.

Vehicle Crime

A stolen 2011 Jeep Cherokee was recovered after an officer, who attempted to stop a different vehicle for a traffic violation on Greenbelt Road near Kenilworth Avenue, saw the Cherokee go through a red traffic light and pull over to the side of the road. When the officer went to it, it was found abandoned. A computer check revealed that it had been reported stolen to the Montgomery County Police Department.

Two thefts from vehicles were reported. Rear Virginia tag VNN9279 was taken in the 6200 block Springhill Court, and stereo equipment and hand tools were taken in the 6200 block Breezewood Drive after a passenger side window was broken out.

Five incidents of vandalism were reported. On June 24 a tire was slashed in the 6200 block Breezewood Drive and a rear bumper was damaged in the 6100 block Breezewood Drive.

In Maplewood Court windows were broken out, paint was scratched and both side mirrors were broken off of one vehicle on June 26. Several dents were made in the body of a vehicle in the 7900 block Mandan Road on June 28 and also on June 29 in the 5900 block Cherrywood Terrace.

Homicide Suspect Arrested

An arrest warrant was obtained on June 17, charging Clayton Everette Muse II (AKA Zoey Riley) with the April 27 homicide of a 43-year-old man in the 6900 block Hanover Parkway. He is currently awaiting extradition from Washington, D.C., to Maryland.

Charges against Muse in Maryland include first and second degree murder, assault and handgun possession. He had been arrested in D.C. on unrelated charges stemming from a warrant in Stafford County, Virginia.

Call Greenbelt Police detectives at 240-542-2133 if you have information related to this crime.

Tuesday, the current issue file folder is brimming with stories and photographs. Meanwhile the Ad Desk has been working since Monday afternoon, taking in display and classified ads, figuring out which regular ads are supposed to run and working on sizing and costing the incoming material. At the end of Tuesday evening, usually around 11 p.m., the editor considers the number of inches of paid advertising, contemplates the body of copy and photos – especially material that is time-sensitive – and decides how many pages the paper will have and prioritizes the stories. These days the papers are typically 12 or 16 pages – with the occasional election-time whopper going up to 28 pages. But in harder times, there were some weeks when it was a struggle to get to four pages – the bare minimum.

Wednesday: The editorial crew hands off to the production team. Even before Wednesday, staff are setting regular ads and standard elements into the template for the coming paper. Early Wednesday morning, the remaining display ads, classified ads, prioritized stories and their selected photographs are jigsaw-puzzled into the paper. The ads go in first, built from the bottom inside corner of a page upwards and radially outwards toward the outside corner – with color ads going on color pages. Next are the big stories and if they don't fit on the front page they 'jump' further back. Church page gets the church ads and obituaries, Community Events are streamed in and Neighbors and Letters are laid into their spots and 'jumped' to new pages as necessary. Now the amount of space left is getting tighter, stories are getting smaller and less critical and the chinks are getting filled in. Greenbelt events get priority and if there are little crevices left, the miscellaneous tidbits from further afield are popped in – little spaces get seasonal or topical clip art like violins or snowflakes. At the end of the day, the proofers go over the final draft looking for errors and omissions and making sure all the ads are present and correct, names are correctly spelled and continuations continue. Once those corrections are made, the camera ready copy file is uploaded to the printer's website.

Thursday: The paper is printed around 4 a.m. and the papers are bundled and trucked from the printer in Virginia to the circulation manager who hits the road late morning, Thursday, doling out full or partial 50-paper bundles to each of over 50 drop-off points at carrier's homes, stores and other locations. Carriers distribute most of these papers house to house city-wide – with the target of all papers delivered by Friday evening. Early Thursday, the new paper is uploaded to the web. The production crew archives the ingredients of the last week's paper to a long and a short term archive, leaving only unused copy in the current issue folder. All is ready for the new week.

And then we do it again. Including the paper you are reading right now, the News Review has now done this publication cycle four thousand, one hundred and forty times without missing a beat.

And counting.

Tigers and Indians Game Delays Fail to Dampen Crackerjack Ball

by Matt Elliott

In a season that suffered several rained out games, it was unsurprising that the final two rounds of Greenbelt Youth Baseball's 2016 Major League playoffs were frequently affected by weather. The semifinal round featured the fourth seed Cubs challenging the first seed Tigers, and the third seed Orioles challenging the second seed Indians.

Game one of the Cubs-Tigers series saw the Cubs pitching trio of Damian Brockington, Antwain Smith, and Tyron King neutralize the Tigers' potent offense, leading to a Cubs 9-4 win. Game two was postponed for two days by rain and wet field conditions. When played, the Tigers pitchers - Mark Franklin, Bryant Boston, and Barak Boston - were able to keep the Cubs in check and the Tigers took the game by a score of 10-6. The third game was another well pitched game, with the Cubs again relying on the pitching expertise of Brockington, King, and Smith, while the Tigers pitchers were Franklin, Bryant Boston, and Chase Williams. The Tigers captured a 7-6 victory.

Rain also postponed the first game of the Orioles-Indians series. Once played, the Indians captured a 9-6 victory. In game two, which was also delayed by weather, the Indians trailed entering the top of the sixth inning by a 7-5 score. However, they scored 4 runs, taking a 9-7 lead. The Orioles scored two in the bottom half of the frame to force an extra inning. With two outs and bases loaded in the top of the seventh, Logan Beasley of the Indians tripled to drive in three runs. The Orioles scored two in the bottom half, but could not push across the tying run, so the victory went to the Indians.

The Indians-Tigers championship series was a re-match of the 2015 championship, which the Indians had won. In game one the Tigers grabbed an early lead with 4 runs in the first. They added to that lead with 4 tallies in each of the third and fourth innings. Meanwhile, the pitching combo of Barak Boston, Chase Williams, and Mark Franklin held the Indians scoreless until the fifth, when they plated 2 runs. The Tigers then scored 5 runs in the bottom of the frame to finish a 17-2 win.

A thunderstorm wiped out an early Indians' 6-0 lead in the second game. The game was restarted from the beginning the next evening. Even though their advantage from the previous night was taken off the board, the Indians continued their high scoring ways and used excellent pitching by Logan Beasley, A.J. Bender, and John Osuji to take a 17-5 victory.

In the deciding game the Indians scored a single run in the top of the first to take the early lead. However, pitcher Barak Boston held the Indians to that single score through his two innings. Chase Williams took over pitching for the Tigers in the third inning and kept the Indians off the board into the fourth inning, when they scored 2. Meanwhile, the pitching of John Osuji kept the Tigers off the board through three innings. However, the Tigers tied the score at 3 in the bottom of the fourth. In the top of the fifth inning the Indians scored another run to re-take the lead, but pitcher Mark Franklin limited the scoring to that single tally. In the bottom of the inning, the Tigers offense erupted for 5 runs to take an 8-4 lead. The Tigers then held the Indians scoreless with some sparkling defense by centerfielder Ben Larkin. First, Larkin fielded an overthrow on an attempt to catch a baserunner stealing second base; when the baserunner attempted to advance to third base, Larkin threw to the base to get the out. The batter then hit a fly ball on which Larkin made a nice catch. Pitcher Franklin then struck out the next batter to clinch the 8-4 victory and championship for the Tigers. Especially notable performances were put in by the catchers on both teams: Stephanie Osuji for the Indians and Antoine Franklin for the Tigers.

The sponsors of the Indians are Generous Joe's and the Tigers' sponsor is the Greenbelt Federal Credit Union. Greenbelt Youth Baseball would like to thank all its sponsors for their ongoing support.
