ERHS Grad Kenny Harris II Named Forbes 30 Under 30

by Brogan Gerhart

For a little over a decade, Kenneth “Kenny” Harris II has been working at Goddard Space Flight Center. Harris’s career has spanned from interning with NASA’s High School Internship Program at the age of 16 to working on five different satellite missions, assuming the role of senior satellite engineer and advocating for the importance of mentorship in the STEM field by age 27.

Now, 10 years after graduating from Eleanor Roosevelt High School (ERHS), Harris has been named to the Forbes 2020 list of 30 under 30 in Science for his work on the James Webb Space Telescope Mission, on which he was one of NASA’s youngest to integrate a satellite of that magnitude.

“It’s very humbling,” Harris said, thankful for all the opportunities given to him by his superiors and all of the support from his mentors growing up.

Humble Beginnings

Harris said that his father, who also worked at Goddard, was one of his biggest role models. “Watching him go to work every day and do what he loves, and spending time with him after work, was critical to where I ended up in the long term,” Harris said.

Before becoming a part of the Goddard team, Harris said that his first job was working as a janitor at Bowie High School. “I was scraping gum off the bottom of desks and cleaning out lockers,” Harris said, remembering that he’d waited until the

Census Day Approaches

by Brogan Gerhart

The 2020 Census requires that all households respond to a questionnaire about persons residing at their address as of April 1, Census Day. Prince George’s County is collaborating with the U.S. Census Bureau to make sure residents know what to do and when.

In 2010, the last time the census was taken, Prince George’s County had an estimated undercount rate of 2.3 percent, while nationally there was an overcount rate of about 0.01 percent, ac-ording to the Census Bureau.

The county and the City of Greenbelt are making efforts so that this year the results are better.

According to the Census 2020 website (2020census.gov/en/important-dates.html), in mid-March residents will receive by mail an official request from the Census Bureau, detailing how to respond to the 2020 Census online, by mail or by phone.

Maryland’s Legacy of Slavery Told in Black History Program

by Michelle Siegel

Este artículo está disponible en español en nuestra página web www.greenbeltnewsreview.com.

Chris Haley, the director of the Maryland State Archive’s Study of the Legacy of Slavery in Maryland project, brought a historical note to Sunday’s Greenbelt Black History Month program, centering his keynote presentation on what life was like for African Americans across Prince George’s County and Maryland prior to the state’s abolition of slavery in 1864.

Haley, speaking before dozens of community members in the Community Center gymnasium, introduced the legacy of slavery in Maryland by discussing famed African American abolitionists Frederick Douglass and Harriet Tubman.

“Two of the most iconic persons in all of African American history are native-born to Maryland, in neighboring counties in our Eastern Shore,” Haley said.

“I did not know that until I came to the [Maryland State] Archives.”

However, Haley made it clear that the legacy of slavery in Maryland extended far beyond these household names. Maryland, he said, financially thrived on the institution of slavery. In 1860, there were nearly 90,000 enslaved people living in the state, with a

Council Reviews Revised Plan For Beltway Plaza Development

by Matthew Arbach

The Greenbelt City Council had another opportunity on February 3 to meet with representatives from the proposed Beltway Plaza redevelopment team to discuss their revised Preliminary Plan of Subdivision (PPS). The representatives included Quantum General Counsel “Kap” Kapastin, Michael Lenhart of Lenhart Traffic Consulting (LTC) and Alex Villegas and Matt Leakan from Rodgers Consulting (RC). City Planner Molly Porter was on hand to present the most current response from city staff, the Parks and Recreation Advisory Board (PRAB) and the Advisory Planning Board (APB). APB Chair Keith Chernikoff was there to elaborate on the APB’s findings.

The current plan proposes 2,500 multi-family units and 700,000 square feet of retail over the 53.88-acre area. The redevelopment applicant has offered 20,000 square feet of interior recreation space to the city.

Porter laid out city staff concerns about the Traffic Impact

Study (TIS) done by LTC. In general, staff believed the TIS did not fully examine how Breezewood Drive and Cherrywood Lane would be impacted by this huge influx of residents and commercial traffic. Staff employed the engineering consultant, Greenman-Pederson Inc., to reassess these outstanding questions.

Letters to the Editor

In Gratitude

In all the years many of us have lived here (beginning for some of us in 1977), we have known Greenbelt to be a special place, a genuine community where people care about each other and work hard to keep close to heart the meaning of community. Yet, we were not prepared for the overwhelming response and support we received from all sectors of the city following the sudden great loss of our beloved Billy Smith.

We are especially grateful for the support and great efforts extended by the mayor and other members of the city council, by the city administration and staff, by the Greenbelt Police Department, by the coaches and administrators of the Boys and Girls Clubs, by the administrators and students of Eleanor Roosevelt High School, Greenbelt Middle School, Greenbelt Elementary School and by the Springhill Lake Recreation Center to make the day of the funeral one of lasting meaning for all of us.

These efforts, together with the outpouring of support by our Greenbelt and Berwyn Heights neighbors, have been an essential complement to the great contributions made by Billy's many friends, neighbors and colleagues, as well as other family members and friends.

There is neither space nor time to list here the names of all those who have given so much of themselves to us in this time of need, but all should know that we are deeply touched by your concern for us and your remembrance of Billy.

Neighbor's Behavior

It all started at the Lerner University Square Apartment Complex pool in the summertime. The man who lived beneath me in my apartment complex would sit on his bike on the other side of the fence and watch me and my children. He would engage in extremely odd conversations with me and other strangers about killing animals and about death.

At the same time this was going on, people in our apartment were doing drugs and at night there were constantly loud noises. It would get so bad that our furniture would be shaking long after our three kids went to bed. Our neighbor would come upstairs and knock on our door – only after he'd see my husband leave the apartment.

He was continuously monitoring our door. One time I even found a drone on the roof that had a perfect view of my husband's and my window. It got so bad, I was scared to leave my apartment, so I called the apartment complex and they sent an officer. When the officer came, he told me I would have to document my neighbor's behavior for 7 to 9 months before taking any legal action. It was calm for a little while after that, but when I would walk around town, he'd intentionally bump into me. Once he even followed me into the Youth Center. It was weird, I knew he was following me. When I'd tell him to leave, he'd just linger and stay.

The last time I saw him he was in a dumpster staring at me. I ended up moving out of my apartment. I paid my lease up until the end of the month, but they charged us an extra month's rent for returning our keys early. I felt like I was betrayed again after going through such a difficult time. I don't know where to turn. I've tried so many places and they've failed me. I don't want anyone else, especially a woman or a stay-at-home mother like myself to have my old apartment.

Need Scale Diagram

The Greenbelt Farmers Market is beginning to ramp up for opening on Mother's Day, May 10. But we could use a little help from someone public-spirited who has architectural or drafting software and knows how to use it. We need a good scale diagram for the market (the permit office has upped its standards for our submissions) and if we had a good underlying scale diagram as a foundation – we could then easily make each year's scale drawing of tents and vehicles on top of it.

We have an old city plat originally used to lay out the parking lot and it has most site measurements on it. This could be used as a source (wouldn't have to

Parasite (Auditorium)

2020 Oscar winner for Best Picture, the first non-English language film to take the top prize. Meet the Park family: the picture of aspirational wealth. And the Kim family: rich in street smarts but not much else. Be it chance or fate, these two houses are brought together and the Kims sense a golden opportunity. Moira MacDonald of The Seattle Times praises the film: "You'll watch knowing you're in the hands of a master filmmaker." In Korean with English subtitles.

Rated R. Running time: 132 minutes

American Factory (Pop-up)

2020 Oscar winner for Documentary (Feature). This is the first film released from the new production company Higher Ground, founded by Barack and Michelle Obama. In post-industrial Ohio, a Chinese billionaire opens a new factory in the husk of an abandoned General Motors plant, hiring 2,000 blue-collar Americans. Early days of hope and optimism give way to setbacks as high-tech China clashes with working-class America.

Not rated. Running time: 115 minutes

Carl Boushell

Carl Boushell

Carl Boushell died on February 11, 2020, after a brief illness. He was born to Bertha and Harold Boushell on February 3, 1930, in Stroudsburg, Pa. After graduating high school, he honorably served in the U.S. Air Force from March 1954 to January 1958. He was stationed in Liverpool, England, where he met and married Audrey Gibson on March 31, 1956. They moved to Greenbelt in 1958 and Carl worked at the U.S. Government Printing Office in Washington, D.C., for 30 years.

Through the years he enjoyed nature and the outdoors, including hunting with his brother, jogging around the lake, gardening with Audrey, and volunteering for the Boy Scouts of America, Little League Softball and, until very recently, for Meals on Wheels of College Park. Carl and Audrey have been members of Mowatt Memorial United Methodist Church since moving to Greenbelt.

He is survived by his wife of 62 years, Audrey, and by his daughters Judy Fox, Lorraine (Michael) and Valerie (Kumar), son Clinton (Susan), grandsons Michael (Christine), Eric, Nicholas and Stephen, and many nephews and nieces. Daughter Carla predeceased him.

Visitation will be at the Donald V. Borgwardt Funeral Home, on Friday, February 14 from 4 to 8 p.m. The funeral service will be held on Saturday, February 15 at 11 a.m. at the Mowatt Memorial United Methodist Church on Ridge Road. In lieu of flowers, donations can be made to Meals on Wheels of College Park. It is a 501(c)(3) nonprofit organization located at 9601 Rhode Island Ave, College Park, MD 20740.

Community Church Holds Pancake Dinner

Greenbelt Community Church, United Church of Christ is holding its annual Shrove Tuesday Pancake Dinner on Tuesday, February 25 from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. in the Social Hall. Dinner will include pancakes, sausage and scalloped apples. A freewill offering will be taken.

A quick search of the web will find articles on Shrove Tuesday/Fat Tuesday, a celebration for Christians to clean out cupboards of rich foods such as eggs, butter or fats, ingredients that can be used in making pancakes. Using them up makes it easier for people to fast or give up something for Lent beginning the next day on Ash Wednesday.

Those wishing to celebrate a great community tradition or try something new, come for dinner and help the United Church of Christ clean out the cupboards on Shrove Tuesday.

Peace Camp For Children

There will be a Peace Camp sponsored by Little Friends for Peace from July 13 to 17 for children ages 4 to 14. It will be hosted by the Greenbelt Community Church, United Church of Christ, 1 Hillside Road. The Peace Camp uses art, games and presentations to teach children mindfulness, anger management, conflict resolution and self-empowerment. The theme for this Peace Camp is My Two Hands Hold the Earth: Practicing Care for Ourselves, Each Other and Our Earth. For more information and to register or volunteer, visit lffp.org or contact peacecamp@lffp.org.

Chili Cook-off

Get ready for the Mowatt Memorial United Methodist Church Second Annual Chili Cook-off to be held Saturday, February 15 at 4 p.m. For a small fee, attendees get to judge multiple chili contestants and eat all the chili they care to, with side dishes and dessert available. There will be a bake sale for take-home treats as well. A fun singing hootenanny will follow at 6:30.

Proceeds from the event go to the Colombia Grace Foundation, which sponsors Greenbelt's own Katie Zevallos who is teaching in an orphanage in Colombia, South America. Come out for an evening of fun at 40 Ridge Road. Call 301-474-9410 for further information.

Condolences to the family and friends of Carl Boushell who died on February 11.

Congratulations to the ERHS bocce team on winning the county championship.

And congratulations to ERHS Baseball Coach Andrew Capece on being inducted into the Maryland State Association of Baseball Coaches Hall of Fame.

Reel and Meal Film Explores Lynching

On Monday, February 17, Reel and Meal will show Jacqueline Olive's 2019 documentary, Always in Season, which explores lynching in the U.S. with a focus on the brutal events of 1934 and 1946. The screening takes place at the New Deal Café, 113 Centerway in Greenbelt's Roosevelt Center. The Reel and Meal is a monthly film series about environmental, social justice and animal rights issues. An optional vegan meal is available for a fee at 6:30 p.m. preceding the free screening beginning at 7 p.m.

More than 4,400 African American men, women and children were lynched by white mobs between 1877 and 1950. Like the sport of hunting, black people were "always in season." By showing the annual reenactment of the lynching in 1946 at Moore's Ford Bridge in Monroe, Ga., the film makes vivid the traumatic events that victimized the entire African American community.

Discussion following the film will center on Bryan Stevenson's Equal Justice Initiative (EJI). The 2019 film Just Mercy depicts Stevenson's work to provide legal assistance to innocent death row prisoners in Monroeville, Ala. His National Memorial for Peace and Justice, which opened to the public on April 26, 2018, in Montgomery, Ala., is the nation's first memorial dedicated to the legacy of enslaved black people. The EJI asks that victims of lynching in our county be recognized by collecting soil from lynching sites and erecting historical markers.

The discussion leader will be Jay Mallin, who is making a documentary on the three known lynchings in Montgomery County. Efforts to acknowledge the history of racial lynching in Prince George's County will be discussed.

On Saturday, February 22 there will be a meeting of the lynching memorial project at 14211 School Lane, Upper Marlboro, from 2 to 4 p.m. The film and its discussion may motivate people to attend and get involved. See bit.ly/pg-co-mtg for registration.

The February Reel and Meal program is sponsored by the Peace and Justice Coalition of Prince George's County. For more information about the film see alwaysinseasonfilm.com/ or contact justpeacepg@earthlink.net. Other sponsors of the Reel and Meal monthly series are Beaverdam Creek Watershed Watch Group, Green Vegan Networking and the Utopia Film Festival. HARRIS continued from page 1 last minute to look for a job after his parents' prompting. After that summer, Harris applied to NASA's internship program.

Harris was a part of the Science and Technology Program at ERHS for the entirety of his high school career. Living just outside of Greenbelt at that time, Harris remembered his four years as a high schooler fondly. "It's funny, my favorite teachers weren't even STEM teachers," he said. Harris cited Hubert Willoughby, who teaches Spanish, and Troy Bradbury, who taught AP language and composition, as his two favorites. Both have been teaching at ERHS for about 19 years.

Ideal Student

Willoughby described Harris as "the ideal student," saying that Harris was engaged and attentive both in his schoolwork and in his conduct.

"[Kenny] wasn't there to get a grade, he was there to learn," Bradbury said. "The part I remember most about him is that he was always the first to raise his hand and say, 'I want to know about that' or 'what about this' or 'how would that apply?' Rather than just believe everything I said, Kenny would question it."

Bradbury said he also remembered that Harris always sat next to his best friend, Josh. Joshua Thomas, also an ERHS graduate and the District 2 Board of Education representative for a little over a year, said that their friendship has remained strong since middle school.

"I was always the shortest kid in the class," Thomas said, laughing about his first impression of Harris. "But when I first met Kenny, I thought, 'This is great.' I had another short buddy with me."

Thomas, who had been in the same magnet program as Harris in high school, said that he had enjoyed watching their friendship grow, listing some of his favorite memories with Harris: making goofy videos as the "Jower Rangers" in the late Johnnie Jowers' engineering class, catching a ride home with Harris after school and, above all else, being a member of ERHS's all-male step team, Dem' Raider Boyz, of which Harris was co-captain.

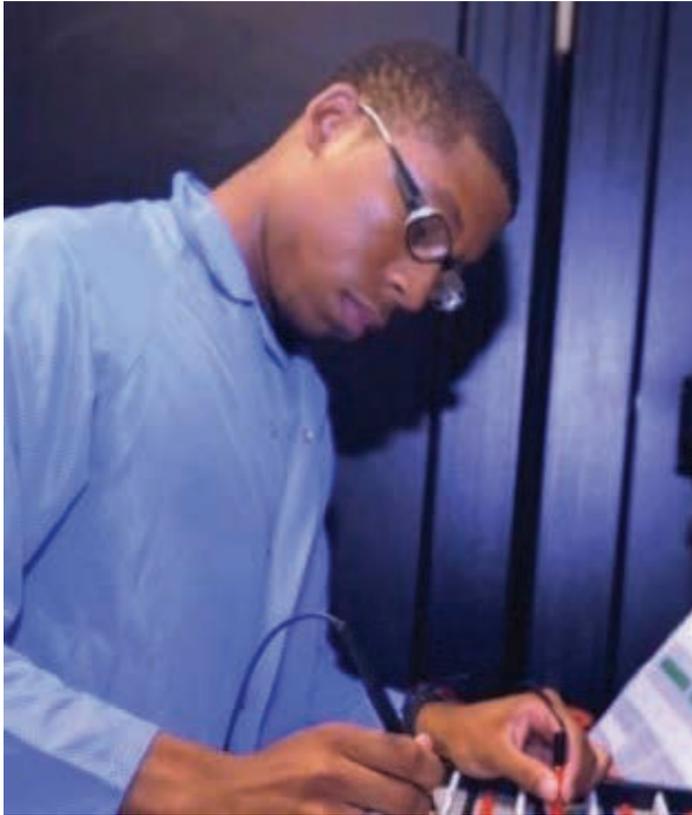

"When I think about Kenny, he's stayed consistent throughout the years," Thomas said. "He was a high-achieving student who always prioritized work but also knew how to have fun and have a good time."

And from Harris's perspective, he said that the work has been fun since the beginning. "I would take four classes at [ERHS] in the morning and then spend the rest of the day at Goddard," Harris said. Internships throughout his educational career led to college projects, both at the University of Maryland Baltimore County and the Johns Hopkins Whiting School of Engineering, which eventually turned into a full-time position at Goddard.

"I am still very passionate about what I do," Harris said, saying that the only thing he does differently now is making himself more visible and accessible to younger students. "[That way] they can see what I'm doing in the field, see where I came from and, if they feel so obliged, try to mimic that as much as they can."

Free Time

Harris's personal passions ex-

Harris during his internship at NASA in 2010 when he was a student at ERHS tend beyond the STEM field. In his free time, Harris said that he can be found cooking at his home in Upper Marlboro or spending time with his wife, Heidi, and two dogs, Naamah and Silas. Harris also owns and operates a wedding photography company and enjoys traveling internationally.

"I'm a normal 20-something-year-old, in all honesty," Harris said. "I'm just really into my work and I really want to make a difference in the STEM engagement field as a whole."

Currently, Harris continues his work as lead database engineer on the Joint Polar Satellite System, sending commands to a satellite in Earth's orbit to monitor natural disasters and provide local news stations with the daily weather.

Harris said that outside of the goal of his continual climb at Goddard is a burning desire to be an astronaut. When asked where he'd like to go, Harris said he'll "shoot for the moon for now," although his highest priority is still learning all he can in his current role on Earth.

Harris's humility, work ethic, level of commitment and unwavering determination are what his friends and mentors said set him apart from anyone else they know.

"For someone [my] age, he's accomplished so much, but would never make you feel like he's aware of it," Thomas said. "He does his job, but never makes you feel like that's a greater thing than what anyone else is doing."

Role Model

When reflecting on Harris's achievement on being named Forbes 30 under 30, Bradbury said he's earned it for all the right reasons and serves as a role model for African American men and women in engineering.

Bradbury said, "You can either look at [a field] and say, 'There's nobody like me, I don't belong,' or you can say, 'There's not many, but I can be one more.' And I think Kenny embodies that positive mental idea where he can look at anything and say, 'Yeah, there's room for me.'"

When asked about what he'd say to an ERHS student who's maybe working as a janitor and dreaming of space, Harris said the advice he'd give them is this:

"Where you start doesn't have to be where you end. Be bold, be vigilant for good mentors and make an impression on them that makes them want to pour into your life and make a difference. It takes a lot of hard work, but if you keep pushing forward, you can change your life."

Why I Donate To the Co-op

In her January 9 letter, How to save the Co-op, Linda Tokarz writes: "Maybe the best, or only way we can insure the Co-op's survival is to commit to supporting our own, home-grown community-owned store, it helps draw customers to small businesses, and shares its profits with Co-op members."

Of course I agree with her, as I have shopped at the Co-op four to seven times a week since I moved in September 2005 from Springhill Lake to just a 2-minute walk from the Co-op.

Notably the Co-op is striving to become even better in several ways, for example, they have just increased their hours.

Let's see now, four to seven times a week would come to a total of 3,000 to 5,000 times that I have shopped at our Co-op. Let's just say that it was 4,000 times.

Now, let's suppose that I would be willing to pay an extra 50 cents for every time I enjoyed and benefited from shopping at the Co-op over all those years. That would come to $2,000, and that is the amount that I just happily donated to our Co-op. Perhaps, based upon your own past and projected use of the Co-op, you will find yourself able to make such a donation.

I have supported zero automobiles since I moved here in 2005, and my lifestyle is frugal, and that is why I can donate to organizations and endeavors which I believe make Greenbelt great.

When one is using a really nice facility which others, over the decades, have created and nurtured, then I believe that he or she should be willing to help pay for its continuation.

It will be a sad day for me when and if our Co-op must close its doors, but I will have the satisfaction of knowing that I have done my part, as I embark on grocery shopping which will be eight times as challenging.

Council Chambers Bedecked With ERHS Student Artwork

by Melissa Sites

Nine artworks by student artists from Eleanor Roosevelt High School (ERHS) are currently on display in the Greenbelt City Council Chambers, in a show supported by the Recreation Department. Students include Saira Rashid, Kamalani Sittman, Julia Groen, Travis Hansen, Ryan Mesidor, Irene May, Zada Prout, Jamie Voytsekhovska and Alexandra Young.

To fill the nine spaces available in the Chambers, the three art teachers from ERHS each chose three exceptional pieces produced by students during the first half of the year. Christine Wilkin teaches Art 1, Smurna Vanik teaches Art 2 and Monique Connealy teaches Computer Graphics, AP Studio Art and basic design and basic sculpture.

The pieces chosen by Wilkin included two collages and a cut-away bedroom scene. Wilkin described the process of producing the collages: "I have the students write a story about an important memory and something that is important to them, and then they collect pictures that help tell the stories. They used pictures from magazines, online or pictures they could copy. We did several collages as exercises in their sketchbooks to try different collage techniques, and then assembled the finished products." One such collage from the show, by Alexandra Young, may be seen on the Greenbelt Recreation Arts website greenbeltmd.gov/arts.

Connealy added, "I think it's really important to get your students' stuff out. I remember in high school when my teacher helped get my things out to be displayed, it made me feel good about my art. I want my students to feel that way, too." Connealy selected from pieces her students asked her to consider, including colorful and symmetrical computer graphics pieces, which are printed on the high-end printer available at ERHS for student projects. Students begin the design, which may be pictorial or abstract, in one corner. They hand-draw it, then use a sharpie, scan it in, color it on Photoshop and use textures. Then, that corner is reflected in the other corners of the piece. To learn how to perfect an idea, they do three different versions. The printer and ink are supported by ERHS discretionary funds.

Tae'shaun Vann, a senior and AP art student, came to the show to cover it on social media. He is doing an academic internship with Friends of the New Deal Café Arts (FONDCA). Wilkin reported, "We usually post every week, trying to increase engagement on Instagram and Facebook and use more features like livestream and story, to engage with everyone in the target audience."

City Arts Supervisor Nicole DeWald stated that this third show focusing on local arts sponsored by Greenbelt Recreation is the first time students have shown artwork in the space. The first show featured art educators and the second involved photos and art renditions celebrating the 60th anniversary of Goddard Space Flight Center in 2019.

Black History Month

City, Museum Co-sponsor Desegregation Discussion

by Megan Searing Young

Along with the City of Greenbelt's Black History Month Committee, the Greenbelt Museum is sponsoring a panel discussion about Greenbelt's desegregation in the mid-1960s. The event will take place on Saturday, February 22 from 2 to 4 p.m. at the Community Center, Room 201. The event is free and no pre-registration is required. Reverend Angie Williams, who moved into Greenbelt Homes Inc. in 1966, is one of the panelists who will speak about her experiences. The panel will be moderated by Monica Montgomery, director of the Prince George's African American Museum and Cultural Center. Additional panelists are academics and scholars who will provide context for the discussion. Some members of the Greenbelt Fair Housing Committee, which began meeting in 1963, will also be in the audience.

The Museum is pleased to offer this event as part of Greenbelt's Black History Month Celebration because the city's segregated history is an important topic. The fact that Greenbelt was built by both African American and white workers, but was only open to white families, is a significant part of the community's history. In 2012, the Museum established an archive of African American history to collect information about Greenbelt's segregated beginnings and eventual desegregation. It has long been the Museum's goal to make sure that every visitor to the Museum is aware of Greenbelt's segregated history as well as its integration. It has produced a fact sheet about this history (available on the Museum's website), held docent trainings on the topic, added resources to the website and encouraged and facilitated research on African American history. Over the years, the Museum has also hosted a variety of lectures on African American history, including a talk on Jacob Lawrence (who began as a WPA artist), a lecture by Ty Gray-EL, a poet and activist who grew up in Langston Terrace (a New Deal community in Washington, D.C., for African Americans). More recently the Museum hosted Stewart Eisenberg, who spoke about redlining in the area and the Mapping Racism project.

There is much research yet to be done on this topic – for instance, did you know that there were 14 people of color who lived on the land that would become Greenbelt? That a section of the land that comprised Greenbelt's original plan was to be set aside for African American families? That one of Lenore Thomas Straus' bas relief mock-ups for the front of Center School (now the Community Center) depicted a lynching scene with a judge and jury turning their backs to the crime? The Museum has a long way to go to raise awareness about Greenbelt's segregated past and it has both a scholarly obligation to tell the whole story of Greenbelt's history as well as a moral one in the name of social equity. In a setting where "utopia" and "town of tomorrow" and "ideal planned community" are phrases that are frequently used, it is even more important to acknowledge that the Greenbelt community was not an inclusive one.

If you are an African American living in or are from Greenbelt and would like to contact the Museum about your experiences or if anyone has information or photographs about African American history in Greenbelt, please contact the Museum by sending an email to info@greenbeltmuseum.org or by calling 301-507-6582.

Megan Searing Young is director of the Greenbelt Museum.

Deaf Brunch Group Celebrates 10 Years of Good Conversation

by Alice A. Mitchell

On January 26 a group that is an important part of Greenbelt history celebrated its anniversary. For 10 years, deaf and hearing people have been meeting on Sunday mornings to catch up on the week's events. From the fortunes and misfortunes of the Redskins, to local and national politics, to Greenbelt Homes Inc. (GHI) and City of Greenbelt happenings, it all gets a review over Brunch in American Sign Language (ASL), a visual, gestural language with its own grammar, syntax and humor.

Three neighbors started brunching together at the New Deal Café on Sundays, thinking that sooner or later, other ASL users would see the enjoyable conversation and join. The three neighbors did not officially become Deaf Brunch until native ASL user Sara Johnston, a deaf resident of GHI for 54 years, learned of the informal group and joined the morning of January 24, 2010. Other ASL users and learners slowly materialized as they learned of the wonderful conversations.

Over the past 10 years, Deaf Brunch has grown and thrived and now includes regular Sunday meals together at both the Café and at Cedars of Lebanon. Along the way, the Café purchased a round table for its dining area specifically for this group. Long narrow tables do not work well when you have to be able to see each other to communicate. Cedars of Lebanon has also become deaf-friendly by pulling together square tables on Brunch mornings to effectively create a bigger table that allows all participants to see each other.

Deaf Brunch now meets at Cedars on the first, third and fifth Sunday (10 a.m.) and at the Café on the second and fourth Sunday (11 a.m.). The mealtime conversation continues until noon or 1 p.m. Arrival and departure times are flexible with people coming and going during Brunch time. Brunchers order from the established Café or Cedars menu and pay on their own.

Deaf Brunch offers a conversational opportunity to complement, not substitute for, ASL learning that participants are pursuing on their own. Those learning opportunities are detailed on the Café website (newdealcafe.com/event/deaf-brunch/).

Deaf Brunch has become a launching ground for many important accomplishments in Greenbelt. Several years ago, Brunchers held collaborative meetings with GHI staff to establish an online sign language interpreter request form and procedure (ghi.coop/content/sign-language-and-oral-interpreters-deaf-ghi-members). The online submission and procedure worked so well that Deaf Brunch worked with the City of Greenbelt to establish a similar online form and procedure for the city (greenbeltmd.gov/government/departments-con-t/recreation-parks/interpreter-special-assistance-request). When the Old Greenbelt Theatre renovation was being planned, Deaf Brunch worked with city staff to review and discuss assistive listening device options and recommend preferred options. Today, Deaf Brunch considers Old Greenbelt Theatre Executive Director Dr. Caitlin McGrath to be a true ally and champion for her continued efforts to seek information and input from Deaf Brunch.

Greenbelt Police and Fire/EMS have worked with Deaf Brunch to exchange ideas for deaf residents and first responders to work together productively. Two meetings were held, one at the Café and one at Greenbelt Police headquarters, as part of this continued information exchange. The Greenbelt Deaf Community Facebook page (facebook.com/greenbeltdeaf) strives to keep everyone informed and attracts additional interested ASL users.

It's been an active 10 years and the Greenbelt Deaf Community, host of Deaf Brunch, looks forward to many more.

market value giving their owners the purchasing power of more than $2 billion today.

"How easy would it have been to let that go?" Haley asked rhetorically.

Since being established in 2001, the Study of the Legacy of Slavery in Maryland, in Haley's words, "has unearthed identifiable information on over 400,000 individuals," in part by mining newspapers for listings that advertised rewards for the return of escaped slaves or announced the capture of individuals who were suspected of being fugitive slaves.

Going over a selection of these runaway ads and committal notices, Haley used stories of escaped slaves with blue eyes and white wives to illustrate the eclectic history of slavery in Maryland.

"Some of these things I never knew [before coming to the Maryland State Archives], and even today, they shock and surprise me," Haley said.

Slavery in Maryland was abolished by the Maryland Constitution of 1864, at a time when Prince George's County, according to Haley, "had the most enslaved population in all of the state by a 10-to-1 ratio."

"Now, today, according to an article in The Washington Post in 2015, Prince George's County is one of the richest majority African American counties in the U.S.," Haley said.

Haley ended with a quote from a poem Prince George's County Poet Laureate Joy Matthews Alford read earlier in the program: "We're not going back to yesterday."

Mayor Colin Byrd spoke highly of Haley's presentation. "I thought that Mr. Haley's remarks were extremely informative, and they helped us understand not only more about two of Maryland's native children, Harriet Tubman and Frederick Douglass, but also about the legacy of slavery here in Maryland, not only on a macro level, but through personal individualized stories that really help illustrate what it was all about on the ground level," Byrd said.

The program also included performances focused less on educating audience members with historical facts and more on evoking their emotions with cultural demonstrations. Performers included youth band Kids in the Dream, Poet Laureate Alford, Belly Dancers of Color Collective, internationally recognized jump rope team Greenbelt S.I.T.Y. Stars and Eleanor Roosevelt High School's gospel choir.

Kate Frederick, a retiree from

Chris Haley, the director of the Maryland State Archive's Study of the Legacy of Slavery in Maryland, greets an audience member prior to delivering his keynote presentation.

College Park, described the overall program as "fabulous."

"It was a terrific event," Frederick said. "The entertainment and historical aspects regarding slavery were well interspersed into the program."

Greenbelter Karen Beckham echoed these sentiments. "I enjoyed the program immensely," said Beckham, a federal employee. "I thought it was a great historical lesson - not only for the young, but for the old, as well. And it was a wonderful opportunity to bring the community together for us to learn and to grow, and to not only learn about black history, but American history, because it's all of our history."

Mayor Colin Byrd, right, accompanied by Del. Nicole Williams (Delegate - Prince George's) and Mayor Pro Tem Emmett Jordan, kicks off the Greenbelt Black History Month program.

Black History Month

Dem Club to Screen Film On WWII Black Battalion

by Sara Henry

The Eleanor & Franklin Roosevelt Democratic Club will celebrate Black History Month on Friday, February 21, at 7 p.m., at the Greenbriar Community Building, 7600 Hanover Parkway. It will present a film documenting the fascinating history of American's "Six-Triple Eight", the only all-black battalion of the Women's Army Corps (WAC), who were stationed in Europe during World War II.

Their story began with First Lady Eleanor Roosevelt and Dr. Mary McLeod Bethune, who successfully advocated for the admittance of African American women as enlisted personnel and officers in WAC, even though segregation prevailed in the rest of the army.

After basic and specialized training, they sailed for England in February, 1945, and survived encounters with Nazi U-boats and a V-1 missile attack. In Birmingham, England, and later in Rouen and Paris, France, their mission was to address a two- to three-year backlog of undelivered mail. The undelivered mail and packages, caused by the ever-changing location of nearly seven million troops as they advanced across Europe, created a serious morale problem. Working with local citizens and German POWs, the "6888" resolved the immense backlog while encountering some unique problems and interesting situations.

The unit returned to the U.S. a year later, and members have since been honored in London, Paris and at several events in the U.S. The U.S. Army Women's Museum at Ft. Lee, Va., includes an exhibit of wax figures showing several of the women at work during the war.

The film's producer, Edna W. Cummings, will be present to respond to questions and comments after the film.

Local Authors Featured At ASALH Book Signing

Greenbelt residents and authors Regina Shaw Small and Sabrina McIntyre will participate in the Association for the Study of African American Life and History's (ASALH) 94th Annual Black History Featured Author's Book Signing Event for Black History Month on Saturday, February 22. The event will be held at the Washington Renaissance Hotel in Washington, D.C., from 10 a.m. until noon.

After years of seeing the demise of family units and pondering over the continual loss of basic skills by the younger generation, Small decided to pen her book titled They Don't Know, a self-help book to combat the lack of basic skills, knowledge and manners for pre-teens, teenagers, young adults and parents. She doesn't know where all these books might end up, but her prayer is that it will be a blessing to many.

McIntyre's book is titled Adore Him – Taking Care of Our Temple Simplified. Her book is an easy path to health and wellness. It is a simple outline to creating a healthy lifestyle for self and family. Each letter in Adore Him has a significant meaning. She believes that talking to God is the best way to start the day and asking for his help and guidance in all affairs is imperative.

"When completing your census, count everyone who lives in your house on Census Day," Greenbelt officials recommend. There is also a special effort by Prince George's County to remind residents to count children below age 4.

Demographic analysis, implemented by the Census Bureau, estimated a net undercount of about 4.6 percent for young children in 2010, nationally. "This translates into a net undercount of almost 1 million young children," according to a report by the bureau.

More information about the 2020 Census can be found at census.gov. Census Bureau statistics for Greenbelt can be found at www.census.gov/quickfacts/fact/table/greenbelcitymaryland.US/PST045218.

Police Blotter

Based on information released by the Greenbelt Police Department, www.greenbeltmd.gov/police Dates and times are those when police were first contacted about incidents.

Burglary

February 4, 3:30 p.m., 100 block Westway. An unidentified person or maybe more than one person entered the residence by breaking out a bedroom window. Nothing appeared to have been taken, but the interior was vandalized.

Theft

January 29, 5 p.m., 6100 block Breezewood Drive. A package was taken from the front stoop of a residence.

February 2, 7:15 p.m. 7500 block Greenbelt Road. The victim of this crime advised police that he had been shopping at Safeway when he placed his cell phone in his shopping cart. He saw two people walk up next to his cart then quickly run from the store. The victim then discovered that his phone was gone. The suspects are described as a 6' 2" black male, and a 5' 10" black male with a thin build.

Assault

January 31, 6:25 p.m., 9200 block Edmonston Road. Hemojenes Bladimir Contreras Macado, 34, of Greenbelt was arrested and charged with four counts of First Degree Assault and two counts of Malicious Destruction by officers responding to a report of a person armed with a knife. Police officers observed the suspect with the knife and took him into custody. The person had allegedly threatened several victims with the knife and vandalized two vehicles. He was transported to the Department of Corrections for a hearing before a District Court Commissioner.

February 1, 11:09 p.m., 6200 block Springhill Court. The victim told police that he had met someone online via a dating app and agreed to meet her in an apartment building in the 6200 block of Springhill Court. While waiting for the date in a hallway of the apartment, three people entered the building dressed completely in black and wearing masks. The three punched the victim and took his cell phone and car keys. Then, one of the suspects pulled out a handgun and threatened the victim with it, then ran from the area with the other two people. The only descriptions are their height and gender: a 5' 4" male, a 5' 2" male, and a 5' 4" female.

Vehicle Crime

Between January 30 and February 5, 26 incidents of vandalism to a vehicle and 14 incidents of theft from a vehicle were reported.

Shooting on Feb. 10

On Monday, February 10 at approximately 9:56 a.m. officers responded to a report of a shooting in the 5900 block of Cherrywood Terrace. Officers located an adult male suffering from apparent gunshot wounds to his upper body. He was transported to University of Maryland Prince George's Hospital Center for treatment. The investigation is ongoing.

Drive-Thru Armed Robbery: Correction

by Brogan Gerhart

The Prince George's County Police Department corrected a report from February 5. The location of the armed robbery in their earlier press release had been incorrect. The drive-thru armed robbery on January 30, actually took place in the 6200 block of Greenbelt Road, according to Prince George's County Police Officer Antonia Washington, not 6900 as was originally listed.

Washington said the department will update the press release with the correct information as soon as possible.

Police ask that anyone with information regarding this case contact the Prince George's County Police CID-Robbery Unit at 301-772-4905. Please refer to case number 20-0006076. A cash reward is being offered, according to police.

key element of the discussion. Both council and APB brought up the need for a shuttle service that would provide transportation to and from the Greenbelt Metro Station. Council suggested that it also include Roosevelt Center and Franklin Park, thus uniting the city. Councilmember Edward Putens stressed that a shuttle was no longer an option but a necessity, considering this addition of 6,000 potential residents.

Affordable housing and senior housing was a pressing issue. Staff recommended that 25 percent of the total dwelling units should be for-sale units with that percentage not dropping below 15 percent if diverse housing types are introduced, like senior housing. At present, the PPS does not provide details on housing diversity or renter vs. owner occupancy, which raised concern with council. Resident Konrad Herling stated that part of the Greenbelt ethos is having "a good quality of life that is not contingent on how much someone is paying for housing."

PRAB recommended that the recreation space offered by the applicant be raised to 25,000 square feet and that they should also provide $1 million to renovate and provide for the existing recreation facilities.

Leakan, the project architect, gave a presentation that included realistic visuals of what is being envisioned, which council found very helpful. The end result will be a lifestyle center with plenty of amenities like parks and green space alongside residential buildings and assorted commercial areas. Safe and effective pedestrian and bike access was included throughout.

Leakan laid out the commercial principle of the development, which is built around retail anchors, Giant grocery, Target and AMC Theatres. The small retail stores will derive support from these anchors by offering their services within their vicinity. He said that the mall owners will be responsible for the future of these smaller businesses; his role is to provide a framework for that to happen. He said that eventual success for the development will come from all elements working together.

Leakan said that this kind of mixed-use development is complex and difficult to undertake and is not the norm nationwide. He said that the goal is to create a plan that is amenable to all parties. He made clear that many of the uncertainties brought up will be addressed in the forthcoming Detailed Site Plan.

Leakan asserted that he would "love" for there to be housing diversity if the market allows and that potential is being built into the design. Councilmember Silke Pope was confident that the market would support that possibility.

These issues were to be added to the agenda of the February 10 council meeting, along with conditions laid out in response to the earlier Conceptual Site Plan. On February 20, the PPS will go before the Prince George's County Planning Board for review, along with recommendations from council and city staff and organizations.

NEW LISTING 10A Hillside

This stylish end unit has a beautiful yard and a driveway, plus a garage that's converted to a bonus laundry and storage room (with potential for much more). Fresh paint and light fixtures, lovely restored original interior doors, and a spacious deck for grilling, lounging. This is an unusual find. $220K.
OPEN HOUSE Sunday 2/16 1:00-3:00

71C Ridge Road— Non-smoking Unit!

Clever use of space: a small, practical addition creates an entryway foyer with a full-sized stackable washer and dryer. Galley kitchen with new butcherblock countertops and a fresh, light color palette. And--this is interesting--one wall in what had been a very small third bedroom has been bumped out to make it bigger. $150K.

Love, Sweet Baboo

To my life partner and best buddy,
Alex.
I got the scoop.
Love always, Brogan

Love is the Hallmark
On this Friday Valentine's Day
Hug the ones you love
The Valentine Fairy

Roses are red,
Daisies are yellow,
Marjorie, I'm
One lucky fellow!
With love, Jim

Mashe – for all that we are,
All that we have been,
And all we're yet to be,
I love you. David
Happy Valentine's Day

To NBS:
Crazy for loving you?
I'm not worried, you'll find something new to do!
Keep on looking and I'll keep loving you

Where do we spend time
doing things that need to get done?
Where do we spend time
enjoying the sun?
Choices shape our future and our past. Now! is what lies between us.
Some fun, some work, and some rest!
Doing these with you makes life the best

Nancy
Maybe you didn't find my other ad. It's a little tricky.
I'll make this one obvious.
I love you.
Harry

My Darling Stacey, I love so much
You are the only woman that I want to touch
Your mind, talent and beauty are the wonderful things that attracted me!
When you're in the kitchen cooking
I'm amazed you're such a great chef and so good looking You're such a great and loving grandmother
Raising and caring for Patrick like no other!
I want to spend the rest of my life
with you,
Will you please be my Valentine Boo?
Love, Tom

To my darling Dora, with love, cupcakes, and Num Noms. I love you to the end of Sana and back! Happy
Valentine's Day! Love, Daddy

Dearest Raluca, Here's to many good years together, past, present, and future. Happy Valentine's Day! Puipici, Eric al tau.

Sesquipedalianly interbesmitten
That's us. Oui. MJ&D

Dearest Lyle,
I Love You, I Love You, I Love You.
Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow.
I Love You, I Love You, I Love You.
I sure want you to be mine forever!
Your Sweetie, Katrina

Dear Aaron & Isaac,
You two are "awesome!" Keep up the great work.
Love, Harry & Mom

Greenbelt I love you with all my heart and have for a long time
You are filled with warmth and wonder in a day in age when living in this area can seem so impersonal and disconnected
What would life be like without our beloved Co-op, Animal Shelter and Aquatic and Fitness Center?
Without our beloved GHI, New Deal
Café, neighbors and friends?
Please dear City of Greenbelt
Know that my heart is full of gratitude for You and for all who contribute to making Greenbelt so Great.
Happy Valentine's Day to all!!!
Katrina

As we wander in to class and get comfortable
An amazing quiet and stillness takes over
Just focusing on our breath Invites a special transcendence to occur
As we notice our breath moving in and out

We set our intentions for the hour
Our hearts open and peace dwells powerfully in the room
When it is time to get ready to go
We realize we never really left Greenbelt
Even though we travelled far
What a joy to tend to our hearts all year long
And share in our special community of all who gather.
Happy Valentine's Day to all of you!

You're PAWSitively PURRfect,
Valentine!
Nelly, Nelly, you've done so fine
We happy say won't you "Be Mine"
Our special Valentine all year long,
Your heart touches many, a spirit working strong.
We are lucky to have your experience,
knowledge and skill,
Your compassion and responsiveness-
what a thrill!
We appreciate all you do for our City's animals and people,
Though our beloved shelter's hours feeble.

Welcoming the New Year,
Hoping additional Officers are near

Dear Robert,
The climate is in crisis
Politicians make us fret.
But still my best advice is Never to forget
That I will always love you,
Through weather wet or fine.
No matter what the fates do
You'll be my Valentine
Love and Respect, Sylvia

To Annie, with love, from Marc
It's sometimes a challenge to choose But there's one thing I'd never confuse
Annie's for me
It just had to be
With Annie I could never lose.

We both think so deeply,
We make a good fit.
I love you, Honey!

I love my Co-op!
Oh yes I do!
Ice cream and tenderloins,
Shots for the flu,
Dog chow and paperbacks,
Wine, too!
Oh Co-op I love you!
Love, Lesley Kash

Happy Valentine's Day to all our

Let's go to Co-op
Everybody shop!
Beer and soda pop,
You could buy a mop,
Macaroni and baloney,
Salsa, chowder,
Talcum powder,
Buy some swiss chard
With a gift card,
Co-op is Right Here,
Let's shop!
