Local School Music Programs Adapt to Virtual Instruction

by Matthew Arbach

Music is one area where being together in person is an integral part, as performers connect to each other and an audience. Music teachers at Greenbelt Middle School (GMS) and Eleanor Roosevelt High School (ERHS) have endeavored, like all teachers and students dealing with the social restrictions of the pandemic, to keep their programs alive and stimulating through new and creative approaches. While some things have been lost due to isolation, others things have been discovered and even improved upon in unexpected ways.

Greenbelt Museum Collects Covid-19 Memories, Crafts

by Julie Rapp

How has the pandemic impacted your life? How do we explain to future generations how Greenbelt citizens dealt with this life-changing event? The Greenbelt Museum would like to capture for future generations what it was like to survive healthwise, emotionally, socially and economically during the pandemic to demonstrate the resilience of Greenbelt citizens. The Greenbelt Museum is a history museum of “everyday working people,” according to Megan Searing Young, the museum’s director. Young would like to hear from Greenbelters from all racial and ethnic backgrounds, the young and old alike, working or non-working, in an effort to share their stories and experiences. How did individuals and families manage Covid-era developments such as home-schooling, telecommuting, Zoom calls for business and social interactions or grocery shopping at stores where there were shortages of hand sanitizer, toilet paper and cleaning supplies? How did residents cope with the shutdown and quarantine and the restrictions imposed on us for socializing?

Young spoke of the many innovative ways Greenbelt institutions and residents have shown their adaptability during these difficult times. Greenbelt Recreation successfully moved to virtual classes on short notice. The Old Greenbelt Theatre creatively developed ways to maintain the engagement of its patrons by offering outdoor movie nights and snacks that could be ordered online for pick-up. In-person holiday celebrations were cancelled, so the museum placed lighted decorations in the garden-side window of the museum house for walkers to view at night. A summer activity grab-and-go event for kids at Springhill Lake Elementary School was another

County to Register Group 1C For Covid-19 Vaccinations

by Cathie Meetre

Este artículo está disponible en español en nuestra página web www.greenbeltnewsreview.com.

In a Covid-19 update issued Monday, March 15, County Executive Angela Alsobrooks announced that the county was inviting pre-registration to those eligible in Phase 1C. She also urges those in Phase 1B who have not yet been immunized to pre-register. Phase 1C includes adults 65 to 74 years of age and also several categories of those receiving hospital in-or-out-patient medical care, and workers who are both essential and at high risk of exposure, including grocery store and postal service workers. A complete list of eligible groups of people in Phase 1C is available on the State of Maryland Covid-19 information site at coronavirus.maryland.gov/pages/vaccine#access.

Phase 1C has been eligible to receive vaccines since mid-February by state mandate, but the health department has focused on 1A and 1B and the shots for which pre-registration is invited are only those dispensed by the Prince George’s County Health Department. The pre-registration form can be found at

by Diane Oberg

Much of the agenda at the March 8 meeting of the Greenbelt City Council involved items added by Mayor Colin Byrd that had not been previously discussed with his council colleagues or reviewed by city staff. These included changes to the procedure for filling council vacancies, term limits for council, a foreclosure moratorium, collective bargaining for all city employees and allowing resident noncitizens to vote in city elections.

In addition, council approved hiring two consultants to assist in reviewing the Draft Environmental Impact Statement for the proposed SCMaglev project. Council agreed to send a letter to the Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority (WMATA) opposing proposed future service reductions.

Council Vacancies

Byrd attempted to introduce for first reading a resolution requiring a special election if a council seat becomes vacant nine or more months prior to the next election. Under current city code, council appoints someone to fill the vacancy unless three or more seats are vacant at the same time, in which case, a special election is held. It has been several decades since a council vacancy occurred mid-term. The agenda packet comments pointed out that the agenda item material had not been reviewed by city staff or legal counsel.

Councilmember Judith Davis

quickly confirmed with City Solicitor Todd Pounds that this action involves changing the city charter and cannot be done with a simple resolution. She noted that legislation currently being considered by the General Assembly may impose mandatory language on municipalities, which could make Byrd’s proposal premature. She moved to refer the issue to the Board of Elections for comments. In the discussion that followed, council appeared supportive of considering changes to the current language. Council unanimously approved the referral.

Greenbelt Violin Maker Close To Completion of a Quartet

by Nicole DeWald

Later this year, if all goes well, the Niemisto family will enter the ranks of collectors who own a quartet of stringed instruments by an individual maker. In this case, the maker is Laurence “Larry” Anderson, one of eight artists in residence at the Greenbelt Community Center.

The Niemisto parents, Eleanor (a harpist) and Paul (a low brass player and orchestra conductor), are based in Minnesota where Paul taught for many years as a professor of music at St. Olaf College. There they met Larry some 35 years ago, when he was an apprentice to violin maker David Folland. They commissioned Larry’s own first violin for their daughter Anna, who was a teenager at the time. The instrument has a secret – a small photograph of Anna glued into its interior. Anna later transitioned to the viola, and the family commissioned a second instrument for her. Her sister Majja later worked in the shop, and Larry credits her with having helped him to make a violin for her. Their brother Tom plays a cello that Larry restored. This year, Larry is building a new cello for the family, with delivery planned for the summer. “This cello represents a generational scope to my career,” he notes. The new instrument may be played by Tom or Anna’s son Rowan Tilley. Rowan’s older brother Fynn now enjoys playing Anna’s violin, sometimes accompanied by his mom on viola and Rowan on cello.

Cognitive Dissonance

I got a strange feeling looking at the front page of the News Review today [March 11, 2021 issue]. At the top was the plan to cut 150 trees in the Forest Preserve (FP) for gardeners. At the bottom was an article about promoting pollinators.

Hummingbirds are pollinators. They nest between 10 and 40 feet. The more trees of that size that are cut, the fewer trees there are for hummingbirds to nest in and pollinate the gardens referred to in the article.

Birds are territorial. Every male hummingbird stakes out a quarter acre of turf. It's not just the food provided there, it's the distance to food. Birds can't get in a car and go to the store; there's a tradeoff between metabolic calories available and calories expended to get to them. If the tree is too far from the food, the food might as well not be there. So, for example, the hummingbirds I see once in a while have to come from within a quarter mile of the intersection of Southway and Ridge. The birds in the FP never make it this far. It's too expensive metabolically. And the birds I see don't pollinate the gardens the article refers to.

It only makes sense that the trees shading the garden plots are the right height for hummingbirds to nest in, and also the right distance for the hummingbirds to get to food, pollinating as they go. Now do some homework about other pollinators. Will the tree cutting leave enough habitat of the right kind for bees and butterflies?

Special Election Amendment

On October 15, 2019, the Greenbelt City Council discussed an amendment to Greenbelt's Charter requiring a special election when city council seats become vacant outside of regular elections. Currently in such an occurrence, council selects their peer – not the people. At this meeting, Councilmembers agreed to the amendment in principle but raised questions on specifics, like how many months of vacancy would warrant a special election. Council voted unanimously for staff to draft the proposed amendment, and they agreed to participate in a worksession.

One and a half years later, at the March 8 meeting, Mayor Colin Byrd brought the amendment up again. Council had not held a worksession and our city's legal counsel and staff had not reviewed the background material for the amendment. The same specifics – like the months of vacancy – were still in question. Yet again, council voted unanimously for future reviews by staff and advisory boards to settle the details. Anyone but council.

Councilmember Ed Putens said fault in the stagnation ultimately lay with the council, and I agree. When City Council prioritizes Covid-19 safety and maglev opposition, the public sees action every month. However, council has let this and many other issues fall through the cracks, passing the buck to city staff and advisory boards only for those issues to never be raised again. Council's votes are clear, yet their inactions over the last year and a half demonstrate a failure to live up to Greenbelt's democratic values.

Local government should represent its residents closer than any other democratic body. Yet, whenever democracy is inconvenient, council takes the easy way out. If that sounds troubling, you should let council know that the amendment is a priority for you, even though it is not for them.

Daniel Moses Thies &
Amanda Lynne Jennings

An Open Letter To Pete Buttigieg

We in Maryland are very concerned about the proposed maglev project.

If the maglev proceeds, Greenbelt will have to change its name to Magbelt. Gone will be the integrity of our remaining green belt. The new overwhelming architectural feature will be where the monster blows out of the ground like a jet aircraft and then flies 20 feet off the ground on its endless bridge.

The Baltimore-Washington Parkway would need a new designation as well, the Magway. Gone will be the landscaped, wooded buffer zone that makes it a Parkway.

The useless thing would not relieve traffic congestion on the Baltimore-Washington Parkway anyhow. That could be achieved by adding a lane where it bottlenecks from 3 to 2 lanes coming out of both cities. That should have been done 25 years ago when they spent money on installing curbs instead.

Then let the renewable-energy-powered electric cars that could be subsidized with all that maglev money roll cleanly and quietly back and forth.

Thank you for reading my petition.

Opter Out Opts In

Appalled by the vaccine registration process in Maryland and Prince George's County, this 66-year-old decided not to participate. During the first week of February, I submitted a vaccine request to one of my healthcare providers, MedStar. They put me on their waitlist. During the first week of March, I visited Johns Hopkins for a screening unrelated to Covid-19. Afraid the U.S. Postal Service would not deliver my results timely, I gained access to my Hopkins electronic health record. To my surprise, Hopkins had me on a vaccination waitlist. On March 9, I received email from Hopkins, inviting me to sign up for a vaccination appointment. On March 11, I got my first Pfizer injection at Johns Hopkins University Applied Physics Lab in Howard County. My visit there lasted 30 minutes. When asked to show my driver's license, I received the praise I deserved for completing eCheck-in properly.

Hopkins helped me make an appointment for my second injection. At this site, Hopkins appeared to be vaccinating solely senior citizens. On March 12, I got email from MedStar, asking if I wished to remain on their waitlist. I clicked No.

Magazine Box?

On Saturday, I attempted to drop off a magazine at the yellow magazine exchange/reuse box at the corner of Southway and Crescent. Did it relocate or was it removed?

Thanks.

Community Events

How Food Impacts The Environment

On Sunday, March 28 at 7 p.m. two Green Teams will present an Environmental Zoom about how food choices impact the environment. The discussion will focus on what we eat, how we purchase it, and what is best to do with the food we don't eat.

Dr. Luisa Robles, the City of Greenbelt sustainability coordinator; John Lippert, the city's Green Team chair; and Jane Young, co-chair of the Greenbelt Community Church Green Team, will lead the discussion, which will also explore actions that can be taken to lessen adverse human impacts on the environment. Questions and discussion are welcome and encouraged.

This environmental Zoom series is sponsored by the Green Teams of Greenbelt Community Church, UCC and the City of Greenbelt.

RSVP to Jane Young at gccjane@aol.com for Zoom information. Give your username as it will appear in Zoom, or your phone number if you will be calling in.

Survey Requests Input On Electric Vehicles

Do you currently own an electric vehicle or are you considering purchasing one in the future? The Greenbelt Electric Vehicle Infrastructure Planning Group is seeking input from Greenbelt residents to make recommendations to City Council to expand and accelerate the community's access to electric vehicle charging. Complete a short survey by Tuesday, March 23 at forms.gle/nWayxKn23sC1NUJ38.

Anyone interested in joining the group to help make Greenbelt more EV friendly can email John Lippert at ecolivingmag@aol.com. The group engages in a Zoom discussion the fourth Thursday of each month from 7 to 9 p.m.

Register for Youth Baseball Little League

2021 Spring registration is now open for Greenbelt Youth Baseball Little League. Programs are available for players 6 to 13 years old. Evaluations for players ages 9 to 13 years old will be held on Saturday, March 20 at Braden Field 2. Go to gyblittleleague.org for more information and to register. Contact greenbeltyouthbaseball@gmail.com with questions.

Simple Steps To Stop the Maglev

Are you wanting to take steps against the maglev but don't know what to do and don't have much time? Join our Simple Steps to Stop the Maglev! Simple Steps, which can be accomplished in 10 minutes or less (most of the time), are sent three to five days per week and it is optional to follow them. Anyone wanting to join can contact Susan at suzanbwild@gmail.com.

At the Library

Curbside service is available Tuesdays through Fridays, 1 to 6 p.m. and Saturdays, 1 to 5 p.m. Customers may place new hold requests via catalog.pgcmcls.info/polaris or Ask a Librarian Telephone Reference service at 240-455-5451. The library's Spanish language call center is available at 240-455-5451 (press option 2) Tuesdays through Fridays, 1 to 6 p.m. and Saturdays, 1 to 5 p.m.

The library is not accepting book donations for the foreseeable future. Customers can place donations in the third-party book donation bin; do not place donations outside the bin if it is full.

All Prince George's County Public Schools students have access to the library's online resources with their LINK card number. Adults may register for a free virtual library card or renew an existing card at pgcmcls.info.

Kids Achieve Club

The mission of the Kids Achieve Club program is to provide academic support through homework assistance and reading practice for English for Speakers of Other Languages (ESOL) students in grades 1 to 6. The program was created to support the unique needs of English learners, to foster a love of reading and to provide academic support. Children of all backgrounds and ethnicities are invited to participate.

Teen Library Resources

Visit pgcmcls.info/teens for library resources for teens. Brainfuse HelpNow offers an array of additional learning resources, including SkillSurfer, a library of lessons, videos, tests and more. The library also helps students prepare for standardized tests and writing college admissions essays through the EBSCO LearningExpress online resource. Prepare for the PSAT/NMSQT, ACT, SAT, AP, ASVAB and more to advance higher education and vocational opportunities. Check the PGCMLS virtual events calendar regularly for related programming, such as virtual career chats and conversations about the college experience.

See Call of the Forest On Zoom – March 21

On Sunday, March 21 at 7 p.m. in observance of International Day of Forests, a screening of the film Call of the Forests: The Forgotten Wisdom of Trees will be offered on Zoom.

The science and enchantment of the forest provides answers to modern dilemmas. The documentary follows scientist Diana Beresford-Kroeger as she investigates the profound biological and spiritual connection to forests. Her global journey explores the science, folklore and restoration challenges of this essential ecosystem. Beresford-Kroeger introduces forest scientists, protectors and lovers from across the world. She goes on to share the amazing stories behind the history and legacy of many ancient forests. The film explains the science of trees and the irreplaceable roles they play in protecting and feeding the planet.

Following the film there will be a brief discussion about what makes the Greenbelt Forest Preserve special, why it needs protection and what steps to take to protect it. Bring stories that are loved or known from the Greenbelt Forest Preserve.

Join in for this free event. Registration is required at tinyurl.com/3wzr2ht4.

Mishkan Torah Baker Teaches Macaroons

On Sunday, March 21 at 12:30 p.m., master baker Paula Volk will create a Passover classic – the macaroon. For Eastern European Jews, macaroons are a "must have" at the spring holiday of Passover. The traditional version is coconut but Paula's recipe is for almond macaroons. Passover is the Jewish holiday that commemorates the biblical story of the Exodus – in which God freed the Israelites from slavery in Egypt. The celebration of Passover is prescribed in the Book of Exodus.

RSVP to WaysAndMeans2@mishkantorah.org before Friday, March 19. Registrants will be sent the Zoom link and the recipe so that the ingredients can be purchased ahead of time for a bake-along with Paula. For other questions, call 301-474-4223 by March 19 or email the RSVP address above.

Fire Department Easter Egg Hunt

The Greenbelt Volunteer Fire Department will hold an Easter Egg Scavenger Hunt on Saturday and Sunday, March 27 and 28. Photos with the Easter Bunny will be available. Visit Engine35.com or facebook.com/engine35 for more information.

Bike Repair Webinar

The GHI Bicycle Committee, in association with the Washington Area Bicyclists Association (WABA), will host a Get Your Bike Ready for Spring Riding webinar on Saturday, March 27, 2 to 4 p.m. for GHI residents and members of the local community.

Spring is nearly here and bikes may need a little TLC after a cold and snowy winter. In this webinar, led by WABA technicians Sydney Soletto and Trey Robinson, viewers will learn how to look over their bike to check for issues and adjustments, how to fix a flat tire and some important safety tips for riding on streets, trails and bike lanes. At the end of the presentation, WABA staff will be hosting an extended Q&A session, so be sure to bring plenty of questions. There is no charge.

The link to join the webinar will be posted on the unofficial GHI Facebook page and in the Monday, March 22 GHI E-newsletter. For more information, or to receive the link directly, contact John Campanile, jbelltower@yahoo.com.

Plan to join the fun on March 27. The trails beckon.

Astronomical Society Tours the World

The Astronomical Society of Greenbelt will be meeting virtually on Thursday, March 25. Anwar Al-Mallah, vice president of ASG, will conduct a virtual worldwide aerial tour of meteor craters, observatories and perhaps more, including the observatories on the Atacama Desert plateau in Chile and those in many other places as well. Anwar has mastered a computer flight simulator with which he can take us instantly to any place on Earth and show us the site sights from on high. They guarantee cloudless skies. A Zoom link to the meeting will be posted on the Astronomical Society's website, greenbeltastro.org, before the meeting.

Greenbelt Connects

Join Connecting Across Greenbelt (CAG) in monthly meetings that promote a lively community conversation as a way to think together, connect with neighbors, forge paths to equity in the area and creatively deepen support within the community, to enhance quality of life through connections and relationships.

This month's meeting, on Thursday, March 18, focuses on microaggression – everyday slights that communicate negative messages to a member of a marginalized group. CAG is a multi-cultural, multi-racial, and multi-generational group of residents who gather virtually to build relationships across neighborhoods and to understand current challenges for all Greenbelters. The group is building a resource of research-tested coping strategies for self-care and stress management called Caring and Connecting Toolkit (bit.ly/CAGtoolkit). Share your ideas with the group and help pool resources. To find out about the group's monthly meetings (an outdoor activity in April), email communityconnectionsbg@gmail.com.

Garden Club Plot Assignment Meeting

The Greenbelt Community Garden Club will have a virtual 2021 plot assignment meeting on Tuesday, March 23 at 7 p.m. An email will be sent to returning gardeners with a link to join. New and returning plot holders may download or fill out the application form at greenbeltgardenclub.com.

Returning gardeners can direct any questions about the application to their garden coordinator. Fees and forms may be sent to the garden coordinator or mailed to Greenbelt Garden Club, P.O. Box 1732, Greenbelt, MD 20768, or payment can be made online using PayPal. Anyone having difficulty downloading or printing the form can call Martha Tomecek at 301-614-0691.

In Memoriam

Karen Gingell Smith

by Rick Ransom

Karen Smith, a long-time Greenbelter like her mother Mae Gingell, died in the hospital on January 29, 2021. She had struggled with diminished lung capacity and a resultant heart condition for the past several years. Karen was 62. She is survived by her daughter from her former marriage, Penny Elizabeth Smith, and Karen's fiancé Gary Krueger. Both live in the home and were assisting in her care. She also leaves behind a granddaughter, Chloe, whom she loved to watch in ballet, karate and school events.

Karen's brothers, Stephen and Ronald Gingell and her sister Penny Sue Gingell, preceded her in death. Karen had left high school to care for her sister, Penny Sue, in her battle with cystic fibrosis. She cared for other family members in their illnesses as well.

Karen worked as a secretary at Dasi, the licensed distributor of the University of Maryland pasteurization products, and as a manager at Ross Dress for Less. Her most memorable job was her service to many families in the city as a daycare host, which was in keeping with her family caregiver background. She was a steadfast member of Mowatt Memorial Methodist Church and produced the bulletins for services for 10 years, through 2019, as well as helping in various activities.

Karen liked to garden but was limited in recent years by her condition. She lived two doors down from me and one hot day I spied her lying on the ground by her flower bed. When I inquired if she was all right, she said, "I'm just catching my breath." Gary, her fiancé, had helped to design and install a rock garden in the front yard. Chloe's father, Don, would cut the grass and pressure-wash the home's exterior. Gary related that one expression Karen uttered often that made him laugh was, "I'll be back, I think I forgot something." He stated that he and Karen had both thought she would live for a number of years longer. He despaired of not having those additional years.

As related by Gary and Penny, Karen enjoyed knitting and immersed herself in a variety of DIY projects. She loved coffee and donuts for breakfast and

Spaghetti Dinner

Mowatt Memorial United Methodist Church will host its Spaghetti Dinner on Saturday, March 27 from 4 to 6 p.m. The dinner will include garlic bread, salad, spaghetti with meat or vegetarian sauce and a dessert. Come out and support Mowatt at 40 Ridge Road. Call the office at 301-474-9410 to reserve a meal. Reservations must be received by Monday, March 22. Pick up your dinner at the Ridge Road entrance. A donation is suggested.

GCC Agape Services

Greenbelt Community Church continues their Lenten Agape sessions Wednesday nights at 7 p.m. The Board of Worship will lead attendees in a time of reflection, followed by an opportunity for personal sharing and support, ending in prayer. The last week before Easter there is no Wednesday service. Instead, a special Maundy Thursday service is offered on April 1 at the same time. The Easter Sunday celebration on April 4 begins at 10:15 a.m. Those who are not members of the church are invited to join any of these services on Facebook "live" at greenbeltucc.

Condolences to the family, friends, neighbors and fellow parishioners of Karen Gingell Smith, who died in January. She was a noted gardener, cook, knitter and caregiver.

Condolences also to the family and friends of Eileen Farnham.

Larry notes that the four instruments of the string quartet form “the foundation of the modern orchestra, established in the 18th century by Franz Joseph Haydn.” The two violins, viola and cello provide the basis for the harmonic structure of orchestral music. Paul adds that the range of the instruments in a string quartet is also roughly analogous to the range of the human voice, from soprano heights to bass depths. “For me personally,” Larry says, “it is thrilling to know that I will have a quartet in the possession of one family.” Anderson offers instrument repair services as well as commissions. Those fortunate enough to visit his Greenbelt studio when the Community Center reopens may also enjoy a glimpse of one of his “just for fun” personal projects, such as an ornate piece of furniture, a sculpture or a pictorial panel.

situations and often with tech problems that make it hard to get them the information in a clear way. This is especially hard with eighth grade. Many of these students have been in my band class since sixth grade and it's tough knowing that I may not see them before they head to high school.” Performances have not been possible so far, including festival adjudications. Fung was impressed with the ease that her students have shown in navigating the virtual setting and “how well the students can still show their personalities and engage with each other through Zoom.” The internet time lag has led to greater patience, something she hopes “we can keep when we return to the band room.”

Kevin Hawk, the guitar teacher at ERHS, has found the inability to have group performances a major loss, even though he was still able to do a lot of the same things that were done face to face. Students have been able to submit videos for festival adjudication. It has been difficult to provide guitars for all students, due to the problem of nationwide backorders, and the unforeseen hurdle of simply tuning has arisen, because of the Zoom restrictions. Hawk has introduced an interactive music theory program, play-a-long and instructional videos, an assignment/practice video uplink system and a cloud-based recording program, among other things. A guitar teacher for over 20 years, he never thought that teaching guitar online would be “as successful as it has been.” He has grown as a teacher and is “excited to use these new tools and skills when we return to the new normal.”

For ERHS band teacher Rachel Zephir, the pandemic has both allowed opportunities, like the added time for exploring improvisation and music from different cultures, while presenting obstacles, such as the inability to perform live. Rehearsing entire pieces is difficult as well as assessing individual students' progress. Group recordings have been made but the process is laborious. A plus is that she has been able to bring in, via Zoom, guest musicians and alumni who have shared their experiences as musicians “so my students can plan their future in a Covid world.”

While the pandemic has “definitely caused some devastation to any of us who teach ensembles,” ERHS vocal teacher Michele Fowlin has found ways to “spark other areas of creativity that oftentimes we may have neglected,” such as “music technology, deeper dives into musicianship and strengthening the individual skills.” Though the essential live element was lost, a virtual choir recording was done. Fowlin provided instrumental recordings that have been used for singers to work with individually. While some have suffered from the isolation, others “have done better than when we were in person,” making evident the value of music as “such an incredible learning tool,” in its ability to instill creativity and inspiration “just by the mere presence and love expressed by each other.”

Fowlin remarked that “the pandemic has connected us all the more together because we have intentionally placed time and energy into being connected yet apart. Any choir or band can make good music but when the members are bonded to one another, the music transforms itself to an entirely different level. So, if these groups ever have the opportunity to come together, oo wee, it's going to be incredible!”

The Rest is Silence: Hamless At Greenbelt Arts Center

by Ian Rogers and Melissa Sites

“Google, how many lines does Hamlet have?” According to independent.co.uk, “Every Hamlet has to learn, and repeat night after night, around 1,480 lines.” Not every Hamlet. This one is a black Zoom box with a mute icon. His very few lines are reaction emojis.

During the pandemic, the Rude Mechanicals, resident at Greenbelt Arts Center, have been producing about one remote show each month. We’ve come to expect innovative use of Zoom conventions from them. Hamless has running jokes (“I can’t hear you, Polonius”) and clever screen-sharing presentations.

Although Hamlet doesn’t speak, Hamless, adapted and directed by Erin Nealer, fails the Dane Bechdel test. Named characters have conversations with each other, but they’re mainly about him. What will Hamlet do? What has he done?

A new main character is fighting to emerge. Removing the character of Hamlet really seems to turn the play into a tragedy about King Claudius. His default is to make every problem about him, and to solve it with poison or outsourced murder. Claudius knows he’s wrong, though, and in deep trouble. Jacqueline Yom has the authority and presence to pull this off – danger radiated off this king in every scene.

Without Hamlet yelling at her about being heartless, Gertrude’s grief and increasing estrangement from her second husband is visible. Jaki Demarest gives a strong portrayal of a powerful but not powerful enough woman.

Ophelia (Lexi Stein) is a standout. Early on, before the bodies hit the floor, her temperate good sense as she struggles with her father and brother’s expectations contrasts with her heartbreaking madness after her father’s death at the hands of her boyfriend. Points for every micro-reaction when someone says something thoughtless or slightly offensive to her. Stein is someone to watch in a Zoom box.

King Claudius wants the play to be about him, but the play could be seen as the tragedy of the Polonius/Ophelia/Laertes family (no mom; thanks, Shakespeare), ordinary people ground into dust by the collision of the King and the Prince. Laertes (Alison McAlister) is less revolutionary hothead and more earnest kid in over his head. Elsinore is rough on ordinary people. Rosencrantz and Guildenstern (Claudia Bach and Michael Angeloni) come off very sympathetic in their hapless interactions with the authority figures.

Minus those 1,480 lines, Hamless is a brisk, fast-moving affair, less than an hour and a half. And it’s still action-packed! The Mouse-Trap, the play-within-a-play, is hilariously overdone, but with no ghost, no skulls, no soliloquies. Just a lot of Danes dealing with the fallout.

Hamless is available at greenbeltartscenter.org through Sunday, March 21, with a talkback after the performance on March 21.

City Notes

City Administration met with WSSC about repairing Lake areas damaged by a water main break.

Refuse/Recycling collected 29.36 tons of refuse and 11.44 tons of recyclables. Horticulture/Parks finished constructing compost bins and Sustainability/Environmental planned a maglev-related media campaign.

Park rangers added patrol hours as park visitors increased. Three cats and three dogs are in the Animal Shelter. Five feral cats were trapped, neutered and released.

Recreation staff continues planning summer camps, spring outdoor movies and modified Spring celebrations. Limited on-site activities include preschoolers at the Youth Center, dance classes on the tennis court and Fit Family Hour at recreation centers. At the pool, Public Works repaired the hot tub heater. Community Center staff facilitated several large package deliveries for tenants. Therapeutic Recreation Zoom-monitored a Golden Age Club meeting with Connecting Across Greenbelt and facilitated meal delivery for 39 seniors.

CARES coordinated a tax workshop and a Covid-19 vaccination clinic at Green Ridge House.

Greenbelt Lion’s Club Offers Two College Scholarships

by Harvey Hauptman and Konrad Herling

The Greenbelt Lions Club announces the return of the Stan Hoke Memorial Scholarship Program. For many years, the Lions Club provided scholarships to college-bound Greenbelt residents. This year, the Club is awarding two $1,000 scholarships.

In order to qualify, applicants must meet the following criteria: (1) be a resident of Greenbelt; (2) be a high school senior graduating from a high school located in Prince George’s County, and; (3) matriculating to a community college or a four-year university.

The criteria for award are based on the applicant’s response to the following two questions:

Question 1: Why do you think you deserve this scholarship? Question 2: If you could change one thing in Greenbelt, what would it be and why? Further, how would you implement the proposed change?

Those wishing to apply should request the official application form by sending an email to greenbeltlions@gmail.com. The completed application must be returned to the same email address no later than midnight on Friday, April 16, in order to be considered for this year’s scholarship.

Scholarship recipients will be notified on or before May 31.

Greenbelt Time Bank Stays Strong During the Pandemic

by John Campanile and Erica Ginsberg

As the annual celebration of International Timebanking Day approaches this coming week, the Greenbelt Time Bank continues to be a fun, free and easy way to offer time and talents between neighbors by exchanging services and goods using the currency of hours instead of dollars.

While the pandemic has limited the amount and types of in-person contact for much of the past year, members of the Time Bank have found ways to adapt safely. Between April and December 2020, there were 82 exchanges, representing 179 hours of members providing time to other members. Exchanges have included everything from making cloth masks to computer repairs to grocery shopping to transporting items for recycling to yard work.

Although Amy King joined the Time Bank in 2019, she didn’t start providing time until the pandemic began, offering company for nature walks around Greenbelt Lake. “I think social distancing has made having company more important and helpful for people, including myself,” said King. “Outdoor activities are much lower risk than indoor activities. It seemed like the perfect option to offer, especially since so many of us were facing Zoom fatigue.”

Making requests through the Time Bank has also provided some variety to those hunkering down at home. “With the isolation and boredom of Covid protocols, I was looking for something new,” says LeeAnn Irwin, who had a hankering for a healthy treat. She posted a request on the Time Bank’s website and received a delicious response from Carol Shaw. “My spouse and I enjoyed Carol’s fresh homemade granola delivered to our door. Since it was delicious, I plan to get it again for a gift to my sister’s family.”

While the Greenbelt Time Bank is a means for people to use their time and talents to help neighbors, and get their own needs met, its underlying purpose is to build a stronger community.

In addition to providing a platform for community members to trade services, members of the Greenbelt Time Bank have come together on Zoom for virtual teas. They recently celebrated Valentine’s Day with an online get-together. The International Timebank movement will also be celebrating with two virtual gatherings on Sunday, March 21 and Tuesday, March 23.

“Neighborliness and a friendly community are a big part of why I chose to move to Greenbelt six years ago,” noted King. “The time bank helps to keep up that community spirit I love so much – even during a global pandemic. That’s something to be celebrated!”

To learn more about joining the Greenbelt Time Bank, visit its website at greenbeltimebank.org or Facebook page at facebook.com/greenbeltimebank, or email Greenbelt.Timebank@gmail.com or call 240-473-3497 and leave a message. To participate in International Timebanking Day to meet timebankers from all around the world, visit timebanks.org.

Online Auditions For Doctor Faustus

The Rude Mechanicals, in residence at The Greenbelt Arts Center, will hold online auditions for Christopher Marlowe’s Doctor Faustus on Monday and Tuesday, March 22 and 23.

Written in the 1590s, Doctor Faustus is the classic story of a man who makes a pact with the devil. Director Claudia Bach will set this production in a modern, internet-forum world, as Faustus connects with some dangerous minds online and is dragged into a world of conspiracy, magic, and evil.

Online performances will take place the weekend of May 21 & 22. Those wishing to audition should request an audition slot at greenbeltartscenter.org or rudemechanicals.com.

Byrd proposed that council direct the city solicitor to draft legislation prohibiting banks/financial institutions in Greenbelt from foreclosing for the rest of the year.

Byrd noted that Governor Larry Hogan has extended the state foreclosure moratorium through the end of March. He stated that this was not long enough and asked for council to discuss how to weigh in on this issue. Byrd acknowledged that he is not sure of the extent to which the city can influence this issue but hoped that council could find consensus for asking the state and federal governments for a longer-lasting moratorium.

Pounds reported that foreclosure law is governed so strictly by the state that he does not know how far a city could go and seemed very doubtful that it could succeed if it tried. Councilmembers, in general, doubted they had the authority to impose a moratorium but appeared open to attempting to work with the state to provide additional relief. Several raised the issue of the need for repayment plans. With the pandemic and economic restrictions now in place at various levels for over a year, both homeowners and renters who had needed forbearance on their mortgage and rent payments now owe substantial amounts. Councilmembers called for allowing them some time to make up those payments.

No specific action was taken with regard to foreclosure.

Council segued into the planned meeting announced in an email sent last fall to commercial apartment owners in which they urged the owners to work with tenants in financial difficulty. This meeting has not been held. Various councilmembers expressed their frustration over the lack of progress on this item and whether a meeting was the best way to deal with the owners, with some councilmembers urging a “get tough” approach and others calling for working with them. In the end, council took no specific action on this item.

Collective Bargaining

In this item, Byrd wanted council to direct the city solicitor to draft legislation to provide all city employees, regardless of department, with the right to collective bargaining similar to what is granted in the city charter to police officers. As he introduced this item, Byrd revised it to refer the issue to the Employee Relations Board and the Community Relations Advisory Board (CRAB).

Council approved the motion but most councilmembers had concerns, pointing out that under state law, employees already have the right to request collective bargaining and that it is not really council’s place to initiate such action and that even actions intended to be helpful could run afoul of labor relations laws and regulations.

Noncitizen Voting

This agenda item would have directed the city solicitor to draft legislation that would authorize residents to vote regardless of whether they are U.S. citizens. At the meeting, Byrd revised the motion to refer it to the Board of Elections and to CRAB. Pounds confirmed that both this and Byrd’s term limits proposal are charter questions.

Davis noted that the issues of who can vote and whether there should be term limits are up to council. Both would require charter amendments and “lots of research.” Byrd noted that there are 10 municipalities nationwide that permit resident noncitizens to vote, with nine of them being in Maryland.

Councilmember Rodney Roberts called for putting these issues on the city ballot this November.

City resident Bill Orleans argued that council should just make the change without referral to the committees or the voters. Davis disagreed, saying this is a controversial issue and council needs to hear from the voters. While Roberts acknowledged that council could take this action on its own, the most important thing is for people to be able to say, “I had a voice in this.” If citizens are not given a voice, it gives them grounds to say the action is not legitimate. He expressed confidence in the outcome, saying that Greenbelters are fair people, and it is important to go through due process and not force this change onto people.

Councilmember Silke Pope strongly objected to allowing anyone who came to the United States illegally to vote. Having been born abroad herself, she said “there is a process, and you have to do it the right way.”

Byrd’s motion to refer to the Board of Elections and CRAB was approved.

Term Limits

The meeting was getting close to midnight when Byrd introduced his next agenda item, this one to limit councilmembers first elected after 2016 to five consecutive two-year terms. In making this a motion, he again revised it to refer the question to the Board of Elections and CRAB.

Councilmember Leta Mach tried to immediately call the question, but her colleagues were not having that. Davis called the exception for the long-tenured councilmembers unfair. Roberts did not like term limits, noting that some things cannot be done in one, two or three terms. He noted that it took 20 years in council for him to achieve his primary goal of establishing the Forest Preserve. In a municipality, he argued, citizens can unseat councilmembers any time they want by voting against them. He said that he would not vote for term limits without a referendum. Term limits would stymie good people who want to make a difference, he said.

Orleans agreed that term limits are unnecessary and called upon citizens to be more attentive to what council does.

Davis’ amendment to hold a worksession passed. Byrd’s amendment to refer the issue of term length to CRAB failed.

WMATA Service Cuts

WMATA has issued a notice announcing its proposed budget for Fiscal Year 2022 (FY22), which begins July 1. The proposal maintains current (pandemic) levels of service through December. However, it calls for major cuts to bus and rail services including eliminating many bus routes, closing the rail system at 9 p.m. instead of 11 p.m., increasing the time between trains and closing 22 stations including College Park – University of Maryland. The proposal pre-dates the passage of the federal

Democratic Club Honors Women’s History Month

by Konrad Herling

On Friday, March 26 at 7:30 p.m., the Eleanor & Franklin Roosevelt Democratic Club honors not only the significant contributions that women have made to improve the quality of life of women and America in the process, but also a woman who affects the lives of all Prince Georgians, State’s Attorney Aisha Braveboy.

While many will connect Women’s Rights with Elizabeth Cady Stanton, Susan B. Anthony, Sojourner Truth and those over the last 50 years, such as Shirley Chisholm, Jane Fonda, Billy Jean King and Ruth Bader Ginsburg, Braveboy has served our county, which is approximately 52 percent women, in numerous ways.

Braveboy received her Juris Doctorate from Howard University School of Law. She represented Maryland’s 25th District (Largo, Clinton and Suitland among the communities) in the House of Delegates from 2007 to 2015. In that capacity, she chaired the Legislative Black Caucus of Maryland and was a member of Maryland’s Women’s caucus. In 2018, she was elected as Prince George’s County State’s Attorney, becoming the second woman to serve in that capacity, succeeding the first woman to hold that position, Angela Alsobrooks, who was elected as County Executive in that same election.

As State’s Attorney, Braveboy has moved to provide more counseling for first time non-violent felony drug offenders and a second chance. This has translated to more of the county’s youth continuing with education and securing employment. Prior to her service as State’s Attorney, she served as General Counsel for the Community Public Awareness Council and brought in counselors to divert students from the criminal justice system.

Braveboy instituted a change in the process regarding pre-trial bail, issuing an order that the State’s Attorney’s office would no longer require cash bail for pre-trial release if the person is not a danger to society and was determined not to pose a flight risk.

Police Blotter

Based on information released by the Greenbelt Police Department, www.greenbeltd.gov/police Dates and times are those when police were first contacted about incidents.

Robbery

March 7, 2:37 a.m., 7901 Mandan Road. Two men approached a man entering the condominium building and one displayed a handgun and announced a robbery. They took the man's backpack, laptop, cell phone and car keys and fled in the man's gray 2015 Chrysler 200 bearing Maryland tags 9EB1204.

March 7, 12:33 p.m., 6001 Cherrywood Court. A man approached another man who was outside walking and asked him for money. He then grabbed the man's keys and ran toward the man's vehicle. The owner of the car yelled and the person who took the keys threw them to the ground and fled on foot.

March 8, 9:15 p.m., 6200 block Breezewood Court. A woman reported that when she was walking on March 7 at 5 a.m., a man grabbed her purse from behind and then punched her in the head. She suffered minor injuries.

Fraud

March 9, 5:56 p.m., 6 Court Hillside. A check that was put into a mailbox on February 16 was taken by someone who changed the amount and cashed it.

Theft

March 6, 2 a.m., 20 Southway. A metal sign was taken from the BP service station. Surveillance footage showed two persons, one, a Black man wearing all black pants and a shirt with white writing on the front and the other, a White woman with red hair, wearing a gray flannel jacket and dark-color pants. They fled in a vehicle described as a black 2007 Dodge Ram pickup truck with Maryland tags, filled with what appeared to be scrap metal.

March 9, 9:39 a.m., 6023 Springhill Drive. A package was taken from the front stoop of a residence.

Peeping Tom

Peeping Tom suspect

March 9, 10:28 p.m., 6622 Lake Park Drive. Surveillance footage showed a man peering into a residence.

Vehicle Crime

Two vehicles were recovered. Both had been taken on February 16 and both were also recovered on the same day, March 4. They are a 2011 Toyota Camry, taken from 6205 Springhill Drive and recovered by Prince George's County Police on Somerset Road near 61st Place in Riverdale, and a 2013 Volvo C-70, taken from the 100 block Lakeside Drive and recovered on Ridge Road near Northway.

Five vehicles were stolen. Two were left with the engine running – an unlocked green 2003 Toyota Camry with Maryland tags 6Ek6004, taken from 9158 Springhill Court, and a red 2012 Honda Civic with Virginia tags UDU7913, taken from 9200 Edmonston Road. Also stolen was a white 2010 Nissan Sentra with Maryland tags 5CW522, taken from 9102 Springhill Lane. All three were stolen on March 7.

Two other stolen vehicles were left unlocked and with engines running. They are a black 2017 Chevrolet Cruze with Maryland tags DP0621, taken from 5911 Cherrywood Terrace on March 9, and a 2020 Toyota RAV 4, taken from Edmonston Road near Springhill Court on March 10 and recovered the same day by Metropolitan Police in the 2700 block of Langston Place, in Washington, D.C.

Five driver-side air bags were taken. Three came from vehicles at 219 Lakeside Drive and one each from 5911 and 6001 Cherrywood Lane. Maryland rear tag 99P237 was taken from 17 Court Ridge Road on March 8.

Driver-side doors were forced open in the 200 block Lakeside Drive. A pair of boots was taken from one vehicle and nothing appeared to have been taken from the other. A door handle was pulled off a car on March 10 at 155 Westway.

A wallet was taken from an unlocked vehicle in the 5800 block Cherrywood Terrace on March 8.

A passenger quarter-window was broken, three screen/monitors cracked and the interior of a vehicle was vandalized with white paint. White paint was also found on the engine and gas tank areas and a marker was used to place graffiti on the exterior.

A tire and rim were taken. A witness saw a man taking the wheel off the vehicle and then fleeing in a blue vehicle.

Fatal Shooting

On Monday, March 15 at approximately 2:15 p.m. officers responded to the 5800 block of Cherrywood Terrace for a report of a non-responsive man inside a residence. Officers observed him to be suffering from what appeared to be stab wounds. The victim Ralph Jerome Logan, 34, of Greenbelt was pronounced deceased on the scene. Further investigation revealed that he had not been stabbed, but had been shot multiple times.

Officers are investigating and there is no suspect information at this time. Anyone with information regarding this incident is asked to contact the Greenbelt Police Department at 301-474-7200.

An extraordinarily large blue bird seen recently at the Lake turned out to be a WSSC truck mending the trail after pipe work on nearby Crescent Road.

The Department is offering a reward of up to $1,000 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of a suspect in any of the unsolved crimes reported in the blotter.

Covid-19 relief bill, which provides aid to transportation systems. It is not yet known how this aid will affect the budget proposal.

Council unanimously agreed to send a letter to WMATA opposing the service cuts and calling for the restoration of bus service between the Greenbelt station and Baltimore-Washington Airport.

Maglev

Council unanimously approved hiring Dr. Burak Tanyu and Smart Mobility, Inc. to provide technical advice and assistance in reviewing the SCMaglev DEIS. The combined cost is not to exceed $29,460.

In addition, council appointed Jacquelyn Waters, Martha Galvin and Jonathan Taylor to the Maglev Task Force.

Proclamations

Byrd presented proclamations declaring March 8 as International Women's Day, March as National Colorectal Awareness Month, March 31 as Cesar Chavez Day and March as Irish American Heritage Month in Greenbelt.

Petitions and Requests

In an email that Davis reported in the meeting, resident Bob Rudd asked council to begin to meet in person, considering alternate locations such as the American Legion hall or firehouse, if necessary. He suggested that all council meetings and worksessions be conducted in person no later than July 4.

Rudd also called for council to establish a policy that all online council participation include a live video of every participating councilmember. Putens and Byrd typically project a static picture during all or part of zoom meetings. Councilmember Emmett Jordan has used a static picture while out of the city. Rudd stated that failure to present a live image "raises actual and legitimate legal questions as to your participation and empowerment individually and as a collective body." Further, "No one knows if you are even paying attention."

Patrick Gleason of the Greenbelt Boys and Girls Club and the Greenbelt Soccer Alliance asked council to consider building another field, preferably a turf field. He said that many of the city's current fields are unplayable or dangerous, especially after heavy rains. He said that local teams lose players to traveling teams in search of better fields. David Whiteman of the Greenbelt Soccer Alliance and Ian Gleason of the Greenbelt Babe Ruth and Eleanor Roosevelt High School girls soccer supported this request.

Those without internet access can call the Maryland GoVAX Covid-19 Vaccination Support Center at 1-855-MDGOVAX (1-855-634-6829) from 7 a.m. to 10 p.m. seven days a week for information. There is an automated menu ("Press 1 for English, 2 for Spanish," for example) that requires entry of the caller's five-digit zip code and makes repeated attempts to divert callers to the website. With persistence, callers can reach a human being who will assist with the pre-registration and appointment process and answer any questions.

Those seeking vaccination can still attempt to sign up at pharmacies and hospital centers.

The Health Department currently operates five vaccination clinics: Cedar Heights Community Center in Seat Pleasant, Cheverly Health Center in Cheverly, Kentland Community Center in Landover, Laurel-Beltsville Senior Activity Center in Laurel, Southern Regional Technology and Recreation Center in Fort Washington and the Sports and Learning Complex in Landover. This last site in Landover is temporarily closed through Sunday, March 28.

Alsobrooks cites the increasing rate of vaccinations in the county as part of the rationale to open up the health department's facilities to Phase 1C. In the county overall, however, many in the 1C category are in the process or have completed being vaccinated via the other modes of distribution for which they were already eligible – pharmacies, Kaiser Permanente, state mass vaccination sites, Luminis and the Maryland Medical System and other hospitals. Of the dose allocation in weeks 1 to 12 of the rollout, only just under one-third has gone to the county health clinics.

example of the resourcefulness of our city supporting its citizens.

Young has collected photographs of sidewalk chalk drawings by two local artists, Carol Ready and Vijay Parameshwaran, who shared their creativity during the pandemic – sometimes with depictions of the current social and cultural climate. There are photographs illustrating the extent of closures in the city – such as an empty bulletin board at the Community Center and a closed playground. A local crafter has donated masks she sewed for family and friends during the pandemic.

Young is looking for Greenbelters to donate small items such as personal protective equipment, letters, photographs, videos, oral or written accounts, artwork and children's drawings in order to capture the dramatic disruption to everyone's lives during the pandemic and to depict the efforts by Greenbelt citizens to keep life going as normally as possible. If you would like to share your experience or donate an item, Young asks that you email the museum at info@greenbeltmuseum.org or call 301-507-6582 and leave a message, as museum staff are working from home at this time. Donations will be saved in the museum archives. The images will eventually be posted on the museum website in order to showcase the collection, with future plans to place a small display within the museum's house, located at 10-B Crescent Road.

Winners of the artist exhibition competition will be showcased in the Montpelier Library Gallery, September 2021 to July 2022. To be eligible, artists must be 18 years or older and reside in Maryland. The deadline for submission to both competitions is Sunday, March 28. Call program contact Sara Morgan, 301-377-7800 for more information.

Porch Collection Of Food Donations

RUAK (Random Unselfish Acts of Kindness) will be rolling out Porch Greenbelt this month. Porch is an all-volunteer hunger relief program that provides healthy food to neighbors who are food insecure by supplementing the St. Hugh of Grenoble Food Pantry. It is built around the simple idea of a neighborhood food drive. Once a month, on a designated day, residents will place non-perishable food donations on their front porch. A volunteer coordinator will go from porch to porch from 2 to 5 p.m. and collect the food donations. The donated food will be transported to the St. Hugh of Grenoble Food Pantry where it will be distributed to Greenbelters who are struggling to get enough food to eat.

The Porch program will begin in the Woodland Hills and Boxwood Village neighborhoods. Boxwood Village's designated day will be every third Sunday beginning this Sunday, March 21. Woodland Hills' designated day will be every second Sunday in each month, with the next collection on April 11. The program hopes to become city-wide and help many people in the entire Greenbelt community.

As Mother Theresa said, "If you can't feed a hundred people, then just feed one!"

Anyone with questions or who would be interested in being a volunteer with Porch Greenbelt can contact Robert Goldberg-Strassler at spreadruak@gmail.com.

Greenbelt Artists Keep Going Through Lockdown: Part 2

by Matt Arbach

Sally Davies and Leah Cohen, much like the artists featured in our February 18 story, have also carried on making art and instructing others in the processes of making art during a year of lockdown. In both their art and their teaching, they promote compassion, community, mindfulness and celebration as ways to cope with the isolation and anxiety of pandemic restrictions.

Twelve-year resident Davies has exhibited her paintings and illustrations in many venues throughout the Mid-Atlantic region, gaining recognition with a growing collection of awards for her creativity. Most recently, her acrylic painting Labyrinth of Life won the Best in Show award in the August 2020 Juried Exhibit at the Art League Gallery in the Torpedo Factory Arts Center in Alexandria. Her work has been featured in magazines, cookbooks, menus, posters, textbooks and many children's books. Davies explains that "my illustrations are done with ink line and bright watercolor washes and are very different from my fine art paintings, which tend to be looser in style and on large canvases."

More locally, she will be teaching Pre-K Art Exploration classes for Greenbelt Recreation through Zoom in April and May. While the travails of the first three months of the pandemic made it difficult to make art, Davies compensated by making hundreds of masks for both her friends and frontline workers. In her upcoming exhibit, Community Spirit, at the Publick Playhouse in Cheverly, April 1 to May 20, she hopes that her compositions "create a bond of community spirit ... to show the planet as one whole place and an overall compassionate community."

Cohen is a multi-talented artist who works in painting, printmaking and functional arts and also teaches for Greenbelt Recreation since moving to Greenbelt in 2007. "Much of my artwork at this time is focused on designing activities and lessons in fiber arts," she said. "I'm also teaching a class in geometry and art. This semester, it's focused on modern art and in the spring the focus will be on folk art. It's great fun!"

World culture is a passion as well, as she has explored Eastern mandalas and Japanese decorative stitching, with the goal of working in Native American weaving traditions. The arts, in this past year of the pandemic, have enabled her to "incorporate mindfulness and moments of celebration" into her coping mechanisms. In her Zoom stitchery classes, she certainly creates for her students an atmosphere of calmness, reinforcing concentration on the steady rhythm of the needlework – and total enjoyment of the creative moment.

To see works by these artists, visit the News Review Art Gallery at greenbeltnewsreview.com/art-gallery.

GATe Again Airs "Taking Root," A Film on Wangari Maathai

by Frank Gervasi

Wangari Maathai started a revolutionary movement that had enormous impact both in her own country and around the world. An award-winning film on her life, Taking Root: The Vision of Wangari Maathai, will be shown every day of the week starting Friday, March 19 on the GATe television channel or online at greenbeltaccessstv.org.

Maathai grew up in Kenya but came to the U.S. to study, where she earned both a bachelor's and a master's degree in science. She returned to Kenya and earned her Ph.D., becoming the first East African woman to achieve that. She eventually became chair of the biology department at the University of Nairobi. Still later, she was elected to Parliament with 98 percent of the vote.

Kenya had been denuded of its vegetation, its soil eroded from decades of timber exports, internal strife and intensive agriculture that included vast cash crop plantations. Maathai started the Green Belt movement, which consisted of organizing poor people, mostly women and children, to collect local seeds and restore the forests. Her work ultimately earned her a Nobel Peace Prize, the first environmentalist and first African woman to be awarded one.

School System to Phase Out Security, But Keep SROs

by Collin Riveillo

The Prince George's County Public Schools (PGCPS) Board of Education voted on March 1 in favor of the county's Police Reform Task Force's recommendation to keep School Resource Officers (SROs) and eventually phase out school security personnel. The board decision was the one recommended by PGCPS CEO Monica Goldson.

SROs are local police officers who are contracted by the school board through a Memorandum of Understanding and placed inside schools to monitor the safety of students and staff. They have crisis-intervention training and all the legal powers of a regular police officer. PGCPS contracts 66 SROs according to a report released by Goldson in January.

School security personnel are security guards employed by the county who see to students' safety. They do not carry guns and only a few have arresting powers and in PGCPS, just 66 of the 211 personnel employed can arrest students.

This decision comes after months of debate on whether schools should have officers with guns near students.

In a survey sent out by Goldson, the community weighed in on the issue. Of the 13,000 respondents, 82 percent said that SROs are "very important" or "important." Another 12 percent said the position was "somewhat important." Only 6 percent of respondents selected "not important."

The recommendation also includes investment in mental health programs and restorative approaches to student discipline.

Shayla Adams-Stafford, a newly elected board member for District 4, voted against the recommendation. "As an educator for over a decade, I relied heavily on the school security guard in the school buildings to be the eyes and ears on the ground to know how we can support the students."

Board Member Belinda Queen was in favor of the Police Task Force's recommendation. "I feel that it's a great recommendation," she said.

The county's next move is to construct a specific timeline and plan on how school security personnel will be phased out.

While Goldson supported the recommendation, the security issue is not clear cut. "I will say this as the CEO, and as a former principal of two schools and an assistant principal, there is value in all of our security staff that presented today and as well as our SROs. There's no question about it, and the relationships that they establish with our students is a value."
