Audience Learns the Origins Of the Real Texas Juneteenth

by Leeann Irwin

Interspersing facts and history with anecdotal personal stories, speaker Reynaud “Rey” Smith mesmerized the audience at his lecture on Tuesday, June 13 at the Community Center as he explained the origins of the real Juneteenth in Comanche Crossing, Texas. Slavery was practiced only in the agricultural eastern section of Texas; the rest of Texas was extremely barren. Slavery in Texas grew from 58,000 enslaved people in 1850 to 183,000 in 1860, and peaked at 250,000 in 1865. June 19, 1865 is the date a Union general marched into Galveston, 200 miles to the southeast of Comanche Crossing, and announced that all the enslaved Blacks in Texas were free.

Reynaud Smith relates the history of Juneteenth.

Smith grew up in this small town of Comanche Crossing and remembers the great commemorations of Juneteenth from childhood. People prepared special foods for huge gatherings. Family members returned from other parts of the country to remember the emancipation of enslaved Africans. Meanwhile, July 4th was just a day on the calendar. When Smith was 10 he looked around a Juneteenth gathering and had a revelation – there was a relative in her 90s who was old enough to have been enslaved.

Photos of early Juneteenth commemorations included a church because the events always began with a church service with people dressed in their formal attire. They were somewhat solemn, commemorating what people had gone through. Despite future problems former enslaved people faced in Texas, Juneteenth represented “Real Freedom,” said Smith. The original symbolic date of June 19th was not so much festive as religious, solemn, dignified and serious.

Today Comanche Crossing has an Emancipation Park with a beautiful huge sign as the audience at the lecture saw in a slide. The park was established in the late 19th century when formerly enslaved people bought the land to gather for Juneteenth. People continue to gather, with red being the color of the day, many drinking cans of Big Red.

Smith’s own family migrated from Texas to Oklahoma and California. As freed African Americans from Texas migrated to other parts of the country, they brought the Juneteenth commemorations with them. Oklahoma, Louisiana and California cities including San Diego, Los Angeles

Greenbelt Readies for July Fourth Day of Festivities

by Anna Bedford-Dillow

As Greenbelt prepares to celebrate July Fourth, Public Works, especially, is busily preparing. This year the festivities at Buddy Attick Park will include a Greenbelt Museum art activity from 4:30 to 6:30 p.m., a community drum circle from 5:30 to 6:45 p.m., a performance from the Greenbelt Concert Band from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. and the much-anticipated fireworks display at 9 p.m.

Community members enjoy the fireworks display at the Lake in 2016.

Brian Townsend, assistant director of operations with Public Works, says the department has been preparing for the day for a while. Some contracts are even signed a year in advance. It takes a huge amount of work, explains Townsend, who says that the administrative work began as early as August and the heavy lifting and physical work has been gearing up for a month.

Townsend says they don’t have a record of the number of attendees at past events. Though last year drew a substantial crowd, he estimates it wasn’t as robust as pre-Covid. This year

CDC Graphs Show Continued Drop in Covid-19 Admissions

by Cathie Meetre

It has been a while since the News Review published an article on Covid-19. For most people, it feels like the emergency is over – and that’s true to some extent. In fact, death data for the U.S. in recent weeks show the lowest number of Covid-related deaths, 203, since data began to be kept in March 2020. This follows a precipitous decline in hospitalizations and deaths in the last few months after a small uptick in the first months of 2023. The last time the weekly mortality count nationally was below 200 was March 14, 2020, when it hit 60 on the way up – by the following week the toll had risen to 586 and was headed north at a gallop.

The highest U.S. death count of the pandemic was in the week of January 9, 2021, at 25,974. Dark days indeed.

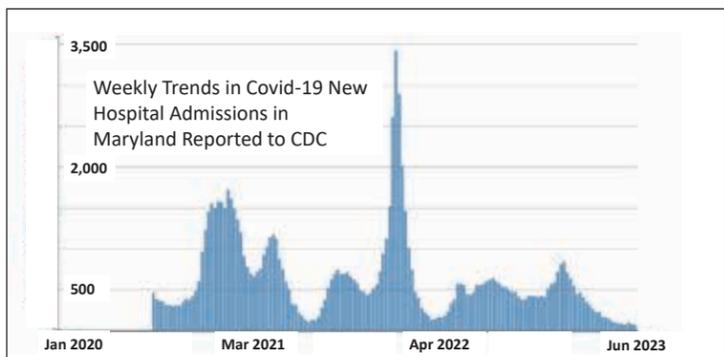

Johns Hopkins discontinued its tracking of worldwide data in March of this year. The count at that time is frozen like a memorial on their website. Worldwide, 676,609,955 cases and 6,811,955 deaths – and that is almost certainly an underestimate. Local weekly data by ZIP Code is no longer available on the Maryland and Prince George’s County websites.

Echoes Remain

Despite the decline in cases, repercussions continue to reverberate. School-age children took a big hit – rates of truancy remain high with older students and test scores are still lagging. The isolation of small children prevented their exposure to normal infections when they should have experienced them, and now some have life-threatening consequences as these infections take a more drastic course than they would have if contracted earlier. Long Covid continues to deplete

Basketball Star Penny Greene Revisits His Greenbelt Roots

by Edith J. Beauchamp

Pennington Greene, a former Greenbelter, collegiate basketball star and national record-setter in his day, who was recruited to play for the Atlanta Hawks in the NBA after college, returned to his roots on Saturday, June 24 to host a well-received panel at the University of the District of Columbia (UDC). The event was sponsored by the HumanitiesDC (formerly known as the Humanities Council of Washington, D.C.)

Greene’s oral history project, with hundreds of hours of video interviews conducted with some of the greats of basketball, begins as early as 1904 with the contributions of Edwin B. “building the infrastructure for Blacks to participate in organized sports by training officials and forming leagues.” Henderson was honored with the dedication of a statue of him at UDC, also on Saturday.

Letters to the Editor

Thanks to Community

On behalf of the Greenbelt Homes, Inc. Woodlands Committee, I would like to thank the community for responding so generously to our recent drive to collect used plant pots and flats. Thanks to your help, our volunteers are growing thousands of native wildflowers, grasses, sedges, groundcovers and shrubs from seed and cuttings.

Although our pot and flat collection drive at the Co-op has ended, you are welcome to bring both flats and pint-size and smaller nursery pots to the collection area near 10 Court Laurel Hill Road.

The native plants grown by Woodlands Committee volunteers will serve as essential nurseries for insects, provide nutritious food and safe shelter for nesting birds and manage stormwater in GHI's common spaces. Volunteers who would like to get in on the fun of growing are welcome to contact the Woodlands Committee plant nursery by emailing SowingStrength2@gmail.com.

Thank you again for your generous donations!

Bag Bills Differ

City council recently passed Ordinance 1389, which bans plastic bags and instructs businesses to charge $0.10 per paper bag. The county council also recently passed CB-32-2023, also known as the Better Bag Bill. Both the county bill and city ordinance ostensibly have the same goal; it even appears as though Mayor Pro Tem Kristen Weaver lifted a lot of language for Ordinance 1389 directly from CB-32-2023.

Unfortunately, the city ordinance does have subtle differences as compared with the county bill. As a result, local businesses will have to retain legal counsel to figure out how they can comply with these competing bills. Additionally, businesses with Greenbelt and non-Greenbelt locations may have to have separate point-of-sale systems if there is a bag exception in the county bill that is outlawed by the city ordinance. In other words, by rushing forward with a slightly different bill, city council has again showed itself to be anti-business and increased the cost of doing business in our great city as compared with other cities in the county.

The responsible course of action would be to repeal the ordinance to ease immediate compliance for local businesses and then to engage in better research and investigation to determine whether a narrower ordinance than the county's Better Bag Bill is warranted. Of course, this would require the incumbent councilmembers to admit they made a mistake, which in my experience is unlikely, if not impossible. It's not mysterious as to why local businesses keep choosing to set up shop in cities other than Greenbelt.

Alexander Zajac

Editor's note: When Ordinance 1389 was passed, Mayor Emmett Jordan stated that council could revise the ordinance to be consistent with the county legislation for precisely the reason Zajac mentions.

Asteroid City

In this Wes Anderson film, the itinerary of a Junior Stargazer/Space Cadet convention (organized to bring together students and parents from across the country for fellowship and scholarly competition) is spectacularly disrupted by world-changing events. Starring Jason Schwartzman, Scarlett Johansson, Tom Hanks, Jeffrey Wright, Tilda Swinton and Bryan Cranston. Said critic Katie Walsh of the Tribune News Service, "Anderson hasn't just delivered his best film in years, he's also managed to capture the zeitgeist in his own unique way."

Past Lives

Nora and Hae Sung, two deeply connected childhood friends, are wrest apart after Nora's family emigrates from South Korea. Two decades later, they are reunited in New York for one fateful week as they confront notions of destiny, love and the choices that make a life, in this heartrending modern romance. "It's a film full of quiet magic; of the power of words not spoken, and the enduring strength of love," said critic Moira MacDonald of the Seattle Times.

Easter Parade

When his partner leaves him, a vaudeville star trains an untried performer to take her place, finding love in the process. The film stars Judy Garland, Fred Astaire, Peter Lawford and Ann Miller and contains some of Astaire's and Garland's best-known songs, including Easter Parade, Steppin' Out with My Baby, and We're a Couple of Swells, all by Irving Berlin. A critical and commercial success, Easter Parade was the highest-grossing musical film of 1948 and the second-highest grossing MGM musical of the 1940s, after Meet Me in St. Louis.

Shrek

Once upon a time, in a far-away swamp, there lived an ogre named Shrek (Mike Myers) whose precious solitude is suddenly shattered by an invasion of annoying fairy tale characters. They were all banished from their kingdom by the evil Lord Farquaad (John Lithgow). Determined to save their home - not to mention his - Shrek cuts a deal with Farquaad and sets out to rescue Princess Fiona (Cameron Diaz) to be Farquaad's bride. Rescuing the Princess may be small compared to her deep, dark secret.

Meditation Classes Offered via Zoom

Do you sometimes pressure yourself to do more, do it more quickly or feel you aren't doing it well enough? Having trouble falling asleep, having stress-related problems or find yourself feeling anxious? Ever wondered what meditation is about and how it might be beneficial for you?

Katrina Boverman, a longtime meditation instructor with the SAGE program, and the Mishkan Torah Synagogue Sisterhood have quietly offered Summer Guided Meditation classes to Greenbelters and others for the past eight years. Although the synagogue itself is a wonderful peaceful setting welcoming to all, meditation this year will be offered via Zoom to attend from the comfort of home.

Attendees have expressed quieting of their bodies, minds and spirits, a deepening of inner stillness and a better ability to reconnect with themselves. They have described feeling more peaceful, serene, relaxed, mindful and present, both during and in between the classes. Common experiences outside of the class for participants have been to have greater ease falling asleep and more patience during challenging times.

Classes started on June 5 and will be held every other Monday from 3:45 to 4:45 p.m. through August 28. There is no charge; donations are welcome.

For more information email Katrinaboverman@yahoo.com or call 301-641-1035.

No Kid Hungry Feeds Children over Summer

School is finally out for summer break and kids rejoice. For many children, though, the long summer months are the hungriest time of year. No Kid Hungry is working with schools and community organizations across the state to connect kids with the free summer meals they need to grow and thrive.

Dora Kennedy French Immersion School, located at 8950 Edmonston Road, is the only meal site in Greenbelt. Breakfast will be served from 8:30 to 9 a.m. and lunch from noon to 12:30 p.m., from Monday, June 26 to Thursday, July 13.

During the school year, free and reduced-price school meals ensure that children have reliable access to nutritious food. However, when school is out for the summer those meals disappear.

"Kids shouldn't have to spend the summer worrying about where their next meal is going to come from," said Maryland No Kid Hungry Senior Manager Kara Panowitz. "Ensuring our children get nutritionally balanced meals throughout the summer months is critical to making sure they return to school in the fall healthy and ready to learn."

Daily meals are provided at schools and community sites like parks, pools and libraries across Maryland. The healthy and balanced meals are provided free of charge to all children and teens 18 and under, no registration or proof of residency or citizenship needed. To find the nearest or most convenient meal site, parents and caregivers can visit MDSummerMeals.org, text the word FOOD (or COMIDA) to 304-304 or visit NoKidHungry.org/WhatsApp.

Mosquito Tip of the Week: Dunk 'Em to Stop 'Em

M o s - quitoes are flourishing in Greenbelt now, after the rain. But there is a simple way to get rid of mosquito larvae. And it is much easier, cheaper and more efficient to fight mosquito larvae than flying and biting adult mosquitoes.

Use Mosquito Bits and Mosquito Dunks as an easy, inexpensive, organic and EPA-approved way to eliminate mosquito larvae. Apply them wherever there is standing water, like your rain water barrels or plant saucers, or wherever the soil tends to get especially wet.

Both products are locally manufactured (in Baltimore) and are available at home improvement stores and online. Their main ingredient is a naturally occurring soil bacterium, which exclusively kills mosquito larvae and causes no harm to any other form of wildlife, pets, plants or human beings.

Follow the manufacturer's instructions and use it wherever mosquitoes might breed on the property. Fewer mosquitoes mean less need for pesticides, and that's better for everyone. To learn more, to support their work and to volunteer, email GreenCAPS - Greenbelt Citizens Avoiding Pesticides, at GreenbeltGreenCAPS@yahoo.com.

Golden Age Club Members Hold Surprise Baby Shower

by Mary Moien

Greenbelt Golden Agers surprised Amber Hall with a baby shower on Wednesday, June 14. Hall is Greenbelt's therapeutic recreation supervisor (Senior and Inclusion Programs). In other words, she is the Golden Age Club contact for activities related to the city. Suze Marley and Robin Olson picked out many of the gifts and even made a flower crown for Hall. The club purchased onesies, PJ's and gift cards. Several ladies and knitting groups contributed homemade items.

Of course, there was an It's a Girl! cake and snacks for the occasion. Hall, who came to Greenbelt from

Help with City Micro Grants Available Now

Is there an idea for a community building project your group would do if funds were available? Connecting Across Greenbelt is available to assist resident groups in applying for the city's American Rescue Plan Act (ARPA) funded grants of $500 to $1,000 to build community and engage residents across neighborhoods. An amount of $50,000 of Greenbelt's federal ARPA funds have been set aside to support these initiatives. Grant applications are due by 4:30 p.m. on Friday, July 21.

For more information about the grants, visit the city website and search for micro grants. For support or assistance in applying, email Connecting Across Greenbelt at communityconnections@gb.com by Monday, July 3.

Donate Sneakers For People in Need

Greenbelt Community Church, United Church of Christ (GCC) is collecting athletic shoes by partnering with GotSneakers. This sneaker recycling program helps to keep sneakers out of landfills, where they have harmful effects on the environment.

A donation box is located outside the Fellowship Center (the small building behind the church) for people to drop off sneakers at any time.

WMATA Updates Council On Bus Network Redesign

by Deanna Dawson

William Jones, a program manager with the Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority (WMATA), met with the Greenbelt City Council in a worksession on June 7 to report on WMATA's Better Bus Network Redesign. The redesign aims to review and revamp the entire bus network to make it faster, more frequent and reliable and easier to understand.

Jones gave a slideshow about the effort, taking questions from council during the presentation and from council and residents afterward. The network redesign is one component of the Better Bus initiative, which is also considering improvements to facilities and bus stops, priority lanes and signals and building a zero-emissions fleet by 2040. The redesign represents the first comprehensive evaluation of the Metrobus network in its 50-year history.

The project aims to rethink, redesign and revitalize bus service to meet changing needs. The Washington metropolitan region has grown and travel patterns have changed, especially during and since the pandemic, and WMATA needs to realign service with where customers want to go and when they want to travel. WMATA is partnering with other local transit agencies that operate within the area served by Metrobus, including the Prince George's County Department of Public Works and Transportation, which operates TheBus.

The redesign project started last summer, with WMATA requesting input from the public and bus operators and reviewing available data on population density and travel patterns. By December the project team had developed goals and objectives: regional connectivity; match when and where residents want to travel; provide quality customer and operator experience by providing fast, frequent and reliable service; and address inequities and increase bus access to disenfranchised communities. WMATA hopes the changes will increase the number of bus trips taken on weekdays by 40,000 to 45,000 and on weekends by 30,000 to reduce single-occupant car trips and vehicle emissions. The team resolved that service should operate 24 hours a day, seven days a week, with intervals between buses no more than 30 minutes.

Draft Visionary Network

With those goals and criteria, the team developed a draft visionary network, which was released on April 17. They estimate that 103,000 and 190,000 more Maryland residents will have bus service on Saturdays and Sundays, respectively, and 371,000 Maryland residents will have 24-hour bus service. Ninety-nine percent of residents who currently have bus service will continue to have bus service, but improvements will be greater for residents of equity-focus communities.

To commemorate the 50th anniversary of Metrobus and make the public aware of the network redesign, WMATA conducted a series of public events over the past two months: five workshops, four webinars, 34 ride-alongs and 18 pop-up sessions, including one at Greenbelt Station in early May. The public comment period closed on June 18, but there will be additional opportunities in Phase Three, which has just begun.

Proposed Greenbelt Routes

Under the redesigned network, Greenbelt will be served by nine bus routes. Draft maps of routes, with their hours of operation and bus arrival intervals, are available through a link in the agenda packet for this worksession, accessed from the Municipal Access TV button on the city website at greenbeltmd.gov. The proposed routes, which resemble current Metrobus and TheBus routes (or combinations of them), are MD246, West Hyattsville – Greenbelt; MD249, Rhode Island Ave/Brentwood – Greenbelt; MD251, Laurel – Greenbelt; MD253, Greenbelt – Deanwood; MD348, Cherry Hill – Glenn Dale; MD349, Greenbelt – Bowie State; and MD350, MD351 and MD440, Greenbelt – New Carrollton. The draft route numbers may be temporary as the project team considers if alternative route names and numbers would make the bus system easier to understand.

Concerns Raised

Mayor Emmett Jordan expressed his concern that Greenbelt does not have 24-hour

Safety Concerns, Behavior Dominate Board Meeting

by Anna Bedford-Dillow

On June 8, Prince George's County Public Schools (PGCPS) Board of Education held their first June meeting. The board, which usually holds a meeting once a month, will meet twice this month ahead of a six-week break.

Chair Judy Mickens-Murray (appointed, at-large) opened the meeting by acknowledging that June is gun violence awareness month and expressed concerns about school safety. The meeting came a day after the lengthy lockdown at Bowie High School for reports of a gunman (investigation revealed a student had been carrying an airsoft rifle, which is a replica that shoots non-lethal pellets, similar to a BB gun or paintball gun) and a month after the attempted murder of a 14-year-old student on a school bus. Student safety was a central topic for the meeting, of which a large portion was the public comment section.

Student Deaths

Ryan Reed, a 10th-grader at Dr. Henry Wise High School, highlighted the deaths of several of her fellow seniors at Wise. Her track teammate, Cayliy Haygood, was killed in a car crash in March.

Toastmasters Meet

The Greenbelt Toastmasters Club invites all to join them online every first, third and fifth Wednesday of the month at 7:30 p.m. The club provides a fun and friendly environment for anyone interested in improving their public speaking and leadership skills. Learn more at greenbelt.toastmastersclubs.org.

Yarn and Darn Meets Wednesdays

Knitters, crocheters, embroiderers, rug hookers, seamsters et al., bring your portable fiber arts to the Community Center to chat and socialize while working on individual projects.

This is a free social meet-up. Participants must bring their own projects and materials. No registration required. Meetings are Wednesdays, 7 to 9 p.m. in Room 113. Email alarsen@greenbeltmd.gov for more information.

"If I asked any board member about Cayliy, you wouldn't be able to tell me anything," said Reed. "If I asked you about Michael Nwaulu, Keith Wade, Kendall Batson or Angel it would all be more of the same. Death is prominent in this county," she said as she named other Wise seniors who recently died. Nwaulu, 17, was shot and killed in a parking lot in March; Batson, 18, was shot and killed in a community center parking lot in May; Wade was shot and killed in another parking lot in March 2022. All were Wise students. Reed then drew the board's attention to the lockdown at Bowie High School the day before.

"Kids are afraid to go to school because they wonder if today will be their last day," said Reed, who called for safety measures including security guard resources and help for students struggling with mental health problems. "Kids are dying and nothing but a mention of grief counselors are provided for their friends ... You only provide resources for the kids after they have died," she alleged. Several of her fellow Wise students will be going to summer school to try to graduate early because they are tired of school and don't feel safe, she told the board.

Student Behavior

Shannon Reed, a county teacher (not related to Ryan Reed), spoke about the effect of disorder upon teachers and students.

On May 11 she had asked the board, during another public session, to "invest in people not products," but that day, "after limited meaningful discussion," they'd assigned four and a half million dollars to a Florida company to "support 300 dropouts," she alleged. "PGCPS need to be internally strengthened so that thousands of students who are compromised – as is evidenced by MCAP scores, teacher retention and the violence in schools, among other things – can thrive." Reed argued that PGCPS has spent large sums of money on educational software like Edgenuity and Achieve 3000, which she alleges aren't working, while failing to address the root causes of problems. "This board must be willing to struggle with hard truths," said Reed, as she went on to detail physical and verbal abuse and property destruction she'd suffered from students this year. "Too many students are out of control and members of the board refuse to see, hear and know the truth in order to do something about it," said Reed. "Strength is rooted in truth."

In recent meetings, including the community forums about the construction of new schools, some parents have argued for the installation of metal detectors in schools. This fall all PGCPS middle and high school students may be required to use clear backpacks (see article on page 1 of the June 22 News Review issue).

access to D.C., particularly to train stations and airports, and has no bus connection to BWI Airport, following the loss of the B30 Metrobus several years ago. Councilmember Judith Davis, who sits on the board of the Regional Transportation Agency (RTA) of Central Maryland, asked about coordination with the RTA network.

Jordan asked a question posed by resident Michael Thompson, who noted that the first MD349 bus would likely depart Greenbelt Center at about 6:20 a.m., an hour later than the G12 and G14 currently do, and that Metrorail begins service at 5 a.m. but it is not possible to get there that early by bus. Resident Anna Socrates also expressed concerns about early-morning bus service connections to Metrorail and, from New Carrollton, to TheBus route to Upper Marlboro for those called for jury duty.

Jaime Fearer, assistant director of Greenbelt's Planning and Community Development Department, noted that the proposed local service changes are generally positive, but there are some shortcomings in route coverage, including no direct service through the University of Maryland campus, no direct service to the Greenbelt Station neighborhood, less frequent direct service to Doctors Community Hospital and loss of service along Edmonston Road in the Franklin Park neighborhood. Also, only one route will serve Lakecrest Drive/Lakeside Drive/Westway, with transfer – at Ridge Road and Southway – to another route necessary to reach New Carrollton. Jordan urged that the route transfer location be changed to Roosevelt Center to take advantage of the businesses and services there as well as the city-improved bus shelters.

Next Steps

The draft visionary network will be refined, taking into account the concerns of residents and others, including those raised in this worksession. The project team will interact more with local transit agencies/systems that have not been directly involved, and consider who will actually provide the service (e.g., Metrobus or TheBus). Stop locations and stopping patterns will be determined. The team aims to have the refined plan available for further public comment in 2024.

Implementing the plan will require an increase in funding of approximately 35 percent. Changes will be made in phases, as funding allows, starting in 2025.

by moving him from Baltimore to Greenbelt in 1969 to live in Springhill Lake. There he played basketball at Greenbelt Junior High and then became an All Met player for Parkdale Senior High. “She did what she always did; Joncier Greene made a decision to save her children – especially her precocious Pennington,” he writes. It was 1969, when rioting after the killing of Martin Luther King, Jr. was overtaking both Baltimore and D.C. “Mom knew I was most likely to get caught up in the momentum of the ‘hood,” he said.

After the move to Greenbelt, said Greene in a personal essay, “I sought to find balance in this fresh environment with its own brand of diversity, culture, faith and social diplomacy ... I had to admit I was experiencing culture shock ... In the 8th grade, I walked into a gymnasium filled with an energy I had never encountered in one place. A scheduled basketball game – gave way to supervised, mass enjoyable, welcomed hysteria If playing ball could do all of this, I was in. I began my strategy by joining a Greenbelt youth league, building my fundamental skills of dribbling, passing, mastering my shot and HEART. If you don’t have heart, all the other means nothing. There is a level of passion that a true baller must embody, and any individual for that matter, but especially in order to have a successful career in basketball.” The essay also documented the January 20, 1971, game (his 9th grade year) when he witnessed Parkdale High School (Panthers) beat Saint Anthony’s High School (Tonies) coached by Hall of Fame coach John Thompson – a historic upset of the “Number One High School in the Country.”

Greene began his passion project almost 40 years ago, about the time his beloved mother died from breast cancer. He began collecting the statistics on outstanding high school and college players, initially going through microfiche at the Library of Congress of old newspaper reports of key All Met players in the D.C. area each year, including himself. By then, thanks to his college education, he was working for Fortune 500 companies such as Xerox. Greene wanted to see, “what was in the water,” in this area that enabled it to produce so many of the most outstanding players in Division I college schools all across the country, and the NBA. Working with the Smithsonian, sports reporters from the Washington Post and other authors, he curated an extensive archive of the achievements of hundreds of record-holders, some of which he has posted on his nonprofit’s website: DCBasketball.com, where the homepage has an inviting trailer for his new documentary, Supreme Courts: A Century of D.C. Area Basketball.

Greene still remembers with fondness then-Parkdale coach Stan Kernan, who got him to the elite level in the next three years of his youth after he moved to Greenbelt. In a game against Anne Arundel his senior year, Greene scored 39 points on his own, to chants of “Greene Machine!” Parkdale’s colors were green and gold, so his name was fortuitous, but the chants of the crowd were clearly for their star, Penny Greene.

An injury sidelined Greene’s own NBA career, but one of his favorite memories was receiving a standing ovation in Madison Square Garden after a particularly high personal scoring game. He reached over 1,000 points playing at the University of South Florida, the first player ever to do so at that school. After turning down Georgetown Hoyas famed coach, John Thompson (the same one Parkdale beat a few years before), he followed ACC Coach of the Year Bill Gibson (1972, Virginia University, Lynchburg) to the University of South Florida.

At a combined 50ish Parkdale High School reunion last September (classes of 1970 to 1974), Greene learned that Parkdale had just renovated the gym, and in renovating the space, contractors had painted over the Panther logos painted 49 years before by a gifted artist – a student at the school – who had been a classmate.

Greene immediately set to work with former Prince George’s County Councilmember Anne MacKinnon (who had been their class president) to see if the Panther logo could be repainted. Peter Stevenson (Parkdale ’73), now a renowned commercial artist, agreed to come back and take the time during the school’s spring break to repaint his original masterpiece. Together Greene and MacKinnon organized a fundraiser to help underwrite the costs, and at a school athletic awards ceremony in that gymnasium at Park-dale on June 1, members of the classes of ’70 to ’74 also came back and both Greene and Stevenson spoke about the project. Greene was a keynote speaker for the current Parkdale athletes and received multiple rounds of applause for his motivational talk.

Greene’s documentary about D.C. area basketball is still in production but more information and clips can be accessed at thesupremecourtsdoc.com.

Edith Beauchamp attended Greenbelt Junior High and graduated from Parkdale with Greene.

Raider Soccer Players Continue Sport On Widely-spread College Campuses

by Patrick Gleason

Summer practices for all students interested in playing for the Eleanor Roosevelt High School (ERHS) girls soccer team this fall began on Monday, June 12. While current players are preparing for the fall season – soccer, volleyball, football and cross country all hold tryouts beginning Wednesday, August 9 – two recent Roosevelt graduates will soon join college soccer programs. Kamilla Yokley decided to play at Montgomery College, while Sarai DeSouza selected the Milwaukee School of Engineering. Though they will be playing far apart, their time in the Roosevelt soccer program keeps them connected.

After playing most of an impressive senior season on the left wing, DeSouza will return to outside back in Milwaukee. Not only is she returning to the position where she started her Roosevelt career, but she will retain the Raider mascot in Wisconsin. She chose Milwaukee over Alabama A&M and the University of Rochester and heads to school on August 24. Her understanding of the game and tenacity will serve her well as she acclimates to the rigor of college soccer. Though she will be joining the Raider defense, DeSouza adds an offensive flair from the back; she led Roosevelt with 12 goals this past season, none more memorable than her two long-distance strikes in a regular season victory over Bowie.

Meanwhile, Yokley decided to continue her athletic career after being invited to a practice with the Raptors this spring. She considered playing college soccer throughout her final two Roosevelt seasons, but waited to commit until the final month of her senior year. It's an opportunity for Yokley to continue playing a sport she loves, though she began her Roosevelt career with limited soccer experience as a freshman. Yokley scored an immaculate goal on a volley against Parkdale in her first season and has exhibited remarkable growth each year since, serving as a junior varsity captain before ascending to varsity. She hopes to continue playing center offensive mid – where she uses exceptional field vision and unyielding patience to control game tempo – as she enters the next phase of her career.

The remainder of the ERHS girls soccer class of 2023 heads to an eclectic group of colleges this fall to further their studies. Julia Beckmann will attend the University of North Carolina, while Larissa Olson chose the University of Denver. Alexis Casey and Grace Zack will stay in state at the University of Maryland and Howard Community College. Finally, Azinwi McKinney chose Drexel University and Mia Hamilton chose Temple University – both schools in Philadelphia.

While these Roosevelt graduates transition to intercollegiate sports, a new group begins its own journey; all aspiring student-athletes can consult the ERHS website to contact the appropriate coach for practice and tryout details. The final school bell has sounded; however, the world of high school sports is heating up to complement the onset of summer – each day an opportunity for athletes to better themselves.

Good Soil Workshop Draws Keen Gardening Contingent

by Deb Daniel

On June 17, the CHEARS Growing Good Soil Workshop taught by Judy Walsh-Mellett was attended by 14 Greenbelt gardeners eager to learn about soil health. Under the fig and cherry trees in the Three Sisters Community Center Garden, Walsh-Mellett took gardeners through a hands-on presentation of the qualities of good soil (friable, not compacted), how to amend soil to be rich in nutrients and how to build new topsoil by composting and sheet mulching.

As Walsh-Mellett stated in the handout for the workshop, “A shift in orientation; think about growing good soil rather than growing food. When you grow good soil, you will be contributing to the good of the earth and our local community, and the great, healthy food will be a bonus. Building soil in your garden area is a process. It takes time and with attention to a few practices, it will grow better and better over time. Nature is our friend in this department.”

Walsh-Mellett was taught about caring for the earth by her father who created a wonderful garden at their Pennsylvania home which had previously been a strip mine. The garden was on a steep hill that was nothing but shale. Over time, her father terraced the land, brought in organic matter and buried his food scraps. When her dad died, Walsh-Mellett authored a poem called Clocks, Rocks and Roses about the “potatoes, planted by St. Patrick’s Day, peas, green onions, green beans ... tomatoes and berries.”

Vegetable Gardening

The participants first felt compacted clay soil that was almost as hard as a rock. To get that soil to be “friable” or “readily crumbled” requires building up soil by composting with plants which over generations have grown used to the soil and can thrive in that soil environment.

Amendments

Soil testing gives information on the pH level (acidity or alkalinity of the soil) and how many of the nutrients that plants need such as phosphorus (P), nitrogen (N), potassium or potash (K) are present. Plants usually like a pH of 6-7, which is neither too acid nor too alkaline. The University of Maryland (extension.umd.edu/resource/soil-testing-and-soil-testing-labs) recommends six labs that perform soil tests for gardeners (for a fee). Walsh-Mellett recommended the site growitbuildit.com for soil testing information. Participants discussed soil amendments like seaweed or kelp, rock phosphate, bonemeal, limestone, Azomite and green sand. Organic fertilizer can improve soil deficient in nutrients.

Composting

Compost happens as a natural process of the earth and is like a multivitamin for the soil. Walsh-Mellett showed the layers involved in composting – a roughage layer of brush, stalks or sticks for air circulation, topped by alternating brown layers like leaves and straw and green layers of vegetative matter, manure and food scraps which causes heat to cook the layers into soil.

Sheet Mulching

Sheet mulching involves laying down a layer of cardboard (no labels or tape) on the ground or lawn where the garden will be planted. After wetting the cardboard, composting layers are added. The cardboard keeps grass and weeds from growing. If done in the fall, by spring the “lazy” bed of sheet mulching will be ready to plant.

Cover Crops

From the Workshop Handout by Walsh-Mellett

“Some cover crops will add nitrogen to the soil. This is the one element that is always depleted from the soil, so one wants to always be finding ways to add it back. (Clover, alfalfa, peas, beans, vetch: use an inoculant or rhizobium bacteria to help the plants fix the nitrogen in the soil.) Daikon radish can be used as a cover crop to pull minerals from deep down in the soil... Cover crops, together with composting, is the easiest and best way to build soil. One is just assisting nature in what she does so well.”

Vermicomposting

The Worms Crawl In, The Worms Crawl Out from the Hearse Song describes worms forming rich soil from food scraps. Walsh-Mellett keeps a vermicomposting station in her house (about a foot and a half square) and brought the unit for display. Worms are fed food waste. Watermelon or cantaloupe are favorite worm foods for the red wigglers. Scraps of newspaper are also added to the bins of worms.

After thanking Walsh-Mellett for the informative and fun workshop on soil health, participants enjoyed dessert of cherries picked from the sour cherry tree.

and Sacramento started holding Juneteenth events.

The audience was encouraged to listen to some of the oral histories of formerly enslaved Africans collected by the Federal Writers’ Project. Born in Slavery: Slave Narratives from the Federal Writers’ Project, 1936-1938 contains more than 2,300 first-person accounts of slavery and 500 black-and-white photographs of formerly enslaved people. These narratives were collected in the 1930s as part of the Federal Writers’ Project of the Works Progress Administration, later renamed Work Projects Administration. Smith shared heart-wrenching memories as he quoted the words of formerly enslaved people. To access the interviews, visit loc.gov/collections/slave-narratives-from-the-federal-writers-project-1936-to-1938.

The lecture was sponsored by the Greenbelt Black History and Culture Committee, the Greenbelt Museum and Greenbelt Recreation and was filmed by Greenbelt Access Television.

Who Would You Nominate For 2023 Outstanding Citizen?

by Bob Zugby

With this year’s Greenbelt Labor Day Festival only 10 weeks away, volunteers on the Labor Day Festival Committee are working hard to prepare for the event. Since 1973 – 50 years ago – each Festival includes recognition of that year’s Outstanding Citizen.

Volunteerism is the essence of the Greenbelt community. The members on the committee that selects the Outstanding Citizen do not know everyone in town. In order to select an exceptional candidate, the committee will need nominations from across all areas of Greenbelt. Do you know someone who contributes greatly to our community?

Every successful nonprofit relies on a team of volunteers. Without volunteers, Greenbelt’s many cooperatives and programs could not function. Without dedicated citizens freely giving their time to the city’s advisory boards and committees, they would not function. Volunteers run many youth programs such as sports and scouting programs. Volunteers give their time to support seniors in the community, providing rides to medical appointments and much more.

Nominate someone by completing the nomination form on page 8 and describe your nominee’s contributions to our community that improve Greenbelt organizations and neighborhoods. Nominations are due Monday, July 31. This year’s honoree will be the 49th since the award began in 1973. The honoree also serves as Grand Marshal of the Greenbelt Labor Day Parade.

Every Greenbelt resident knows someone who distinguishes themselves with exceptional volunteer service, often without the recognition they deserve. History indicates many of Greenbelt’s Outstanding Citizens were nominated several times before their selection. The committee counts on nominations from the public in order to be able to select the best candidate each year and to ensure Greenbelt’s civic traditions grow and flourish into the future.

Project PB&J

On Wednesday, June 21, the Physical Therapy and Sports Medicine Center in Greenbelt held Project PB&J. With the assistance of the Greenbelt Police Department, patients, staff and community members, the sports medicine center created 300 peanut butter and jelly sandwiches to donate to Shepherd’s Table, a nonprofit that serves meals to those experiencing hunger and homelessness.
