Fredericka Martin: Finding A Home Everywhere She Went

by Deanna Dawson

Fredericka Martin stands tall in the center of the middle row, with American Medical Bureau colleagues in Spain in 1937.

Fredericka Martin came to Greenbelt in April of 1939 to be the supervising nurse at the new Greenbelt hospital. Born in 1905 in Cooperstown, N.Y., Martin graduated nursing school in Christ Hospital in New Jersey and served as supervisor and head nurse in several hospitals in New York City. During the early 1930s, she became active in the nurses' union, attended political science classes, began to study foreign languages and first went abroad in 1935, traveling to England, Germany and Russia.

Concerned about the growing threat of fascism in Europe, Martin joined the Medical Bureau to Aid Spanish Democracy and went to Spain in January 1937 to serve as chief nurse and administrator of the American Hospital division, supervising the work of 54 nurses and helping to set up six hospitals. (In 1936-38, 2,800 American volunteers, collectively known as the Abraham Lincoln

Standard School Bells Will Mean Significant Changes for Greenbelt

by Anna Bedford-Dillow

School bell times will be consolidated across the county beginning in August this year. For the next school year there will only be three start times for schools, each an hour apart and dismissal will be at one of six standardized times. The changes were announced by the Prince George's County Public Schools (PGCPS) administration at the March Board of Education meeting and are part of attempts to implement recommendations from the recent transportation audit and rectify several years of transportation challenges for the county.

The new start time for all public elementary schools in Prince George's County will be 7:30 a.m. The start time for Pre-K to 8 academies and middle schools will be 8:30 a.m., and the start for high schools will be 9:30 a.m. Six release times have been announced: 1:40 p.m., 2:10 p.m., 2:40 p.m., 3:10 p.m., 3:40 p.m. and 4:10 p.m. The Board of Education said it will announce the impact on specific schools next month.

Greenbelt Schools

Though PGCPS projects minimal impact on most schools by these standardized bells, the changes in Greenbelt look significant. PGCPS reports that most schools (57 percent) should expect to shift 15 minutes or less, 33 percent are expected to see no change, seven percent should expect a shift of 16 to 30 minutes

Citizens Police Academy Has Largest Class Since Pandemic

by Laura Charleston

This year's Greenbelt Citizens Police Academy has received an overwhelming response, resulting in one of the largest classes yet. Due to the high number of applicants, police had to turn some applicants away.

"There's definitely an interest out there for it. So that had me excited. You always want to have people who want to be present in your classes," said Ricardo Dennis, the Greenbelt Police Department's (GPD) public information officer.

The 10-week course, which began Thursday, March 7, allows attendees to learn more about police work and covers diverse topics like crime and patrol procedures, CPR, what to do in an active threat attack, de-escalation and more.

Tim White, deputy police chief, says it gives attendees an "eye-opening experience." The program aims to foster understanding and communication between the GPD and the residents, combining classroom and hands-on instruction, said the department.

"TV glamorizes the highlights of law enforcement, but there's a lot of [other] stuff that takes place," said Dennis. While crime and law enforcement television shows create drama by highlighting and exaggerating aspects of police work and investigations, the academy gives members of the public a more realistic idea of what happens during an investigation, the duties of police officers and the different situations they experience. There's a "huge difference" with what the public sees on TV, notes Dennis.

Real-life Application

Dennis has planned the lessons to provide information that residents can apply in real-life situations. "Knowing CPR ... and getting your certification, I think that's something everybody can have and use," he told the News Review. For example, the Advanced Law Enforcement Rapid Response Training (ALERRT) is active threat assessment, which "teaches people what to do if you're ever involved in active shooter situations," or other dangerous situations involving many people, said Dennis.

The Class Members

The application requirements to participate in the citizens academy include being 18 years or older; either living, working or going to school in Greenbelt; having no prior felony or misdemeanor convictions; and not missing more than one of the classes.

"So there's a lot of things that I'm knowledgeable about, but just wanting to gain some more knowledge and plus I relocated my residence to Greenbelt," said TeArria Cannon, one of the students in this year's citizens police academy.

There are 12 participants in the class, an increase from the

Letters to the Editor

G12 Bus Is Needed

Thank you for the article about the G12 bus being eliminated.

I have an autistic adult son who relies on the G12 to get to and from his job as a pastry packer in D.C. He leaves at 6 a.m. every day to arrive at work on New York Avenue by 8. The elimination of the G12 this summer would add an additional hour for him, travelling to work and an added hour coming home. We need this bus for him to stay employed and to have a smidgen of work-life balance. So I'd like to write to someone who is part of the decision making to keep this bus line active and alive as it is.

Incineration Response

This letter is in response to Randall Crenwelge's letter of February 29, and in addition to the March 14 reply from Luisa Robles, Greenbelt's Sustainability Coordinator. Crenwelge recommends incineration instead of paying for recycling, referencing Ocean City's example. But incineration is not the answer.

Hmmm, they don't incinerate it in Ocean City. Not even in Maryland. Ocean City trucks their waste (including recyclables) to Chester, Penn., to have it incinerated. Did you ever wonder why? Many cities and communities are shutting down or banning incinerators.

Incinerators emit more greenhouse gas emissions per unit of electricity produced than any other power source, including coal plants. Among the facilities operating in Maryland, the Wheelabrator incinerator in Baltimore emits the highest amount of planet-warming CO2, estimated at 690,033 tons.

In addition to greenhouse gas emissions, incinerators are major sources of toxic air emissions including dioxins, lead, mercury, nitrogen and sulfur oxides, particulates and other organic pollutants of emerging concern. They are often located in low-income neighborhoods since opposition to them is lower.

Don't like toxic emissions? Well, there are ways to reduce them drastically: (1) use high-tech equipment to burn them at very high temperatures to neutralize the toxins; or (2) separate plastics and paper and ensure only these get incinerated. But both of these methods increase costs considerably, eliminating cost savings.

Or the other solution: ban or reduce plastic production and usage, and recycle what does show up in the waste stream.

Unfortunately, even the best solution has tradeoffs.

John Lippert, chair, Greenbelt Advisory Committee on Environmental Sustainability (Green ACES)/Green Team

Correction

In last week's paper we published Ken Loo's photo of an eagle and three smaller birds that were mistakenly identified as young eagles. In fact, by the time an eaglet leaves the nest, it is the same size as an adult. The photo actually depicted three crows behind the eagle, working together in what is known as "mobbing," to chase it off.

Problemista

Alejandro is an aspiring toy designer from El Salvador struggling to bring his unusual ideas to life in New York City. As time runs out on his work visa, a job assisting an erratic art-world outcast becomes his only hope to stay in the country. This semi-autobiographical journey stars writer/director Julio Torres, Tilda Swinton and RZA.

Ghostbusters: Frozen Empire

In this film, the Spengler family returns to where it all started - the iconic New York City firehouse - to team up with the original Ghostbusters, who've developed a top-secret research lab to take busting ghosts to the next level. But when the discovery of an ancient artifact unleashes an evil force, Ghostbusters new and old must join forces to protect their home and save the world from a second Ice Age.

The Way We Were

During post-WWII McCarthyism, a diametrically opposed couple, Katie Morosky (Barbra Streisand) and Hubbell Gardiner (Robert Redford) come together to learn some important life lessons. Katie is an idealistic, uptight, Stalin-loving political activist, while Hubbell is an easy-going, athletic, All-American type and talented writer. They eventually find that genuine friendship and physical attraction are not enough to overcome fundamental societal beliefs. Viveca Lindfors plays Paula Reisner with passion.

to his grandchildren and great-grandchildren, and friend.

Born October 12, 1936, in Washington D.C., Bob grew up in Mount Rainier. He played football and was a proud alumnus of the first graduating class of Northwestern High School in 1955. Upon graduation he served in the National Guard. Later, he and his wife Mary Ann moved to Greenbelt, which has been their home for the last 65 years.

Following his retirement from the Washington Post, he and Mary Ann enjoyed traveling the world together. Puerto Rico, where they once lived for a month, held a particularly special place in their hearts. Closer to home they enjoyed visits to the beaches of Wildwood, N.J., and Ocean City.

Bob enjoyed attending concerts, particularly music of the 50s and 60s, especially Elvis and Frankie Valli. He also enjoyed baseball and was a fan of the Washington Senators and Washington Nationals. He was a strong supporter of the Washington Redskins, too, for which he was a season ticket holder. Bob also liked to try his luck at casinos, go fishing and crabbing, and cheer on his Condolences to the family of Bob Hawk, who lived in Greenbelt for 65 years. He'll be greatly missed by his family and friends.

Our condolences also to the friends and family of Jimmy Dobbin, who grew up in Greenbelt and also made it his home as an adult. He will be remembered for all the joy he brought as Santa Claus, his love of animals and his friendliness.

Congratulations to Karen Yoho on her election as president of the Greenbelt Labor Day Festival Committee this month. Much gratitude to its outgoing president (but continuing board member)

Linda Ivy for over 15 years of service in the role.

Families with Flexibility Make The Most of Asynchronous Days

by Anna Bedford-Dillow

Tuesday, April 2 will mark the third asynchronous half-day of this school year.

State-approved Virtual Days

In the January 13, 2023, issue, we reported on some of the challenges faced by parents managing the new virtual days of instruction after the Maryland State Department of Education approved up to eight virtual learning days for that school year. The same number of virtual days (eight) was approved for the current 2023-2024 school year. "The days that may be considered for this opportunity include inclement weather days (i.e., snow days), staff professional learning days, high school graduation days to enable teachers to assist with or attend the graduation, or other similar circumstances," states the Prince George's County Virtual Day Instruction Plan.

Of the eight half or full virtual days allowed, no more than three may be asynchronous.

Asynchronous Days

Asynchronous days are those in which lessons or work are posted for completion by students without any live instruction. They are preferred by many parents and students over virtual synchronous learning days due to the flexibility they offer in the timing of the completion of assigned work. During remote learning, many children, especially those who are younger, experienced difficulties managing their schedule of online classes while parents were working and faced challenges connecting to virtual rooms or getting links to work. Asynchronous learning, by contrast, allows children and parents to access and complete assignments when they can during the day.

Of course, any day on which schools are closed poses a logistical complication for some parents, especially those who can't take time off or work from home. So, why do the schools do it? Virtual days and half-days provide school administrators and teachers with some time away from the classroom (they sometimes align with the end of grading periods) while still counting toward the total number of instructional days required in the school year.

Adelaide Baker (third grade), Levi Baker (fifth grade) and Hannah Baker (seventh grade) take to the slopes after completing their asynchronous work.

The three asynchronous half-days in the school year do provide the opportunity for families with some flexibility to spend much of the day as they wish.

Making the Most of It

Monday, January 22 was the second asynchronous half-day, which arrived, by chance, on the heels of a week in which Prince George's County Public Schools (PGCPS) had only one full school day due to the Martin Luther King Jr. holiday and two back-to-back snowstorms, leaving some working families a little hard-pressed. Yet others were still able to take the opportunity to get out and have fun together.

The Baker family has three children at Dora Kennedy French Immersion School. They made the most of January's virtual asynchronous half-day by skiing at Whitetail Resort in Pennsylvania. They began their day early with the work that was already posted online but had to wait until the start of the school day to access some assignments. Their children completed about 90 minutes of work at home and finished the remainder during their drive to the ski slopes. Mom, Kateri Baker, recognized she was fortunate to have flexibility with a part-time job and a hotspot to use in the car.

Another Greenbelt mom and teacher, Jess Mealey, reported that she and her children were able to get their work done in the morning before grandparents took the kids for a lunch date and a walk around the mall. Another mom, Thelma Martinez, said she took the opportunity to break from routine and after completing assignments with her sons, took them out to dinner. Greenbelt second-grader Tae Cahalan reported that it was a "good day." His father worked from home and after Tae finished his schoolwork in the morning, he was able to play with some friends in his court who were also home from school.

Technology Problems

January's remote learning experience was not entirely smooth. The platform Clever, which PGCPS uses as the student portal, was unreachable during the afternoon. Students need to log in to Clever with their PGCPS credentials to access the instructional tools, websites and online textbooks. Canvas, the platform teachers use for their classes (which replaced Blackboard and Google Classroom as the county's leading management system), was also down. In addition, SchoolMax, PGCPS' family portal for student information, including grades, was down for part of the day. The county made no announcement about the technological difficulties, but some teachers communicated with students and families about challenges accessing assignments and offered extended deadlines to complete work. Hopefully the technological difficulties will be resolved by the third and final asynchronous half-day this coming week.

You might see more children having fun out and about in Greenbelt on Tuesday.

The author has two children who are PGCPS students.

and only three percent should expect their times to change 31-60 minutes, they reported. All six of Greenbelt's schools will see a change in time, ranging from 15 minutes to one hour and 45 minutes. PGCPS doesn't mention the possibility of changes being greater than an hour, but for two Greenbelt elementary schools (Greenbelt Elementary and Magnolia Elementary) it will be.

Greenbelt Elementary

Greenbelt Elementary School's (GES) morning bell is currently 9:15 a.m., with dismissal at 3:25 p.m. Next year's standard elementary school start time of 7:30 a.m. will be an hour and 45 minutes earlier. While dismissal bells for each school have not been announced yet, the earliest time of 1:40 p.m. would maintain the current length of its school day.

Springhill Lake Elementary

Springhill Lake Elementary School currently begins at 7:45 a.m. and has dismissal at 1:55 p.m. This means its students will begin 15 minutes earlier next year with a starting time of 7:30 a.m. Individual schools' dismissal bells are yet to be announced but to maintain their length of school day they will likely dismiss 15 minutes earlier at 1:40 p.m.

Magnolia Elementary

Like GES, Magnolia Elementary students will see a change of an hour and 45 minutes. Currently they begin their day at 9:15 a.m. and are dismissed at 3:25 p.m. They'll have a new start time of 7:30 a.m. and a likely (but not yet announced) dismissal time of 1:40 p.m.

Dora Kennedy French Immersion

As a K-8 specialty school,

Dora Kennedy French Immersion (DKFI) should expect to start their day 45 minutes earlier at 8:30 a.m. next year. Currently their school bells are at 9:15 a.m. and 3:55 p.m. To keep the length of the school day consistent they would expect their (yet-to-be-announced) dismissal time to be at 3:10 p.m.

Greenbelt Middle

Greenbelt Middle School (GMS) will see a 30-minute change in times. Currently they begin their day at 9 a.m. and end at 3:40 p.m. They should expect to begin their day at 8:30 a.m. next year. Though not yet announced, a dismissal time of 3:10 p.m. would maintain the same length of school day for them.

The new times would see DKFI and GMS with the same start and - likely - dismissals times. The two schools already share buses. (GMS moved to a new building on the same site in August 2012 and DKFI has been located in the former GMS building since 2014, so the two schools are adjacent to one another, though PGCPS plans to move DKFI in 2026.)

Eleanor Roosevelt High

Eleanor Roosevelt High School's bell times will shift 45 minutes. Currently the school day runs from 8:45 a.m. to 3:25 p.m. They will start 45 minutes later next school year at 9:30 a.m. Their dismissal time has not yet been announced, but will likely be the latest of the six options, 4:10 p.m., to maintain the same number of hours in the school day.

Open Mic Tuesdays Are Always a Hit at the New Deal Café

by Li'l Dan Celdran

Michael McTrouserpants hosted Open Mic at the New Deal Café on Tuesday, February 27, where a variety of performers sang; played piano, guitar and drums; rapped; recited poetry; and danced. Some were seasoned performers, some were first timers, either performing their own work or covering other artists. There were even costumes and props.

Special guest comedian Mustapha Sidik told stories of how to date while growing up in a strict family. The audience was also treated to a talented young child who played Djembe, a type of drum from West Africa.

Open mics are hosted by different people each week. Depending upon the week's host, sign-ups start at 6:15 or 6:30 p.m. every Tuesday evening. It's a great time to grab some dinner with neighbors and friends, watch the show and sign up to perform.

Participating is easy. Sign up to perform two songs or eight minutes of performance. Greenbelt is fortunate to have so much talent right here in our "living room." At the New Deal Café a warm and welcoming audience of friends and family applaud and cheer on each act. Stop by sometime.

For more information, visit newdealcafe.com/events/calendar.

GHI Pet and Family Disaster Preparedness Planning Event

by Kristine B. White

The 2024 GHI Pet and Family Disaster Preparedness Event will take place at 1 Hamilton Place, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Saturday, April 6 (rain date is April 7). The Greenbelt Homes, Inc. (GHI) Companion Animal Committee is hosting this event to encourage families to be prepared for emergencies and natural disasters, and to have an emergency plan for their families that includes their pets. Being better prepared for emergencies and disasters strengthens our community and makes it easier for first responders to do their jobs.

First responders and emergency response teams will be available to discuss how to make sure one's family is prepared for an emergency. They will describe their roles during emergencies and share lessons learned responding to emergencies and disasters.

Learn about resources and items to include in preparation for emergencies. See why it is important to include family pets in an emergency plan. Learn what supplies to have on hand for the family, including pets, in the event of sheltering in place. Learn what a go-bag is, why to have one in the house and in the car, and what a go-bag should contain. Remember pets need go-bags, too.

Well-Wishers for the Animals of Greenbelt Shelter (WAGS) volunteers will be available to take family photos including pets against a backdrop. They will explain why one should always have a current photo of family that includes pets. Learn about and sign up for Greenbelt Alerts. See the City of Greenbelt's American Kennel Club Disaster Relief trailer that has everything needed to set up a temporary shelter for pets.

Bahá'ís and Friends Celebrate Naw-Ruz at Schrom Hills Park

by Jim Fischer

Mayor Emmett Jordan, Three Sisters Garden East coordinator Jennifer Dudley and Joy Allchin from the Greenbelt Baha'i community attend the Naw-Ruz Celebration in Schrom Hills Park.

The Bahá'í community and friends returned to Schrom Hills Park again this year to celebrate Naw-Ruz on Wednesday, March 20, the first day of spring. Lunch and a sharing of songs and poetry about renewal of the spiritual and material worlds preceded a service project. The Bahá'ís in collaboration with Three Sisters Garden East coordinator Jennifer Dudley encouraged participants to help prepare the garden for the growing season. Middle schoolers used their raking skills, learned during their junior youth group neighborhood service project last fall.

The Bahá'ís gave the garden a decorative marker with a favorite quotation from the Bahá'í Writings, "O Friend! In the garden of thy heart plant naught but the rose of love." Mayor Emmett Jordan was present to receive the new marker for the garden and speak to the group. He recalled the 2014 dedication of the garden, "the Native Americans found that when they planted beans, squash and corn together each grew faster, so there was a synergy created by these three crops. When CHEARS came together with the Greenbelt Community Foundation with this idea of planting (the Three Sisters) gardens in the three sections of Greenbelt, it was to unify the system of working together for stronger, faster and better growth. It's a beautiful thing for people to come together to be able to grow flowers, food and sustenance."

Reel and Meal Seeks Sponsors, Volunteers

For 17 years (and counting) the Reel and Meal at the New Deal Café has been holding documentary screenings on the third Monday of the month. The two primary sponsors – the Utopia Film Festival and the Prince George's County Peace & Justice Coalition – strive to make these events as accessible as possible and to use the events to highlight important causes. They've kept the screenings free to the public, and when the Covid pandemic struck, learned how to host the event live on Zoom. They try to spotlight issues ranging from the local level to the international, including the environment, reparations and global conflicts.

They're now looking to broaden the variety of organizations sponsoring these events, to make the programs even better. Though they have screened over 100 documentaries over the years, that's only a drop in the bucket of all the documentaries that come out. Their small team does not want to miss out on some of the biggest issues. They also want to make adding input to the events accessible to all. They are happy to train new members on running sound systems, managing hybrid Zoom meetings, the process of securing film screening rights and everything else in between.

Groups interested in joining are invited to send an email to Thies.Daniel@gmail.com.

Toastmasters Meet

The Greenbelt Toastmasters Club invites all to join them online every first, third and fifth Wednesday of the month at 7:30 p.m. The club provides a fun and friendly environment for anyone interested in improving their public speaking and leadership skills. James Dobbin

James Dobbin

James (Jimmy) Edward Dobbin died peacefully at Holy Cross Hospital on March 13, 2024. Jimmy was born November 2, 1947, to Paul and Lela Dobbin at Garfield Memorial Hospital in Washington, D.C., where Children's Hospital, Washington Hospital Center and the Veterans Affairs Hospital now stand. Jimmy's parents got married in 1938, applied to live in Greenbelt, were accepted, and moved to Greenbelt from Kansas in that same year and lived at 32 Crescent Road. Paul got drafted during World War II and Paul and Lela moved to San Antonio, Texas. They returned to Greenbelt after his honorable Army discharge in the early 1940s and moved to 1-A Westway. In 1952 they moved to 13-A Hillside.

Jimmy completed 12 years of school in Greenbelt, graduated and got a job with the federal government, working for the Department of Transportation and the Coast Guard. Jimmy retired in 2002 at the age of 55 after working for the federal government for 37 years.

Jimmy met his beloved wife, Arlie Dobbin (Day) in a bowling league. On April 12, 1975, they got married. Jimmy and Arlie never had children, but they both loved animals, so over their almost 49 years of marriage they adopted many dogs that were thought of as family (and spoiled like children).

Jimmy was a very outgoing man. He loved talking to his neighbors, eating at Joe's, his friends in the bowling league and playing Santa Claus at Beltway Plaza for years. Arlie made a Mrs. Claus costume and joined him greeting the children at Christmas. Both Jimmy and Arlie took adult education classes and were so grateful to continue learning that they began fundraising for Prince George's County Public Schools Adult Education Program at the Greenbelt Labor Day Festival. At first, they made a bean bag toss, and when they got older and no longer able to continue, they sponsored a food truck and took turns being on site at the Festival where Jimmy loved to sit in his chair and talk to everyone who stopped by.

Jimmy was preceded in death by his parents, his brother Donald Paul Dobbin, and brother-in-law Frederick William Murphy. He leaves behind his sister, Donna Dobbin Murphy, sister-in-law Sharon Day, niece Dawn Day Smith, nephew Tim Day, niece Brittany Dobbin Cockrell, nephew Joseph Dobbin, grandnephew Hunter Paul Cockrell and many cousins. A celebration of life will be scheduled at a later date.

Women of Greenbelt Past

Grace Falke Tugwell: Had Her Own Roles in Greenbelt

by Deanna Dawson

Grace Tugwell was known through most of her adult life as the wife of Rexford Tugwell who, as head of the Resettlement Administration (RA) in the 1930s, led the creation and construction of Greenbelt. But she, then Grace Falke (she married Rex Tugwell in 1938), had her own roles in the construction and development of Greenbelt. She worked for the RA as an assistant administrator for labor, personnel and information, and helped arrange for the trains that brought as many as 5,000 workers daily from Baltimore and Washington to Branchville, where trucks took them to the construction site for the new town. She also selected the furniture that was offered to new Greenbelt residents and drove the RA's involvement with the arts, originating the Special Skills program, a favorite of Eleanor Roosevelt, which sent artists, artisans and musicians to new settlements to instruct residents in folk music, quilting and furniture making and to make public art. Lenore Thomas, who sculpted the Mother and Child statue and the bas reliefs on the Community Center (then Center Elementary School), likely came to Greenbelt under the auspices of the Special Skills program. Leaving Washington after her marriage, Grace worked in New York with the National Youth Administration, a New Deal agency that provided work and education for those aged 16 to 25.

Grace Tugwell accompanied her husband to Puerto Rico where he served as governor from 1941 to 1946 and then to the University of Chicago. While there, she worked in the Hyde Park community to help revitalize the neighborhood around the university.

In 1957, the Tugwells moved to Greenbelt to a home they had built in the new Woodland Hills development (Greenbelt News Review, October 13, 1955, and July 18, 1957). They lived here for several years while Rex did research at the Library of Congress and wrote more books, and Grace worked as assistant to the general manager of Greenbelt Consumer Services, then Samuel Ashelman.

The Tugwells moved back to Puerto Rico in the early 1960s and then to Santa Barbara, Calif., where Rex was a senior fellow at the Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions until his death in July 1979 (Greenbelt News Review, August 2, 1979).

Grace Tugwell visited Greenbelt, and the Tugwell Room in the Greenbelt Library, in 1982 (Greenbelt News Review, January 21, 1982) and again in May 1987, when she was the honorary chairperson of The Greenbelt Conference on New Towns. She died in Santa Barbara in March 2001 at age 92 (Greenbelt News Review May 3, 2001).

Brigade, traveled to Spain to become part of the International Brigades of almost 40,000 men and women from over 50 countries who fought on the Republican side against the Nationalist forces during the Spanish Civil War.) After training Spanish women to assume some of the nursing and hospital administration duties, Martin returned to the U.S. in February 1938 and embarked on a yearlong national speaking tour, recruiting personnel and raising funds to keep the medical volunteers in Spain supplied. Not long after this, she moved to Greenbelt.

Martin, who Greenbelters came to know as "Freddie" (or "Freddy"), married Dr. Samuel Berenberg, Greenbelt's public health officer, in June 1940. Freddie had spent her free time studying Maryland's early history and that September the Berenbergs assisted for a week with an archaeological dig in St. Mary's City, bringing home various colonial artifacts, which they were happy to show to interested Greenbelters (Greenbelt Cooperator, September 26, 1940). Later that year, Freddie was elected a member of the Maryland Historical Society in recognition of her "valuable contribution to the history of Maryland as a result of her research into the background of some of the state's lesser-known landmarks" (Greenbelt Cooperator, January 2, 1941).

In June 1941, Dr. Berenberg

took a leave of absence from his job to fill a post as the medical officer on the Pribilof Islands, some 200 miles off the coast of Alaska. There the Berenbergs managed a hospital for the indigenous Aleuts on St. Paul Island. Freddie immediately became immersed in Aleut culture, language and history. She also gave birth to a daughter, TobyAnne. When Japanese warplanes began to reconnoiter the Aleutian Islands and Pribilofs, the Berenbergs directed construction of an air raid shelter on their island and later managed the evacuation of the Aleuts to the Alaskan mainland.

The Berenbergs returned to Greenbelt in October 1942 but left for good in January 1944 when Dr. Berenberg was appointed chief of child health services for New York City's Department of Health. Freddie continued writing the book she had started in Greenbelt (Greenbelt Cooperator, March 19, 1943), The Hunting of the Silver Fleece: Epic of the Fur Seal (published 1946, republished in 2021), and editing an Aleut language dictionary (The Aleut Language, https://library.alaska.gov/hist/hist_docs/docs/anlm/02057447.pdf), which Secretary of the Interior Harold Ickes lauded as "breaking down the language barrier that had existed between us and some 3,000 American citizens living on the Aleutian Islands off the coast of Alaska" (Greenbelt Cooperator, January 18, 1946).

After the Berenbergs divorced in 1950, Freddie and TobyAnne moved to Cuernavaca, Mexico, where Freddie worked for the next 40 years as a writer, translator and instructor in a Spanish language institute. She published an additional book, Sea Bears: The Story of the Fur Seal (1960) and, in 1986, was made an honorary citizen of St. Paul Island and awarded an honorary doctorate by the University of Alaska. She also worked tirelessly to gather materials and conduct research for a book on the medical units in Spain during the Spanish Civil War but was not able to finish it before her death in Mexico in 1992.

Shortly before Freddie's death, TobyAnne donated her mother's papers to the Abraham Lincoln Brigade Archives. The collection transferred to New York University in 2001, with additional materials donated to the collection as recently as December 2023. The journal she kept in the Pribilofs was published in 2010 by University of Alaska Press, Before the Storm: A Year in the Pribilof Islands, 1941-1942.

Elizabeth Harrington: A Leader And First Female Mayor Here

by Deanna Dawson

Elizabeth Harrington was the first female mayor in Greenbelt (and possibly the first female mayor in Maryland) but she seemed to be a leader in everything she was involved in. Born in Mississippi, she received a master's degree from Columbia University and worked for 14 years for the national board of the YWCA in New York City, making trips back to the South to work on programs aimed at improving race relations, especially among college students.

Harrington and her husband Wells moved to Greenbelt in October 1942. She soon became involved with the Greenbelt Health Association, serving as its membership committee chairperson, and she was chair of the Greenbelt Citizens Association's Community War Fund Drive. Starting in June 1945, she served for a year as president of the Greenbelt Elementary PTA and was elected president of the Prince George's PTA County Council in May 1946 and served for two years. Under her leadership, the county council, which represented 32 local PTAs with a combined membership of more than 5,000 parents and teachers, pushed for the creation of a separate court in Prince George's County for juveniles, in response to the rising juvenile crime rate. The council also pushed for bond issues for school construction (Harrington advocated for a new, larger high school for Greenbelt), higher pay for teachers, reduced class size, kindergarten and state aid in curriculum materials, among other things. Harrington went on to be elected first vice president of the Maryland Congress of PTAs in October 1948.

She filed to run for the Greenbelt Town Council in August 1947 and won a seat in a run-off election. (She was not the first woman elected to council as Ruth Taylor had been elected in the previous term.) Harrington's platform included "resident ownership of the community, upholding of the Greenbelt Consumer Services lease, a town referendum on types and location of private enterprise, expansion of town services and continuation of the city-manager form of government" (Greenbelt Cooperator, September 19, 1947). In 1949 she ran again for council – now the city council, the name having been changed officially in June 1949 – and, as the top vote getter was unanimously elected mayor of Greenbelt by her council colleagues.

During the years Harrington served on council and as mayor, her name appeared in nearly every issue of the Greenbelt Cooperator, often multiple times. An editorial in the September 22, 1949, issue acknowledged "her impressive record of service to the community before and during her [first] two years on the city council" and reported that among voters "her name was mentioned constantly, coupled with such adjectives as honesty, integrity and independence." Her resignation in June 1951 and her family's subsequent move to University Park must have left a significant void in the Greenbelt community.

Harrington remained active in the county PTA council, pressing for racial integration of Prince George's Schools following the 1954 Supreme Court decision that held segregation unconstitutional. She also resumed working for the YWCA and was director of the YWCA branch in Far Southeast Washington until her retirement in 1968. She died in January 1990 at age 87.
