Bus Meeting Discloses High Operational Losses

The problem of the operation of the Co-op bus at a steadily increasing financial loss was discussed at a Greenbelt Consumer Services' Board of Directors and bus riders special meeting last Monday night. Only a handful of bus patrons were present.

Financial statements of the bus operation were distributed to those present and board chairman Walter Bierwagen asked for constructive suggestions on how to substantially reduce the losses, which were $2600 in 1947, $2956 in 1948, and approximately $4800 in 1949, or a total loss for the three years of about $8500.

Bierwagen stated that suggestions made on curtailing the losses would be placed in effect for a trial period. Otherwise the board would undoubtedly recommend to the membership the discontinuance of the service.

According to the financial statement the average weekly loss is $100, but the board anticipated a 10c fare would eliminate the loss even with a 15% decrease in patronage. One of the suggestions made from the floor was the advisability of having the Co-op bus go as far as Branchville or to the highway. General Manager Sam Ashelman stated that this matter had been looked into some time ago and that Capital Transit had been very anxious to turn over their franchise for this area. However, he stated that since Capital Transit indicated a loss of $3500 annually, GCS decided not to do anything further about it.

Another suggestion was to ask Greenbelt's city council to subsidize the bus or take over its operation as a city bus. Further suggestions were made as to change in the bus schedules. Most of the bus users present felt that rather

Council Studies November Report As 30-Day Sample Of City Expenses

By Sally Meredith

Having the city departmental reports for November and the city budget on the same agenda provided a particularly good basis for discussion at the city council meeting Monday night, December 5.

The one-month sample of city government offered the answer to the perennial budget question: where does the money go? The money in the 1950 budget amounts to $225,683.72, and it goes for such items as the 25 gym classes held each week in the absence of such services by the Prince Georges County Board of Education; smallpox and diphtheria immunizations; a monthly circulation of 4355 books at the library; enforcing traffic laws and preventing violations of city law; and putting out fires in homes and in the woods.

Public Safety

In November, the police arrested 11 and warned 12 on traffic violations, and responded to 101 complaints, including seven fires. In addition, the fire truck responded to 10 fire calls. Acting as middleman for Public Housing Administration during PHA's off-hours, the police passed on to PHA maintenance men 205 heating, 53 electrical, and 33 plumbing complaints. One of the several annual parades occurred during November, on Armistice Day, adding to the duties of the police department. The 1950 budget includes $33,795.80 for the public safety.

In connection with the department of public safety, the council passed an ordinance transferring sums from the 1949 budget surplus for the purchase of equipment, and for the purchase of a combination fire and street light-truck. Department of Public Safety Director George Panagoulis, acting as city manager in the absence of Charles T. McDonald, answered a protest transmitted by Mayor Elizabeth T. Harrington from the absent council member Steve L. Comings on the subject of the new truck, by explaining that at present street lights are cleaned or replaced by a man who must stand on a ladder on top of a truck. Calling the present practice dangerous, Councilman Frank J. Laster said the $2900 for the truck

British Sox, Swiss Cheese New GCS Items

Sox manufactured in a consumer cooperative-owned factory in England are now available in the Greenbelt variety store, the first time these sox have been imported into the United States by a business organization. The custom appraiser asked GCS to post a special bond to cover the possibility of additional duty, because in his opinion the asking price for these sox is much lower than that for other imported sox of comparable quality.

Another imported article available in Greenbelt is real Swiss cheese which can now be found in the Supermarket. The Swiss cheese is a favorite of the Greenbelt Party. He is a member of the Greenbelt Party.

Activities at the Drop Inn last Saturday night were very successful. The Drop Inn group, which was newly elected president, Kenneth Miller, had a very successful meeting with the Greenbelt Party. would be well-spent if it prevented a fatal accident. Councilman Thomas J. Canning added that the new truck would cause a saving in personnel since it could be operated by one man.

Library Busy

The public library reported 199 new books added to present stocks, and an attendance of 3520, with a book turnover of 4355, of which 2664 were children's books. Book Week was observed during November, with prizes given to Joyce Pendleton, Joan Cramatte, and John Moroney for taking out the three lucky books chosen for the occasion. It was pointed out in the library report that from November 28 to December 5 there was an exhibit of Jewish books in the library, and that some of them would be added to the Greenbelt collection. Also announced in the November report was the Christmas display, to be shown from December 12 through the holidays. Funds for the library are included in the $9535 designated as "cultural" under the recreation budget for 1950.

Recreation

After-school activities for elementary and high school children and for adults currently include tumbling, gym, volleyball, basketball, soccer, football, and Drop Inn activities. The recreation report gave the Boys Club credit for its assistance in providing recreation outlets for boys, mentioning specifically the recent football season and the upcoming boxing and basketball participation. The glee clubs and the children's dramatic club were included in the report as was an account of the month's Drop Inn program which, according to the report, was in November "more successful than at any time in the history" of the organization. Over 70 teenagers attend after school to dance, play ping-pong, read, do homework, and have refreshments. On Friday and Saturday nights, as many as 100 children bring their own crowd to the Drop Inn along with the Sunday night, the report continued, and the report looked forward to a membership of 400. The local recreation department has been asked to help set up a recreation program in Silver Spring, has lectured to Maryland University, recreation classes and wrote articles for the Prince Georges Post and the Prince Georges Post.

Recreational improvements realized during November included cleaning the area around the baby swimming pool, planning a putting green next to the pool for golf fans, and a new Drop Inn library for homework, games, sessions, and organized recreation. The recreation budget for 1950 of the budget; "other recreation," $20,819.50.

A letter from the City Clerk, Winfield McCarty, had tested the high budget figure, saying that the community should determine what is essential but desirable facilities are being provided. See COUNCIL, Page 3

Sic Transit

In a letter to The Cooperator last week, E. Cleveland Giddings, vice-president of Capital Transit, said in part, "We would be glad to furnish any service that the people of Greenbelt will patronize and in doing so pay the cost of operation."

This is the first sign of a willingness to cooperate that we have been able to detect from the transit firm, and one that we thoroughly welcome. We would like to tie this quote in with another from the same letter: "... as to our being a monopoly, you are indicating the inconsistency of this by recognizing our greatest competition—the automobile." Greenbelters drive themselves and their neighbors to work for the obvious reason that they can do it in 35 minutes, whereas by public transit the time is three times that, and for another obvious reason that several people sharing the costs of driving and parking an automobile can do so cheaper than they can ride public transit. But it's no fun for the driver, as Mr. Giddings pointed out in the letter to the citizens, when he listed such inconveniences as parking, such traffic hazards as exist between Greenbelt and downtown Washington, and the wear and tear on automobiles. Any driver would be willing to pay a little extra to have a public transit company take over these headaches for him—provided the service were reasonably close to what he can achieve with his car, and provided the cost of the headache remedy isn't too high.

It may be insulting to point out to a corporation as large as Capital Transit the simple economic lesson that an empty bus costs as much to run as a full one, and that 40 people at 10 cents a throw are worth much more than 10 people at 25 cents.

Greenbelters could—and would—fill at least three express buses to downtown Washington in the morning rush hours, and three in the afternoon. They would probably be willing to pay as much as 60 cents for a round trip for such service. It seems to us that the $300-$400 Capital Transit would collect on these buses each week would go a long way in making up the deficit it is now operating on in Greenbelt. Granted, it would take two buses instead of one, and two drivers instead of one, but we still feel that the net result would be mutually beneficial.

We wonder if Mr. Giddings would be willing to discuss this proposal, or an alternative one, with a committee of Greenbelters?

A Lack And A Loss

The Cooperator is always willing to do battle for causes and ideas that promote the best interest of Greenbelt's citizens. As the only local newspaper in town, we try to reflect the sentiments and attitudes of our readers as vigorously as possible. In the attempt we often encounter a discouraging lack of enthusiasm on the part of the people we try to represent.

The poor attendance at the Greenbelt Consumer Services "bus meeting" seems to indicate that residents regard the loss of local bus service as unimportant.

So be it.

NCJW Celebrates Let's Talk Co-op Third Birthday

By Ben Rosenzweig

Our Motto: "More light, less heat"

In honor of the third successful year of the National Council of Jewish Women, local council members and their husbands attended a supper party last Saturday evening. Contributing to the success of the party were Hal Fisher, the master party were Hal Fischer, the master Sonia Garin who worked in the kitchen. Rabbi Sandhaus lit the Chanukah candles and led the group singing of traditional holiday songs.

The next regular meeting of the Council will be on December 14 at 8:30 p.m. in the arts and crafts room of the community building. Mrs. Mae Haut, chairman of the social legislation committee, will introduce Frank Fernbach, a representative of Research & Education Department of CIO, who will speak on "Labor Views the Current Legislative Scene."

Mrs. Ethel Fisher of the Contemporary Jewish Affairs committee, announced that there will be a display of books on Jewish literature, religion, and stories on exhibit this week at the Center school library, sponsored by David Berman of the Washington Jewish Book Store.

Why not keep quiet instead of talking all the time and thus adding to the confusion?

Some grass roots housing action — The Community's need for housing compels the temporary suspension of the A & P story. I suggest that a grass-roots group swing into action on a very important phase of housing—money!

I would like to see the same active community leaders who were captains in the original drive for signing up members for GMHOC get together.

This is the idea: When the Government is ready to sell, it will require more than wishes to buy the housing in Greenbelt en bloc. Group buying will bring the best prices, the lowest cost to Greenbelters.

How to have money and have it safe?

Let the Captains meet and form a savings plan committee. Let them meet with the same people they persuaded to sign up.

Have each of the families concerned open a Credit Union account. Into this account must go at least 1 dollar each and every week. This money is in each householder's name. No one can touch it except the man who has the account.

The pay-off is this: When the housing is offered GVHC will be required to show its financial responsibility to assume a burden of $6 million to $10 million by having at least 10% saved.

GVHC has no such sum. This means speculators can then step in and buy up Greenbelt and sell it back at profits ranging from 10% to 100%.

Now, if each GVHC member has in a separate and special account from $25 to $1000 then collectively 1100 member-families can certify that GVHC has an amount which can run from $100,000 to $1,000,000 to place in the hands of the U. S. as security on the sale of housing to the present residents.

Let's build our housing coop from the grass-roots. That way lies strength and unity in action.

I offer my services to any group of GMHOC Captains to get a meeting place for an organizational meeting to start the ball rolling and if the idea gets backing, to form a committee to keep the savings plan going. We have delayed too long already! It seems to me that now is the time for the people to take it out of the hands of the politicians.

Early to bed and early to rise makes us feel dopey in the afternoon.

Ten Teams Bowl In Youth League

The Youth Center bowling league met for the second time last Saturday with fifty enthusiastic teenagers taking part. The league now numbers ten teams of five members each plus substitutes.

Team captains are Jack Darling, Billy Dove, Ann Walker, Mike Julian, Donald Hahn, Valarie Ramsdell, Jana Lee Andrusic, George Timmerman, Nancy Kurth, and Beverly Blanchard.

High individual scorers to date are Ronda Bibler with 119 and Charles Cherry with 123. Jerry Brittingham, teen-age chairman of the bowlers, is preparing a complete individual and team record, and copies will be passed out at the next session. The Youth Center bulletin board will also carry the records.

Rules Explained

At the first session, Mrs. Frank Lastner demonstrated to the group the proper form for bowling. Mrs. Robert Dove explained scoring procedure, and Mrs. Eileen Labukas explained league rules. Mrs. Roland Brittingham, adult counselor for the group, has taken over the league since then.

The next bowling session will be December 17. All bowlers are expected to be present to support their teams. Anyone who cannot attend must notify his captain and get a substitute, or be dropped from the league. The league bowls the first and third Saturdays of each month and bowlers are asked to keep these dates open. The bus leaves promptly at 6:45 p.m. on bowling nights.

Idento-Tag Really Works!

The Disabled American Veterans has returned a set of lost keys to Mayre E. Fickes, 60 Crescent.

Attached to the keys was a DAV Idento-Tag, miniature license tag for key-rings, which is distributed to 30 million motorists each year and the replica of their state license plates enables the DAV to return 5,000 keys a month from its national headquarters in Cincinnati, Ohio.

In addition to key-loss insurance, the Idento-Tag through contributions enables the DAV to maintain its free rehabilitation service for disabled veterans and their dependents.
