

Indian Springs to be Dedicated to Greenbelt

By Miriam G. Johnson

Indian Springs historical Revolutionary War burial site known to Greenbelters as a picnic cove near Greenbelt Lake, will be dedicated to Greenbelt in the near future. This landmark, as well as the lake and surrounding picnic area, will be made a legal part of Greenbelt prior to the city's sale by the Federal Government. This should insure post-purchase residents fine recreational facilities for a bit of "roughing it."

The three springs have long been known as Indian Springs because local tribes held conclaves in its sheltered recess. Warlike Seneca and Sinnehanna Indian tribes were among the last to live in this area.

Following the Indians in the latter 1700's were settler Isaac Walker and his family who also appreciated the drinking water and the shade. Isaac Walker, then 35 years old, received a patent of land for 200 acres of the southwestern portion of what we know today as Greenbelt, in the year 1756. One of the five Lords Baltimore then living presented it to him as a result of his past loyalty to the Stuart kings. Mrs. Lucy Walker Lester, Isaac's great-granddaughter (a long-lived family) sold this property to the Government when Greenbelt was just a twinkle in the eyes of Rexford Tugwell. She had been living in the third house built on the same site, not far from the American Legion building on Greenbelt road, which is still there. The second structure, which had much in it of historical significance, burned to the ground in 1900.

The name of the first house, as well as the original grant of land, was "Toapping Castle," after Isaac Walker's family castle in Scotland which had been confiscated at the time "Bonnie Prince Charlie" (Charles Edward Louis Stuart), pretender to the throne, lost the Battle of Culloden Field in Scotland, April 16, 1745. At that time Walker, a Highlander and Stuart supporter, had a price put on his head and he had to leave family, property and fortune, escaping via Holland to America. Lord Baltimore, also having been devoted to the Stuarts, was therefore inclined to present him with the sheepskin parchment which designated him as owner of the "patent" of land.

The enterprising Scottish emigre turned his cleared land into a profitable tobacco farm. He was finally able to send passage money to his wife and child whom he had been forced to leave in his desperate haste. He met them at the port of Alexandria on the Potomac River (water travel was used whenever possible, since horses had to be so frequently changed) and after a week of travel they were all together at "Toapping Castle," on land that is now a part of Greenbelt.

The Revolutionary War brought political troubles to him in a different form. He became a lieutenant and his youngest son Nathan a private. Two sons were killed and buried on battleground. The graves on top of the Indian Springs hill are those of Isaac who died in 1807 and Nathan who died in 1842, as well as their wives and several of the children of Isaac and Elizabeth who died in infancy. There are sixteen graves in all, but the Daughters of the American Revolution monument erected there in 1938 is dedicated to the two Revolutionary War fighters. A rustic fence surrounds the burial area.

The three Indian Springs flowing from this hill were enclosed in stone at the time the monument was placed there. The refreshing drinking water flows approximately 150 feet into a ravine below, easily accessible to picnickers enjoying the barbecue pit and picnic table facilities, a far cry from the secret Indian conclaves held there a couple of hundred years ago. According to Mrs. Elizabeth Singer who supplied much of this historical information, however, until recent years arrowheads could often be picked up in the woods.

GCS Now Dickering For Bowling Alleys

GCS management announced at the regular board of directors' meeting Friday, May 26, that it is negotiating to lease the basement of the food store for bowling alleys. The board has previously gone on record as opposing the use of slot machines on GCS property in any discussion of leases with prospective tenants.

An ice-manufacturing machine will be purchased for use in the food store and drug store.

Mrs. Carnie Harper made a motion that the education committee chairman, Mrs. Eleanor Ritchie, appoint the delegates to the Wellesley summer institute.

The coop pantry has started making outside-of-Greenbelt trips and the "sale results have been gratifying," according to manager "Deac" Bonfanti.

Community Church Opens New Building

By Lydalu Palmer

All Greenbelters are invited to the first services in the new Greenbelt Community Church building next Sunday, June 4. The building is at the corner of Hillside and Crescent. Services will be held at 8:45 a.m. every Sunday and a 4 p.m. vesper service, the first Sunday of every month.

Music for the 8:55 service will be furnished by the junior choir, with Mrs. Gordon Finlay as organist and choir director. The senior choir will furnish the music at the 11 o'clock service with Mrs. John McClendon as choir director and Mrs. Daniel Neff as organist. At the 4 p.m. service the senior choir will again furnish the music with Mrs. Donald Kern at the organ. Rev. Edward H. Bonsall will conduct the worship service and Rev. Eric T. Braund will preach.

The vesper service will be a service of holy communion, baptisms, and confirmations.

The carillon chimes for the church, given by the primary department of the Sunday School, will be presented at the morning service next Sunday and accepted by Frank Kriby on behalf of the Board of Trustees. The chimes were purchased at a total cost of $1100. Played from the console of the organ, they can be heard from inside the church or from the tower outside.

A lectern, to be presented by the Jewish Community Center, and the pulpit, presented by Robert Volckhausen in memory of his mother, Mrs. Rose Volckhausen, will be accepted by Stanley Edwards on behalf of the Board of Deacons.

Other gifts to the church to be presented later are a baptismal font given by Robert Dove and his brother, and a stained glass window, now being made up in New York City, given by Mrs. Eva Morgan and children, Ruth and Earl, in memory of husband and father.

This first service in the new church will be held a year to the day from the ground breaking ceremonies which were held on Whitsunday, June 5, 1949.

Center School Ends Year With Programs

The primary department of the Center school will present a play called "Enjoy Yourself" as their closing activity at 10 a.m. on Tuesday, June 6, in the school auditorium. This play is an outgrowth of the social studies recreational activities developed throughout the school year, summarizing the recreational advantages of the child both at home and in the community after school hours.

"Recreation in the United States" is the theme of the program offered by the intermediate grades of Center school as a closing presentation, Thursday afternoon, June 8, at 1:30 p.m. in the school auditorium.

This program will also be a summary of the year's work in the school's social studies program. The material for the program has been both objectively and subjectively treated. From the study of recreation in the various geographical areas of the United States, the children have gained a knowledge of the culture, including the music, literature, and folklore of the people.

After the program, the guests are invited by students and teachers to visit the homerooms from which the study and program grew.

One More Delay

The announcement of sale terms for Greenbelt was ready last week. The advertisements for the Washington press (The Cooperator didn't rate an ad) had been prepared; the public relations office at PHA was getting ready to write a press release, and Cooperator pencils were poised over copy paper, waiting for a phone call.

All of the last-minute revisions demanded by each of the 84 PHA officials responsible for the sale had been made and ratified. PHA was ready!

Greenbelt was ready, too. Members of the board of directors of the Greenbelt Veteran Housing Corporation had met once a week in board meetings, oftener in the numerous committees formed to do the board's leg work. By-laws had been prepared, discussed, revised, and approved by the board. A membership meeting had been scheduled for two weeks after the announcement.

Prospective aid in the financial realm had been tentatively promised, with only the prices and terms needed for a definite agreement on this very important area in the plans for resident-ownership.

Split scolds before the announcement was to have been made, however, there was Congressional intervention. A member of Congress was approached by several Greenbelters, who apparently complained that they hadn't been given enough time to organize a group to buy Greenbelt. Since only four years had elapsed since PHA first announced that Greenbelt would be sold, the Congressman, recognizing his duty to five constituents, persuaded PHA to hold up the works for two more weeks.

The anonymity of the Congressman didn't last long. His identity? Lansdale G. Sasser, Greenbelt's friend at court in past instances. We would like very much to hear him explain to the 1200 constituent families in GVHC why he felt that two more weeks would give the organization in question any opportunities they had not already had. The organization's identity, incidentally, is also no mystery. The group for whom the wheels in PHA turned last week was the one that wants to buy the homes with out-of-town money and rent them to the residents with a 'limited-dividend' profit to the outsider. Greenbelters left the idea cold when it was first launched several weeks ago, and no doubt will continue to do so, regardless of how long the sale is delayed. About the only result we can foresee is another Greenbelt free-for-all, of which we have plenty, thank you.

If Mr. Sasser can hold back the tides so effectively, why didn't he do a complete job, and keep the Public Housing Administration in the public housing business?

To The Editor

OBJECTION

To the Editor:

It was with great interest that I read the recent GCS flier, which had the front-piece set-up like a "cheese-cake" ad for a summer resort, advertising our swimming pool. Its intent was clear, and continued in part, "We don't think we've overlooked a single bet; games, sports, scenic beauty, picnic grounds, etc."

The writer, as a Greenbelt resident, and also as a GCS stockholder, objects to this sort of commercialism.

If the "we", referred to in the ad, and as quoted in the above paragraph, is to be interpreted to be GCS, I sincerely believe the GCS advertising man is doing a bit of exploiting, so to speak, at the expense of Greenbelt residents for his own benefit. It must be clearly understood that GCS had no part in developing the various privileges we all enjoy in this community, and therefore is in no position to advertise Greenbelt as one would Glen Echo, or Beverley Beach.

I heartily agree, as the ad goes, this place is "devoted to fun", but let's keep it for the benefit of Greenbelters, and not the general public.

Accordingly, the listing of the Recreation Office's phone in the ad was not in order, as it has no connection with GCS whatever.

In closing, I wish to add, that I have no "ax to grind", and do not belong to any "cliques".

NEGOTIATION

To the Editor:

I'm just an average citizen (or maybe less than average. I don't know.) I wonder if other people feel the way I do.

Maybe I'm just bitter, but I'm getting tired of hearing that so many outfits want to "negotiate with P.H.A."

When I hear those words it makes me burn. Now another outfit (call it what you may) wants $1.00 to "negotiate with P.H.A." I sincerely deposited my $10.90 with G.V.H.C. and still have confidence in them but will they please say where negotiations are at this point in a common man's language.

I'm a family man and would not care to rent. I would rather try to get some equity in one of the most essential things in life, a home. I believe every man would like to start to get some interest in his home while he is still young enough to work for it and promise a certain amount of peace of mind and security in his old age.

There might be others like me that would have to borrow the down payment, but I would rather struggle now for something that means so much, than later. (At least while I'm comparatively young and still have an ounce of strength left in me.) I know also that they are selling homes on the market with no down payment. I am a veteran of the last war, and appreciate a home in Greenbelt.

I hope the "negotiations with P.H.A." are ironed out so myself and others can begin the journey now.

Mac Cites Changes At Swimming Pool

Charles T. McDonald, city manager, announced that several improvements have been made in the Greenbelt swimming pool. Instead of baskets for clothing, there are now bags in which the clothes can be hung. The dressing booths on the ladies' side have been supplied with curtains.

The center diving board is now regulation height and has again been put into use. Also, the area around the children's pool has been cemented.

Dept. OCS

OBSERVATION:

Stand in the middle of the Center any night and look around. Any night! You'll see rats, big ones, scampering from one so-called garden to another. Sit on one of the beat-up old park benches for a few minutes and listen to them rustling in the bushes behind you. They're there, all the time, day and night.

CRITICISM:

The gardens look like garbage dumps, a perfect breeding place for rats. And they know it. The park benches are unsafe for children, and they don't know it. They pick up splinters, slivers; really hurt themselves.

SUGGESTION:

Why not have those responsible for maintaining the appearance of the Center clean out the rats, clean up the dumps, fix the benches? And possibly place a few more garbage containers around so that some of our lazier citizens will have no difficulty spotting them?

It started out at the Callahan's with hors d'oeuvres and drinks, and ended up at the Jorgensens' with a midnight supper. To make it spectacular the 15 guests wore costumes. It's difficult to say what period of history or characters they represented—for one was decorated with tea bags—another sported steel-wool sponges and patched britches. Attick Tells Cub Pack About Summer Safety

Lt. Albert Attick of the Greenbelt Police Department was principal speaker at a meeting of Cub Pack 229 last Thursday evening. "Summer Safety," subject of his discussion, included a reminder to the boys that riding bikes on the sidewalks, or two on a bike, are violations of the bicycle ordinance. Barefoot walking was also cautioned against, as stepping on broken glass can cause serious injury. Swimming in any of the nearby streams was denounced as such water has been found polluted. Cubs were reminded that the safest place to swim is in the Greenbelt swimming pool.

Cubmaster Fred Birdseye of Pack 229 is meeting with parents tonight to plan a summer program for the cubs. On May 13, the boys and their families drove to Annapolis, and last Saturday they had an inter-pack baseball game.

Waltonians To Fish On June 17-18 Trip

By E. DonBullian

Final arrangements for the Izaak Walton Father and Son weekend fishing trip of June 17-18 will be made pending commitments by parents, who require transportation for the trip. Deadline for reservations is Tuesday, June 13, and all members wishing to go should contact the president before that date. Members with cars who can accommodate others, should also contact the president for assignments of passengers. Drivers will be reimbursed for gas and oil. Everyone interested in going must contact the chapter president either by calling 8746, or seeing him in person.

From past experience this first trip of the season should be the best. Those who remember our first trip to Prince William Forest Park (Chopawamsic) which was the first of the season, will recall a most enjoyable weekend. The oft-mentioned Asbury Park trip was also a first. Members who do not have a "man-child" are also eligible for this trip. They can be assigned one son of a camper who expects to take along three of his boys. Two local musicians have indicated a desire to make the trip—which can mean almost anything insofar as entertainment is concerned.

Make Breakfast Tasty In Hot Weather

Even though warm weather dulls appetites, breakfast is not a meal that should be neglected, say nutritionists of the University of Maryland Extension Service. Not only is the morning meal a good way of filling family quota of vitamins and minerals, but a good breakfast can keep down food bills. How? By supplying one-third of daily food requirements, with foods that are budget wise.

To hold the family's interest in breakfast during the summer, keep cream, milk, and fruit chilled until the moment they go on the table. Keep cereals crisp, either by storing them in a dry place or by heating them in the oven to drive out the moisture. Be especially careful of the quality of eggs if frying or poaching them, be sure they have firm, fresh yolks and whites that stand up well and look their best.

Bulletin For Home Freezers

Wouldn't you like to enjoy the same quality vegetables and fruits next winter that you are tasting right now, fresh from the garden? Homemakers throughout the state are finding that freezing this produce is the best way to have summer in December.

Many of them have also discovered an invaluable friend and helper in the University of Maryland Extension Service bulletin "Freezing Quality Foods". Filled with pictures, charts, recipes, and directions for selecting, preparing, freezing and storing fruits, vegetables and meats, this booklet is a handy guide for either beginner or experienced homemaker. Ask your home demonstration agent for a copy or write to the Bulletin Room, University of Maryland Extension Service, College Park, for your copy of Bulletin No. 120, "Freezing Quality Foods."

Greenbelt Women Score In Gun Club

Fame came to two female members of the Greenbelt Gun Club when Ruth Morgan and Violet LeRoy, firing the doubles 50 and 100-yard Dewar Match on Saturday, set a new national record for women with a score of 793 out of 800.

Winner of the Norman Motor Company Rifle Trophy awarded at the conclusion of the two-day tournament held at the local range last weekend was Laurence Moore, Aberdeen Proving Ground official. Moore's total score for all six matches fired was 2386 out of 2400. Last year's winner of this prize sponsored by the Norman Motor Company of Berwyn, Ralph Edwards, took 6th place this season.

Second high individual shooter in the tournament was Master Sergeant Richard Hanson, rifle coach at Maryland University, with a 2379 score. Ruth Morgan's total of 2374 for all matches took the High Expert award.

A new member of the Greenbelt Club, Bruce Colvin, won the Junior award in the aggregate of all matches. Shooters from Lynchburg, Virginia, and Hagerstown, Maryland, took the top medals in the sharpshooter and marksman classes.

Tony Madden Receives National Recognition

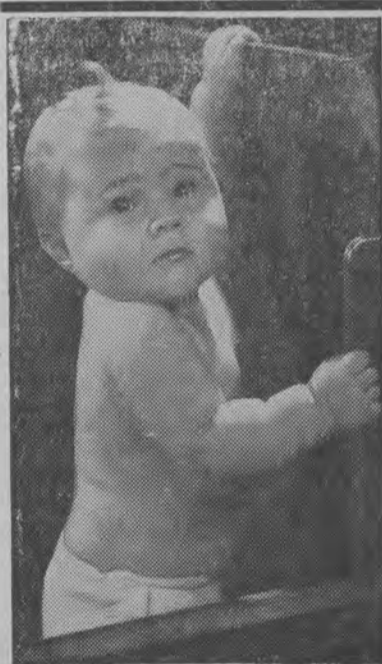

Anthony M. Madden, Greenbelt representative of the Farm Bureau insurance companies, has received national recognition for his work in the life insurance field. The Insurance Salesman, leading insurance magazine, lists Mr. Madden as one of the members of its annual All-Star Honor Roll, which includes top representatives from the nation's many companies. Mr. Madden was asked to write an article about his use of direct mail advertising in presenting the story of life insurance, which was printed in the April issue of the magazine.

Not long after moving to Greenbelt in May 1938, as one of the town's original settlers, Mr. Madden became a member of the organizing staff of the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation, a Government corporation set up in the Department of Agriculture to protect farmers against crop failure. During six years of work for FCIC, he saw how the Federal insurance program saved hundreds of thousands of farmers from loss of their farms and their homes. Time and again when flood, or insect plagues, or drought, or other natural hazards decimated the crop on which the farmer was dependent, FCIC would save the farmer from bankruptcy and loss of his livelihood. Mr. Madden remarks that no other work could have given him a deeper sense of the importance of a sound insurance program. In 1942, Mr. Madden started to work for the Farm Bureau insurance companies, which even then were playing a leading role in cooperative development in the United States. In September 1948, he left the Department of Agriculture, where he had worked for 14 years, to devote full time to his work with Farm Bureau. Only two years later he achieved national standing in the field, outdistancing the other 3000 agents of Farm Bureau. In 1949 he wrote some $620,000 in life insurance protection, almost exclusively among his friends and neighbors in Greenbelt.

CAR Group Holds Rite At Local Grave Site

Young members of the Major Walter Bowie Society, Children of the American Revolution, held brief ceremonies at the graves of Lt. Isaac and Private Nathan Walker, father and son who were colonial residents and patriots of the area now known as Greenbelt.

FHA officials persuaded the Walker family to keep their sires in the old family burial ground on the knoll over Indian Springs, as it was thought fitting to tie in the New Deal "planned community" with the founding patriots of this section. Government agents pledged to give perpetual care to the cemetery.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Slaugh, Charles and Frederick Slaugh, Stanley Edwards and the two younger Singer girls, led by Mrs. Elizabeth D. Singer, made the pilgrimage with American flags and a floral tribute, on the afternoon of Decoration Day.
