

GVHC Board Considers Petition To Enlarge Court Parking Area

By Russell Greenbaum

Residents of the 4-court of Ridge, disturbed by the new city ordinance that prohibits parking on the black-top portion of 24 courts, petitioned the board of the Greenbelt Veteran Housing Corporation at its regular meeting, May 14, to enlarge the parking area of the court according to a plan the residents had developed.

Home-owners of the 4-court of Ridge through their spokesman, Roy K. Davis, argued that the new ordinance would permit only five parking spaces for that court, whereas ten are required.

Ed Burgoon, noting that the new ordinance causes a reduction of about 100 much-needed parking spaces in Greenbelt, queried his fellow board member, Frank Lastner, in his capacity as mayor of Greenbelt, explained that the ordinance was the result of a public safety survey conducted by City Manager Charles T. McDonald and Director of Public Safety George Panagoulis.

Lastner pointed out that space was required in those court areas for fire engines to enter and for cars to turn around. He added that the ordinance, which had been in preparation for nearly a year, was widely publicized and was posted in the post office a month before the city passed it.

Ralph Webster, president of the GVHC board, referred the petition of the residents together with their plan for enlarging their parking area to Paul Campbell, GVHC manager, in order to study its feasibility. Webster felt that if the cost was reasonable, it might be an answer to the parking problem. He asked Lastner if the city could temporarily postpone the execution of the new ordinance, and Lastner explained that it was not planned to put it into effect until the citizens of Greenbelt had a chance to become familiar with it.

Painting Program

Campbell requested and received from the board $5,000 in order to make a total of $16,000 available to continue the five-year house-painting program, which calls for painting the trim on 200 frame homes and 100 brick homes each year. Board members Hans Jorgensen and Bruce Bowman suggested that the program might be postponed this year and the money better spent to fix gutters which are in such bad repair. This is to be considered further.

Jorgensen also questioned Campbell as to what progress was being made in GVHC's anti-dog campaign and also what were the chances of landscaping some of the bad spots around frame homes. In regard to the dog situation, Campbell said that letters were still going out to home-owners who were found to possess dogs and that he personally visited those who ignored the letters. Some residents, however, complied temporarily with GVHC's request that they remove their dogs but later brought them back.

Grounds Work Heavy

Campbell reported that there was little chance of the grounds maintenance crew having an opportunity to do the landscaping requested by Jorgensen. The recent heavy rains has led to a great deal of work on drainage problems, and there were many requests for the staking out of fences. The possibility of obtaining extra help for the summer from vacationing students was suggested by the board as one solution to the problem.

Webster called attention to the problem of children causing dam-

Street Lights Ordered At Southway Crossroad

Seven new street lights will be erected near the intersection of Southway road, Glenn Dale road, and the new Baltimore Parkway. The lights will extend from existing lights to the Armory.

City manager Charles McDonald was given permission by the city council to request PEPCO to install the lights after he learned from the Public Roads Commission that they did not intend to place lights at that area. The intersection is considered to be a potential hazard to motorists when the Parkway is opened for use. It is estimated that the lights will cost the city $187 a year.

age to the grounds around vacant homes. He asked that No Trespassing signs be put up as a suggestion to parents that children should be kept away and so that police may take action, if necessary.

City Discusses Possible Bond Issue To Finance New Local Improvements

By I. J. Parker

A "Local improvement bond issue" may soon be made by the city of Greenbelt, it was disclosed last Monday night, when city manager Charles McDonald was authorized to consult with a reputable bond attorney and discuss the problems of a bond issue for Greenbelt. Purpose of the bond issue, it was explained, is to assist in the development of the city by financing water, sewer, and drainage lines needed for the construction of new homes.

Cost of the bond issue will be borne solely by the new home-owners, it was emphasized, and no liability to present home-owners is anticipated. McDonald declared that he has been conferring with city solicitor Ralph Powers, Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission and the Maryland Park and Planning Commission on the subject, and each has recommended that a bond issue be made. They all urge that a bond attorney be consulted and employed. (Cost of the attorney will be included in the bond issue.) Such an attorney, McDonald added, would know the bond market intimately and would be invaluable to the city.

Construction Firm Inspects Greenbelt

An inspection of Greenbelt, in connection with future construction of homes here, was made Saturday by Girard C. Davidson, of Davidson and Nikolovic, Washington law firm, and Sidney Z. Mensh, Washington real estate man. Davidson is associated with the Crooks-Johnson Corporation of Portland, Oregon, building contractors. Accompanying the visitors was Robert Garin, 13-G Plateau, who is connected with the Mensh company.

Davidson commented favorably on the planning and facilities in Greenbelt. Negotiations are being made for the start of construction work, which will be managed by Davidson, according to Garin.

Lake Wardens Request Authority to Arrest

Edgar Swisher, city "warden" at the lake area, disclosed to the city council last Monday night that he is having difficulty keeping picnickers from littering the lake area because of the lack of "arresting" powers. He declared that a Cooperator article disclosing the lack of police powers by the wardens has resulted in un-cooperativeness by some lake visitors. Their lack of police authority has been "flaunted in their face" by several people, Swisher complained. He asked for full authority, or to have the regular police department make regular half-hour visits to the lake to "back them up."

Mayor Frank Lastner asserted that police are chosen in Greenbelt from applicants having a good background in police work, and hoped that people "well qualified" will be given full police authority to patrol the lake area.

City manager Charles McDonald and Chief of Public Safety George Panagoulis will discuss the matter soon to work out a solution. It was disclosed that Panagoulis will consult with the Dean of Men of the University of Maryland, because of "disturbing incidents" involving use of the lake area by university students.

A letter from manager Paul Campbell, of GVHC, urging that a bond issue be contemplated soon was introduced to the council. The letter expressed the sentiments of the GVHC board of directors as well.

It was stated that a bond issue to finance the necessary utility work would reduce the price of homes to be built by at least $500. Without a bond issue, the cost of sewer lines, water mains, storm sewers, streets, and drainage ditches, would be borne directly by the house-buyer. The bond issue makes payment for such features extend over a long period of time. Home-owners would pay for the issue on a "front-foot benefit" basis.

McDonald disclosed that the Congress is now considering a new law which would insure "local improvement bond issues" for communities with less than 10,000 population. If such a bill passes, it would make bond issues easier to sell, have less interest, and greatly assist in the development of communities like Greenbelt.

Vol. 18 Thursday, May 20, 1954 No. 41

Registration Day

There is never any excuse for the citizen who fails to take advantage of the golden opportunity to participate in his government by voting in the local and national elections. Certainly, the excuse that he forgot to register is a poor one. Furthermore, Greenbelt residents can register without the slightest inconvenience since they can do so at the Center School on Registration Day, May 25, until 9 p.m.

Many of us, while we are usually anxious to vote in a presidential election, forget that all elections are equally important—whether for representatives in Congress or local dog-catcher. We have no right to complain about the kind of job our officials are doing if we have not even taken the trouble to register, let alone vote. It is no argument to say that the particular official we loathe was elected by the people in some other district or state. He may well have been elected because others, like ourselves, were not interested in participating in the election.

There is no guarantee that all those elected to office from this area will serve us well, but at least let us be able to say that we did our best to put into office the type of men whom we personally believe would be the most capable for the job.

Center PT-A Meets; Pinocchio Featured

Candidates for office to be voted on immediately following "Pinocchio" next Tuesday have been announced by Morris Solomon, chairman of the nominations and elections committee, as follows: for president, Mrs. Daly and Harold Hufendick; for vice-president, Mrs. Gertrude Yeager (teacher representative); for secretary, Mrs. William Blacker and Mrs. Theron Tompkins; for treasurer, Mrs. William Cratty, Earl Knickelbein and Mrs. Louis Lushine.

The motion picture entitled "Broader Concepts of Methods" was secured for the meeting by Miss Hannah E. Long, principal, and deals with present-day methods of teaching in Maryland.

Child Care Center

To The Editor:

After 12 years of serving our community, The Child Care Center, at 14 Parkway will close its doors at the end of this month. Financial difficulties arising from a huge increase in overhead when PHA turned the premises over to private owners, and a decrease in patronage forced the Center to close.

This situation might have been averted had the patronage been sufficient to overcome the increase in rental charged by the new owners. Even though it is well known that there are many working mothers in Greenbelt, they seemed to bypass the Child Care Center. This is not understandable in view of the excellent care the children received at a nominal fee, including constant supervision, and a well established routine, including rest periods, snacks, hot lunches, wonderful play equipment and the experience of give and take with other children.

There will be open house at 14 Parkway, first floor, on May 29, 1954, from 10 a.m., to sell the remaining equipment, including an assortment of toys, small and large, cooking utensils and wool blankets that were used by the children, and also homemade baked goods, in order to raise funds so that teachers and a host of bills may be paid.

Sincerely,
The Child Care Center
Of Greenbelt, Md.

Mrs. Edward Turner of 35-G Ridge and her children have just returned to Greenbelt after three weeks of basking in the Florida sun. While we here suffered in the cold, rainy weather, she visited her parents and many childhood friends in Tampa, Orlando, and Miami. That's really timing a vacation nicely.

Mrs. Vivian Greenbaum of 9-E Ridge, wife of our associate editor, nearly fell through the floor last Saturday night when several of her neighbors suddenly marched into her house to give her a surprise party to celebrate her eleventh wedding anniversary. The biggest surprise of all was that no one, not even her husband who planned it, had let the cat out of the bag. The ringleaders of the plot had prepared the food in secret and then ceremoniously carried it over. For Vivian it cleared up the mystery as to why her husband had been so enthusiastic about helping her clean the house that afternoon.

Dr. and Mrs. William Crowder leave this week on an extended vacation. They will travel to Troy, W. Va., Montpelier, Ind., and St. Louis, Mo. Dr. Crowder plans to resume his duties as acting pastor of the Greenbelt Baptist Church upon his return June 6.

Lynne Batton celebrated her sixth birthday with a party at the home of her parents, the Charles Battons of 1-G Westway. It was also a sort of farewell party since the Battons are moving in a week or so to their new home, which they have been building out in White Oak, Md., opposite the Naval Ordnance Laboratory where Mr. Batton works. They regret leaving their friends here and will return often.

Nancy Long, daughter of Greenbelt's well known Al Long of 7-K Crescent, leaves soon for an exciting job in Nuremberg, Germany, where she will be head civilian in charge of an Army recreation center there. Das is gute—or some such thing. Anyway, we wish her lots of luck and hope she won't be leaving Greenbelt permanently.

Mrs. Dotty Volk of 5-G Ridge and her sister Mrs. Grace Smith of 1-B Westway entertained former neighbors from Falls Church, Va., Saturday night in a sort of "women's night." Her old friends expressed delight at finding Greenbelt such a pleasant, friendly town. This proves what I always say—to know us is to love us—well, anyway, some of us.

Count to Ten

By Miriam A. Solomon

Blue skies, white clouds, a soldiers' burying ground, and the words, "They can't vote, but you can," is the powerful message of the poster around town, which goes on to note that registration to vote is Tuesday, May 25, at the Center School. High resident turnover during the past year or so makes such a reminder to would-be voters doubly necessary. The date's only a few days off. Newcomers who last voted in another Maryland county, need to know too that they must write the Board of Election Supervisors in their former county for a Certificate of Removal in order to register here.

Registration this year does three things. We can vote for County and State officials up for election in November, the latter including a Governor, a representative to the U. S. Congress, a State Senator, six General Assembly Delegates, State Comptroller and State Attorney General.

Secondly, enrollment as a Democrat or Republican during registration May 25 enables one to vote in the June 28 party primaries.

Third, there's the referendum on a permanent charter for Prince Georges County (under authority of Article XIA of the Maryland Constitution) and the election of a charter board. If the referendum approves the home rule idea, the charter board must draft a charter within six months after November. The charter is kept unamended the remaining eighteen months until it is placed on the November 1956 ballot for county voters' approval. As they did in 1952, the League of Women voters and the Citizens Committee for Good Government are busy collecting the required 10,000 signatures of registered voters to get the question before the voters November 1954. Also, 2,000 signatures will be gathered to place charter board candidates on the ballot. County Commissioners may place five charter board candidates on the ballot without the signature requirement. Two years ago the home rule referendum in Prince Georges County resulted in defeat for the charter idea. County Commissioners and other County officials had opposed it. This year, with the Maryland Municipal League and the Governor plunking for the proposed Municipal Home Rule Amendment to the Maryland Constitution, it is to be hoped that they will support COUNTY home rule as well. In fact, Governor McKeldin has already been quoted as backing County home rule as well as municipal home rule. Hence the 1954 effort to achieve home rule for Prince Georges County, or at least to complete the first step toward county home rule should fare better than it did two years ago. We hope, we hope, we hope. Meanwhile, register Tuesday, May 25 at the Center School (9 to 9), and be sure you have signed the county home rule petition, after you have registered, that is.

City Turns Down Land Grant to Walton League

City-owned land was denied the Izaak Walton league for a proposed clubhouse, by the city council last Monday night. Charles McDonald, city manager, declared he was "hesitant" to recommend such a grant since experience has shown buildings of this type become a temptation for destruction by local youth. He declared that a "log cabin" as proposed by the league, would be an eyesore and detriment to homes to be built nearby. McDonald urged that the league be encouraged to use existing facilities for their meetings.

Councilmen Thomas Canning and James Wolfe declared that they felt the letter requesting the land was not expressing the feeling of many league members, and that the request should not be considered "seriously."

Rescue Squad Notes

By Lars Bronstein, Sec'y.

The Greenbelt Volunteer Rescue Squad wishes to thank the Community for its splendid response to our Ambulance Club membership drive. Under the Chairmanship of Police Chief George Panagoulis this has been our most successful effort.

There are however a number of families who were not contacted for one reason or another and we would like to extend to them an invitation to join. This can be done by bringing money to the Police Station or by making checks payable to the Greenbelt Volunteer Rescue Squad and mailed to box 242. If either of these methods are impractical please call GR. 4-6116 any evening and arrangements will be made for home collection.

The annual carnival will be held at the Lake this year as we were unable to secure a more centrally located site. It will begin Monday evening, May 24 and will run through Saturday, May 29. Bus service is being arranged for.

Lions Club News

Satisfaction guaranteed, when you help those who are in need.

The Greenbelt Lions Club will open a drive June 1 to raise funds for the worthwhile causes that the Lions Club regularly supports in Greenbelt.

This time they are selling something everyone uses and rarely has when needed. Each Lion will be selling packages of light bulbs, made by a top grade manufacturer, containing two 40 Watt, six 60 Watt and five 100 Watt bulbs for $1.95, the same price or less than you would pay in any store.

They won't get around to everybody in Greenbelt so if you can use a package call Arthur Plackett, 4201, and he will have them delivered to your home.

Greenbelt's "Little League" baseball series opened Sunday afternoon at McDonald Field with the Athletics taking the opener by beating the Coops 14-0. City manager Charles T. McDonald threw the first ball.

The Long View

By A. C. Long

This is written as the B&O Railroad rushes me up the surprisingly scenic Potomac River toward Cumberland and then to Chicago and the west coast. Looking out over the beautiful green countryside from the vantage point of a seat in the Vista-Dome, I thought of the early colonial settlers who labored hard to cover in one day the distance we dash over in a half-hour.

What would it be like living in Greenbelt over 200 years ago? A town of this size would probably be the largest white settlement in the new world. Folks who hired Bryan to move them out of town when they didn't want to buy a perpetual-use lease with GVHC would just have packed their belongings on a horse or a wagon. They'd stop by old neighbors for a last goodbye to let them know, "We're a-headin West where a man can be free and there ain't no blankety blank Mutual Housing Corporation. Gotta have elbow room, can't stand all this organizing, committees and such like." And you'd say goodbye knowing that very likely you'd never see them again. Some trapper or woodsman might tell you years later that they settled up near Harper's Ferry or that the Indians wiped them out one night, but they would never drive back to use the swimming pool or attend a church bazaar.

Neighbors who bought a lot in the Lakeside development would be busy chopping down trees and building their snug log cabins, while others would shake their heads and say, "if a man's a-going to build in the woods he ought to go west and get himself some land. There ain't too much danger of Indians over around Rockville, I hear."

Frank Lastner would be a-politicking at Ashelman's General Store and buying an occasional (darned occasional, I'm afraid) mug of hot buttered rum for the few property-owners who could vote. "We got to have a strong guard if we aim to protect ourselves from those scallawag Virginians," he'd say. "It's bad enough the militia have to furnish their own muskets, ball and powder, but I aim to get the Colony to provide them with free tobacco." But there would be some who would mutter, "Damme if he ain't a-aiming for a socialized militia. Whoever heard of giving a man tobacco free just to fight."

George Panagoulis, the town warden, would be making the rounds at night yelling "ten o'clock and all is well, two men in the gaol for debt, three women in the stocks for nagging their husbands and Mistress Blank to be ducked three times tomorrow in Green Belt Lake for being a common scold." (There were some advantages in those days too.)

The thought that really yanked me back to the 20th Century was a mental picture of magistrates Canning, Goldfaden and Wolfe in their knee breeches and powdered periwigs. As I came back to the present time, I realized that the young fry in town are also undergoing a transition from countryside to civilization. My eight-year-old Joe came home the other day all grimy and sweaty from "helping" the contractor clear out the woods for the new road at the Lakeside development. In sorrowing tones he told me that they would be building houses all around town and there would be no woods to play in. "If this keeps on we'll only have our own back yards to play in."
