Council Discusses Challenges For Greenbelt East Properties

by Matthew Arbach

Mayor Emmett Jordan, at a January 26 Greenbelt City Council worksession, asserted “we are a city of associations.” Focused on Greenbelt East, council met with homeowner association board members and Executive Vice President Rick Cummings from property manager Condominiums Ventures Incorporated (CVI) to have a detailed discussion of the most pressing issues these communities are facing. Crime, infrastructure and the impact of aging (construction periods span the 1960s through the 1980s) were among the common threads. The properties discussed were Greenbriar, Windsor Green, Hunting Ridge (all three managed by CVI) and Greenwood Village (managed by D.H. Bader Management). With 2,500 units in all, CVI is the biggest property manager in Greenbelt, thus making them an important city stakeholder (Charlestowne Village is included in their portfolio).

Greenbriar Condominiums has 754 units spaced over three phases. Cummings cited public safety and the relationship with adjoining Eleanor Roosevelt High School as major concerns. While

by Destiny Herbers

Instances of fraudulent check use through mail theft are on the rise in Greenbelt, with the Greenbelt Police Department reporting four cases of check fraud in January 2022 alone in their weekly crime reports.

Individuals often steal checks from mailboxes and forge or alter a check that has already been written to change the name of the recipient and the amount number, said Hannah Glasgow, a spokesperson for the Greenbelt police.

Should Museum Join Rec? Update on MD193 Planning

by Diane Oberg

At the January 24 meeting of the Greenbelt City Council, Recreation Director Greg Varda and Museum Director Megan Searing Young briefed council on their proposal to “merge” the Greenbelt Museum with the Recreation Department. In addition, council received an update on the Greenbelt Road Corridor Project, currently in progress.

Museum

In the memorandum advancing their proposal, Varda and Young described an increasing set of interactions between the Recreation Department and the Museum, both administrative and programmatic. The two organizations already collaborate on programs such as Black History Month, the Creative Kids Camp, Greenbelt Day, Juneteenth and the Fall Festival.

The memorandum noted the low staffing of the Museum, with just one full-time employee (Young) and a 15-hour-per-week education and volunteer coordinator, partly funded through a grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities.

The memorandum cites many possible benefits of bringing the Museum into the Recreation Department, including increasing the amount of outreach the combined entity could do, bringing Museum programs into the Recreation Department’s RecTrac database and increased visibility for the Recreation Department through the Museum’s blog, walking tours and the future Visitor and Education Center. In addition, the pandemic has “revealed the limitations of relying too heavily on volunteer help.” Varda plans on cross-training some of the part-time non-classified Recreation staff to help with Museum events and programs.

Black History Month

Negro League Baseball Player, Memorabilia at SHL Rec Center

by Leeann Irwin

Residents of Greenbelt and the surrounding areas were honored to have a Negro League Hall of Famer, Luther “Luke” Atkinson, and a display of Black Baseball memorabilia. The exhibit was the first event of a month-long program sponsored by the City of Greenbelt to celebrate Black History Month. The event was organized by the Greenbelt Black History and Culture Committee and additionally sponsored by RUA (Random Unselfish Acts of Kindness).

African American men playing baseball faced segregation and Jim Crow laws, and were excluded from the Major League Baseball world until 1945. The Negro League, created in the 1920s, provided opportunities for men with world-class abilities to play ball and, as well, brought baseball to the world by introducing professional baseball to Japan in 1927. Players from the Negro Leagues were the first people from the United States to play in many Spanish-speaking countries. Games were often attended by an integrated audience when such

by Matthew Arbach

Greenbelt Park, after re-opening in November 2021, is now fully operational with a bevy of interpretive programming in the planning stage. During a shutdown period that coincided with the pandemic’s restrictions on social distancing, the park was given time to make many renovations and upgrades to the roads, bridges, campgrounds, picnic areas and trails. Representatives of the National Park Service’s National Capital Parks-East (NACE), Tonya Thompson, senior advisor to the park superintendent, and Darryl McLeod, acting program manager and maintenance director, met with the Greenbelt City Council on February 2 to report on the latest happenings and developments at the park.

According to the representatives, NACE administers over 8,000 acres of 13 historic, cultural and recreational parks, including Greenbelt Park, along with a section of the Baltimore-Washington Parkway and all of Suitland Parkway for which they do snow and trash removal, and the removal of hazardous trees. McLeod leads a team of 15 workers at the park that is responsible for the maintenance of buildings, utilities and trails. Outside of this are park rangers and police, as well as interpretive staff who work in a collaborative manner.

With the renovation and unanticipated Covid closing, revenue for the park was negatively affected. McLeod was not clear on the extent, saying that as the park has only recently re-opened,

Letters to the Editor

Thank You!

We would like to say Thank You to all of the wonderful customers of the Greenbelt Post Office for the love and support that was shown to the three of us before we retired from our duties. It was heartfelt and overwhelming, in a good way. We were all raised to do our best and to remember the "Golden Rule," treat others the way that you want to be treated. We never imagined that "just doing our job" would have such an impact on people's lives. We were blessed to work for 30-plus years in a community where people cared about each other and cared about us as well.

We would also like to say Thank You to Katrina Boverman for the Letter to the Editor that she wrote about the three of us. She will always be special to us. During the month of December we were telling as many of our customers that we saw of our upcoming retirement; but we did not think that we would be able to see everyone before we left on 12/31/2021 and say goodbye. We were surprised on Friday, December 24, when we saw the article in the Greenbelt News Review about the three of us and our retirement. So many people from the community stopped by (including the mayor and city council members) to say thank you for our service and to wish us well. We could not believe the outpouring of love. There were so many cards, cakes, brownies, cookies, candy, gift cards, monetary gifts, flowers, plants, balloons, gift bags and boxes that it has taken almost two weeks to sit and enjoy it all.

Again, we would like to thank our special angel Katrina Boverman and the Greenbelt Post Office community for the outpouring of love and gratitude. You were the best customers any employee could ever want to have.

We Miss and Love you all,
 Angela Allen

Note of Thanks

As a longtime member of the GHI cooperative, I would like to express my thanks and appreciation to Monica Johnson, Member Services administrative assistant and recording secretary, who is no longer with us. I'm sending this thank you message to Johnson, as I have no other means of contacting her. Johnson served in this position for 10 years with GHI and did a superb job. Monica was the first person you saw at the office. No matter what I was there for, she always greeted me with a warm smile and treated me with respect. Her minutes were detailed and thorough, something that is lacking after her sudden departure. Wherever you are, I hope my message of thanks and appreciation reaches you. Thank you for serving our cooperative with outstanding service. You deserve the recognition.

Parallel Mothers

Spanish with English subtitles
 Director Pedro Almodóvar's latest film centers on two women, Janis and Ana, who meet in a hospital room where they are going to give birth. Both are single and became pregnant by accident. Janis, middle-aged, doesn't regret it and she is exultant. The other, Ana, an adolescent, is scared, repentant and traumatized. Janis tries to encourage her while they move like sleepwalkers along the hospital corridors. The few words they exchange in these hours will create a close link between the two, which by chance develops and complicates, and changes their lives in a decisive way. The film expands on Almodóvar's previous depictions of womanhood by turning the director's focus on imperfect mothers, in a departure from his prior work exploring mothers and motherhood. The story unfolds against the backdrop of Spain's historical reckoning with the painful legacy of the Spanish Civil War. Starring Penélope Cruz, Aitana Sánchez-Gijón and Milena Smit. Cruz has garnered her second Best Actress Oscar nomination for her performance in the film.

GIVES Office Is Once More in the Office

The GIVES office has reopened and volunteers are taking calls each weekday from 10 a.m. to noon and 1 to 3 p.m. from people who need services. They are an all-volunteer membership organization that helps Greenbelt residents who need assistance to live independently in their own homes.

GIVES volunteers help transport people to medical and other necessary appointments, take care of pets during hospital stays or other times when seniors cannot, stay with members who can't be left alone so that their family can run errands, and pick up groceries or other items ordered online.

If you need help now or know someone who needs our services, call 301-607-6580 to receive a membership application form. Member requests are sent to volunteer providers to find a match. Applications are processed as quickly as possible to get services to those in need.

Because volunteers transport people in their cars, the group's insurance company requires that people receiving or providing services be GIVES members.

For more information about becoming a member, either to receive assistance or to volunteer to help others, call 301-507-6580 or email at givesoffice@gmail.com.

Richard Perry Backstrom, 77, formerly of Greenbelt, died peacefully surrounded by his family, on January 25, 2022, at Luminis Health Doctors Hospital after a long illness. Richard was born on July 3, 1944, in Rhinelander, Wisc., to Vernon A. and Geraldine M. (née Perry) Backstrom. Richard moved to Greenbelt in 1946 where his parents both went to work for the federal government. He attended St. Hugh Catholic School and Church, where he was an altar boy. He attended DeMatha High School and graduated from High Point High School in Beltsville. After high school, Richard enlisted in the Maryland National Guard in Greenbelt and was subsequently transferred to the DC unit where he was assigned to the 115th Hospital Medical Evacuation battalion. He held an Expert Badge with the M-1 Rifle and a Sharp Shooters Badge with the M-14 Rifle. His civilian career was in managerial positions in various food-related services.

In July 1969, Richard married Charlene (née Shaffer) Backstrom and they moved to Greenbelt living first at 2 Court Gardenway and later Hedgewood Drive in Boxwood Village, where they raised their four sons, who all graduated from Eleanor Roosevelt High School. After a divorce in 1993, Richard married again.

In Richard's leisure he enjoyed spending time with his boys. Football was especially enjoyable to him and he loved the Washington Commanders (formerly Redskins). Richard had a love for trains and antique wooden boats. He was a great cook and was well known for his delicious cream of crab soup. Richard was a beloved father to his boys and many grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

Richard was preceded in death by his parents and brother, Charles (Bob) Backstrom. He is survived by his sons, Eric John of Crofton, Gregory Michael (Stephanie) of Chesapeake Beach, Michael Perry (Seny) of Bowie and Kevin James (Krystle) of Bowie; and his siblings Janis Lentz and Susan Burns (William). He is survived by his first wife, Charlene Backstrom of Greenbelt, and second wife, Kathleen Backstrom of Columbia, Md. He also had many nieces, nephews, grandchildren and great-grandchildren that he loved.

A Mass was celebrated on Wednesday, February 9 at St. Hugh Catholic Church. In lieu of flowers, the family is requesting donations to the American Kidney Foundation or the Maryland SPCA.

Kenneth E. Brown

Kenneth Everett Brown, devoted husband and father, died on February 4, 2022, in Solomons, Md. Ken was born in Middletown, Conn., on October 11, 1944, and grew up in East Hartford with his parents Otto and Ethel Schwitzer, and his siblings, Earlene and Frank. As a young boy, Ken loved sports, especially football, basketball and bowling, and enjoyed hanging out with his siblings and friends. Even at a young age, he understood the value of hard work as he delivered newspapers, shoveled snow and did yard work for neighbors. He also shared his time with his church where he sang in the choir and volunteered as a summer camp counselor.

After graduating from East Hartford High School, Ken went on to proudly serve his country as a combat engineer in the Vietnam War. He received several commendation medals and was an expert rifleman. Ken reflected upon his service often and was very proud that he had the opportunity to serve the country he loved so much. Upon his honorable discharge from the U.S. Army, he moved to the Washington, D.C., area where he met his wife of 54 years, Brenda. They married and resided in Greenbelt with their three children, Robert, Kristine and Rachelle.

Ken was an extremely hard working, dedicated man who shared his technical expertise as a machinist at Halpro, Inc., a precision manufacturing company in Rockville, for 40 years. He was a devout Catholic and a parishioner of St. Hugh of Grenoble Catholic Church. He was a very giving man and spent much of his time supporting his family and his community. Ken was a volunteer for the local Boy Scout Troop 1253, Springhill Lake Little League Baseball, Springhill Lake Swim Team and the Polka Belles and Beaus in College Park. He was a member of the Polish National Alliance, the American Legion in Greenbelt and the College Park Moose Association.

Ken was a man of simple pleasures who could find happiness in the subtleness of special moments – enjoying a hot cup of coffee or a hearty meal, chatting with a neighbor, listening to all types of music from Elvis to classical symphony. He and Brenda enjoyed attending operas at the University of Maryland and visiting the Basilica of the National Shrine. He cherished each moment with his grandchildren and had a special unique bond with each of them. His absolute favorite pastime was cheering on the Boston Red Sox and the Washington Redskins, as his passion and loyalty never wavered over the years.

He was a kind man whose outgoing, witty personality was larger than life. His smiling eyes, humor and warm nature lit up a room. He was a beloved member of the community and if your paths crossed, you were his friend. Ken was a man of strong character whose life and love touched many. His lessons of faith, family and service were taught through his actions and will live on for generations.

Ken is survived by his wife, Brenda, three children and six grandchildren, Kevin, Tyler, Bryan, Dylan, Jenavieve and William.

Viewing will be on Tuesday, February 15 from 5 to 7 p.m. at Borgwardt Funeral Home, 4400 Powder Mill Rd., Beltsville.

A Funeral Mass will be held on Wednesday, February 16 at 10 a.m. at St. Hugh of Grenoble Catholic Church, 135 Crescent Road.

Donate Sneakers For People in Need

The Board of Congregational Life at Greenbelt Community Church, United Church of Christ (GCC) is collecting athletic shoes by partnering with GotSneakers. This sneaker recycling program helps to keep sneakers out of landfills, where they have harmful effects on the environment. The sneakers are sent to countries where the poor often go barefoot out of necessity. For more information about GotSneakers, go to their website at GotSneakers.com.

A donation box is located outside the Fellowship Center (the small building behind the church) for people to drop off sneakers at any time. GotSneakers will pay GCC a varying amount for name-brand and off-brand laced-up sneakers with no tears inside or outside. The company even pays for cleaning and shipping – all GCC does is collect sneakers.

Catholic Deaf Ministries Begin Sunday School, Mass at St. Hugh

by Mary Tretler

On Sunday, February 6, Archdiocese of Washington Deaf Community Sunday School and Mass took place in its new temporary home at St. Hugh of Grenoble School and Church. Due to a recent fire at their location since 1975 in Landover Hills, they sought space at nearby St. Hugh. Sunday School parents met in the school gym for a slide presentation on Pope Francis's Call for Synod Sessions on journeying together with the guidance of the Holy Spirit. Their children met in a classroom down the school hall for the sacrament of confirmation preparation.

Then at 2 p.m. Father Min Seo Park, the chaplain of the St. Francis Deaf Catholic Church and Gallaudet University Campus Ministry, celebrated Mass at St. Hugh Church. It was beautiful and inspiring to watch Father Min use sign language to communicate the gospel to the 50 deaf parishioners in attendance. He signed "that the beauty and brilliant colors of the St. Hugh Church icons really contributed to the visual worship experience for those in attendance." Father Min also gave a brief talk at the end of Mass on the history and life of the church namesake, St. Hugh of Grenoble.

The Mass was livestreamed to the greater Catholic Deaf Community. Mass attendees expressed their appreciation for being able to use the school and church to continue their ministry to the deaf community.

Members of Council Reflect On How to Respond to Crime

by Matthew Arbach

After the close of the meeting agenda on February 2, the Greenbelt City Council had a brief discussion on how to respond to the city's recent rise in violent crime.

The subject was initiated when Mayor Emmett Jordan remarked on a February 5 prayer vigil, online via Zoom, which was planned by Councilmember Ric Gordon. The event was organized by Gordon as an individual not as a councilmember. Jordan, supportive of Gordon's efforts, wondered whether this pressing issue would benefit from a broader citywide approach that would include more members of council. Councilmembers Colin Byrd and Silke Pope, along with Mayor Pro Tem Kristen Weaver gave their support, acknowledging Gordon's right as a resident to act individually in a manner important to him.

Councilmember Judith Davis said that, while she believed in the positive effect of prayer, addressing crime reduction in the city will require concrete and effective actions.

Pope expressed her frustration with the efficacy of the recent police forums held throughout the city, saying that the Greenbelt Police Department is limited in how it can answer the outrage and fear expressed by residents. She spoke about a never-ending cycle of crises followed by quietude, with no lasting solution in sight.

Regarding the prayer vigil, Gordon said in a separate interview that "it was something that moved my heart and that I felt was needed, hence I did this as a non-official city event," an outgrowth of being "a man of faith." Gordon said that he believed that "prayer can change minds, attitudes, hearts and also heal the broken-hearted."

Nearly 30 residents joined the Zoom meeting, representing the entire city and many faiths, including Christian, Jewish, Bahai, Hindu and Catholic, who "joined in for love of our community." Said Gordon, "We prayed for everything that has been plaguing our community," including "crime, mental health, Covid-19 and financial struggles."

Gordon echoed Davis's earlier sentiment, saying, "Prayer must be followed by works and it will take every Greenbelt resident to stand for change. Policy alone won't do it. Prayer must be followed by community work."

In Memoriam

Dorothea Leslie

by Rick Ransom

Dorothea Leslie, who moved to Greenbelt in 1958 with her husband John and her young son Jack, died peacefully at Morning-side Assisted Care in Bethesda on Friday, February 4, 2022. Originally from Boynton, Pa., she was 96 years old and in relatively good health until the past year.

She met her husband on a blind date, according to her daughter Jill (Matt) LaCross of Bethesda. Jill was born after the couple moved to Greenbelt. Mrs. Leslie's husband died in 1974. She stayed in their GHI home and never remarried. Her son Jack lived with her until he moved to his own place in town. He remains a steadfast Greenbelter.

Dorothea joined the Holy Cross Lutheran Church and became good friends with Pastor Ed Birmer and his wife Nancy. Other close friends included Lydia Goldstein, Bunny Fitzgerald and Betty Wynkoop. After her husband died, it was Mrs. Wynkoop who encouraged her to take a job at the County Bus Lot behind Greenbelt Junior High as an aid for disabled and special needs students. She was also a longtime member of the Greenbelt Fire House Ladies' Auxiliary and a member of the Golden Age Club.

Dorothea Leslie

She participated in the exercise program and took walks around Greenbelt for many years. She substituted at Meals on Wheels as well.

Both Jack and Jill remember most prominently their mother's cooking skills. Jill said she always shared her baked goods. She also remembers that she made hardtack candy at Christmas every year and distributed it to everyone. Besides Jack and Jill, Mrs. Leslie is survived by her two grandsons, Paul and Scott LaCross. Services were held at Holy Cross Lutheran Church on Tuesday, February 8.

Native Grapes

The Greenbelt News Review letter of Damien Ossi in March 2020 very nicely summarized the benefits of the native vines found in our forest, and the need for weed warriors to be trained to recognize vine friends from foes. Nonetheless, this week I found multiple native grapevines cut by overzealous volunteers in the shared GHI woods, behind

Laurel Hill Road and at the end of Plateau Place. One behind my house was 2.5" in diameter, another more than 6". I counted the rings of the smaller one and it was more than 30 years old. Please, do not cut our old native vines!

Native grape vines use the tree like an elevator and grow with the trees without strangling them or hurting them. "Native grapes are one of the most important summer wildlife foods," states the guidebook Mistaken Identity: Invasive Plants and their Native Look-alikes. Nonetheless, one can cut a 40- to 60-year-old native vine with a small handsaw in just a couple of minutes. It is heart-breaking. You would think twice before cutting any tree that old.

Many classes are normally taught in the area about invasive plants, but most seem to still be on hold, so I will run a hands-on vine identification session in the coming weeks after obtaining permission. It will be outside only, in the Laurel Hill Road area. Email me at plaisant@umd.edu if you are interested.

Black History Month

Local Artists Engage All Ages In Fun Hands-on Art Activities

by Nicole DeWald

On Sunday, February 6, community members of all ages gathered at the Community Center to celebrate Black History Month with free hands-on art activities. Greenbelt Recreation's Artful Afternoon program included socially-distanced workshops with local artists Schroeder Cherry and Imani W. Russell. Both artists' work is featured in the new exhibition Next Up at the Community Center Art Gallery.

Cherry taught participants how to make a book – with secret pages – out of a single sheet of paper. Each participant brought their own perspective and exuberant design sensibility to the challenge. Elizabeth Gaines was inspired to create a book about Greenbelt history. Judy and Robert Goldberg-Strassler created a book based on the things – and people – that their grandson Alain loves. Other participants created beautiful abstract art books and elaborate Valentines.

Russell warmly invited guests to experiment with hand stitching, using colorful scraps and threads to create pendants, brooches and small “stuffies.” Some participants left with creations made from the very same fabrics Russell had used to create the artwork in the gallery exhibit. Russell makes dolls and fabric paintings, all sewn by hand. She notes, “I am largely self-taught. My influences emanate from the talents of my creative mother, maternal grandma and auntie. They created hand-stitched utilitarian quilts and other wonderful things from worn clothing, found fabrics and unusual objects.” Russell has adapted this resourcefulness, skill and collage aesthetic to create expressive works of art.

Russell is represented in the gallery show by eight of her wall pieces. Night Garden is a lively, abstract work, showcasing the artist's love of organic, freeform stitching. The monochromic Thread Dancer is exceptionally elegant and delicate, befitting a piece that began with an antique slip. The exhibit also includes examples of Russell's pictorial work, including The Maker cradling her bundle of colorful fabric, and Salat (meaning “prayer” in Arabic). Ode to James A. Baldwin was created in response to the documentary film I Am Not Your Negro, about this Black American writer and civil rights activist. Russell's piece, Sea Island Harvest, alludes to another source of lasting inspiration: the Gullah culture of the Georgia Sea Islands, a distinctive African American community descended from rice growers from Sierra Leone. The figures in Russell's pictorial work, and her dolls, often have only lips or no facial features at all. The viewer is free to make of this aesthetic choice what they will, perhaps finding in the works an “everywoman” quality, an invitation to the viewer's imagination, an assertion of privacy, or perhaps even an allusion to the historical erasure of Black identities.

Cherry's work in the exhibition includes seven mixed media wall pieces that combine figurative painting with assemblage. Shards of glass give some works a mosaic-like effect. Several pieces incorporate locks and keys, evoking themes of security and access. Some include playing cards, suggesting questions around the interplay of strategy and chance. Many pieces include images of watermelon, which the artist associates with beauty, health and joy and also seeks to reclaim from a history of negative racial stereotypes. This reclamation is perhaps most poignant in Cherry's piece Piano; a slice of watermelon sits like a rug beneath the feet of a pianist in a white tuxedo, the fruit mirrored by soaring images of flowers and flight in the upper hemisphere of the composition.

Cherry's piece Leap is of particular relevance to the theme of this year's Black History Month observance: Body, Mind and Money: Black Health, Wellness and Finance. The artist explains that this striking piece, juxtaposing a woman in business attire with a leaping lion, reflects his meditation on the experiences of Black women in corporate culture – required in some ways to “be a beast” while managing the risks and costs that can come along with that.

Most of Cherry's works feature images of Black men, including a few examples from his Barbershop series. Cherry depicts the caring interactions between barbers and clients with comfortable naturalism. The figures do not appear to be in conversation, suggesting a bond deeper than that forged through language, and the blending of private inner worlds in important communal spaces. The exhibition also includes two small mixed media sculptures. Inspired by a Gabriel García Márquez short story about an angel that fell to earth, Cherry notes that his “Angel Can Series depicts Black males as spiritual beings.” These Angels are “spiritual guides one calls on when in the thick of it.”

In bringing together these two distinctive artists, the exhibition strives to present a harmonious balance of hard and soft media, masculine and feminine cultural traditions, historical resonance and contemporary relevance. Next Up: Schroeder Cherry and Imani W. Russell is on view daily at the Community Center through March 25. Holidays excepted, gallery hours are: Mondays through Fridays, 9 a.m. to 9 p.m.; Saturdays, 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.; and Sundays, 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. All ages are welcome. Visit greenbeltmd.gov for links to online information about these artists and about additional Greenbelt Recreation ARTS programs.

Homegrown Food Is Focus For New ERHS Student Club

by Melissa Sites

An exciting new club at Eleanor Roosevelt High School, Homegrown Heroes, gives students experience growing their own vegetables, including radishes, pumpkins, carrots, lettuce, tomatoes, beets, cabbage, broccoli, zucchini, eggplants and celery, and herbs like basil, rosemary, chamomile and bergamot. Currently, 22 students participate in the club which meets on Zoom. Members then come in person to the school to take care of their plants.

Biology, genetics and physics teacher Kathryn Komar has installed a small four-shelf greenhouse in her classroom where each student may choose to grow up to three plants. Komar is pursuing funding to purchase a larger outdoor greenhouse where students' plants will have access to natural sunlight and plenty of space to grow.

ERHS students taking part in Homegrown Heroes are enthusiastic about the club. Maranna Nwozo expressed gratitude, stating, "This club gave me the opportunity to garden for the first time. I don't have much of a front yard, backyard, [or] space at home to grow food, but I've always been amazed with how gardens could cultivate delicious fruits and vegetables." Zaida Martinez said the club, "teaches students like me that growing plants from scratch is possible. I feel proud knowing that food I eat can be grown by me!" Anie-la Foster said, "Homegrown Heroes has really been like a hero to help me experience planting and teaching me ways to plant. It gave me an opportunity to try something new when I myself don't have the resources to do so." Maya Miller added, "It's very exciting that I'm able to take care of my own plants and watch them grow."

Part of Komar's motivation for starting the club was to combat food deserts, a pervasive problem around the Washington, D.C., area. She explained that rather than providing no access at all to food, "A food desert is a community where it can be difficult to access affordable healthy food, especially consistent access to fresh fruits and veggies," she said. "It was a surprise even to me that portions of Greenbelt are considered a food desert." Student Giuseppe Colandrea said he was "happy to learn about plants, grow them and then eat what I grow. As a part of this club, I also get to learn about food deserts and how to work around them. I'm very excited to be able to grow a plant that I can use and that won't get eaten by squirrels."

"Lettuce and carrots are easy to grow and very nutritious," Komar pointed out. "Potatoes, cucumbers and tomatoes can have high yields and are pretty easy to grow in the Maryland climate." Komar also helps students experiment with techniques to grow garlic, carrot and celery plants from kitchen scraps.

Komar is no stranger to growing her own food. "I started growing food a year after I got married," she explained. "My husband wanted a garden so we began one in the summer of 2012. We've grown lots of different things over the years such as tomatoes, peppers, cucumbers, onions, carrots, melons, herbs and such. Tomatoes have been my favorite!" Born and raised in the south suburbs of Chicago, Komar was inspired to become a science teacher after an internship at Brookfield Zoo. Komar's favorite science activities are going to zoos and aquariums, bird watching in her Bowie backyard and collecting rocks, minerals and fossils. The class activity she loves most is getting DNA from a strawberry plant.

Once the Visitor and Education Center is completed, the building "will need to be incorporated as a fully functioning city facility." The Recreation staff already manages several buildings so they have the skills to incorporate the Museum units "more fully into city protocols," in consultation with the Museum director regarding best practices for such spaces.

Merging the two entities would also, the memo states, provide a base of institutional knowledge about the city's history.

Referenced but not discussed was the likely need for more part-time recreation staff or part-time hours for working on Museum events.

Councilmembers expressed openness to the proposal but wanted more information. Council referred the proposal to the Park and Recreation Advisory Board, the Friends of the Greenbelt Museum, legal counsel and, possibly, to the Arts Advisory Board.

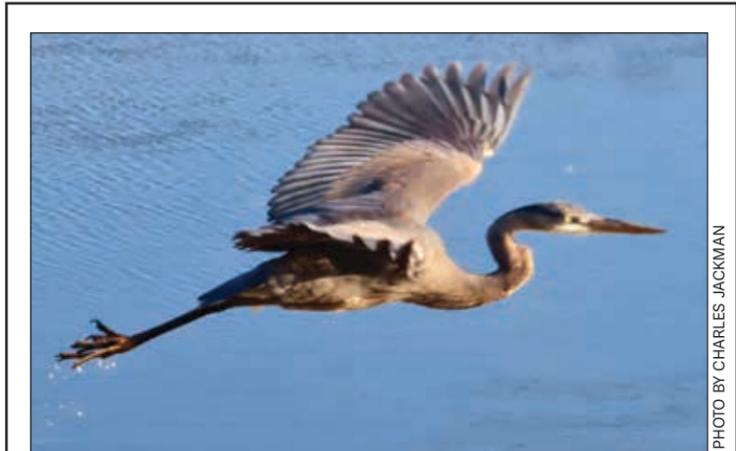

The Friends group would continue to remain a separate entity involved with fundraising, long-term strategic planning and providing advice. Wendy Hurlock Baker, board president of Friends of the Greenbelt Museum, said that the board is open to the idea but has a lot of questions as to how the merger would work that it will need to discuss with Varda and Young.

Greenbelt Road

Community Planner Molly Porter did a presentation updating council on the work with a consulting firm on the Greenbelt Road Corridor Plan, which focuses on the segment of MD 193 between Route 1 and Kenilworth Avenue. The plan would build upon the earlier work by the Urban Land Institute for that section of Greenbelt Road and is being funded with a grant from the Metropolitan Council of Government's Transportation Land-Use Connections program. The cities of College Park and Berwyn Heights are also participating.

A public visioning session is scheduled for Thursday, February 10, with a final report due June 30 identifying short- and long-term recommendations for the corridor, next steps and potential funding sources. A Virtual Comment Map will open online on February 10 for seven weeks. There will be a public meeting in March to refine the recommendations.

Covid Is on the Wane Locally But New Variant Emerges

by Cathie Meetre

This week's Covid statistics show new Covid-19 infections continuing to decline in our local area. The BBC's news website (BBC.com), though, gives information on another Omicron variant (BA.2), first detected in the Philippines, which is gaining ground in Europe, India and globally.

Most Omicron cases so far have been the BA.1 type so BA.2's propensities are only beginning to emerge. Preliminary studies in Denmark, where Omicron BA.2 apparently already accounts for half the new cases, indicate the new variant to be even more highly contagious than BA.1 but see no evidence so far that it is more severe. It also appears that fully vaccinated individuals continue to fare much better than their unvaccinated age-and-comorbidity-rates and are also less likely to pass the virus on to others than are the unvaccinated. The full article is available at bbc.com/news/health-60233899.

Maryland Vaccinations

Although 98 percent of Marylanders 18 and over have received at least one vaccine dose, many have not completed the full course which includes the booster. Only about 4.4 million out of 6.5 million statewide are fully vaccinated, meaning that almost one-third of Maryland's population remains at an unnecessarily high risk of serious illness.

In Prince George's County, out of a population of just over 905,000 – about 770,000 people (84.6 percent) – have received at least one dose, 645,900 (71.0 percent) have received at least two doses or a single Johnson & Johnson dose, but only 251,000 (27.6 percent) have also received a booster shot. (Data from CovidActNow.org for February 7.) This despite overwhelming evidence that it's the booster that puts the cherry on top.

ZIP Code 20770

New cases in the 20770 ZIP code have been running at between four and seven per day for the last week – significantly down from the early January peak of just under 60 per day on the same seven-day rolling daily average basis. Key metrics in Prince George's County's four-level scale (Low, Medium, High and Critical) also show an encouraging trend with available hospital capacity in the Medium range and both the Average Daily Case Rate and the Percent of Positive Test data squarely in the High zone (both down from Critical). The number of hospital beds countywide containing Covid-19 patients is down from a peak of 364 reached on January 11, having declined steadily to 129 by February 7.

Luminis Changes Gears

News from Luminis Health Doctors Community Medical Center (LHDCMC) is also encouraging. They are cautiously re-integrating their regular patient population as beds are released from Covid use. Luminis hospitalization statistics once again show overwhelming evidence for the effectiveness of a booster shot. The total number of Covid patients in the Lanham facility (as shown in the infographic prepared for us by LHDCMC) is now 39 (down from 48 last week) and the number of seriously ill patients in the intensive care unit (ICU) or on ventilators is also slightly lower than last week. Of hospitalized patients, only two had received a booster shot – and neither was in the ICU.

Delegates Washington, Healey Talk about Greenbelt Issues

by Glenn Harris

This week the News Review interviewed Delegate Alonzo T. Washington and Delegate Anne Healey. This is a continuation of the series of interviews with Greenbelt representatives during the legislative session.

Alonzo T. Washington

Connectedness of the Community: Delegate Washington sees that at times there are three Greenbelts (East, Center and West) with no connection between the areas. He also notes divisions by socio-economics, race and gender. He supports equitable economic development. Washington observes that education affects all of us, whether or not we have children. He wants to see Greenbelt schools as high-quality education facilities, noting particularly that Springhill Lake Elementary is aging and in need of upgrading. Further, at this school, 90 percent of students are at or below the poverty line. He has worked to provide additional funding and two additional positions at the school. He also sees Eleanor Roosevelt High School as an amazing place that could benefit from replacement.

Access to Greenbelt Metro Station: There is no current direct access from Greenbelt Road to the Metro Station. He recently participated in a walking tour looking at Greenbelt Road access to Metro, and the group identified 60 safety infractions.

The proposed redevelopment of Beltway Plaza needs affordable housing, and it also needs an increase in the capacity of the schools to support this new housing.

Mental health services: Washington would like to see improved mental health services for both low-income and senior citizens. To improve the emphasis on mental health, he has introduced legislation to designate mental health as the equal of physical health.

Anne Healey

Metro Interchange at I-495: There is money in this fiscal year's budget to improve the interchange to make it more accessible for all commuters. Delegate Healey believes access to the Metro station from Greenbelt Road would allow more convenience for commuters.

Healey observes that the federal government will be the final decisionmaker on maglev. However, she wants the District 22 delegation to get assistance from Maryland's Congressional representatives to oppose building the maglev.

Transfer of Goddard acreage: Healey believes this acreage should remain undeveloped and be transferred to the Patuxent Research Refuge. In previous reporting, the White House Office of Management and Budget has temporarily halted further action on this land.

Healey wants to see funding for the Maryland Blueprint for Education. This is a 10-year program, which includes funding to expand pre-kindergarten education. Additional funding for the schools with the greatest needs, including Springhill Lake Elementary, is a top priority.

Healey is a member of the House Environment and Transportation Committee. She believes that we need to look at the long-term consequences of climate change and anticipates that the General Assembly will pass one or more related bills this year.

fees have gone up (a 9 to 10 percent increase) due to inflation and the rising cost of services, Cummings said that CVI has made efforts to mitigate even higher rates by things like the bulk purchase of utilities, seeing this as a success story. Waterproofing, foundation issues, brick and façade maintenance (affecting 60 percent of the buildings) and water infiltration are making significant demands on the community's reserve funds. Efforts are being made to anticipate these continuing demands in the community's reserve budget.

Cummings said that the recent building collapse in Florida has made obtaining homeowner loans a more difficult process with lenders now requiring detailed structural analysis before moving ahead. He characterized this as "a knee-jerk reaction."

Windsor Green

Windsor Green, consisting of 654 townhouse units, has been making renovations on its community center and tennis courts, progress has been delayed by the budget shortfalls of the pandemic.

A long discussion was had about the responsibilities of the State Highway Administration (SHA) and the adjoining communities along Route 193 and its sidewalks, for snow and trash removal and landscaping. Council explained that SHA is only required to plow snow, collect litter and landscape on Route 193 itself, while communities like Windsor Green are responsible for the sidewalks adjoining their property. With the recent snowfall, snow removal has proved a costly task and presents a safety issue with students struggling to cross the road through the accumulation of snow on the sidewalks, much of it piled by SHA plows. The city is keen for SHA to take more of a role, appreciative of even partial snow removal, perhaps 100 feet from schools. Council has made efforts through the Maryland Municipal League to create legislation to increase sidewalk upkeep by SHA along state highways.

District 22 State Delegate

Nicole Williams, a Greenbriar resident, said she plans to address these concerns with the new Maryland Secretary of Transportation.

Hunting Ridge

Hunting Ridge, according to Cummings, has continuing concerns about the proposed maglev train and was heartened by the cessation of the Beltway Widening project, as both would impinge greatly on the community. They have found success using security cameras in their parking lots. Cummings said that electric vehicle charging stations are being explored by CVI, but noted they would occupy common areas thereby limiting available parking, with the question of usage cost leaving the issue uncertain for now.

Derelict Comcast and Verizon cable boxes continue to linger throughout the city, presenting both an eyesore and a potential safety hazard. Frequently, requests from residents and the city to have them removed have been unaddressed. Acting City Manager Timothy George is looking into developing the most effective outreach to resolve this issue.

Greenwood Village

Greenwood Village, with 194 townhouses, experiences challenges with fee collection (now $45,000 in arrears) and possible unlicensed renting and units being occupied by up to eight people at times (whose familial relationships are perhaps dubious), creating parking issues, among other things. Council and Cummings recommended communication with the city, who has a list of the city's renters, to verify rental violation suspicions.

Cummings recommended informing the county Health Department for action regarding the removal of the portable bathroom at the recently finished stormwater pond. It is both an eyesore and unsafe as it is being used without being cleaned.

Mandan Road was cited as an area of frequent car break-ins. Greenwood Village asked the city for additional lighting as a fix. Security cameras would have to be provided by the owners as it is private property.

Aging stormwater drainage systems was acknowledged as a huge issue across the city. Climate change, with the intensification of storms, is compounding the problem, as the systems were not designed for the increased volume of water. American Rescue Plan Act funds could possibly be used, but Councilmember Judith Davis reminded council that the funds are not unlimited and not every community will get what they are asking for to deal with this very expensive problem.

All board members and Cummings reported that, regarding property values, houses were being sold for the asking price, if not more.

pay a bill and brought it to a USPS collection box in the Roosevelt Center parking lot in Old Greenbelt.

"I just drove up and threw it in there and I figured that's a very public mailbox, but no," the victim, who requested to remain anonymous, said.

When the couple checked their bank statement, they saw a check had been posted against the account for $12,500 and say they clearly knew the check was fraudulent.

"We realized right then and there that somehow they got a hold of one of our checks and did this, but we didn't know how they did it," the victim said.

They immediately reported the suspicious charge to their bank and to the Greenbelt police, who are investigating the instances of check theft from collection boxes alongside the U.S. Postal Inspector.

"It's a real hassle when someone steals money from you like that. You have to change your passwords ... they freeze your account, then you have to go and get another account. New checks, new cards, so it's a hassle," said the victim.

The Greenbelt Police Department recommends that people bring checks inside a post office to mail them in a secured indoor box, where they are more difficult for thieves to access, or to consider using cashier's checks and e-checks instead.

Blue ink and ballpoint pens should be avoided when writing checks, the police spokesperson said, as they are easier to wash off the paper. Use a gel, rollerball, thick felt or fountain pen with black ink instead.

"Of course, make sure that the check is filled out properly. Once you've written the name, put a line through the rest of the check. Once you've written the amount, put a line through the rest of the space so there's no room for anyone to change 100 to 100,000," Glasgow said.

The police encourage residents to check their bank statements at least weekly because the sooner the crime is reported, the higher the chance that police will have good leads to investigate, and the less chance of further fraudulent activity on the bank account.

"If we do write a check to anybody [in the future], it will be mailed inside the post office," said the victim. "My advice is to just not use those mailboxes anymore."

a full assessment was difficult to make.

Thompson said that she would follow up with council on the status of adequate staffing, with many staff working from home and others being routed to other parks.

Council asked if the grading work at Capitol Cadillac and the coming Royal Farms gas station (approved by the Prince George's County District Council and in the permitting phase, with construction likely to begin in the spring) would present stormwater management concerns. McLeod said that he would look into whether Environmental Protection Agency requirements were observed. Councilmember Judith Davis indicated that, according to Royal Farms, the approach is adequate yet council was skeptical.

Councilmember Rodney Roberts questioned the frequent stormwater strategy of cutting trees and building ponds, saying that simply leaving trees would be more environmentally prudent and logistically sound, as ponds are a short-term fix at best.

Thompson said that efforts will begin soon to address making the park and its trails more accessible, especially for pedestrians.

Council offered its assistance in opposing the maglev train proposal and the possible widening and state control of the Baltimore-Washington Parkway, since both would have a major negative impact on the park.

Council asked McLeod to determine who is responsible for maintenance on the Spellman Overpass as it is in clear need of maintenance on its rusting safety fence and concrete footings.

McLeod said that there is a maintenance crew that regularly evaluates the stormwater drains on the Parkway to make sure they can adequately handle water from anticipated rainstorms.

There was a discussion of pedestrian and vehicular safety at the Greenbelt Road ramp off the northbound Parkway, as the sightline is obscured by overhanging trees. Council asked McLeod to look into what entity is responsible for addressing this, with there being speculation that perhaps the lane needs to be redesigned.

Council expressed its desire to continue a close relationship with the Park Service, offering city staff and outlets, like the city website and the Greenbelt News Review, as ways of getting information out to residents. Council shared its pride in having a national park in the close vicinity of its community, with Mayor Emmett Jordan calling it "a not so hidden gem."

After the meeting's agenda closed, Davis informed those present that the Forest Preserve Advisory Board has been made aware of the issue of trash and fallen trees at the newly-established Forest Preserve site at Greenbriar, saying that there will be discussions over scheduling a volunteer clean-up as well as a walk-through assessment.

Pickleball Gains Popularity In Greenbelt and Beyond

by Stan Zirkin

Pickleball is one of the fastest-growing sports in America. It is played by seniors who wish to preserve their knees but also in increasing numbers by younger players. In view of this popularity, it is remarkable how few people know anything about the sport. Pickleball has been described as a combination of tennis, ping pong and badminton. It is played on a court with smaller dimensions than a tennis court, a net that is somewhat lower than a tennis net, a racquet with a short handle and a solid surface not unlike a ping pong racquet, and a plastic wiffle ball the size of a baseball.

The rules are a bit bizarre to the uninitiated but are easily learned after a brief orientation. The serve, unlike in tennis, is hit underhand. There is a 7-foot space on either side of the net called the "kitchen." Players cannot hit an overhead volley while standing in the kitchen; if they do, the other side gets the point. Although singles can be played, it's more common to play doubles. In doubles, except for the initial serve, each doubles team player gets to serve at least once and continues to do so, on alternate sides of the court, until the other side wins the rally.

Pickleball has come to Greenbelt in a big way. It started as an indoor sport in the Community Center and has now expanded to the Youth Center. In addition, as reported in a recent News Review article, the Greenbelt City Council has approved the Recreation Department's proposal to draw lines for four pickleball courts on tennis courts 7 and 8 at Braden Field and another four on the Lakecrest Drive tennis courts, for a total of eight new outdoor courts. The outdoor courts will remain dual purpose – tennis and pickleball.

This reporter was introduced to pickleball quite by accident. About four years ago, I was looking for a sport to replace tennis during cold weather. Somebody said, "How about pickleball?" I replied, "What the heck is pickleball?" When the sport was explained to me, I was dubious but decided to give it a chance. After a slow start, I soon became hooked and continued to play tennis and pickleball on alternate days.

With warm temperatures and no snow, pickleball players take over a tennis court by Braden Field.

How did pickleball get its name? The story goes that sometime in the 1960s a young family was looking for a sport they could all play together. They came up with the basic idea for the sport and constructed a court in their backyard. Problems cropped up because their house was surrounded by woods and the ball kept disappearing. They decided to train their dog to retrieve the ball. The dog's name was Pickles and so they decided to call the sport pickleball. I have no idea if the story is true. What I do know is that pickleball is good exercise and tremendous fun for people of all ages. For those interested in seeing a video demonstration of the sport go to youtu.be/kqLRRN0pe8U.

GREENBELT 1937
GREENBELT WAS THE FIRST OF THREE PLANNED GARDEN TOWNS BUILT AND OWNED BY THE U.S. GOVERNMENT DURING THE ADMINISTRATION OF PRESIDENT FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT. IT WAS A "NEW DEAL" EXPERIMENT IN COMMUNITY PLANNING OF HOUSING TO URBAN PLANNERS THROUGHOUT THE WORLD THE 1930S. ORIGINAL HOMES WERE BUILT IN A SERIES OF CLUSTERS. JOINED BY INTERIOR WALKS AND CIRCLING CENTRAL BUSINESS, CIVIC AND RECREATION FACILITIES. GREENBELT WAS INCORPORATED JUNE 1, 1937 AS THE FIRST MARYLAND CITY WITH COUNCIL — MANAGER GOVERNMENT. IN 1952 THE RESIDENTS OF THE COMMUNITY FORMED A COOPERATIVE AND PURCHASED MOST OF THE GOVERNMENT BUILT HOUSES BY 1954. THE U.S. GOVERNMENT HAD SOLD ALL DEVELOPED PROPERTY AND MOST VACANT LAND WHILE MANY NEW NEIGHBORHOODS ARE ALSO INCLUDED IN THE PRESENT CITY. THE ORIGINAL PLANNED COMMUNITY CONTINUES AS A COOPERATIVE.

Atkinson said that baseball and the league played a big part in the civil rights movement. It was a big money-making enterprise that could not be overlooked. While serving in the military from 1960 to 1961, he played on integrated teams.

Rayner Banks, co-founder of the Hubert V. Museum of Negro Leagues Baseball, Inc., displayed material from the mid-1800s to the 1960s. Donald Conway, of Prince George's County, showed some of his collection; Black Diamond Ltd.'s material on display included T-shirts, books, hats and jackets. The exhibits included such items as large photos of many players, a video of some historic games, signed baseballs and baseball bats, baseball cards, news articles, books and even some mugs with photographs of players on them. A copy of a U.S. Postage stamp of Andrew "Rube" Foster, considered the Father of Black Baseball, was also on display.

Although not able to attend the event, this reporter spoke to Mrs. Geraldine Day, widow of Hall of Famer Leon Day. She said her husband's love of the game kept him playing despite many difficulties, including promises of money that never materialized and dealing with segregation when traveling in the South. Day described the racism the team encountered, where, many times the team couldn't get gas on the road so they got a bus that had two gas tanks, and they were only allowed to play on the big ballfields when the Major League wasn't playing on them. One sheriff in Georgia told the team if they didn't let his "n" team win they would go to jail. While traveling in Puerto Rico and Canada for games the treatment was much better with higher pay, and the men reported that they were treated with a greater degree of dignity.

Visitors to the event included Jen and Jay Jenkins of New Market, Md., who joined others in their love of baseball as well as their interest in preserving this history. Andrew Phelan, a local baseball fan, was excited to add to his knowledge. Also present was Eli Bar, a teacher from Montgomery County, who includes some history of Negro League Baseball in his Black History classes and was eager to gain more information.

Several members of the Simmons-Day All Stars over-70 baseball team of Maryland enjoyed showing off their shirts and jackets as well as joking around. David Smoot, Sr., of Severn, said that at some of the tournaments ballplayers win rings. The team travels as far south as Florida and many states in between.

Leeann Irwin is the co-chair of the Greenbelt Black History and Culture Committee along with Lois Rosado.

Rayner Banks, co-founder of the Hubert V. Museum of Negro Leagues Baseball, Inc., sits with his exhibit.
