Local Free Produce Giveaway Evades USDA Funding Cuts

by Ellie Jornlin

Greenbelt's monthly free produce distribution, organized by the Greenbelt Assistance in Living (GAIL) program, is still running despite recent federal funding cuts and confusion among some residents.

Attendance at the latest distribution dropped after some community members misunderstood a previous article (see May 8, 2025 issue) about U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) budget reductions, mistakenly believing the program had ended, organizers told the News Review.

This past spring, the USDA cut over $1 billion in funding to food banks and schools, which has caused serious strain across the country. The Capital Area Food Bank (CAFB), which provides the fresh produce for GAIL's distributions, has been affected but monthly distributions have not ended.

"It is imperative that residents continue to participate to show the need for the city to continue to participate in the program," said Assistant Director of Greenbelt CARES and the GAIL Program Christal Batey.

"If our numbers do not warrant the CAFB giving the city the free produce, the program may

Council Approves 10-Year Plan To Electrify City's Vehicle Fleet

by Ellie Jornlin

The Greenbelt City Council voted on June 2 to approve plans to electrify the various city vehicles.

The Fleet and Equipment Electrification Plan aims "to move the City of Greenbelt away from internal combustion engine vehicles and equipment to reduce our carbon footprint to be more environmentally sustainable," according to the official proposal.

The focus of this electrification plan is from an internal perspective, directed toward city vehicles such as police, Public Works, administrative vehicles and even a trash truck. Handheld equipment, such as blowers and lawnmowers, will also be considered for electric replacements.

The plan is phased over a 10-year period, allowing the city to replace vehicles on the equipment's normal wear-and-tear life cycle and stay within the allocated budget.

"Because electric vehicles and equipment tend to cost more than gasoline vehicles and equipment, we don't want to replace equipment that is functioning right now," said Assistant City Manager Timothy George at the meeting. "As the equipment rolls over in a given year, that equipment, those vehicles will be looked at for electric replacements."

The timeline also allows for flexibility as new vehicle and equipment technology continues to develop. "We also want to pace ourselves, we don't want to jump too quickly into electric and find that another technology is there in the wind," said George. Greenbelt contracted ICF, a third-party firm, to complete a fleet conversion assessment to gather the data needed to create the timeline.

Volunteers Explore Aquatic Life In Greenbelt's Canyon Creek

by Karen Knee and Catherine Plaisant

Since March 2023 Greenbelt residents have been leading an effort to characterize the biodiversity of benthic macroinvertebrates living in Canyon Creek, a small stream that flows through the North Woods tract of the Greenbelt Forest Preserve. Benthic macroinvertebrates are small animals, visible to the naked eye, that live at the bottom of streams: in the mud and sand, under rocks and in clumps of sodden leaves. Not only are these creatures fascinating, but they can tell us about the overall health and vitality of the stream.

Benthic macroinvertebrates include the larval, or juvenile, stages of many types of insects, as well as some adult insects, aquatic worms, leeches and snails. Some, such as stonefly, mayfly and caddisfly larvae, are more sensitive and can only live in clean water. Others, like mosquito larvae and aquatic worms, can survive almost anywhere, even if the water is polluted. Scientists have developed metrics that assign a stream health category from poor through excellent based on which macroinvertebrate groups are present in the stream.

In 2023 Catherine Plaisant and Mark Christal assembled an initial team of volunteers to learn how to conduct a benthic survey. Christal provided hands-on training and, before moving to Texas, donated the net and microscope that had been used in a previous benthic survey project in Beltsville Agricultural Research Center's Beaverdam Creek. Two surveys were conducted in 2023 and 2024. More recently, the team changed to include American University Environmental Science professor Karen Knee and her student, Charles Sajonia. With Plaisant they continued using the Creek Critters app to identify the creatures they found and assign a stream health rating. This free app was developed by Nature Forward for citizen scientists and uses a simple dichotomous key to identify the most important macroinvertebrate groups based

Heavy Rain, Storms and Then High Temperatures Hit Greenbelt

Fierce storms on Thursday, June 19 brought flooding to the Youth Center, Braden Field and St. Hugh's Church among others. The church was preparing for their annual rummage sale on the weekend and had to leap into cleanup. Falling trees caused damage in the Greenbelt Homes, Inc. residential community and to apartments near Roosevelt Center, also blocking roads and the lake path.

On the back of the stormy weather came extreme heat, with temperatures in the 90s that prompted an excessive heat warning. Greenbelt opened cooling centers at the Library, Community Center, Municipal Building, Youth Center and Police Station and urged residents to stay hydrated, limit time outdoors, check on elderly neighbors and not leave anyone in a vehicle. The city also asked residents to put out their refuse and recycling the night before collection as the crews will begin collection services earlier than usual to beat the intense heat. Highs early in the week reached 98 degrees.

I Disagree!

I greatly appreciate the work done by the Greenbelt Museum staff and volunteers. But I must take exception to the planned 10-A Crescent Road visitors' center addition. Greenbelt was intentionally designed with a great deal of green space. Each home had a cozy service side and garden side. Inevitably people wanted to expand, to turn green space into private space. So small garden side and larger end-unit additions were allowed because they made homes more modern and habitable.

But the museum block at 10 Crescent Road should reflect Greenbelt as it was built. The garden side should show the original use, a semi-private open space for a family that passersby on the path can look into. And the very important museum accessibility ramp and ADA bathroom can easily be built inside the garage at 10-A without adding a large building on the side and end of the unit.

The instinct of every organization is to grow. Each army and each museum aspires to be bigger, better and more. One of the charms of Greenbelt is it has generally resisted this trend. Each bit of more comes at the expense of something else becoming less. In this case the less are the window to see into the garden side yard and the yard itself, features that each Greenbelt home was designed to have.

If there were an absolute need, I would say no problem. But especially a museum showcasing the less-can-be-more design philosophy of early Greenbelt should be less, not more. I believe the wisest course would be for the

On Screen at Greenbelt Cinema

David Attenborough: Ocean

The film takes viewers on a breathtaking journey showing there is nowhere more vital for our survival, more full of life, wonder or surprise, than the ocean. The celebrated broadcaster and filmmaker reveals how his lifetime has coincided with the great age of ocean discovery. Through spectacular sequences featuring coral reefs, kelp forests and the open ocean, Attenborough shares why a healthy ocean keeps the entire planet stable and flourishing. Stunning, immersive cinematography showcases the wonder of life under the seas and exposes the realities and challenges facing our ocean as never-before-seen, from destructive fishing techniques to mass coral reef bleaching. Yet the story is one of optimism, with Attenborough pointing to inspirational stories from around the world to deliver his greatest message: the ocean can recover to a glory beyond anything anyone alive has ever seen.

Materialists

The Life of Chuck

Charles "Chuck" Krantz experiences the wonder of love, the heartbreak of loss and the multitudes contained in all of us in a buoyant and often wonderful adaptation of one of Stephen King's more cosmically optimistic tales. The film is a departure for horror film director Mike Flanagan (Absentia, Oculus and Doctor Sleep). Based on a novella by Stephen King, it was called a "touching, beautiful film" by critic Odie Henderson of the Boston Globe.

Nighthawks on the Blue Highway

This is the definitive film about The Nighthawks, America's hardest-working blues band. The Nighthawks inhabit the soul of blues music. Founded in Washington, D.C., more than 40 years ago by Little Walter-disciple Mark Wenner and guitar wizard Jimmy Thackery, the band thrives on its direct link to the great blues masters, having played with legends such as Muddy Waters, B.B. King, Gregg Allman, Pinetop Perkins, James Cotton and John Lee Hooker. The film celebrates the band's joyous blues music and its deep roots in Washington, D.C., while spelling out the struggles of keeping a band afloat for more than four decades. Featuring original interviews with blues legends, critics and Nighthawks past and present, the film is the first of its kind about this band with a national and international reputation.

Paris Is Burning

This documentary focuses on drag queens living in New York City and their "house" culture, which provides a sense of community and support for the flamboyant and often socially shunned performers. Groups from each house compete in elaborate balls that take cues from the world of fashion. Also touching on issues of racism and poverty, the film features interviews with a number of renowned drag queens, including Willi Ninja, Pepper LaBeija and Dorian Corey.

Madagascar

Alex the lion is the king of the urban jungle, the main attraction at New York's Central Park Zoo. He and his best friends – Marty the zebra, Melman the giraffe and Gloria the hippo – have spent their whole lives in blissful captivity before an admiring public and with regular meals provided for them. Not content to leave well enough alone, Marty lets his curiosity get the better of him and makes his escape – with the help of some prodigious penguins – to explore the world.

Creative Kids Camp Musical on July 3

Greenbelt Recreation’s Creative Kids Camp invites community members to attend free, family-friendly performances on the last Friday of each two-week camp session. For this first session, the shows will be held on Thursday, July 3 to accommodate the holiday. The young explorers visit their grandmother’s favorite places in the park, including the Carousel, the Bethesda Fountain, Belvedere Castle, the Chess and Checkers House and the Conservatory Water, with additional stops at the Metropolitan Museum of Art and the outdoor Delacorte Theatre, where they see actors rehearse for a performance of Shakespeare under the stars.

Performances will take place at 10 a.m. and 2:15 p.m. in the Community Center gym on July 3. For free tickets, visit the Community Center business office or call 301-397-2208. ## Katja Pottschmidt

Katja Pottschmidt of Southway died suddenly and far too early due to a medical condition while on a run on the evening of Tuesday, June 17, 2025. She was 54. Born on May 31, 1971 in Aurich, Germany, into a military family (her father was in the German air force), Katja grew up in Aurich and Freising, Germany; Norfolk, Va.; and Mons, Belgium, before her family settled in Balingen, Germany, where she finished high school.

Following her life-long interest in astrophysics and an affinity for Star Trek, Katja studied physics at Tübingen University, Germany, where she also received her Ph.D. Her passion for the study of black holes and neutron stars led her to postdoctoral positions in Geneva, Switzerland, and at the University of California, San Diego.

In 2007, Katja moved to Greenbelt to work at Goddard Space Flight Center, employed through the University of Maryland, Baltimore County. Here, she continued her research on black holes and neutron stars and was a member of the guest observer facilities for a large number of X-ray astronomy satellites, last as science lead of the NuSTAR guest observer facility and a member of the guest observer facility for the U.S.-Japanese XRISM mission.

In Greenbelt, Katja first lived on Lakeside Drive before joining GHI. She loved Greenbelt, embracing its cooperative culture, the walkability (she did not drive) and the alternative spirit of the town. She was a regular at the New Deal Café, almost exclusively shopped at the Co-op, always told her partner about all the news items in the News Review, frequently went to the movie theater and pool and every Sunday bought a crepe for breakfast and apples at the Farmers Market.

Her love of reading, especially science fiction, led her to be one of the founding members of Greenbelt's book club. She regularly fed the birds and squirrels in her garden, which was a great source of joy for her. Katja played Pokémon Go every Wednesday evening and whenever she was walking or running, and knew the Greenbelt woods and Greenbelt's history by heart. Young postdocs moving to the area could always rely on her showing them the city, which was her home.

Katja is survived by her loving partner of more than 20 years,

Joern Wilms, of Bamberg, Germany, who came to Greenbelt every four to six weeks since Katja moved here; her parents Juergen and Inge of Balingen, Germany; her sister Antje with partner Wolfgang and nephew and niece Mika and Ronja of Ditzingen, Germany; her family of scientists at Goddard and everywhere in the world; and all of her friends.

Firefly Season Is Here

Visit the Greenbelt Firefly Sanctuary. Park at the old St. Hugh's School then cross Crescent Road to the Stream Valley Park. Follow the lighted path to reach the sanctuary. The later at night, the better the show. Do not use lights of any kind in the Sanctuary, as it disturbs the fireflies.

To encourage fireflies in your backyard allow leaf litter and plant debris to accumulate in a damp undisturbed area. Keep backyard lights out from mid-June to mid-July.

Fun Things to Do This Summer: A Guide for Greenbelt Teens

by Yadira Reyes and Sophia Reynolds

With summer’s arrival, finding fun and affordable events can be a challenge – but it doesn’t have to be. Below is a list of events happening in Greenbelt and nearby that anyone can attend for free or low cost. From festivals and movie nights to water parks and more, there’s something here for everyone to enjoy.

Greenbelt

Starting the second Sunday in May and running through mid-November (not Labor Day weekend), the Greenbelt Farmers Market is held every Sunday from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at 25 Crescent Road. This market has locally sourced foods such as produce, baked goods, handmade items and much more. Grab a brunch to eat outdoors with friends – there is a popular grassy hill, nearby benches and Greenbelt Lake is a short walk away. Visiting the Farmers Market is a great activity to support small businesses while also exploring new foods.

The reason there is no Farmers Market on Labor Day weekend is that the city’s most activity-filled summer event, the Greenbelt Labor Day Festival, will take over Roosevelt Center and nearby areas. This annual event is from August 29 to September 1 this year. The Festival includes carnival games, rides, food, live entertainment, a parade, a Community Information Day on Saturday and much more. It’s a fun way to celebrate the end of summer locally within the community.

To beat the heat, check out the Greenbelt Cinema’s free School’s Out! series of movies on Thursdays at 1 p.m. On June 26, catch Up and on July 3, it’s Madagascar. The family-friendly hits continue until August 21. Visit greenbeltcinema.org/schools-out for the full lineup.

Later in the summer, you can buy a cheap student ticket to see some favorite musical groups on the big screen through the Cinema’s Summer Concert Series, featuring some of the best recorded concerts and music documentaries. Check the Cinema’s website for details, coming soon.

For a cool dip, try Greenbelt’s municipal pool. Daily admission is affordable for all ages, including teens. To avoid busy times such as lessons or swim team practices, find their full schedule at www.greenbeltnmd.gov/475/Greenbelt-Aquatic-Fitness-Center. On a smaller scale join the neighborhoods that celebrate National Night Out on Tuesday, August 5. And, of course, check this newspaper weekly for special events.

College Park

Neighboring the University of Maryland campus, the College Park Bowlero, located at 9021 Baltimore Avenue, is a wonderful activity for everyone. This location offers unlimited bowling on Mondays starting at 8 p.m. for an affordable fee that includes shoe rental. For Tuesdays and Wednesdays the unlimited offer starts at 7 p.m., Thursdays at 8 p.m. and Sundays at 6 p.m. Note that lane availability is subject to change based on the number of people in attendance. Also check out Groupons that are periodically available.

It’s located at 4300 Kenilworth Ave. Weekday hours are Monday through Friday, noon to 8 p.m.; weekend hours are Saturday, 11 a.m. to 8 p.m. and Sunday 11 a.m. to 7 p.m.

Who Should Be Greenbelt’s Outstanding Citizen for 2025?

by Tom Jones

It’s the height of summer but the Greenbelt Labor Day Festival is just nine weeks away. Since 1973, the Festival includes a unique Greenbelt tradition: announcing that year’s Outstanding Citizen. Greenbelt annually celebrates one of its most generous volunteers at the Labor Day Festival, on a permanent plaque in the Community Center and as Labor Day Parade Grand Marshal.

The Outstanding Citizen Committee needs your help to identify someone deserving this honor. Nominees must be volunteers: elected officials and paid employees are not eligible. If you know someone whose efforts stand out in one or more community organizations, who shows concern for others and demonstrates cooperation, enthusiasm and leadership, send your nomination now. A nomination form is provided in this paper on page 9, or submit a letter. Nominations may be submitted until Monday, July 28 to Bob Zugby, Outstanding Citizen Committee, 94 Ridge Road, or to OutstandingCitizenGB@gmail.com.

Last year’s Outstanding Citizen is Cathie Meetre, who contributed mightily to the News Review, Farmers Market and several other organizations. Prior Outstanding Citizens have been involved in a wide variety of volunteer work, including supporting sports, youth groups and senior citizen programs. Most importantly, Outstanding Citizens make Greenbelt a better place. This is the time to recognize their contributions.

The 2025 Outstanding Citizen will be announced the evening of Friday, August 29 near the start of the Labor Day Festival. Local businesses have donated prizes for the winner, and local officials are ready to proclaim the accomplishments of one of our neighbors. Help the committee identify them with your nomination.

If you’ve nominated someone not chosen in a prior year, don’t be discouraged – just try again. You may wish to include a deeper description of your nominee’s volunteer experience, or letters of support from more people. The committee receives many excellent nominations each year, but must choose only one recipient. Submit your nomination now to ensure they’re considered for this important community tradition.

ERHS Victoria Patch Is History Teacher of the Year

Victoria Patch was named Prince George’s County Teacher of the Year at Maryland History Day (MHD) on May 4. Patch is the U.S. history teacher at Eleanor Roosevelt High School and advisor for the MHD program at Greenbelt schools.

MHD, a program of Maryland Humanities and an affiliate of National History Day, encourages students in 6th through 12th grades to explore a historical topic of their choice based on the annual theme, which this year was Rights and Responsibilities in History. Students create an exhibit, performance, research paper, documentary or website which they present at a school competition and may progress to regional, state and national levels.

More than 28,000 Maryland students participated at the school level in 2024.

Community Gathers to Embrace Peace and Justice Through Song

by Amy and Eileen Murray-Kraft

On stage, Mike Hummel, Françoise Becker, Katrina Boverman, Eileen Murray-Kraft, Amy Murray-Kraft and Alphonso Tate

On May 17 at 3 p.m. in a heartfelt demonstration of unity and purpose, community members gathered at the Mowatt Memorial United Methodist Church to sing for peace and justice. This event, organized with the vision of transforming the challenging and often tumultuous energy of current events into something positive and peaceful, marked a significant moment for the attendees and the broader community. Look for it to be aired on Greenbelt Access Television (GATe) and GATe's YouTube channel.

Following the sing-along, a group embarked on a symbolic walk to Roosevelt Center, a journey intended to symbolize the spread of peace and justice throughout the community. Once at the Center, the sing-along continued with We Shall Overcome, Hard Times, Come Again No

More, We Shall Not Be Moved and concluded with This Land Is Your Land. Participants carried with them not only the inspiration drawn from the event but a renewed determination to make a tangible difference in their surroundings.

One of the most remarkable aspects of the event was the emphasis on inclusivity. Over 50 individuals contributed their voices, demonstrating the strength that lies in unity and diversity. Whether through words, music, tears or simple gestures of solidarity, every participant played a vital role in shaping the event's atmosphere of hope and goodwill.

The impact of the event extended far beyond its immediate participants. By fostering a space for dialogue, creativity and shared purpose, the gathering inspired attendees to carry forward the ideals of peace and justice.

The organizers of this impactful gathering, Amy and Eileen Murray-Kraft, hope to make it a recurring event, providing an ongoing platform for individuals to come together in pursuit of peace and justice. By welcoming musicians, singers, activists and all who share the vision, they aim to create a tradition that not only uplifts the community but also serves as a beacon of inspiration for others.

The next event will be held at Roosevelt Center in front of the Mother and Child statue on Sunday, September 21 at 2 p.m. to celebrate the United Nations International Day of Peace. Sing For Unity, a worldwide musical movement, will offer a place to join voices with the world to promote unity, community and peace across the globe.

The PGCPs Middle School Honor Orchestra performs their 2025 concert, directed by Jennifer Murray.

On May 3, the Prince George's County Public Schools Middle School Honor Orchestra and Honor Band performed at Fairmont Heights High School in Landover. The honor musicians were drawn from students across the county, selected via auditions. It was the first of such performances since the Covid pandemic shutdowns.

The Honor Orchestra, directed by Jennifer Murray of Beltsville Academy, performed Doug Spata's Gargoyles, Gustav Holst's "Jupiter" from The Planets and Soon Hee Newbold's Viking. The Honor Band, directed by Krystal Williams of Suitland High, performed William Owens' Summit Fanfare, Adrian B. Sims' Uniquely You and Randall Standridge's Blue Sky Horizon. Hannah Moock, orchestra director at Greenbelt Middle School, also performed as part of a staff string quartet and served as one of two staff orchestra managers.

Dora Kennedy Sweeps First Place In Countywide Math Competition

Dora Kennedy French Immersion (DKFI) students have made their mark in mathematics by taking first place across every elementary grade level (third to fifth) in the recent Aretelabs Online Math Competition, a new countywide initiative designed to promote critical thinking and problem-solving among students.

The online competition, held over eight weeks and involving 30 participating schools, marked its pilot year with enthusiastic involvement from students and staff across Prince George's County Public Schools. In a stunning achievement, DKFI emerged as the Spring Tournament Champion, earning top honors in all competing grade levels.

"This is an outstanding achievement for our students," said Principal James Spence. "It demonstrates not only their academic talent but also the dedication of our phenomenal math teachers who coached and encouraged them throughout the competition."

Special recognition goes to DKFI's teacher coaches: Peace Segbor, Urbain Adjallah, Paul Chomnou and Marie Kameni, whose guidance and enthusiasm played a pivotal role in student success. Their leadership, along with the support of Georges Akolo and Marc Yougnia, who coached middle school students, ensured high participation and engagement throughout the event.

The competition was designed with clear educational goals in mind:

- Enhance Problem-solving Skills: Challenge students to think analytically and creatively.
- Boost Confidence: Encourage risk-taking and resilience through friendly competition.
- Foster a Love for Learning: Make math exciting, dynamic and fun.

As the next tournament kicks off during the 2025-26 school year, DKFI remains committed to cultivating a culture of excellence in mathematics. All third- through eighth-grade students have been registered to participate in that seven-week competition.

Spence added, "We are incredibly proud of our students and teachers. Their performance showcases the academic rigor and collaborative spirit that define Dora Kennedy French Immersion."

end if there is a lack of participation.”

GAIL’s food distribution service offers shelf-stable items and seasonal produce to Greenbelt residents in need. In addition, perishable fruit and vegetables will be offered subject to availability. The next distributions will take place at the Community Center on July 17 and August 21 at 1 p.m. while supplies last.

“The GAIL Program currently offers a drive-thru distribution, deliveries to homebound residents through our partnership with GIVES, a walk-up table, door delivery to Green Ridge House residents and a distribution at Springhill Lake Recreation Center all on the same day,” said Batey.

To receive food, residents need a CAFB card, which helps GAIL track participation and tailor food options to dietary and cultural needs. The card registration is free at distributions or by stopping by the GAIL office Monday to Thursday between 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Interested Greenbelt residents are encouraged to volunteer by assisting staff at Springhill Lake and Green Ridge House to deliver door to door. Call Flora Li, Green Ridge House service coordinator, at 301-412-2480 to volunteer.

GAIL staff stress that the program’s continuation depends on the community showing up.

“We know how important the Food Distribution is, and we’re committed to continuing to serve the community. It’s important to know that we can only continue this program if there is enough community participation and need,” said GAIL Community Outreach Coordinator Katherine Farzin. “So, if you or someone you know could benefit, on characteristics like whether the creature has a shell or how many legs it has. It also includes pictures. The team finished the third survey in May, just in time for Sajonia’s graduation.

Macroinvertebrates from the “most sensitive” and “sensitive” groups, including dragonfly, mayfly and crane fly larvae, were found during almost every sampling event. One of the most interesting is the casemaker caddisfly larva, which builds its own shell out of materials it finds in the environment, such as sand, small pebbles, and scraps of tree bark. The survey team has also found small fish, frogs, amphibian eggs and salamanders of various sizes. These vertebrate animals don’t officially impact the stream health score – which has ranged from fair to good on different days – but their presence suggests that the water is clean and well-oxygenated, since amphibians are sensitive to pollution and low oxygen levels. These results are reassuring for a small creek receiving a large amount of stormwater from Ridge and Laurel Hill Roads. The creek’s watershed includes Greenbelt Homes, Inc. homes and yards as well as part of the Greenbelt Forest Preserve, so land use and management decisions in both of these areas affect it.

Plaisant and Knee hope to continue sampling in the coming months to confirm the results.

"This is equivalent to taking 548 passenger vehicles off the road for a year or saving 863 tons of waste from landfills," according to Greenbelt Environmental Coordinator Kevin Carpenter-Driscoll.

city vehicles versus public use and whether city mechanics have sufficient experience with electric vehicles.

Babe Ruth Seniors Record First Win of the Summer

by Ian Gleason

Last Friday, June 20 the Greenbelt Babe Ruth Senior Team (18U) traveled to Taft Field in Washington, D.C., seeking their first win of the season. They would not disappoint. Behind a strong pitching performance from CJ Fuller Greenbelt triumphed over the DC Knights 4-2 on a beautiful June evening. The Junior Team (15U) played the nightcap with their game resulting in a 9-9 tie as they reached the time limit set for league games of 1 hour and 45 minutes. José Luis Galeano started the game behind the plate with Troy White on the mound for Greenbelt. Galeano would come in to relieve White on the mound. In the bottom of the last inning Galeano worked out of a jam and stranded the would-be winning run on third base to preserve a tie for Greenbelt.

Barracudas Lose to Prince George's Council at Scorching Home Meet

Greenbelt Municipal Swim Team holds a home meet on Saturday, June 21.

The Greenbelt swimmers performed tirelessly, even setting some personal records through a scorching hot meet at the pool on Saturday, June 21. There was plenty of family cheer under the canopies at the team's only home meet this summer. Unfortunately, despite their hard work, the Barracudas lost in total points to the Knights of Columbus Prince George's Council (PGC), with a final score of Greenbelt 269 and PGC 308. The swimmers were set to compete in a "B Meet" in Cheverly on Wednesday evening and another meet in Waldorf on Saturday.

Busy Weekend in Greenbelt

by Matt Neufeld

It was a busy weekend for bargain hunters and treasure seekers in Greenbelt and neighboring Berwyn Heights on June 21 and 22.

Several events during the weekend offered scores of various, eclectic items of all types at steep discounts, including the steepest of all, for free.

St. Hugh's of Grenoble Church hosted one of its annual sprawling rummage sales on Saturday and Sunday in its large, downstairs community and reception room. The crowds enjoyed a bounty of goods offered for extremely low prices, most for just a few dollars.

Among the many items for sale at rows and rows of tables were a huge selection of jewelry, including rings, pendants, bracelets, earrings, watches and pins; all sorts of toys, games and puzzles; piles of clothing; rows and rows of books; household items, including utensils, silverware, mugs, glasses and kitchenware; linens; housewares; electronics; decorative items for several holidays; numerous home decorations; keepsakes; mementos; and even furniture.

One staffer said that just days before the rummage sale a storm caused massive flooding through the community room main entrance and in the community room itself. Church staff were able to clean up the water and everything was fine by the time the doors opened on Saturday.

Meanwhile, just down Greenbelt Road on Saturday, on the upper level of Beltway Plaza, The SPACE Free Art for All was having a bit of a different type of rummage sale at its soon-to-be-vacated large space in the mall, though they'll maintain their smaller spaces on the main level. The SPACE organizers were offering a variety of things for free. Sadly, The SPACE had to unload a huge amount of its inventory because the facility is losing its donated space upstairs after a great 3-1/2-year run. The mall had to ask The SPACE to leave its larger space because a new retail tenant is moving in.

The SPACE officials said they were given a month to vacate. As a result, they had to unload most of their donated items because there isn't enough space for it all at the organization's two downstairs locations at the mall, near the AMC movie theater. The SPACE officials said they were not told the identity of the new retail tenant.

Thus, visitors to the upper-level The SPACE facility, in the old Big Lots location next to Shoppers World, were in for a treat on Saturday. The SPACE organizers offered free clothing of all types for adults, children and babies; housewares; toys and games; Halloween decorations; and an enormous collection of DVDs.

The SPACE moved into its upper-level location at Beltway Plaza in the fall of 2021, organizers said. While they were sad to leave the spacious location, they were also gracious, appreciative and happy to have had the space for as long as they had it.

Yard Sales

community yard sale. Eighteen houses spread across the town were scheduled to host yard sales. Signs posted everywhere pointed drivers, pedestrians and neighbors to the various homes.

Among the items spread out on tarps, driveways, sidewalks, lawns and tables on Saturday were clothing, toys, games, mementos, keepsakes, housewares, dishes, antiques, books, electronics, costumes, jewelry, household items, tools, electronics and furniture. At one home, the family had a working cotton candy machine set up in the front yard. They were selling cotton candy for a dollar!

Organizers of the community yard sale had printed maps for the event, and those were available at some homes on Saturday.

Finally, early Saturday morning, there were face painting, music and samples at the grand opening of the new Dunkin' restaurant on Greenbelt Road. The Dunkin' location had already been in business for a few weeks, but the owners finally had their grand opening celebration.

Back at the Berwyn Heights home with the cotton candy machine, two young girls who live there and were helping with their yard sale were sporting brightly-colored face paintings. Where did they get them? At the Dunkin' grand opening, earlier in the day, of course.

Just another busy early summer day in Greenbelt and Berwyn Heights.

Concert to Aid Greenbelt Puppeteers Delights All

A concert took place on Sunday, June 8, at Greenbelt Baptist Church to benefit the Hass family, which has been dealing with cancer. Ole and Ingrid Hass (creators of children's puppet theater Beech Tree Puppets) have lived in Greenbelt for the past 27 years and are an integral part of the city's musical and artistic community. That community's members came together in return to provide an evening of entertainment in their honor.

Ole Hass has been living with chronic lymphocytic leukemia for the past 13 years and for the past two years has been fighting an aggressive new cancer in his brain and spinal cord. Ole and Ingrid performed a duet in German, and Ingrid and their daughter Cecilia performed a duet on violin. With many additional performers, the program spanned Bach to Bowie and crossed genres from classical to old time, and folk tunes to Greenbelt's home-grown musical theater (in the shape of Chris Cherry performing numbers from this year's upcoming Creative Kids Camp production).

The performances were accomplished and at times moving, the venue was filled to capacity and the evening was full of laughter and applause, ending with an all-hands-on-deck rendition of What a Wonderful World. For those who missed it, the concert will be aired on Greenbelt Access Television in about two weeks. The fundraiser has now ended, having raised over $50,000 since February.

All the performers except the Hass family took to the stage for a communal rendition of What a Wonderful World to round out the concert.
