Leila Dawson's Multidisciplinary Pursuits Lead to Stanford Next

by Will Hammann

Six majors, eight internships and 23 jobs colored the undergraduate journey of Leila Dawson, who ultimately graduated from the University of Maryland with a double degree in economics and international relations in 2020.

She was one of only three students in her class offered a job by Deloitte, one of the world's largest consulting firms, where she worked advising government agencies, global nonprofits and biopharmaceutical companies on healthcare.

Now, she pursues a dual graduate degree in public policy from Harvard and in business administration from Stanford, which this June named her a Knight-Hennessy Scholar – inducting her into the prestigious, multidisciplinary leadership fellowship that funds her Stanford studies.

“My main goal is just to think in an interdisciplinary way,” said Dawson, who attributes that perspective to her unrelenting curiosity and to her experience here in Greenbelt and the DMV as a whole.

Greenbelt Years

“Greenbelt, I think, is one of the most magical cities in the universe. It holds such a special place in my heart,” said Dawson, who lived just a few miles away in Lanham but attended Greenbelt Elementary and took part in extracurricular activities through the Recreation Center, such as Camp Pine Tree.

Later, she went to Eleanor Roosevelt High School through Prince George's County Public Schools' science and technology magnet program for students from all over the county.

“It was just so diverse across so many dimensions: race, ethnicity, socioeconomic status, personality, ability,” said Dawson. “That was really formative to me as a person, and I think it allowed me to kind of see disparities across geography,

There's a buzz around The SPACE – and with good reason. As some community members have asked, “What's happening with The SPACE?” it's important to clarify that The SPACE is not closing. In fact, it's growing. While asked to vacate the Upper SPACE location at Beltway Plaza, regular programs like yoga, sewing and music are continuing uninterrupted, and exciting new opportunities are unfolding.

Beltway Plaza management recently informed The SPACE that a potential new tenant may be moving into the former Big Lots store location, where The SPACE

PGCPS Will Replace StopFinder Bus Tracking App with Chipmunk

by Ellie Jornlin

After years of parent complaints about the StopFinder app, Prince George's County Public Schools (PGCPS) is officially phasing in a new bus tracking app, Chipmunk, in the 2025-26 school year.

The announcement came during the June 27 Board of Education meeting, where district leaders outlined updates to the PGCPS Transportation Action Plan.

StopFinder Frustrations

The current StopFinder app has had many complaints from the Prince George's County community, with major glitches and other issues that affect smooth and reliable student transportation (see stories in the February 6, 2025, issue). “StopFinder stopped finding children a long time ago,” joked Board Member Phelton Moss, Ph.D., during the recent board meeting.

One of the key issues with StopFinder, which partners with the TransFinder routing system, is its inability to accurately track buses running multiple trips. This has caused confusion and delays in communication, with bus drivers reporting constant buffering and difficulties connecting to the system.

“Currently the app cannot correlate the GPS to the multiple trips assigned to that bus,” said

PGCPS has announced the bus tracking app Chipmunk will be phased in to replace StopFinder.

PGCPS Director of Transportation Keba Baldwin. “So even though you will see that start time on the app, you won't see the bus [in the app] if there are multiple trips.”

Chipmunk will operate under a system called BusPlanner that houses the GPS and routing systems. The transportation team explained that it will be much

History Day Teacher of The Year Patch Leaves Legacy in Greenbelt

by Joan Estenson

Prince George's County Teacher of the Year for Maryland History Day, Victoria Patch, will be teaching English in Baltimore in the coming school year, but History Day will go on in Greenbelt.

Patch, a ninth-grade teacher at Eleanor Roosevelt High School (ERHS), together with 10th grade teacher Judith Barrera, brought History Day back to Greenbelt and coordinated it here. For most students the project is part of their school work, though some do it just because they like it.

This year there were 184 projects at the ERHS History Day contest, 23 of which went on to the Prince George's County contest.

Some students begin work on their projects during the summer, some wait until fall, but in either case research and development of their projects lasts several months. Students choose the topic they will research and decide whether to prepare a paper, documentary, exhibit, performance or website, done individually or as a group. Students show their work at the school contest and if they win there they go on to county contests in March. From those they may go on to Maryland History Day (MHD) in May, a program of Maryland Humanities, and finally to National History Day (NHD) in early June.

NHD is an international program based in College Park. They estimate about 500,000 students compete annually at the school, regional/district and affiliate levels, and around 3,000 each year reach the national competition. Each year NHD picks a theme. For the coming year, in honor of the 250th anniversary of the Declaration of Independence, the theme is Revolution, Reaction, Reform in History.

Plans and Back Story

Since she isn't helping students prepare their History Day projects Patch thinks she will become a judge for this year's contests.

Patch said when she was growing up history was “just there.” Her dad was involved in genealogical research and her mother watched films from the golden age of Hollywood; both parents shared their interests with Patch. Her grandmother took Patch and her sisters to museums, historic sites and on neighborhood history tours. Patch “was hooked.”

Thanks to Public Works

Thank you for publishing (July 3, page 7) the picture of a Public Works crew clearing a huge fallen tree in Buddy Attick Park. That casualty was somewhat personal to me, because the tree, which was growing on one bank of the Greenbelt Lake peninsula, fell across the stream that feeds the lake, across the lake path, and about 15’ into my backyard. Clearing it was a multiday, coordinated effort.

Very late Saturday night I discovered the tree and entered a service request on the city’s website.

By 8 a.m. Monday a crew arrived, and cut and removed both the part of the tree that was blocking the path and the smaller branches in my backyard.

On Monday afternoon a separate Public Works crew collected two piles of leaves that had been removed from the tree in the morning.

On Tuesday Public Works cut up and removed the tree trunk from the park and from my backyard.

F1: The Movie

Sonny Hayes (Brad Pitt) was Formula 1’s most promising phenom of the 1990s until an accident on the track nearly ended his career. Thirty years later, he’s a nomadic racer-for-hire when he’s approached by his former teammate Ruben Cervantes (Javier Bardem), owner of a struggling Formula 1 team that is on the verge of collapse. Ruben convinces Sonny to come back to Formula 1 for one last shot at saving the team and being the best in the world. As the engines roar, Sonny’s past catches up with him and he finds that in Formula 1, your teammate is your fiercest competition – and the road to redemption is not something you can travel alone.

Familiar Touch

When her son arrives to dine with her, Ruth (Kathleen Chalfant), a retired cook, mistakes him for a suitor. Their “date” takes them to an assisted living facility, which Ruth does not remember that she had previously selected for herself. Among her fellow memory care residents, Ruth feels lost and adrift, certain she has found herself somewhere she does not belong. As she slowly begins to accept the warmth and support of care workers Vanessa (Carolyn Michelle) and Brian (Andy McQueen), she finds new ways to ground herself in her body, even as her mind embarks on a journey all its own.

Marlee Matlin: Not Alone Anymore

Marlee Matlin was born into a hearing family, like roughly 9 percent of Deaf people. Growing up in Illinois, she faced episodes of isolation and abuse. She found joy in performing at a local Deaf theater. In 1987, Matlin became the first Deaf actor to win an Academy Award and was thrust into the spotlight at 21 years old. Reflecting on her life in her primary language of American Sign Language, the film explores the complexities of what it means to be a trailblazer.

The Last Ecstatic Days

Ethan Sisser, a young man afflicted with brain cancer, sits alone in his hospital room. When he begins live-streaming his death journey on social media, thousands of people around the world join him and celebrate his courage. Still, Ethan envisions more – to teach the world how to die. To honor his final wish of filming his death, his doctor, Aditi Sethi, transports him to a quiet house in the Blue Ridge Mountains of Asheville, N.C.. What unfolds next is a story that’s rarely glimpsed: how a community of strangers helps an unhoused man die on his own terms.

Paddington

After a deadly earthquake destroys his home in the Peruvian rainforest, a young bear (Ben Whishaw) makes his way to England in search of a new home. The bear, dubbed “Paddington” for the London train station, finds shelter with the family of Henry (Hugh Bonneville) and Mary Brown (Sally Hawkins). Although Paddington’s amazement at urban living soon endears him to the Browns, someone else has her eye on him: Taxidermist Millicent Clyde (Nicole Kidman) has designs on the rare bear and his hide.

Sinners

Trying to leave their troubled lives behind, twin brothers (Michael B. Jordan) return to their hometown to start again, only to discover that an even greater evil is waiting to welcome them back.

On Wednesday morning a commercial tree service arrived with a crane. They cut down an immense tree that was right next to the one that fell, chipped the branches and stacked the larger sections of the trunk on the peninsula path for city use.

On Wednesday afternoon Public Works removed the trunk sections and repaired the damaged section of the lake path fence.

My thanks to Public Works for a job well done.

Co-op Pharmacy: In Response

Greenbelt Co-op General Manager Dan Gillotte is right to highlight the potentially dire consequences of the Trump administration's vaccine policy (A Co-operative Pharmacy Battles Big Chains, Vaccine Skepticism, July 3, 2025). But he's wrong to state that there's "not much" we can do about it.

It is true that, under the Affordable Care Act, U.S. insurers are legally required to cover only those vaccines recommended by the CDC's Advisory Committee on Immunization Practices (ACIP). However, states may impose additional requirements on insurers operating within their borders. Such state-level measures were recommended by former White House Covid-19 Response Coordinator Ashish Jha in a recent Washington Post op-ed (RFK Jr. is sabotaging the vaccine program. Here's how to stop him. June 17, 2025).

Maryland can and should require coverage of vaccines beyond those recommended by ACIP when scientific evidence warrants it. I urge Greenbelters to contact their state legislators and encourage them to take action on this front.

FBI HQ Stays in D.C.

Good news! Greenbelt just bought more time (at least for 12 years?) to remain more green; free from more traffic congestion and free from a multibillion-dollar, multibuilding FBI campus with tons of concrete, glass and steel.

Kudos to the Trump/Vance and Kash Patel (FBI director) administration in saving taxpayers billions of dollars by relocating the FBI HQ to underused or vacant office space in the Reagan building only a few blocks from the DOJ. Makes lots of sense. Keep FBI in DC!

Robert Snyder

Greenbelt Explosions

From 10:30 p.m. July 4 to just after 1 a.m. July 5, a series of nearly 40 explosions took place near the intersection of Southway and Ridge Road.

No vehicles entered or left the area surrounding the detonations, suggesting a biker or pedestrian traveled to the intersection multiple times during the three hours. All traffic was during the period when people were leaving the city fireworks display. The explosions went on for hours after that.

Explosions sometimes went off in pairs, first one, then the other. Some were separated by five to 10 minutes.

Since this sort of firework is illegal in Prince George's and Maryland, they had to be brought from out of state.

They were as loud as, and set off in the same place as, explosions that occurred June 25, 26 and 29. Somebody made trips at least during the day of the 25th, and may have stored the explosives in a GHI shed or unit, or a car in a GHI court or city parking, until July 5. Alternatively, the explosives were imported each day before they were set off at night. They were all set off about 10 at night, except on the 29th when they were set off about 2 a.m.

Over these 30 years plenty of scofflaws have set off small firecrackers on Ridge Road, near 16 Court.

Patricia Heil

Greenbelt Needs RCV

Back in 2023 while the city council was considering how to fill the vacancy left by Ric Gordon's death, all councilmembers expressed support for moving to a ranked choice voting (RCV) system. RCV would allow residents to rank their preferences for council rather than having to try and strategically bullet vote in a multi-member race.

In every jurisdiction where this system has been adopted, over half of all voters prefer it to traditional ballot systems. More than 80 percent of voters across jurisdictions that use RCV find the system easy and simple. Some elections have also exhibited increased turnout after moving to RCV.

Despite their promises to back

RCV, every single incumbent councilmember chose to back Greenbelt's current system, even though the current system tends to result in significant under-voting (often as part of folks' bullet voting strategy) and in low turnout. At the same time, sitting councilmembers are discussing lengthening their own terms from two years to four years. A rejection of RCV combined with longer terms will simply re-entrench incumbents' power (challengers seem less likely to succeed under Greenbelt voters' bullet voting strategy) with fewer democratic checks on such power. Greenbelt voters have not rejected an incumbent in an election for decades, and it seems as though the current incumbents are working their hardest to make sure that we the voters never do.

Correction

I appreciated reading "Council Approves Solid Waste Pilot Program for One Year." There is just one minor correction: The small 8-gallon city-approved bag will cost $0.80. FYI, council approved unanimously to set the yearly base fee for those who participate at $240, and those who do not participate at $380.

Suggested Action: Reference: Resolution
Negotiated Purchase List

Each year, the City does business with a number of vendors from whom the City's individual purchases are below the bid limit of $10,000, but total purchases over the fiscal year reach or exceed that amount.

Obtaining bid proposals for these goods and services is not warranted. Some of these vendors are the sole source or best source of purchase. In other instances, the City's purchases are based on bids taken by other government agencies (e.g., the State or County) or through the Council of Governments cooperative purchase program, with the bid price extended to Greenbelt. It is recommended this resolution be introduced for first reading.

JUNIOR

Ready for Adoption? Call (301) 474-6124.

Six-year-old Junior has been in a foster home for almost a year and is still looking for a forever home! Junior (now affectionately nicknamed Juni) has insulin-dependent diabetes, but he doesn't let that slow him down. While administering an insulin shot might seem scary, Junior takes his medicine like a champ. Junior's foster says he's a gentle soul. He's super affectionate and loves to be wherever the household action is. His favorite activity is sitting by the door or window and watching the local wildlife and ongoing outside (he's a great neighborhood watch). He also gets along with everyone he meets — including his cat and dog foster siblings! If you're interested in adopting call (301) 474-6124 or email us at animalservices@greenbeltnmd.gov!

When she isn't teaching Patch reads history but also historical fiction and lots of other things, including time travel and beach reads. She also enjoys dancing, karaoke, taking walks and spending time with her sister and family.

Nomination

History Day Teacher of the Year nominations may come from students, fellow teachers, parents or others involved in the program. From those nominations MHD District Coordinators in each county nominate a teacher, librarian or someone who works to support the program in their county. Agnes Slaugh, a former Greenbelter who is a Prince George's County Public Schools K-12 literacy coach, is also the MHD Coordinator for Prince George's County. Excerpts from Patch's nomination follow:

"By creating opportunities for students to engage with history beyond the classroom, she introduces them to a deeper, hands-on understanding of the past. Her ability to guide students and fellow teachers through the process of developing high-quality History Day projects has undoubtedly left a lasting impact on many students' academic journeys. ... Her commitment to her students is not limited to the classroom; she actively mentors them, offering guidance through every phase of their project creation. ... Her impact on students' historical understanding is further demonstrated by her dedication to integrating the principles of NHD into her classroom year after year."

Student Compliments

Her students, too, compliment Patch and the support she gives them.

Emerijesu Emakpor, a 10th-grader in the coming school year, put together an individual performance which advanced to MHD. Emakapor said, "I found it fascinating to conduct research on a topic that I was also engaged in. ... I had a great time with everyone I met, including the judges and competitors. I do give so much thanks to my teacher Ms. Patch who helped me every step of the process, even when I doubted myself. ... Overall, I liked it and would do it 100 times again!"

Aashi Moola, who, during the 2023-24 school year wrote a paper that advanced to NHD, said "My experience with Ms. Patch was always positive. I think one of the reasons I made it so far was because she always pushed us to write about something we were passionate about. This way, all the effort I was putting in didn't feel like work but something enjoyable. Additionally, she was always there to support and credit our accomplishments which encouraged me to stick with the topic I started researching even when I had doubts. ... When we were having trouble finding sources, she put in a lot of effort ... I think she is fully deserving of the award and am thankful for the support ..."

Collaborator's Pledge

Patch's friend and colleague Barrera has pledged that she will coordinate the History Day program in Greenbelt next year. Barrera said, "Ms. Patch is an excellent teacher [who believes] in the academic foundational skills that NHD can teach all students, whether it be college prep skills, developing analysis and critical thinking skills, creativity in designing projects and/or team building skill sets. She made an excellent collaborative partner in making Eleanor Roosevelt's NHD competition a success."

She added, "I will miss her ingenuity and her uncanny empathetic nature. She will truly be missed at ERHS."

History Day at all levels always needs volunteer judges. Judges do not need to be historians; they need to be willing to look at students' projects, talk with students and give them feedback. They receive plenty of training and work in three-person teams, with new judges assigned to work with experienced judges. For more information about judging and to sign up to be notified when recruitment of judges begins, visit nhd.org/en/get-involved/volunteer. PGCPS Offers Free Meals for Children

Beginning in July, Prince George's County Public Schools (PGCPS) will provide free meals to children 18 and younger on a first-come, first-served basis. Each child must be accompanied by a parent or guardian.

The closest sites to Greenbelt are in Beltsville. Calverton Elementary School, 3400 Beltsville Road, will serve hot meals between July 7 and July 31 from Monday to Friday – breakfast between 9 and 9:30 a.m. and lunch between 12:30 and 1 p.m. Bagged lunches will be offered at the Beltsville Library, 4319 Sellman Road, between July 7 and August 7, Monday to Thursday from 1 to 2 p.m. Find the complete list of sites and service times here: pgcps.org/offices/food-and-nutrition/summer-meals.

Patuxent Refuge Hosts Two Programs on Moths

On Thursday, July 17 at 5 p.m. the internationally acclaimed film Nocturnes will screen at the Patuxent Research Refuge. The film follows two inquisitive observers as they explore the clandestine universe of moths, an often-underrated night-time pollinator, in Eastern Himalayan forests. After the film, attendees can take home some free native plants and/or seeds. Light refreshments will be provided.

A second program on moths will take place on Friday, July 18 from 8 to 11 p.m. Learn about common local moths and their natural history by observing and catching some of the moths that live on the refuge, with David Adamski, Ph.D., a moth expert and entomologist retired from the Smithsonian Institution's National Museum of Natural History. People of all ages are invited to attend.

Both events will take place at the National Wildlife Visitor Center, 10901 Scarlet Tanager Loop, off Powder Mill Road between the Baltimore-Washington Parkway and Md. Route 197. For more information go to fws.gov/refuge/patuxent-research/events.

more user-friendly and accurate, ensuring that parents can more effectively track the bus coming to their stop.

Another benefit is that unlike StopFinder, Chipmunk will automatically include GeoAlerts without requiring families to set them up manually.

"One of the added benefits of Chipmunk over StopFinder is also the fact that parents will no longer have to set GeoAlerts manually, it will be automatically built into the system because despite our best efforts it just was difficult for families to navigate that process," said PGCPS Chief Operating Officer Charoscar Coleman.

Chipmunk Launch

Baldwin explained that the new app will be launching in two phases, beginning with special education students during the first semester and extending to the rest of the community in the second semester. "This allows us to have a smaller subset target to really work out any kinks that we may have so that second semester we will fully roll that out with everyone else," said Baldwin.

Administrators emphasized that StopFinder will remain available throughout the fall, but Chipmunk will become the default system by spring 2026, pending a successful rollout among special education routes.

The previous contract with TransFinder had a cost of $111,825 in 2022 and $117,416 in 2023, according to the contract obtained by the News Review. Those amounts, as well as previous yearly costs, were paid by the company BusPatrol on behalf of PGCPS. BusPatrol was the recipient of a no-bid contract for the school bus cameras, which made over $6.6 million for the company in 2023 (see the February 6 issue) and was flagged in a recent legislative audit of the school system published in March.

Parents will likely be relieved to have a new bus tracking app coming soon but also disappointed to find the incoming Chipmunk App has a 1.5 star rating on Google Play and a 1.2 star rating in Apple's App Store. PGCPS had not responded to our request for comment on the app's track record or cost by time of press.

More information on the rollout timeline and usage instructions for Chipmunk is expected closer to the start of the school year.

Music & Arts

Singing for Justice at the Café

by Kurt Stand

Music is rooted in community and building community is the basis of social justice. Faith Petric, born in a log cabin in Idaho in 1915, combined both for nearly a century, her voice still going strong until her final months in 2013. The film Singing for Justice: The Faith Petric Story, recounting her life and legacy, was screened on May 19 at the New Deal Café before a crowd of about 100 people – 50 in person and 50 present via Zoom. It was one of the largest audiences ever for a Reel and Meal film. Petric's music, rooted in church songs and popular tunes she heard growing up, was embedded in the experiences of the Depression, the Spanish Civil War, working at a shipyard during World War II and the challenges of being a single mother during the McCarthy era. Through it all, she never gave up. Her spirit was captured in a song heard in the film: You ain't done nothin' if you ain't been called a red/If you've marched or agitated, then you're bound to hear it said/ So you might as well ignore it, or love the word instead/Cause you ain't been doin' nothin' if you ain't been called a red.

man and Christie Herring, the documentary traces Petric's background and renewed commitment to music and activism after she took part in the seminal civil rights march across the Edmund Pettis Bridge in 1965. A few years later she retired from paid work and dedicated the rest of her life to singing, encouraging others to sing and creating space for music and community wherever she went. Petric hosted a drop-in community songfest at her San Francisco home for decades and took part in the New Old Time Chautauqua traveling circus/theater/music touring small, out-of-the way towns in the Northwest. Whether it was church music, spirituals, light-hearted country tunes or songs of the labor, civil rights and peace movements, Petric brought music to the people – not through concert halls or major festivals, but by fostering shared humanity and mutual respect. That, at its core, is what organizing is all about.

The film's power was evident in the discussion that followed. While director Freedman answered questions about the filmmaking process, many attendees also shared personal stories about moments when music touched their lives and reflected on themes of courage and commitment. Appropriately in a film about community singing, singing was part of the evening for everyone in attendance. The post-film discussion was led by D.C. Labor Chorus Director Elise Bryant with the chorus ending the evening with Solidarity Forever, including a recently added verse that speaks to our time: They divide us by our color, they divide us by our tongue/They divide us men and women, they divide us old and young/But they'll tremble at our voices when they hear these verses sung/For the union makes us strong. For more information about the film go to singingforjustice.com or facebook.com/FaithPetricFilm.

has offered free weekly classes, special events and children's programming since 2021. As a result, The SPACE has been asked to remove all items and materials from the Upper SPACE by July 15. However, the organization has been invited to continue offering regular programming there until the location is formally occupied – possibly in the fall.

Thanks to generous support from the Greenbelt Community Foundation and American Rescue Plan Act funding from the City of Greenbelt, the Upper SPACE expansion in 2021 allowed The SPACE to dramatically increase its impact. Programs like Bloom with Intention (yoga and meditation), Sew, What?! and Strings & Keys music classes have since become beloved fixtures for the community. The Upper SPACE also served as the home of a play area developed with longtime partner Playtime Project, offering a nurturing environment for local children and families.

While the closing of the Upper SPACE may force the relocation of some programs, The SPACE remains active with two vibrant storefronts downstairs, directly across from AMC Theatre. The E2 Lab (Electronics & Entrepreneurship Lab) is a program that houses cutting-edge creative technology including 3D printers, a laser engraver, heat presses and tools for video production, digital design and AI art creation. The ARTrepreneur training program teaches participants of all ages how to fuse creativity with business, equipping them with skills in entrepreneurship, digital fabrication and content creation. The Third SPACE Lounge serves as a welcoming community hub for connection, conversation and healing. Its back office now operates as a workforce and business development center, offering free computer access, resumé-building tools and training programs in partnership with Employ Prince George's.

One of the Best Investments

With a small budget, an all-hands-on-deck mentality and a deep commitment to equity, The SPACE delivers free, high-quality programming to numerous families each year. From youth workshops and maker camps to healing circles, expressive art and workforce development, The SPACE continues to punch far above its weight – and every donation makes a powerful impact.

“What started in a basement has grown into a regional model for community healing and creative entrepreneurship,” says Shaymar Higgs, founder and executive director. “We’re honored to be expanding – not just in spirit but physically as well – toward opportunities in Washington, D.C., and beyond.”

The SPACE is deeply grateful to Beltway Plaza management, especially “Rusty” Kerber and the late Marc “Kap” Kapastin, who have supported its presence since 2018, when they offered the use of the original storefront rent-free. That support helped transform a simple idea into a vibrant community institution, where underserved communities can access tools, training and transformation.

As The SPACE launches a Round-Up Campaign and prepares for its upcoming community auction, this moment of transition is also a time of great momentum. Every dollar donated helps The SPACE remain independent, accessible and committed to those most often pushed out or overlooked.

Elevator in Community Center To be Replaced by Early 2026

by Joan Estenson

On the day in May when Prince George's County Councilmember Ingrid Watson hosted Greenbelt seniors for lunch, Maryland Senator Alonzo Washington presented the city with a check for $200,000 to replace the elevator by the beaver on the first floor of the Community Center, just inside the west entrance to the building.

The lifespan of an elevator is 20 to 25 years and that elevator and the small one by the east parking lot were both installed in 1989, 36 years ago. City Manager Josué Salmerón said work on elevator replacement began in 2017 and they got two proposals in 2024. The project has been given a higher priority since the elevators have been increasingly unreliable.

There is an alternate way for a wheelchair or walker user to get to the first floor, so replacing the small elevator next to the east parking lot is not as urgent. There is no alternative to the stairs to get to the second and third floors when the main, west elevator is down.

The appropriation from the state was a result of consultation between Washington and council on the city's priorities and how the Maryland legislature could help.

The $200,000 will not cover the whole cost of replacing the elevator, but there is money in the capital budget. Salmerón said he believes that, if council needs to allocate more money, they will, as they see this as a high priority.

With Maryland's new fiscal year beginning July 1, Salmerón will begin working on the paperwork to get the money from the state. From there he will discuss the project with the two elevator manufacturers to see if they will honor the plan each outlined in their 2024 proposals. Once agreement is reached, the new elevator can be installed, probably sometime between November 2025 and January 2026, Salmerón said.

While not the only users of the elevator, some members of the Golden Age Club, which meets weekly on the second floor, depend on the elevator to be able to attend meetings. Golden Age Club President Judy Parker said, "I will be glad when all of our members can participate in our activities, with no disappointment because on some Wednesdays the elevator doesn't work."

Hearings in the Abrego Garcia Case Continue in Greenbelt

by Ellie Jornlin

On Monday, July 7, protestors and the Rapid Response Choir again gathered outside the federal courthouse in Greenbelt with signs and songs during another hearing in the Kilmar Abrego Garcia case.

The Trump Administration would begin the process of deporting Abrego Garcia from the country yet again if he is released from custody before his trial on human smuggling charges in Tennessee, a Justice Department attorney told a federal judge in Maryland on Monday.

The announcement was made by U.S. lawyer Jonathan Guynn and directly contradicts an earlier statement made by the White House last month, which said Garcia would stand trial and most likely spend time in an American prison before any moves to deport him are made.

Guynn said that U.S. Immigration and Customs Enforcement would detain Garcia after his release from jail and send him to a “third country,” but did not specify which country that would be, according to the Associated Press.

U.S. District Judge Paula Xinis is overseeing Garcia’s case and scheduled a hearing on Thursday for officials to explain possible next steps following his release.

Incidents reported here occurred June 30 - July 6, 2025. Readers are encouraged to contact the police if they have information that may aid in an inquiry. Call the non-emergency number 301-474-7200 or email pd@greenbeltmd.gov. Times provided are when the incidents were reported.

Incident Summary

Greenbelt Police reported one mental health diversion and two domestic incidents. One juvenile missing person case was resolved.

Fatal Hit and Run

On July 2 at 10:29 p.m. on Greenbelt Road at the entrance to Greenway Center, there was an accident involving a motorcycle and a car. The motorcycle rider was pronounced deceased at the hospital. The second vehicle left the scene eastbound on Greenbelt Road toward Hanover Parkway. Witness accounts and vehicle evidence left at the scene suggest that the fleeing vehicle was a 1999-2003 Lexus RX300, either white or silver.

Attempted Carjacking with Arrest

On July 1 at 1:33 p.m. near 5910 Greenbelt Road, officers responded to a robbery call and saw one person flee in a stolen vehicle; a second man fled on foot and tried to pull a driver from his car so that he could escape. He was arrested and taken to the Upper Marlboro Department of Corrections.

race, income, all these different pillars.”

While at Roosevelt, Dawson played varsity softball all four years, and focused on clubs, friends and work. But as graduation neared, she had no idea what she wanted to study in college.

University Years

“I think it’s kind of insane to ask a 17-year-old to pick what they want to do for the rest of their life,” said Dawson, but she eventually settled on studying psychology at the University of Maryland, a school she chose because of its affordability and its proximity to Greenbelt.

Staying nearby meant she could continue one of her high school jobs helping at the Recreation Center, through which she coached sports, orchestrated other after-school activities and was a camp counselor at Camp Pine Tree.

“It was cool to then be working alongside people that I called a counselor way back when,” she said.

That work bled into her studies. For her first year of college, Dawson was dedicated to understanding how to improve educational outcomes through extracurricular activities. That interest prompted her to switch majors for the first time, from psychology to education.

This would become a pattern. “Then I realized, in order to actually have an impact on the education system at scale, I need to work in policy,” said Dawson, who did several internships on Capitol Hill. “Then I realized the public sector, while amazing, has so much red tape, and the private sector is a really cool angle to create social impact as well,” she added. That interest led to internships with two consulting firms, and to an opportunity to assemble and run her own house painting company, which she called the most important job she had while in college.

Leila Dawson (center, with sash and tiara) marches in the Greenbelt Labor Day Parade.

After all was said and done, she ended up pursuing a double degree in economics – to learn quantitative skills – and in international relations.

“I felt like every time I switched my major, I got closer and closer to what I wanted, but I also was able to connect dots along the way that maybe I wouldn’t have if I started with economics and international relations as my major,” Dawson said.

Career Start

As she finished her studies, she sought to become a consultant – a career where every day is different, according to Dawson, and that lets you see business from a “bird’s eye view.”

She didn’t stop exploring new fields when she started her career with Deloitte. She began her work in healthcare across the private and public sectors as the coronavirus pandemic was in full swing.

She observed the pandemic’s impacts on residents of Prince George’s County, where rates of infection were especially high. Seeing hospital beds fill up in her hometown of Lanham inspired her to take action outside of her work, providing local hospice care and supporting the county’s health department.

“I didn’t want to lose myself in the corporate world, I wanted to make sure I understand the community I live in,” Dawson said.

Graduate School

From her years working at Deloitte, she wanted to become an even better leader in healthcare and bridge the gap between policy and business. That set her on her latest journey as a graduate student of Harvard and Stanford.

This summer, she is helping Bluebird Kids Health, a budding pediatric clinic, set up a location in Jacksonville and a Broward County suburb in Florida.

Future Plans

In the future, she hopes to stay in the healthcare field and continue to explore other fields that intersect. She plans to eventually become an entrepreneur and be a part of “all things start-up.”

Dawson pointed to her parents, several professors and internship coaches and also her Greenbelt teachers and counselors as mentors. “I really wouldn’t be who I am without all these amazing people who poured themselves into me,” she said. “Now, I hope to pour back into my community.”

Will Hammann is a student at the University of Maryland Philip Merrill College of Journalism interning at the Greenbelt News Review.

Greenbelt Fourth of July

Greenbelt Artists Welcome Visitors in Multilingual Greeting

On the afternoon of July 3, local artists were at work creating a welcome message on a pathway leading to Greenbelt Lake for the visitors who would arrive to enjoy the city’s fireworks the following day. Artist Emily Liddle designed and drew the welcome message in multiple languages. Arts Advisory Board members Kristin Stenson, a local sidewalk chalk artist, and Vijay Parameshwaran, along with Amanda Larsen, staff liaison to the Board, and the city’s Arts Supervisor Nicole DeWald helped color the art outlined by Liddle. On behalf of the Board, Stenson had written a proposal for the piece, which the city approved. The city prepared for up to 5,000 spectators at the annual fireworks display, many coming from neighboring municipalities. This Fourth of July provided clear skies and perfect weather for the event.

The crowd gathers at Buddy Attick Park during the Fourth of July celebration, flanked by the welcome signs commissioned by the Arts Advisory Board and created by artist Emily Liddle.

A public reading of the Declaration of Independence opened Greenbelt’s 4th of July celebration in Buddy Attick Park. Organized by Councilmember Kristen Weaver, the Declaration, one of the foundational documents of the United States, was read by (from left) Councilmember Amy Knesel, Brindisi C., A.J. Stephens, Councilmember Silke Pope, Joe Parks, Michael Hartman, Rebecca Lemus, Mayor Emmett Jordan, Amethyst Dwyer and Weaver.

Fourth of July fireworks at the Lake

- Photos by Jon Gardner

Fireworks are reflected in Greenbelt Lake.

Greenbelt Dog Training, a dog training and obedience company located in Greenbelt, appeared as a unit in the popular annual Takoma Park Fourth of July Parade. Participants marched along several streets in downtown Takoma Park, mainly on Carroll Avenue, to large, enthusiastic crowds.

Nick Proudfoot visited the Firefly Sanctuary on Sunday, June 29 and met some wonderful people who were also at the park viewing the fireflies. He was so impressed that he returned on Thursday, July 3, and captured several images. “I set my camera on a tripod and programmed it to take 12 seconds long exposures. So any movement appears as a streak, and the stationary ones appear as a dot. Then I combined about 800 pictures, over 2 1/2 hours, into one shot that shows all of the movement and flashes. I centered this picture on the North Star (Polaris), since there were no clouds, and that shows the movement of the stars also. Most people don’t realize the stars have colors until they see a long exposure like this. Depending on the size and the makeup of the star, it has a different color. That one’s my favorite, because the fireflies dart to the left and right of the center. Love that you have this going on and are preserving them,” he said.
