Protest Sounds Alarm as Federal Park Police Accused of Aiding ICE

by Nick Hall NH

Protesters spread out along the sidewalk on Greenbelt Road

On Saturday, November 29, dozens of Greenbelt residents gathered across the street from the U.S. Park Police Greenbelt Station for an “ICE MELT” protest. Several organizations worked together with one main goal – raising awareness of the station’s involvement with Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE) along the Baltimore-Washington

Parkway. The U.S. Park Police is a federal agency, not to be confused with the Greenbelt Police Department, which is part of the city government. According to Autumn (a pseudonym), an organizer with the Greenbelt Resistance Network, Park Police have been allowing ICE agents to ride along with officers, racially targeting and pulling over locals for minor infractions to search for immigrants, then allowing the ICE agents to send drivers and passengers to detention centers.

On Saturday, an officer at the U.S. Park Police Greenbelt Station during the protest refused to give his name and said he had “no comment” about the protest.

A Brief and Ridiculous History Of a World-Famous Utility Pole

by Anna Bedford-Dillow

A Greenbelt utility pole and its claim to worldwide fame has had residents scratching their heads and at times dancing with delight, posting and sighting stickers, noting the landmark on Google Maps, leaving reviews, cautioning against its worship and a myriad of things in between since March 2024. In this year’s Labor Day Parade, the Greenbelt Honk! Situation band entered with a utility pole float, firmly enshrining the pole in Greenbelt’s weird lore.

“Greenbelt Honk! Situation is all about celebrating the creative and weird fun of Greenbelt. The World-Famous Utility Pole and the Original World-Famous Utility Pole are definitely the kind of thing we want to play and dance around!” said Dan Gillotte of Honk! Situation. On a personal note, Gillotte said he practices “Pole-y-theism” and celebrates both the Original World-Famous Greenbelt Utility Pole on Hillside and Northway and the World-Famous Greenbelt Utility Pole across from the Library. The Greenbelt Honk! Situation’s pole represents both poles, incorporating elements from each, he noted.

The News Review has received requests for investigative journalism to uncover the origins, masterminds behind, and meaning of, the World-Famous Pole. The paper approached and interviewed a person we suspected of being involved in its fame. That individual declined to be named for this article and refused to confirm their role in the pole’s origins or fame. They did offer the comment that the pole is greater than any individual and whatever the idea for the pole might have been, it has taken on “a life of its own.” In literature, there’s a theory called Death of the Author (after the 1967 essay by Roland Barthes), which argues the meaning of a text rests with the reader, no matter the authorial intention. The meaning of Greenbelt’s World-Famous Utility Pole seems, in this vein, to rest with its fans rather than any creator that might be identified. And fans it has, in fact, an entire fan club.

We hope the following timeline, based largely on documentation by a source close to the pole, who wishes to remain anonymous, offers readers insight into the evolving and strange phenomenon of Greenbelt’s World-Famous Utility Pole, or at least some levity.

One morning, residents wake to find that wayfinding signs pointing to the Greenbelt Utility Pole have been put up all over Old Greenbelt.

Worksession Focused Beyond Quarterly Report to Rec. Dept.

by Oliver Gayken

The Greenbelt City Council held a worksession on October 22 dedicated to the city manager’s quarterly update for the reporting period that began on July 1. This worksession was unusual, because after a brief synopsis of his report, the city manager gave over the remainder of the evening to a “deep dive” into the Recreation Department’s many contributions to the city. A majority of the Recreation Department’s leadership staff was on hand to summarize their programs and services.

Quarterly Update

City Manager Josué Salmerón began the worksession by highlighting city accomplishments and providing updates on current projects. The long list included: a successful search for a new city treasurer, the distribution and management of American Rescue Plan Act (ARPA) grants in advance of the final deadline of

The newly improved soccer field at Schrom Hills Park had a grand opening in October. Greenbelt Recreation Director Greg Varda and Assistant Director of Recreation Facilities & Operations Andrew Phelan outlined the improvements at the October 22 worksession.

New City Council Conducts Its First Worksession, Legislative Planning

by Matthew Arbach

On November 12, the new City Council held its first worksession, focused mainly on administrative and legislative matters.

Legislative Priorities

On December 2, council planned to attend the third annual meeting of District 22 municipalities with the state senator and delegates. This is an opportunity to share legislative priorities and bond bill requests. Priorities like housing affordability, economic development, environmental sustainability and immigration and Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE)-related matters are expected to be shared by all. After a lengthy discussion, some of the main bond bill request possibilities deemed most likely to be funded were: the Buddy Attick Park trail and stage, lights at Schrom Hills Park and work on the second elevator at the Community Center. The final vote on the bond bill requests was held at the November 17 meeting.

Street Lights

A related issue was the conversion of the city’s street lights to LED. All present expressed an eagerness to find ways to move this forward. City Manager Josué Salmerón said that council will have to ultimately decide what Council is eager to pursue the conversion of the city’s street lights to LED. Currently the city pays to power its streetlights and is attempting to recoup $83,000 Pepco has overcharged.

SAYT: More Questions

The Save as You Throw (SAYT) November 20 article was informative but not complete. Residents paying $400 annually as an alternative to the cost structure outlined in SAYT is new information. Missing information includes the cost and structure of this pilot: What's the contract cost for Waste Zero to manage the pilot and take care of getting the bags? What's the profit-sharing breakdown per bag between the city and Waste Zero? I want transparency from the city.

Other questions: What due diligence did the city conduct before selecting Waste Zero? What other options were explored before deciding on the bag pilot? For example, the property taxes we pay to Prince George's County include waste collection. What's the cost savings to Greenbelt if the county provides the trash collection? Or what's the cost savings if we outsource the trash collection to a company like Waste Management?

While this pilot is happening in 2026, the city should not think the subject is closed. A rigorous cost analysis and comparison of other alternatives pertaining to trash services should be done with the results presented to the residents before the end of the year. We need to decide if paying $400 annually or keeping with the bag program is more cost effective than turning over the task to the county or outsourcing it.

Lastly, no funds generated from this pilot should be diverted to other programs within the city, like the food scrap program. The city paid $26,205 to Compost Crew to continue the food scrap program which has 410 participants. It was suggested that some of the trash pilot proceeds (a profit?) could pay for the food scrap program. No. The city should pay for programs that benefit the majority of the residents and stop catering to the few.

Golden Age Club

The Golden Age Club meets on Wednesdays at 11 a.m. in Room 201 of the Community Center.

The following is the schedule for the rest of the year:

December 10 - Bingo

December 17 - Holiday party, members only, everyone must bring hot or cold food

December 24 - No meeting (Christmas Eve)

December 31 - No meeting (New Years Eve)

The membership committee will begin collecting 2026 dues on January 7 after the business meeting. Pay dues with a check made out to Greenbelt Golden Age Club. If paying with cash, have the exact amount.

Holiday Concert Hallelujah Singalong

Sing along to the Hallelujah chorus with the Central Maryland Chorale at A Seasonal Celebration on Saturday, December 6 at 7:30 p.m. in Burtonsville. This combination sacred and secular program features music by Leonard Bernstein, John Rutter, Irving Berlin, Randall Thompson and others. The Hallelujah chorus is the finale.

This year's concert is at the Church of the Resurrection, 3315 Greencastle Road in Burtonsville. Doors open at 7 p.m. A craft fair will be open during a brief intermission.

The chorale includes several members from Greenbelt. Tickets are available at the door, with a discount for students and seniors, and admission is free for those under 12. See the display ad in this issue of the News Review for prices.

Like to sing? For information on how to join for the spring, email CentralMdChorale@gmail.com.

MAD's White Christmas Performances in Laurel

Four performances remain of Irving Berlin's White Christmas by Goddard's Music & Drama Club at Emmanuel Methodist Church on Scaggsville Road in Laurel, on Thursday, December 4 through Sunday, December 7.

Directed by Eliot Malumuth, produced by Aly Bayens and with music directed by Susan Breon, Irving Berlin's White Christmas is a holiday romance based on the popular 1954 movie. The show features the songs The Best Things Happen When You're Dancing, Count Your Blessings, I Love a Piano and, of course, White Christmas.

The show is double-cast, so check the schedule on the website to see which shows your favorite actors are in.

Visit madtheater.org for more information.

Poetry in the Garden

The public is invited to the monthly poetry reading on Sunday, December 7 from 3 to 5 p.m. in Schrom Hills Park on Hanover Parkway. Attendees can read their favorite poem or just enjoy listening to inspiring words. Suggested themes for this session can be Christmas, Chanukah or the New Year.

Band with a Mission: Hear Relics Next Week

The Greenbelt Relics, a rock and soul band that plays music from the 60s and 70s, will appear at the New Deal Café on Wednesday, December 10 from 7 to 9 p.m. and on Saturday, December 13 as part of the Greenbelt Community Church Christmas concert. Both appearances will benefit the Help by Phone food bank for local food distribution.

Founded by Keith Johnson, the band came together with musicians from Greenbelt Community Church. Featuring Doug Tull of The Razz on drums, Greenbelt's Outstanding Citizen of 2016 Rick Ransom on keyboards, Tom Gill on lead guitar, Mark Granfors-Hunt on bass, Liisa Granfors-Hunt on flute and vocals and Johnson doing lead vocals.

Ekphrastic Fantastic Show Art Reception

Art by Jose Valcarcel

Ekphrasis, according to the Merriam-Webster Dictionary, is "a literary description of or commentary on a visual work of art." The Ekphrastic Fantastic Show borrows from this idea. Seven poems and eight pieces of visual art were selected from works submitted for consideration. Each poem was assigned to a visual artist and each piece of visual art was assigned to a poet for creation of a new piece in response. Identities of the poets and artists were kept secret from each other.

Friends of New Deal Café Arts (FONDCA) is sponsoring a free art reception on Sunday, December 7 from 1 to 3 p.m. at the New Deal Café to celebrate the participants in the show. Come meet the poets and artists and hear about how they approached their works. When viewing the show, try to figure out which came first: the poem or the artwork.

Chess Club Meets

The Greenbelt Chess Club will meet on Tuesday, December 9 at the Youth Center from 6:30 to 8:45 p.m. The club welcomes people of all ages and skill levels. To be added to the mailing list, visit tinyurl.com/ycy2nz4m and complete the brief form. Email questions to greenbeltchessclub@gmail.com.

Tree Lighting Friday With Santa

Community members of all ages are invited to welcome Santa to Greenbelt on Friday, December 5 at 7 p.m. at Roosevelt Center. A musical performance by the Greenbelt Concert Band Brass Choir will herald Santa's grand entrance on a fire truck. After the tree lighting, complimentary treats and hot chocolate will be provided by the Recreation Department. Then, enjoy a free showing of How the Grinch Stole Christmas (1966) at the Greenbelt Cinema. All ages are welcome. A bit of Greenbelt history: The first tree-lighting ceremony in Greenbelt was held in Roosevelt Center in 1938.

Greenbelt Nutcracker

A holiday favorite returns when Greenbelt Recreation's Greenbelt Dance Studio presents three performances of The New Deal Nut: A Greenbelt Nutcracker at the Community Center on December 13 and 14. This hometown take on the classic ballet, set to Tchaikovsky's beautiful score, pays tribute to Greenbelt landmarks old and new with dances in a variety of styles, including ballet, jazz, contemporary, ballroom and tap. Some tickets are still available for the Sunday, December 14 performance at 11 a.m. Call the Community Center at 301-397-2208 for details.

GIVES Quarterly Meeting and Party

The Greenbelt Intergenerational Volunteer Exchange Service (GIVES) will hold its December quarterly membership meeting on Saturday, December 13 at 10 a.m. in the Community Center, Room 201.

Following a brief meeting, they will celebrate the holidays and their 30th anniversary with a potluck party. All members, past and present, are invited and encouraged to come celebrate with us. Bring stories about GIVES and a favorite dish to share.

Krampus Comes A-calling Saturday

Greenbelt Honk! Situation, Greenbelt's community street band, is conjuring up the Alpen Christmas demon Krampus (and his friends) for a fun and weird holiday celebration in Roosevelt Center. Our fourth annual Greenbelt Krampusnacht is a great time to whoop it up with all kinds of crazy winter creatures and costumed folk. Live holiday "scarols" will be performed by the band as well as a dance by the Witches of the Green Shire. Bring new, un-wrapped presents for Toys for Tots so all can have a merry season.

Details: Saturday, December 13, 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. Free and family friendly. Costumes are encouraged. Photo opportunities will abound.

Rotary Club Hosts City Constituent Services

On Thursday, December 11 at the Community Center, Room 114, the Greenbelt Rotary Club will sponsor a talk by Gizelle Alvarez, the city's first constituent services coordinator. Alvarez took the role in January 2025 to address city residents' service requests and complaints by liaising between residents and city departments, community organizations and county and state agencies.

Come hear what Alvarez has learned since January about resident needs, how she approaches identifying and meeting those needs, and her plans going forward. Refreshments and conversation will begin at 6:30 p.m., followed by the 7 p.m. presentation. The Club meets every Thursday at the Greenway Center IHOP at 8 a.m., except the second Thursday of the month when club members host this evening speaker series.

More Community Events are located throughout the paper.

Carriers Bear Greetings

With a December issue, the Greenbelt News Review distributes an envelope that requests gifts for carriers. Envelopes are addressed to the carrier who delivers your newspaper. The return address is the News Review at Suite 100, 15 Crescent Road, Greenbelt, MD, 20770.

Write checks to the name shown on the envelope. We advise against putting cash in the envelopes given potential mailbox theft, and against taping envelopes to your door for carrier pickup.

Envelopes can be delivered to the carriers three ways.

1. Hand them to your carrier.
2. Put a stamp on them and send them through the mail. Given potential mailbox theft, we encourage you to mail them inside a post office.
3. Drop the envelope at the News Review office at the address above.

Though carriers receive nominal pay each week, this extra token means a lot. Pay teaches them about earning money and the work ethic, and gifts show the additional rewards that come from taking pride in being prompt, organized and careful. Families with multiple routes find the income helpful. This is a first job for many carriers, and your gifts are positive feedback that helps them become productive adults.

All those distributing the paper have faithfully helped us get the paper out every week. Our circulation manager, Elizabeth Gardner, helps keep the whole process on track. Alan Burt and Jay Johnson are key links who deliver newspapers to carriers and fill boxes and racks.

The holiday season allows all of us to appreciate and encourage our carriers, and show understanding for any minor delivery problems that may have happened during the year. The News Review thanks everybody involved for doing a great job, caring about the community and braving hot, cold and wet conditions to bring residents their papers.

Celebrate Hanukkah At Mishkan Torah

Mishkan Torah invites the community to a family-friendly Hanukkah celebration for kids and adults of all ages and the installation of new Cantor Yael Fischman. Join them starting at 4 p.m. on Sunday, December 14 for Hanukkah story-time, a candle-lighting ceremony, music, latkes, doughnuts and more. Register for free, preferably by December 7, on the website MishkanTorah.org. The event is free to attend.

City Notes

Most city departments are busy preparing for holiday events. Public Information published the Winter Recreation Activity Guide after technical delays. Code Enforcement inspected four commercial suites and 14 rentals.

After three adoptions, Animal Shelter residents are six cats, four kittens and two dogs. The County Council repealed pit bull restrictions, so starting in January adoptions of those and similar dogs will be allowed.

Public Works and contractors replaced Bradford pear trees on Hanover Parkway with preferable trees and replaced a damaged gas line supplying rooftop HVAC units at the Aquatic & Fitness Center (GAFC).

Horticulture/Parks removed fallen leaves and chipped fallen branches, installed holiday lights and added solar lighting at bus shelters. Streets/Mechanics installed holiday event banners and decorated the Schrom Hills deer sculpture with festive lighting.

Arts offered fused glass ornament workshops and GAFC hosted a Water Exercise Instructor Training Certification class.

Therapeutic Recreation facilitated a Golden Age Club meeting and Holy Cross Senior Fit.

SUPPORT SHOP WITH A COP

Every year, our agency proudly participates in "Shop With A Cop." We invite you to support our 2025 fundraiser by purchasing one of our decorative holiday ornaments. The proceeds will help us keep this wonderful program funded. This season, we have a brand new design, so please consider becoming a proud sponsor.

The "Shop With A Cop" event provides law enforcement officers and young members of our community a chance to spend quality time together in a positive setting during the holiday season. Both the officers and the children enjoy a day filled with laughter, shopping, eating, and wrapping gifts. It is truly heartwarming to see all the smiling faces, knowing that this event has positively impacted many families in Greenbelt over the years.

level of ownership and maintenance of street lights it wants to adopt. He said that a primary hurdle is the lack of a cost estimate from Pepco, adding that Pepco appears to show little interest in selling the lights to the city. Grant funding is possible from the Maryland Energy Administration Street Light and Outdoor Lights Efficiency Program, but is limited due to related interests from other municipalities.

Currently, the city pays to power the street lights. Salmerón said that Pepco has overcharged the city $83,000 and that he has refrained from paying the city's bill until this is rectified. LED lights would present a significant cost savings.

Other Matters

Salmerón and Assistant City Manager Timothy George said that renovations to the Greenbelt Cinema's windows and toilets still await approval from the Maryland Historical Trust. Work on the auditorium will have to wait until the theater's less busy season as it will place the site offline until completed.

Mayor Emmett Jordan and Councilmember Danielle McKinney demonstrated interest in improving lighting and accessibility at the city's bus stops. Jordan was keen on installing digital route update signage, with Salmerón saying that a bus shelter was necessary for that.

Legislative Consultation

George submitted a survey to council to determine its views on how to obtain legislative consultation from private firms. Currently, the city is working with Carrington & Associates LLC. Consensus was for having a multi-provider approach, with a split between state and county legislation. This would aid council in tracking the thousands of bills in both arenas that affect the city's residents.

Salmerón said that a request for proposals was sent to private firms, and that after a vetting process, the city is now in negotiations with a second firm. Forty thousand dollars have been allocated for this, but this move will likely exceed that, with the expectation of legal and advocacy fees being a financial likelihood. Salmerón said that the existing vendor has been amenable to meeting the city's needs and honoring its pay structure. Jordan said that the two vendors would need to work together, as there will be overlaps.

Resident Bill Orleans expressed skepticism over the need for private consultation as both the Prince George's County Municipal Association and the National League of Cities (NLC) offer resources in this area.

Standing Rules

A reevaluation of council's standing rules was planned but it was decided to table this matter until council's retreat. In a subsequent interview, Councilmember Kristen Weaver informed the News Review that the retreats will occur on December 10 and 15 from 6 to 9 p.m. There was a desire to have Maryland Municipal League employee Tom Reynolds present to act as an outside facilitator.

Jordan urged council to apply for membership to one of the NLC's many committees and councils. He advised council to choose based on one's passion.

Resident J Davis urged at least one councilmember to apply for the environmental sustainability group, as this is a central pillar of the city's philosophy. Councilmember Frankie Santos Fritz offered to look into applying.

It was decided that a pre-budget meeting should be scheduled in December so that Salmerón can get feedback from council on its priorities and interests. He would be able to share revenue projections and information from senior staff as well.

The meeting ended with a transition into an executive session.

Breakfast with Santa

Greenbelt friends, neighbors and children, come to the Greenbelt American Legion, 6900 Greenbelt Road on Sunday, December 7, 10 a.m. to noon for breakfast with Santa. On the menu for breakfast are: pancakes, eggs, bacon, sausage, donuts and a beverage. Children will have their picture taken with Santa and participate in an art/craft project. There is a small fee per ticket, and children under 5 are free. Tickets are limited to the first 100 people; tickets can be purchased at the door. Both the fire department and legion auxiliaries look forward to seeing families and their children as they create new and lasting memories at our 2025 Annual Breakfast with Santa.

Newly-elected Council Tackles Fire, Phones and Economics

by Larry Beyna

On November 17, the Greenbelt City Council held its first regular meeting since the November 4 election. In attendance were six re-elected councilmembers and newly elected Frankie Fritz, who took the seat previously held by Rodney Roberts. Major items of business during the meeting included news on fire department staffing and adoption of the Economic Development Strategic Plan. Bond funding also passed. A discussion of a charter amendment allowing Public Works employees to form a union was reported in the November 27 issue.

Fire Department Staffing

City Manager Josué Salmerón reported that the Berwyn Heights Fire Department has a six-person county fire crew operating as of November 18 and that Greenbelt hopes its existing county paramedic crews will shortly be supplemented by a fire crew. In answer to a question by Councilmember Jenni Pompei, Salmerón explained that the Greenbelt station was more difficult to staff, as it took 30 staff to cover its 24-7 operation while Berwyn Heights is covered only for one shift. A class of over 30 will shortly graduate from training, allowing a balanced mix of senior and junior staff to be assigned to Greenbelt.

Upcoming Expenditures

Salmerón warned of a significant increase in energy costs facing the city (possibly 30 percent) and said he was working with brokers to get an accurate assessment ready for next year's budget. He also reported that redirected and additional funding is being provided to support extra food assistance throughout the city.

Economic Development

City Economic Development Manager John Mason briefed council on the proposed Economic Development Strategic Plan (EDSP). The plan, detailed in a 52-page report, is the result of more than a year's effort by city staff and the consulting firm of Willdan Financial Services. It was funded through the American Rescue Plan Act.

According to Mason, the purpose of the EDSP is to "cultivate a vibrant, regionally connected and resilient business environment where local businesses grow, residents thrive and public services remain strong for future generations." The EDSP process involved engaging business stakeholders, residents and city employees to identify Greenbelt's key assets; reviewing existing conditions in Greenbelt's economy, such as health care (Greenbelt's largest industry), real estate and hotels; assessing the findings; and developing recommendations.

According to the EDSP report, the plan "represents a pivotal step in charting a resilient and inclusive economic future for Greenbelt, one that builds upon the city's rich history, diverse community and strategic location in the Washington metropolitan region. ... Core objectives include enhancing business support services, attracting new business investment, facilitating the redevelopment of commercial centers and underutilized properties, and continuing to support the recovery and growth of small and independent retail businesses still affected by the impacts of the pandemic."

The EDSP has eight strategic components for Greenbelt: (1) post-Covid resilience among small businesses; (2) connectivity between business leaders and city leaders, including outreach about what the city does and its available resources; (3) support of business entrepreneurship, including outreach and training; (4) a retail revitalization and marketing campaign; (5) redevelopment of opportunity sites; (6) an economic alliance with other area cities; (7) a Priority Partnership Program to accelerate catalytic redevelopment, especially for sites with high visibility and fiscal impact potential; and (8) partnering with the city's Public Information office to increase tourism. Many efforts in these eight areas are already underway and more are planned.

At the end of Mason's presentation and questions, Pompei moved to adopt the plan as presented, and the motion carried unanimously.

Councilmember Frankie Fritz noted that Greenbelt had the enviable bonus of a location with excellent connections to Washington, D.C. and Baltimore – but that "the last two miles" were a problem. Getting to Washington, D.C. from the Metro station would take 20 minutes, but the wait to catch a bus within Greenbelt could be longer.

Cellphone Service

Resident Susan Smithers noted that poor cell service in the city can be a matter of life and death. She suggested council list reliable and unreliable cell service providers and meet with them publicly. She also suggested that medical and cellphone experts be included to discuss the health hazards of cellphones and towers. If council is not willing to be proactive, it should advise residents to return to landlines, she said.

Resident Nick Leanos blamed the lack of cellphone towers, not providers. He said a tower near Greenbelt Elementary School would provide 5G service in historic Greenbelt. He stated that landlines do not work in electric power outages, but cellphone service is useful in emergencies. (Note: traditional landlines do work in power outages as their power is drawn from the copper lines that connect them to the phone company, but domestic phones supported by VOIP (Voice Over Internet Protocol) or phone equipment that needs to be plugged in to work do not.) In addition, Leanos stated that adding a new tower would enable access to less expensive phone and internet service than is currently available.

Mayor Emmett Jordan suggested that council should include the issue of poor cellphone service at an upcoming worksession.

December 2026, a voter engagement campaign, and Public Works’ roadway improvements and the pool deck structural remediation project at the Greenbelt Aquatic & Fitness Center (GAFC). Interested readers can peruse the complete report at: greenbeltmd.portal.civicclerk.com/event/3212/files/attachment/2382.

Rec Department Shines

Most of the worksession was devoted to an in-depth presentation by the Recreation Department, led by Recreation Director Greg Varda. Varda was joined by Andrew Phelan, assistant director for facilities and operations, and Anne Oudemans, assistant director for programs. Varda and Phelan outlined the improvements made to the soccer field at Schrom Hills Park and the ongoing improvement project at Braden Field. Together, these two projects involved the expenditure of $2M in ARPA funding. Other significant recent improvements include new picnic pavilions in Buddy Attick Park and shade structures at Greenbelt Station.

Personal Support

Carrie Hannigan, an administrative assistant at the Community Center, spoke about the importance of the Recreation Department’s “personal touch,” giving several examples: having a live human answer phone calls, providing speedy checkout for busy patrons trying to finish a registration during a lunch break or offering a patient helping hand to someone who needs assistance filling out a form.

Caroline Soter, administrative assistant at the Youth Center, advanced this theme by detailing the Recreation Department’s financial assistance programs and mentioning that she and her colleague Cathryn Pracht offer free notary services. LaToya Fisher, a program supervisor who oversees Learn to Earn and two recent graduates spoke briefly about their experiences in the program.

Facilities and Programs

Stephen Parks, GAFC supervisor, accompanied by Kathy Mitchell and Cynthia Brown, mentioned

the recent acquisition of new exercise machines for the fitness wing and gave a brief account of the closure of the indoor pool, which reopened in September. Trevin Green, the Community Center supervisor, reported on the building’s new boilers and the high-visibility paint on exterior steps for the visually impaired. Green expressed his appreciation for the city’s support of Community Center programming and the work of his staff, including Adam Daelmans, the Community Center coordinator, who reviewed the myriad groups that the facility hosts – from Cub and Girl Scouts to music ensembles to Goddard groups that met there during the government shutdown.

Gratitude was a recurring motif, echoed by Frank Jones and Brian Butler, recreation coordinators at Springhill Lake Recreation Center, as they reviewed their programs including field trips, nutrition assistance, movement classes and intergenerational storytime events that connect seniors with kids. The Recreation Department’s multifaceted array of programs and services were described by Arts Supervisor Nicole DeWald and Visual Arts Coordinator Amanda Larsen, who sketched the various programs under their purview, including camps, arts instruction, youth performance, exhibitions and public art. Therapeutic Recreation Coordinator Priya Gardner Lemieux outlined how the department provides senior and inclusion programs, and Greenbelt Museum Director Megan Searing Young reported on ongoing fundraising as the Museum moves toward full utilization of its new space.

Recreation Coordinator Patrick Mullen brought the presentation to a close with an enthusiastic recounting of the work he and his fellow park rangers do to make Greenbelt’s parks accessible to the public. At the end of the worksession, Mayor Emmett Jordan noted that the Recreation Department’s programs are “shining stars” for the city.

that he represented the Piscataway Indian Nation, requested council to read in full the report of the recommendations of the Piscataway Indian Nation recently submitted by him, or provide a reason why they would not read it. (Note: The Reparations Town Hall meeting of November 15 also referenced this material; see page 12).

Other Council Actions

Jordan issued proclamations recognizing November 2025 as both Municipal Government Month and National American Indian Heritage Month in Greenbelt. Council approvals included: $9,994 for grants to Greenbelt’s local schools for emergency food assistance programs; the appointment of Nicole Brown to the Advisory Planning Board; two 2026 bond bill projects, one for $300,000 to improve the walking trail and stage at Buddy Attick Park and the other for $400,000 to install lights at Schrom Hills

Park’s athletic field; and nine residents and Councilmembers Kristen Weaver and Fritz to serve on the city’s Charter Review Task Force. Council also authorized Salmerón to execute two contracts for legislative advocacy and tracking state and county legislation and to approve computer replacement and equipment purchases (resident Bill Orleans opined that this was a waste of money).

Greenbelt Concert Band Brightens Season with Holiday Lights Concert

by Matt Neufeld

The Greenbelt Concert Band brightened up the holiday season with its festive and rousing Holiday Lights Concert for an enthusiastic and appreciative crowd on Sunday afternoon, November 30, in the Multipurpose Room at the Community Center.

More than 110 people enjoyed a spirited, upbeat, free and fun hour-long concert that was filled with holiday season favorites and classics and an array of well-known pop standards.

The happy crowd, which ranged in age from little kids to senior citizens, loved every minute of the concert. Every song was greeted with spirited applause.

The Greenbelt Concert Band – an all-volunteer, adult traditional concert band with woodwinds, brass and percussion – performed the concert led by director Joan Rackey. Concert Band sax player Max Pinales was the guest conductor for the band’s traditional rendition of Irving Berlin’s classic holiday season favorite White Christmas (1942).

The other songs the band played were: It’s Beginning to Look a Lot Like Christmas (1951) by Meredith Willson; It’s the Most Wonderful Time of the Year (1963) by Edward Pola and George Wyle; three classic songs by Stevie Wonder: Sir Duke (1976), You Are the Sunshine of My Life (1972) and Signed, Sealed, Delivered, I’m Yours (1970); music from the film score for the movie The Polar Express (2004), by composer Alan Silvestri; Hallelujah, by Leonard Cohen (1984) performed by the trombone choir; Christmas on Broadway, a medley of songs from classic Broadway musicals, including My Favorite Things from The Sound of Music and A Spoonful of Sugar from Mary Poppins; Bugler’s Holiday (1954) by Leroy Anderson, for which the trumpet section showcased impressive stamina; Music of Disneyland, a medley of classic titles from the world of Disney, including It’s a Small World (After All); Cartoon Carnival, a medley of classic cartoon theme songs, including memorable themes from Hanna-Barbera cartoons, The Flintstones and The Jetsons; and, as the closing song, Sleigh Ride (1948), also by Leroy Anderson.

The Greenbelt Concert Band, a registered nonprofit, was first formed in 1937 – the same year the Greenbelt News Review was founded, not long after the first residents moved into the new town. The band is open to all experienced musicians from Greenbelt and surrounding areas. Rehearsals are on Mondays from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Community Center. The band performs about eight concerts every year for varied groups and events, including community festivals, Greenbelt Day, the Holiday Lights Festival and retirement communities. For more information, visit greenbeltconcertband.org.

The pole in question bears a simple paper sign reading World-Famous Greenbelt Utility Pole. (This would later be replaced by a spray-painted sign.) Additionally, stickers for the Greenbelt Utility Pole Fan Club were observed around town.

At some point residents note the pole's presence on Google Maps and begin leaving reviews.

April 2024

Controversy erupts when a landmark is added to Google Maps for the Original World-Famous Greenbelt Utility Pole, an alternative pole on Northway bearing the image of a stick figure holding a peace symbol. Google reviews are also left for that pole. Soon, stickers featuring the stickman and the words One True Pole are found around town. Some Greenbelt neighbors begin pledging their allegiance to one pole or the other.

Additionally, postcards for the World-Famous Utility Pole are discovered around Greenbelt.

Booklets titled Greenbelt Utility Pole Activity Book are found around town. Activities include a word search with a coded message, coloring pages and an activity that dismisses the "peaceman pole" as being a false Greenbelt landmark. The purported authors are the Greenbelt Utility Pole Fan Club.

August 2024

Flyers appear around Greenbelt for the Greenbelt Utility Pole Observation Party with instructions to meet at the pole and stare at it for 15 minutes. The event is to be hosted by the Greenbelt Utility Pole Appreciation Society, who take pains to note that they "could not be more different" from the Greenbelt Utility Pole Fan Club. "No weirdos," the flyer says.

On Saturday August 31, 2024, at 1 p.m., amid the 2024 Labor Day Festival, more than 60 people converge on the pole. One person had a custom-made utility pole T-shirt. Another had baked pole-shaped cookies. Various attendees invoke blessings, lead chants and dance around the pole. A bewildered courier arrives on his motorcycle carrying a package "for the people staring at the pole." The package contains several T-shirts commemorating the event, which are shared with attendees. The event is interrupted by a group of protesters calling themselves IDOGUP (International Disciples of the Original Greenbelt Utility Pole). Their signs feature slogans like "Obey the Peaceman" and "Weirdos Welcome."

Fall-Winter 2024-25

Additional sticker designs are sighted occasionally: "This Pole Fries Fascists" and "What if we kissed the pole for good luck?" There are additional reports of yard signs pointing the way to the utility pole.

April 2025

Several copies of a pamphlet titled "Is Your Child Worshiping a Utility Pole?" are found around Greenbelt. The pamphlet mimics the tone of "satanic panic" religious tracts and warns of the dangers of pole worship, a.k.a. "utilatry."

An alternative postcard design is also spotted: "A perfectly ordinary utility pole. Greenbelt, MD, a normal town."

Greenbelt Utility Pole Fan Club stickers are sighted in D.C. and as far south as Calvert County. During the spring, various decorations begin to be added to the pole.

July 2025

Readers of the Washington City Paper name the World-Famous Greenbelt Utility Pole a finalist for the Best Kid-Friendly Attraction.

He also refused to confirm or deny whether they were assisting ICE by allowing ICE officers to ride along with Park Police officers. He provided a number to call for an official statement, but it goes to voicemail and a message left received no response.

A public statement from the Greenbelt City Council on November 7 acknowledged residents' concerns about ICE activity in the area, and stated that Greenbelt Police will not assist ICE. Greenbelt Police Public Information Officer Rico Dennis confirmed that this is still true. Many concerned Greenbelt residents have called him asking about unmarked Greenbelt Police vehicles, but Dennis said that they are not being used by ICE.

The protest included elements similar to recent protests – inflatable costumes, music, dancing and anti-ICE signs. There were about 45 participants, some of whom came or left as the event went on. Autumn described the importance of the inflatable costumes by pointing out that Trump and the Republicans have designated people sharing anti-fascist ideas as “terrorists.” The harmless costumes are meant to demonstrate how ridiculous that accusation is.

Tony G from the national organization Refuse Fascism brought some recorded music and played rousing protest songs, many with a Latin American beat. In addition, members from the DC Activist Street Band came to play, drum and sing. Lyrics sheets were handed out for the song Bella Ciao, a popular anti-fascist Italian folk song. The vast majority of interactions from drivers were positive – honking, waving and singing in support.

A table sat off to the side with snacks and fliers provided by the Prince George’s County Immigrant Rights Collective (PGIRC), which provides support for families affected by ICE. They sold pastries to raise funds for families in need and helped participants put on costumes. PGIRC works with CASA, which provides services to help immigrants find legal help, learn English, develop business skills, find work and defend their rights.

Those who notice ICE activity can call CASA’s tip hotline at 1-888-214-6016. However, in light of reports of kidnappers impersonating federal agents, anything resembling a kidnapping should be reported to 911. All ICE agents are required to obtain a judicial warrant before entering private spaces, such as houses and staff-only sections of business. In public spaces, judicial warrants are not required for ICE to “arrest” an individual.

Some members of the DC Activist Street Band, led by Beth Leamond, sing Bella Ciao, the Italian protest folk song from the 19th century that was later modified to represent antifascist sentiments and said to be dedicated to the Italian Resistance during the liberation of Italy, though popularized after the war.

Greenbelt Honk! Situation Solstice

Join Greenbelt Honk! Situation, Greenbelt's community street band, on Saturday, December 20 at 6 p.m. as they parade and play music to bring back the daylight. The parade will start at the Greenbelt Firefly Sanctuary and continue down the creek trail past Braden Field and arrive for a set of holiday “Scarols” at Roosevelt Center. Bring lights and warm clothes.

The route is relatively flat and paved with a grade by the fields and just short of a mile. Folks who can’t parade are encouraged to meet up at Roosevelt Center.

Greenbelt Clubs, Nonprofits Represented at Sparkle Mart

by Max Cason

Greenbelt Pottery Group's downstairs booth

Sparkle Mart, the annual art and craft fair sponsored by the Greenbelt Recreation Arts Program, showcases and supports the work of several Greenbelt-based clubs and nonprofit organizations, as well as dozens of independent local artisans.

Among the featured organizations is the Greenbelt Pottery Group (GPG). GPG's members are local ceramic artists working in diverse styles and techniques, whose practice is centered at the Community Center. The group unites instructors, artists in residence, students at all levels and independent open studio artists in a community of skill sharing, mutual encouragement and public service. Members will offer a wide array of functional and decorative ceramic pieces, both downstairs in the Ground Floor East area and also on the third floor in the hand-building studio.

In Room 114, guests can connect with the Friends of the Greenbelt Museum (FOGM) and learn about historical programs including house tours, exhibits, walking tours, lectures, events and archival collections. To support these initiatives, FOGM will be selling books about Greenbelt history along with mugs, tote bags, retro children's toys and more. Also in Room 114, the Friends of Greenbelt Theater will be selling Greenbelt Cinema merchandise and memberships to support the city-owned theater, the only non-profit cinema in Prince George's County.

The SPACE Free Art for All will have a booth in the Ground Floor East area selling their popular 3D printed and laser-engraved products. Started in 2018 as a pop-up in an empty storefront at Beltway Plaza, The SPACE has been on a mission to bring people together through creativity, making art accessible to everyone.

Finally, in the turning circle outside the Ground Floor East entrance (across from the outdoor pool), the Greenbelt Labor Day Festival committee has organized food trucks. There will be Indian

Local Talent Plans to Infuse GAC in Happiness Happening

by Greg Young

Saxophonist Max Pinales is a music teacher in Bladensburg but did live in Greenbelt until recently. He just played with the Greenbelt Concert Band for their Christmas concert.

Robert AX Adams, Jr., currently based in Silver Spring, works in a music enrichment program for school-aged kids, RockStarts, and is also an in-demand lead singer/lead guitarist with chops like Jimi Hendrix.

Dajando Smith, a professional musician who grew up in Laurel, sings and plays bass, guitar and keyboards, among other talents. GAC is extremely fortunate to have him share the stage both for his skill and because his calendar is so full.

Darrell Dunning, drummer, is retired and lives in Laurel. He primarily plays jazz and has performed at the Greenbelt Jazz Festival and New Deal Café many times over the years.

One of the featured audience participation opportunities comes in the form of a drum circle. The facilitator for this portion of the show is Katy Gaughan and she will conduct the audience for at least one song. (Hint: that means there could be more.) There will be a few other outlets for expression and after all, that is what a Happening is, a social interaction that is meant to be a brief escape into another reality, a rebellious joyfulness and an exploration of what happiness means.

Frankie Alikia is the GAC featured artist for December, and her paintings will be on display during the Happiness Happening.

This is a wonderful opportunity for anyone to enjoy an evening of unique entertainment, participate (if you want) in the events or just be there. Be part of a genuine community event with group participation to embrace the idea that art and life are intertwined.

There are two performances scheduled for this happening, Saturday, December 13 at 8 p.m. and Sunday, December 14 at 2 p.m. Tickets are required. For more information visit greenbeltartscenter.org.

Reparations Commission Town Hall Highlights Community Feedback

by Carol Griffith

The Reparations Commission Community Town Hall offered breakout sessions for participants to consider possible reparation measures.

The Reparations Commission Town Hall, held in the Community Center on November 15, drew about 60 attendees. The format of the town hall was to both provide information to the community and gather input to guide its future work through breakout groups. American University members of the Humanities Truck project (humanitiestruck.com), a mobile platform supporting community-engaged research and oral history collection, aided in documenting the event.

With assistance from the Howard University School of Law's Thurgood Marshall Civil Rights Center and the African American Redress Network, commission members Denise Nadasen and Shabnam Mojtahedi guided participants through the history of Greenbelt in relation to African Americans and Native Americans and then showed current demographics. The confederacy of tribes comprising the Piscataway Nation and their history was explained. The presentation focused on the disparities in the African American and Native American populations in educational opportunities, wealth and housing relative to the white population.

The Piscataway Indian Nation has suggested possible reparations including repatriation of sacred land and sites; the establishment of cultural, educational and health centers; financial and technical assistance to spur economic development within the Native American community; and a formal apology. The breakout session reports contained thoughtful feedback for the commission and ideas for possible reparations in the areas of recreation, public safety, transportation, education and Indigenous redress.

Equal access to recreational opportunities and transportation modes in the city was highlighted. In the area of public safety, aid for persons leaving incarceration and for immigrant populations were brought up for consideration. Increased support for families was mentioned as a means for equalizing educational opportunities. Assistance for first-time homebuyers, more affordability measures and protections for long-term renters were brought up for further discussion. The Indigenous redress discussion report raised questions of how to restore justice, without any concrete suggestions offered. Thanking attendees for their participation, the commission members announced that there will be another town hall in the spring, to be scheduled after it considers the information obtained in this event.

SOUPer Friendsgiving

Community members gathered in a bustling room of the Community Center on Tuesday, December 2 for the free SOUPer Friendsgiving. The event brought together over 70 people to enjoy soup and community. It was sponsored by the SPACE Free Art for

All, the Playtime Project, RUAK, Greenbelt CORES and From Scratch Fundraising. The evening included a DJ, art making, a clothing swap and donations of giftable items. Organizers hope to coordinate more community dinners, perhaps monthly.

Among those serving food at the community supper were, from left, Kelly McLaughlin and her daughter, Shaymar Higgs and Matthew McLaughlin.

Coming to the Table: Dinner & Discussion

The local affiliate of Coming to The Table (CTTT) is hosting a dinner and discussion at the Community Center on the second Tuesday of every month. The next gathering is on December 9 from 6:15 until 8 p.m. in Room 202. There will be delicious food from Sunrise Caribbean.

To attend, register via email to Joe Parks at jiyujoe@outlook.com. The purpose of these gatherings is to provide a supportive environment for facing life's challenges, including those that stem from prejudice, misunderstandings and unresolved racial injustices and in this way to foster and strengthen the Beloved Community.

CTTT began in the spirit of an astounding family reunion. In 2006 in Harrisonburg, Va., two dozen descendants from both sides of the system of enslavement gathered at a table. Through sharing stories and building relationships, both the descendants of an enslaved people and the descendants of enslavers were able to embrace and to embody the dream of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr.

The local affiliate group of CTTT strives to be as inclusive as possible, to create an environment where anyone can share the struggles that are part of the human condition. Dialogues such as those fostered by CTTT can help overcome both the historic legacy of enslavement and those modern equivalents that function to divide us, from both ourselves and from each other.

The focus topic for December 9 is reconciliation. Participants should consider if they have ever challenged themselves to understand someone whom they had formed a negative impression of – and come to a successful reconciliation?

Mentoring Open House

Join Boys to Men Mentoring Greater Washington and Girls to Women Mentoring Greater Washington for an Open House event on December 20, 2 to 7 p.m. at the Greenbelt Youth Center. This event is designed to introduce the group's mission and programs to the community while offering delicious food, a circle for boys and girls, a gift card giveaway and opportunities for discussion.

Proposed Greenbelt East Trail Feasibility Studies Released

by Jeff Lemieux

The State Highway Administration (SHA) has now completed all four feasibility studies of the proposed Greenbelt East Trail, including a new feasibility study for the section wholly within the City of Greenbelt. When fully built, the Greenbelt East Trail would connect the Washington, Baltimore and Annapolis (WB&A) trail in Glenn Dale with the Anacostia River Trail system via Greenbelt. The trail would thereby connect key sections of the East Coast Greenway.

Within Greenbelt, the proposed trail would run along the north side of Greenbelt Road (Md. Route 193), from Hanover Parkway past Eleanor Roosevelt High School (ERHS) to Mandan Road. The trail would be approximately 10 feet wide, allowing extra space for walking and two-way bike traffic. Highlights would include ADA-compliant bus stops and a proposed median haven at the crosswalk between ERHS and Frankfort Drive. To make additional room for the trail, Greenbelt Road's existing curb would be pushed out a few feet and the main traffic lanes would be narrowed from 12 feet to 11 feet wide. SHA's study also recommends reducing the speed limit from 45 miles per hour to 35 mph in this sector.

Beyond the Greenbelt city limit, the proposed trail would continue on the north shoulder of Greenbelt Road from Mandan Road past Goddard Space Flight Center to Good Luck Road. In this segment, the trail would be protected from car traffic by a fabricated high visibility curb product called QWICK KURB®. It would also include a new signalized crossing to the westbound bus stops near Chelsea Wood, and would feature raised "floating" bus stops, like those on Rhode Island Avenue in north College Park.

Continuing eastward, the Greenbelt East Trail would run on the north side of Route 193 between Good Luck Road and Lanham-Severn Road. At Lanham-Severn Road, the trail would switch to the south side of Route 193 and continue to the existing WB&A trailhead at the Glenn Dale Splash Park. Importantly, SHA recommends that the high-speed right turn lanes at the intersection of Greenbelt Road and Lanham-Severn Road be squared off. These high-speed right turn ramps have contributed to severe crashes at this intersection.

For more information about the Greenbelt East Trail, and to read all four feasibility studies, visit Friends of the Greenbelt East Trail at greenbeltnasatrail.org.

Giving Thanks and Community Spirit at Franklin Park

As we reflect on the season of gratitude, we are reminded of the strength and spirit of our Greenbelt community. This November, Franklin Park at Greenbelt Station had the pleasure of hosting our first annual Turkey Trot, generously sponsored by Georgetown Pain Management.

The first 100 families to cross the finish line received a certificate for a FREE Thanksgiving dinner for four from Safeway right here in Greenbelt. Along the route, participants enjoyed giveaways, medals, and quick meals to keep the energy high. Even our Franklin Park team joined in on the trot, making it a fun and spirited event for residents and staff alike.

We are especially thankful to Councilwoman Silke Pope for connecting us with this wonderful sponsor. Their support and dedication played a key role in bringing this event to life, helping us provide a fun, meaningful, and memorable experience for our residents.

“Fun and fitness! Residents enjoyed a Turkey Trot sponsored by Georgetown Pain Management—thank you to Councilwoman Silke Pope for making this possible and Mayor Emmett Jordan for stopping by!”

In addition, we celebrated our annual Thanksgiving N’ Things event, a tradition we proudly continue in honor of Councilman Ric Gordon, who first began this meaningful community gathering. Councilman Gordon dedicated himself to serving the people, and through this event, we continue “the people’s work” by sharing food, joy, and connection with our neighbors.

Our Thanksgiving N’ Things celebration was truly one of the highlights of the month. This year, more than 500 families went home with thanksgiving groceries including turkeys to help make their holiday a little brighter. The excitement continued with our raffle, where residents had the chance to win gift cards, kitchen appliances, and other special surprises, bringing lots of smiles and happy moments. Thanks to the support of our amazing partners, families were also able to take home books, clothing, and additional household necessities—a meaningful boost for the season.

At Franklin Park, we are grateful for every opportunity to come together, give back, and celebrate the spirit of community that makes Greenbelt so special.
