Violent Spree Ends in Greenbelt With Bravery from Officer Inzeo

by Anna Bedford-Dillow

On the afternoon of Friday, May 15, a man later identified as 68-year-old Larry James Simpson of Glen Burnie committed multiple shootings and carjackings at five locations across the northern portion of Prince George's County. Greenbelt schools and others in the area, including

University of Maryland, were placed on lockdown. Greenbelt resident and off-duty Prince George's County Police Department (PGPD) Officer Matthew Inzeo who says he was driving his personal vehicle and was unarmed, observed one of the carjackings and began to track

Simpson, relaying his location to his wife, Domenek Inzeo, also a PGPD officer.

Simpson's Actions

On May 15, at approximately 2:30 p.m., officers received a call about a man pointing a long gun out of his car window in the 5100 block of Pierce

Election 2026 Mail-in Ballot Error

This week some Greenbelters who requested and were sent a mail-in ballot prior to May 14, received a notice via email that it may be incorrect.

Due to an error in production, some voters may have received a ballot for the wrong party.

"You will receive your replacement ballot some time over the course of the next two weeks," advised the email. "It will be marked Replacement Ballot Inside."

Residents should vote with and return only the replacement ballot in the return envelope marked Replacement Envelope.

Anyone who was affected will receive two ballots. The second ballot says REPLACEMENT BALLOT, and the first should be destroyed along with its envelope.

For anyone who has already returned the first ballot, the local election office is able to identify these ballots and secure them. These ballots have been voided and the voter should mark and return the replacement ballot to ensure the ballot is counted.

Additional information should be included in the replacement ballot packet.

A voter can visit vote.md.gov/2026replacement to understand what will happen next and view frequently asked questions.

Those who have questions about voting this ballot can call 410-269-2840 or email absentee.SBE@maryland.gov.

Collective Bargaining, Budget, Stop Signs Occupy Council

by Diane Oberg

At its May 11 meeting the Greenbelt City Council held its second public hearing on the proposed Fiscal Year (FY) 2027 budget, introduced legislation authorizing expanded collective bargaining for city employees and heard reports on stop sign enforcement, ranked choice voting and an update on crime in the county from the state's attorney.

Budget

Council held its second public hearing on the proposed FY 2027 budget, which begins on July 1. Council is expected to adopt the budget at its Tuesday, May 26 meeting.

Resident Fred Gasper called for improvements to Hanover Parkway for pedestrian safety and better travel. City Manager Josué Salmerón referred him to page 277 of the budget document, which provides funding for improvements along Hanover Parkway from Ora Glen to Good Luck Road.

Gasper also called on the city to release information about how to use the newly improved Schrom Hills Park practice field.

Resident Michael Hartman called for dedicating funds each year in a separate account for sidewalk improvements to work toward having a continuous, safe sidewalk system, over multiple years.

Resident and former council-member Konrad Herling called for

GHI Annual Meeting: Centerway Purchase Investigation and Election

by Joseph Ralbovsky

On May 14 over 200 attendees joined the hybrid online/in-person Annual Meeting for Greenbelt Homes Inc. (GHI) to make announcements, ask questions, listen to candidates running for the Board of Directors and Audit Committees, and to vote on a much-anticipated item of new business: Whether to authorize the Board of Directors to spend up to $30,000 to investigate the viability of purchasing

Members gathered in the Community Center Gymnasium to query the current Board of Directors, as well as GHI staff, about certain elements of the annual report and actions being taken to ensure the physical and financial well-being of the housing cooperative, and

Council Must Plan for How DEI Is to Fit within City's Structure

by Diane Oberg

How best to advance diversity, equity and inclusion (DEI) in Greenbelt was the subject of much of the May 11 meeting of the Greenbelt City Council, it being raised during the public hearing on the budget and during the announced agenda item Discussion of DEI Position Proposals. Tyra Smith currently holds the position as the city's DEI officer.

While the proposed budget document presents no changes to the DEI officer position, the administration proposed restructuring it at the April 8 budget worksession. Currently the DEI officer is a GC-15 level position in the city manager's office. A GC-15 position is one level down from that held by assistant department directors. The proposal, as laid out by Assistant City Manager Timothy George, is to eliminate the DEI officer position and transfer the responsibilities to a GC-11 position in the Human Resources (HR) Department. This position would have additional responsibilities such as employee engagement. City Manager Josué Salmerón told the News Review that he did not present the change in the budget document since the position was created by council and thus any restructuring should be handled by them during the budget discussions.

George said that putting the DEI position in HR would create synergy and eliminate some

Unleashed Dog Attack Met with Impunity

On May 4, at approximately 8:30 a.m. my dog was attacked by an unleashed dog housed in a van parked on the private property of the closed St. Hugh's school.

My dog was attacked when I stopped to look through books in the box at the approach to the Lake, volleyball court and the tennis courts.

The police collected contact information from the person in the van claiming ownership of the dog. The address he gave the police was clearly false. Judging by his comments when he handed me the address, the police knew it was false, but I was told they could not "force an ID."

The police could do nothing even though there were independent witnesses. St. Hugh's would take no responsibility for someone parked on their private property. Animal Control and Parking Enforcement: MIA.

I'm still trying to logic out the problem here. Is this a failure of the people or a failure of the system or both? I'm thinking it's both.

In closing, be advised you will have to depend upon yourself to protect your dog.

A View of Greenbelt from Space

When Greenbelter Philip Larkin won a NASA Peer Award recently it came with his choice of location for an Earth-from-space image. "Of course I chose Greenbelt," said Larkin. The NASA Earth Observatory team published it on Earth Day along with some story notes.

The photo was taken on July 30, 2023, a time of year when the region's vegetation is lush and green. One of the more prominent green spaces in this image is Greenbelt Park. The park's nearly five square kilometers (two square miles) contain forested hiking trails, several picnic areas and a campground. The land was once intended as a future extension of the city of Greenbelt, but it was acquired by the National Park Service in 1950.

Just north of the park, Greenbelt's historic district is laid out in a crescent shape. The district is one of three planned communities that arose in the 1930s as part of the New Deal program, intended to provide work for unemployed workers and to create affordable cooperative housing with accessible green space. Homes connect to walking paths, which in turn connect to one of the country's oldest planned shopping centers.

A collection of buildings east of the Beltway is NASA's Goddard Space Flight Center, established on May 1, 1959, as NASA's first space flight complex. Several patches of forested land separate some of the buildings. The large green spaces north of Goddard are a mix of forested land and agricultural fields on the Beltsville Agricultural Research Center, which include University of Maryland and USDA agricultural research sites. The main campus of the University of Maryland is visible just west of Greenbelt Park.

improved transportation between Greenbelt West and the core so that youth can access recreation facilities, such as Braden Field.

Legislation

Council unanimously adopted legislation to establish a restricted matching grant fund to provide sustainable funding for grants that require the city to match some or all of the funds received.

Council introduced for first reading a charter amendment resolution to authorize the city to engage in collective bargaining with non-exempt, non-managerial and non-confidential city employees. By state law, there will be no further action on this item for 21 days after which there will be a public hearing and the resolution may be considered for adoption.

Stop Signs

Salmerón reported that motorists had rolled up more than 400 infractions on the first day of stop sign camera enforcement. As of May 11, 2,788 citations had been issued. Resident Lois Rosado objected to the number of speed and stop sign cameras in Greenbelt West, viewing it as a form of harassment. Salmerón explained that state law limits stop sign and speed cameras to within one-half mile of a school. Greenbelt West has three schools, more than any other area of the city.

Councilmember Silke Pope confessed to having received a ticket but protested that she did stop. Salmerón said that a human being reviews the videos. He mentioned that motorists should mind the painted street stop bars, but Pope noted that in some spots it is not possible to see cross traffic from behind the stop bar.

State's Attorney

Prince George's County State's Attorney Tara Jackson gave a presentation on crime in the county. Jackson, while acknowledging the three murders last year in Greenbelt, stated that homicide is down in the county. Homicides dropped 40 percent in 2025 and are down 33 percent this year. Carjackings are also down. Assaults and domestic violence, however, are rising.

Of major concern is violent crime, especially repeat gun offenders. She wants to focus on reducing the number of guns carried in the community. Her office is seeing what she called "impulse crimes," where someone is carrying a weapon, with no intent to use it, then gets into an argument. This year, her office put forward legislation to permit the enhanced penalty for repeat gun offenders to be applied to those with weapons convictions from other states or the District of Columbia, rather than just to those with convictions in Maryland. This legislation, however, did not pass.

Other areas of crime her office is focusing on include a "truancy initiative" where they work with the county schools; a program for first-time nonviolent offenders who successfully complete the requirements to have no criminal record; and business crime such as retail theft and financial scams, which can cause companies to leave the county.

A recent accomplishment was the development of a Crime Data Dashboard, released two months ago, showing the disposition rates for various crimes in 2025.

In the three fatal shootings in Greenbelt, those charged with the shooting of 14-year-old Carltin Bayong are scheduled for trial on September 20. In addition, three persons have been charged with the murder of Mancel Johnson. Jackson had no trial date for these defendants. No one has been charged with the murder of Juan Gonzalez.

City Recognition Groups Seek City Support in Upcoming Budget

by Matthew Arbach

Over the course of two work-sessions on May 6 and 13, the Greenbelt City Council met with some of the city's recognition groups that are requesting in-kind services (staff support, facility and equipment usage), or either a project or operating grant from the city in the upcoming Fiscal Year (FY) 2027 budget.

On May 6, Recreation Department Director Greg Varda informed council that $122,200 is available for these groups in FY 2027, a significant drop from years past. The total of groups' requests came to $199,307. A grant review panel, consisting of several members of city advisory groups, reviewed the applications. For those requesting funds, the panel used a scored, tiered approach to make a budget analysis and evaluate each group's merits and impact on the city and its residents. The result was a recommendation to council for amounts that allowed all to receive at least some funding, within the bounds of the budget. Ultimately, council may choose to award the amount recommended by the review committee or may determine they wish to award a different amount. The review panel noted that each group has had a positive and valuable impact on the city in their respective areas.

Soccer, Swimming, Baseball

The May 6 session began with the Greenbelt Soccer Alliance, represented by Board President Jonas Cadwallader and VP Scott Borg. The current season fields 149 players, 50 percent of whom are Greenbelt residents; the rest from neighboring municipalities which is a matter of pride as it indicates how much the program is appreciated. Practices are held at Schrom Hills Park twice a week. Borg extolled its volunteer coaching. The panel recommended funding $3,300 of the group's $4,000 request, to cover the Greenbelt resident registration discount.

Team President Liz Murray and Treasurer Christina Nickel fronted Greenbelt Municipal Swim Team. Started in 1957, the group has maintained a robust program for ages 4 to 18, as they continue rebuilding their numbers from the 2025 indoor pool shutdown. While it is a largely volunteer organization, the group asked for $10,000 to pay summer coaching staff. The panel proposed awarding $8,300.

Treasurer Patrick Keaton of Greenbelt Youth Baseball expressed appreciation for access to the city's well-maintained (by Public Works) ballfields. Begun in 1951, the group has 20 teams, ages 5 to 13. Recent fundraising has resulted in a larger revenue surplus. The panel recommended that $8,700 was warranted, of the $10,500 request for umpires, equipment, uniforms and other costs.

Babe Ruth Baseball asked for $3,500 for registration fees, uniforms, equipment and umpire fees. The panel noted its importance to the community and recommended funding in the amount of $2,900.

Boys and Girls Club

The Greenbelt Boys and Girls Club asked for $11,000, mostly for scholarships, volunteer and coach training and equipment and facilities, with the panel deciding to recommend $9,100 for the group. President Orin Howard related the organization's healthy program of track and field, basketball and, recently, flag football; he looks to further grow a female team for the latter. Budget permitting, Howard said there are enough people interested to field several tackle football teams. He said he would likely return the group to 501(c)3 status to qualify for city funds.

CHEARS, Farmers Market

The CHesapeake Education, Arts and Research Society (CHEARS), represented by Carolyn Lambright-Davis, and its children's Earth Squad, led by Jennifer Dudley, Bill Davis and Maggie Cahalan, was next. CHEARS began in 2006 and continues its work on the city's Three Sisters Gardens, among other projects. Dudley spoke about her group's participation in the Greenbelt Grows and Great Food Transition projects. Cahalan noted the convergence of environmental justice and at-risk human rights in the group's mission. Based on a request for $1,800 for renting a communal kitchen and an honorarium for its monthly workshop instructor, the panel recommended $1,500.

President Scott Fifield, representing the Greenbelt Farmers Market, with Suzette Agans, the market's SNAP coordinator, renewed their request for in-kind services. SNAP, said Agans, is feeling the impact of recent federal cuts. The market, according to Fifield, has three new vendors, having lost its beer and wine vendors. Fifield and City Manager Josué Salmerón shared their concerns around improving the site's access to electricity and Wifi to assist in SNAP transactions, among other things.

Refugees, Business Alliance

Frank Gervasi of Greenbelt Refugee Aid Committee (GRACE) explained that at the end of May, the group will no longer be hosting a Ukrainian family, down from the original three families. Gervasi noted the loss in American aid such as USAID, and its serious impact on the lives of suffering people worldwide. He said that GRACE is exploring developing a cultural student exchange program. He also said that the group may be able to aid the city's undocumented residents.

While considered a worthy and much-needed cause, council, staff and the panel generally felt that the group's current efforts may no longer fit the criterion for city aid, as it no longer hosts any families. The group has received substantial donations in the past. From a request for $10,000, an adjusted amount of $7,900 was recommended by the panel.

The Greenbelt Business Alliance asked for $5,000 to stage another business gala, likely in late January. Board Member Emeritus Paul Ricketts hopes to solidify the group's paid membership, now at 34, and hopefully increase it to 50. Mayor Emmett Jordan noted the past gala's high attendance and positive reception from the community. The panel felt that $4,000 would be appropriate.

The meeting ended with a discussion on the possible need to cap operating grant requests. Salmerón added that each group has its own level of resources, affecting their requested amounts.

Varda reminded council that the panel recommendations are not binding, with council feeling that more adjustments would be needed in the distribution of funds.

Black History, Culture

The May 13 session began with the Greenbelt Black History and Culture Committee, represented by Lois Rosado and Joe Parks. The group continues its mission to educate on and elevate African American history, culture and society. Their yearly programs revolve around a theme, the next one being Black press to Black digital press, with outreach to local journalism schools. Black History Month in February and Maryland Emancipation Day on November 1 are the two main annual focal points. The group did not request funds, asking only to renew its recognition group status.

Orchestra, Band

The Greenbelt Community Orchestra, presented by Board President Anne Gardner, asked for $4,500 for a stipend for its conductor and funds to rent and obtain rights to music. The group is three years old and gives three free concerts a year. A 250th U.S. anniversary concert will take place on May 31, featuring American composers. The panel recommended the group receive $3,700.

The Greenbelt Concert Band is over 80 years old, according to General Manager Danielle Celdran, and provides only free concerts. The group often plays at city events, like the December holiday tree lighting ceremony and Veterans Day observance.

duplication of effort. DEI is still important, George said, and moving the position to HR would provide support as it would no longer be one person looking for people to help.

McKinney Proposal

Councilmember Danielle McKinney presented her thoughts on the “next phase of the culture and equity work” in an eight-page document where she laid out her thoughts on where the city currently is with DEI, four possible ways of restructuring the position, contrasted the roles of an HR specialist vs. an equity and culture leader role and the goals of the DEI effort with pros, cons and budgetary impact.

McKinney said that equity and inclusion needs skilled dedicated leadership to guide it along with strong champions throughout the entire city organization who carry defined equity responsibilities within their own departments.

In her paper, McKinney reviews the various options, their pros, cons and budget implications. She asked that five commitments be part of the Fiscal Year 2027 budget process: 1) a written Justice, Equity, Diversity and Inclusion (JEDI) implementation plan, 2) every city leader having defined equity and inclusion responsibilities with accountability built into their performance plans, 3) the establishment of a Greenbelt Equity and Belonging Subcommittee that meets regularly and reports directly to council, 4) an annual public progress report on JEDI implementation and 5) equity and inclusion should remain core Greenbelt values not contingent on any one budget

McKinney asked for a worksession to look at implementation by September.

Public Comments

Comments about the possible DEI restructuring were made both during the public hearing and after McKinney laid out her proposal.

Resident Bob Rand asked council not to restructure the DEI office. He expressed concern that council and the public were not hearing from Smith about her experiences after three years in the position and her vision for the future. Her absence, he said, speaks volumes.

Resident Lois Rosado objected to the possibility of DEI becoming part of the Human Resources Department. Such work dies, she said, when placed in HR. The success of DEI efforts rests upon a renewed commitment from council to receive updates from department heads and provide oversight whenever dysfunction is identified.

Rosado charged that five African American employees have been “chased out” of administrative positions in the city and suggested that council conduct an exit interview with Smith, which may be revealing about the environment in city administration and take action to stop that pattern.

Rosado said that the councilmembers never really spoke to Smith or allowed her to present her plan. “The woman was sabotaged,” she said.

In response to questions, Salmerón confirmed that Smith is still on the city’s payroll and that the position is funded through the end of the current fiscal year on June 30. Salmerón told the News Review that it is city policy to not comment on personnel issues so that he could not comment on Rosado’s characterization of the situation.

Rosado, Rand and others laid out their thoughts regarding the DEI position in a letter in the May 7 issue of this newspaper.

Resident Michael Hartman said the department must be kept independent as there is an inherent conflict of interest if the DEI function is moved to the HR department.

Council Discussion

Mayor Emmett Jordan disagreed that putting DEI in Human Resources would kill the DEI effort and suggested that it might be time to have an outside consultant review where the city is and how to move forward.

Councilmember Jenni Pompei suggested that the DEI role may not have been thought through completely. This is not about the person, she said.

Councilmember Amy Knesel said that she is not sure the city is ready to have one person trying to steer the ship. We need a pro, she said, to give us a list of what we need to do.

Councilmember Frankie Santos Fritz said that DEI is not a place where he would try to save money.

Salmerón said there is $150,000 for DEI in the proposed budget but reminded council that the budget is balanced only by transferring $2 million from cash reserves. In addition, the city has been notified of an additional increase in abatements of about $1 million, which exceeds the budget’s allowance for the abatements.

to offer suggestions, share their experiences and comment on the 2025 Annual Report. Members expressed appreciation for individuals and departments of GHI staff, expressed their concerns with rising costs and looming trends and voiced both support of and reservations about a potential purchase of the property in question. It was noted that the purchase would be of the building, not the Co-op itself which is leasing the space along with the Greenbelt Arts Center and the once-again vacant old post office location.

Centerway Purchase

Importantly, the membership vote at the meeting was to approve or deny the motion of allowing expenditures to investigate and obtain answers to myriad questions surrounding such a purchase. GHI’s bylaws contain strict limits to how many resources may be spent on a certain item/topic without membership approval, and thus the membership was given the opportunity to decide whether GHI could commit the funds to proceed with the actions needed to get the information required to know if doing this is a good idea.

When it came time for the vote, well over 95 percent of the membership present supported the motion. The board members present indicated that if findings from upcoming investigations into the purchase came back promisingly, there would be another membership meeting in the summer, likely in July, to approve or disapprove the actual acquisition of the property. Staff and the Board of Directors intend to provide as much useful information as possible ahead of such a meeting so that members can consider the facts before deciding how they will vote.

Elections

At the adjournment of the meeting, the election began for four (of nine positions total) two-year terms on the Board of Directors, and three (of three positions total) one-year terms for the Audit Committee. The election ran through 8 p.m. on the following day, with 349 total votes cast. (See below.)

PGCPS Search Committee Selects Final Candidates for Superintendent

by Anna Bedford-Dillow

On May 8, the Prince George's County Public Schools (PGCPS) Superintendent Search Committee sent the names of three finalists to Prince George's County Executive Aisha Braveboy for review and final appointment.

"The superintendent search is a closed process and the finalists' names are confidential," announced the search committee on May 8.

In a January 23 press release, the Office of the County Executive noted that the search firm PoliHire, with whom they were working, would "oversee recruitment, vetting and stakeholder engagement while protecting the confidentiality of appropriate candidates." "The County will provide regular public updates and meaningful opportunities for community input, including forums and stakeholder listening sessions," said the January announcement.

The search committee was chaired by James C. Bell, who was appointed by the State Superintendent Carey Wright, and included county residents Jennifer Avelar, appointed by Governor Wes Moore, and Gordon L. Sampson, also appointed by the governor.

Community Survey

An online community survey was conducted this spring, which the search committee used to help develop the desired leadership profile, key characteristics and interview questions for candidates, they reported via the May 8 announcement. That yielded more than 4,200 responses, reported the committee. Respondents called for a community-centered and transparent communicator; operationally strong and results-driven leader; strategic and responsible fiscal steward; culture-builder and organizational leader; and instructionally-focused education leader, said the committee. "The committee recommended that candidates have an opportunity for outreach with parent and student representative groups, employee organizations, and community and business leaders. The committee also encouraged more dialogue with Latino community groups due to the low survey response rate (less than 8 percent)," said their announcement.

Public Forums

At the time the names were submitted to the County Executive, however, no forums or stakeholder sessions had been held. Following community pressure, on Saturday, May 16 via social media an online community listening session was announced for Thursday, May 21. An announcement of the "public discussion" was issued on the County Executive's website on

When the News Review interviewed Interim Superintendent Shawn Joseph this spring he declined to say whether or not he would be applying for the permanent position.

Timeline

Braveboy now has three finalists to choose from and must send her selection to the county's Board of Education before July 1. According to Maryland Education Code section 4-201.1, the candidate is then appointed by the county board after agreement on contract terms negotiated by the board's chair. The state superintendent then makes the final decision to approve or disapprove the appointment to superintendent. The term of PGCPS superintendent is four years, beginning on July 1.

Area Science Bowl Team Led By Greenbelter Wins at Last

by Robert Allen

On Tuesday, May 5, long-time Greenbelt resident Team Coach Robert Allen guided his Prince George's County Heather Hills Elementary School Science Bowl team to a semifinal win over Cherokee Lane Elementary School and won the Championship against University Park Elementary School. The final match was extremely intense with University Park leading off and on and headed for the win until the final 25-point question. University Park failed to answer the final question, "Which period directly followed the Jurassic Period?" The buzzer sounded, marking the end of the game, but because University Park did not answer correctly, Heather Hills had its turn to answer. Heather Hills correctly answered, the Cretaceous Period, received the 25 points and won the championship, 240 to 220, ending a long 38-year drought. Allen won the championship twice with teams from his former school, Magnolia Elementary School. This was his third year coaching a team from Heather Hills. After the game, Coach Allen said, "Third time's the charm!"

Pepco Request Mostly Denied; Expect Approx. 64-Cent Increase

On March 31, the Maryland Public Service Commission announced they denied much of the Potomac Electric Power Company's (Pepco) request for a $30.6 million true-up of the final year of its first three-year rate plan. In a filing on July 29, 2024, the utility had asked to recover spending it says it under-collected in rates in 2023. The Commission's order instead grants the company $13.36 million. (This case is separate from Pepco's current base rate case, which it filed in October 2025.)

The Commission said it was mindful of the burdens increased electric rates place on customers, especially residential ratepayers. These concerns were noted by the Maryland General Assembly as well, when the legislature enacted the Next Generation Energy Act, which, among other things, allows utilities to continue to propose multiyear rate plans and other alternative forms of ratemaking for recovery of costs associated with providing utility services, but prohibits bill-increasing reconciliations in future multiyear rate plan cases.

"There is no denying that a bill-increase of the magnitude proposed by Pepco risks increased utility unaffordability by many customers and does not align with supporting the economy of the State," said Kumar P. Barve, chair of the Commission. "While the estimated monthly bill impact resulting from this decision does not fully mitigate the utility affordability risks faced by residential customers, it does at least - to some degree - buffer the impact."

The order will result in a net monthly bill impact of 64 cents for the average residential electric customer, from April 1, 2026, to March 31, 2027. The Commission noted that approval of Pepco's $30.6 million reconciliation request - an amount approximately twice the company's approved budget for rate year three and nearly the same amount as requested by Pepco in its original case - would not be a just and reasonable rate in the context of the multiyear plan construct. In its order, the Commission pointed out that "multiyear ratemaking does not allow for unbounded and runaway cost recovery when the utility overruns its budget projections, which the company has clearly done."

In October 2020, Pepco became the second utility to apply for a rate increase using a multi-year plan under a pilot ratemaking mechanism approved by the Commission in February of that year. The Commission, at the time, noted that it would allow for a reconciliation. This is the second permitted reconciliation after the end of the three-year rate-effective period.

The Commission noted that "approving Pepco's full reconciliation request on a base foundation of questionable forecasting, followed up by substantial overruns of its approved budgets, would reward the utility's performance rather than encourage a more disciplined approach to managing for results that benefit both the utility and its customers."

In late December, the Commission denied much of the multi-year plan reconciliation sought by Pepco's sister utility, Baltimore Gas and Electric. Instead of the $152.3 million BGE requested, the Commission granted only $77.2 million, also citing the company's overspend of its budget.

Information for this article comes from a Maryland Public Service Commission press release.

On April 30, 14 Legacy Leaders, their significant others, their instructors and their Maryland legislator bosses gathered in the Maryland House of Delegates office building to celebrate the successful completion of the 2025-2026 Legacy Leadership Institute on Public Policy (LLIPP) program, now in its 25th year. Each of us, intrigued by the opportunity to learn new skills and by the possibility of applying our lifetime skills in an entirely different setting, signed up. We didn't know it at the time, but by joining LLIPP we were following in the august footsteps of numerous Greenbelters, including (according to the News Review of December 7, 2023) Emmett Jordan, Molly Lester, Donna Hoffmeister, Michael Hartman and Murray and Carol Malveaux.

Rigorous Training

Our training began in late September in a spartan conference room in Columbia. Two days a week for the next 10 weeks, we learned about the Maryland legislature, its people and its processes. We heard from the head of the LLIPP program, Wesley Queen; from former Legacy Leaders; from Maryland delegates and senators; and from legislative staffers. We made two field trips to Annapolis, where we visited the State House, the Department of Legislative Services, the Office of the (Maryland) Secretary of State, a lobbyist office and the Anne Arundel County Circuit Court. It was educational, and also a lot of fun.

Our legislative service coincided with the 2026 session of the General Assembly, from January 14 to Sine Die on April 13. In class we were warned that each legislator is different, and each legislator's chief of staff is different, so each legislative office is different. It was true. Each of us had our own, unique experience.

Joan Whelan

I was placed in the office of House Delegate Emily Shetty from District 18 in Montgomery County. Shetty is the chair of the Appropriations Subcommittee on Health and Social Services (HSS), a subcommittee that reviews, revises and ultimately approves a full 40 percent of Maryland's $70 billion state budget. So, in addition to supporting the drafting of bills, testimony and constituent communications, I spent much of the session reviewing budget analyses developed by the General Assembly's Department of Legislative Services. These budget analyses, developed for each of the state agencies under the purview of Shetty's HSS Subcommittee, went beyond sheer numbers to bring in elements of

The group asked for $4,375 to help pay its director. The panel decided to recommend $3,500.

Labor Day Festival

President Karen Yoho, VP Donna Peterson and Treasurer Jon Gardner spoke for the Greenbelt Labor Day Committee. In its 72nd year, a new carnival vendor is on board this year, as well as an electronic wristband ticket, with presales and online purchase available for a variety of time periods. Bands have been booked and wandering entertainers will be present this year. The group asked only for in-kind services.

The SPACE

The SPACE Free Art for All continues its robust and varied programming, according to leaders Shaymar Higgs and Robert Rand. The group has lost a significant amount of space in Beltway Plaza, hampering its ability to provide activities and classes. It has partnered with local schools, particularly Kingsman Academy and Pathway Charter School, bringing their students into the facility. The group requested $25,000 and the panel recommended $20,800.

Arts Center, GATe

President Carol Shaw, VP Alan Duda and Treasurer Chris Dullnig were on hand for the Greenbelt Arts Center. The group is still in a rebuilding phase from the pandemic, working hard to sustain a steady and constant number of productions. Costs for the facility take up 60 percent of its budget. Based on a request for $34,600, the panel felt that $16,700 for operating expenses would be appropriate.

Greenbelt Access Television (GATe), now 40 years old, sustains its mission to provide community driven storytelling. President Frank Gervasi, Board Member Jennifer Dudley and Executive Director Daniel Thies were present. The organization is facing funding challenges from a large drop in its Public Educational and Governmental (PEG) fee funding, which is derived from charges on cable bills, an amount decreased by reduced cable television usage. The council expressed interest in brainstorming with GATe on other funding sources. GATe requested $65,000; the panel proposed council offer $23,600 for operating expenses.

FONDCA, MakerSpace

The Friends of New Deal Café Arts (FONDCA) requested $2,900 to assist in funding its jazz and blues festivals, on June 6 and September 26, respectively. President Meghan Haney and VP Julie Winters spoke for the group. The funds will go toward paying the musicians and sound techs. These festivals are a big draw for both city and external residents. The panel recommended $2,300.

The meeting ended with Greenbelt MakerSpace, represented by Volunteer Coordinator Donna Lockner, President Robert Candey and Board Members Tim Uber and Vikram Kashyap. Its Tool Library still makes its many items available for check-out, the group has made its repair cafés a monthly event, and both activities attract many users. DIY repair classes are also offered. Lockner said the group runs on a shoestring budget, with efforts provided by only volunteers. Of their $7,132 request the panel recommended funding $5,900.

Tough Decisions

This was the penultimate budget worksession and council will take the recommendations from the review committee into consideration as they decide what to award each group in next year's budget. Further discussion, review and recommendations were to come on Monday, May 18, at their final budget worksession. The vote on the budget and its adoption is scheduled for Tuesday, May 26. Everyone understood that the FY 2027 budget will be tight, requiring many hard choices to be made.

Film on Mussolini's Dictatorship: Playbook for Trump Administration?

by Kurt Stand

Fascism first reared its ugly head in Italy after World War I, well before it spread to Germany, Spain and elsewhere across Europe. Reel and Meal at the New Deal Café's April 20 screening of The Dictator's Playbook: Benito Mussolini showed disturbing parallels between Italy's descent into dictatorship in the 1920s and the steady assault on civil liberties and constitutional norms being imposed by the Trump administration. Directed by Canadian Mark Stevenson, the documentary was produced in 2019.

The funeral of anti-fascist Giacomo Matteotti on August 21, 1924

Italy - although on the "winning side" - was in crisis when the war ended in 1918. People had nothing to show after years of fighting, and Italy's fragile democratic institutions were non-responsive to popular need. The documentary shows images of worker-occupied factories as unions organized a general strike, while peasants formed cooperatives and sought ownership of the land they worked. Mussolini saw opportunity in crisis - and sought power by promising to restore order (without justice).

Once a socialist and internationalist himself, Mussolini rejected his former beliefs during World War I and became an ardent nationalist who saw violence as strength. As the film documents, his path to power was extra-legal, destroying buildings of socialist unions and cooperatives and physically assaulting dissident intellectuals and political critics. He also used electoral means, seeking to gain legitimacy by running his party, the National Fascist Party founded in 1921, in parliamentary elections. They won only a few seats, so his next step was titled "The March on Rome," in 1922, when armed fascist squads marched on the Italian capital. As the film recounts, they could have been easily dispersed by the army, but instead Italy's elite (factory owners, bankers, large landowners, military leaders and the royal family), who feared popular demands for economic justice and popular revolution, turned to a "strong man." The King appointed Mussolini prime minister. It took him less than four years to dismantle Italy's democratic and constitutional structures and establish a dictatorship.

The decisive step, as the film recounts, was the 1924 murder of socialist deputy Giacomo Matteotti, who publicly and uncompromisingly denounced the fascist government. Although there was public outrage, Mussolini went on the offensive, accepting political responsibility for the violence throughout the country under his rule, pardoning those arrested for killing Matteotti and proclaiming himself "Il Duce" - "The Leader." Press freedoms were abolished, opposition parties banned, civic rights eliminated.

One can see in this some of the outlines of how Trump has behaved in office - declaring himself above the law, pardoning those involved in the January 6, 2021 assault on the capitol, attacking any who criticize him. The film noted other actions that serve as part of the "dictator's playbook" that characterized Mussolini's consolidation of power and pointed out contemporary parallels: disinformation, banning books, attacking judges, racism and nationalism and starting a war.

The screening event was sponsored by the Eleanor Roosevelt Democratic Club, honoring her passionate opposition to fascism. A lively discussion followed the screening - unnerving similarities between Trump and Mussolini were noted, but the conversation quickly turned to dialogue over how to prevent our country from becoming subject to authoritarian rule. That in turn led to a back-and-forth about the Democratic Party, with some stressing the importance of electing Democrats this November to put a check on the danger of fascism in our future and others arguing that Democrats have failed to stem the tide and therefore other solutions need to be found.

Paddles, Peaks and Pastries: Venture Crew Builds Skills

by Jonathan Murray

Venture Crew 746 traveled to Wye Island on Maryland's Eastern Shore.

Over the weekend of May 15 to 17, local youth members of Venture Crew 746 took to the outdoors for another adventure, this time traveling to Wye Island Natural Resources Management Area on Maryland's Eastern Shore. During the trip, the crew circumnavigated the island, paddling more than 15 miles by canoe and kayak. Battling steady winds and shifting tides, the group navigated the shoreline while taking occasional breaks to enjoy sandy beaches, snack and cool off - with some playful splashing along the way.

In addition to paddling, the crew honed their outdoor cooking skills by experimenting with new backcountry techniques. Using a reflector oven and a portable backpacking oven, they successfully baked fresh muffins and a hearty frittata, earning mostly enthusiastic reviews from the group. These experiences are all part of the crew's preparation for a major summer expedition to Maine. The upcoming adventure will include summiting Mt. Katahdin, followed by a 7- to 10-day paddle down the 100-mile Allagash Wilderness Waterway.

Crew leaders expressed gratitude to the local community for its continued support, especially through last year's Winter Wonderland fundraiser. Proceeds from the event helped offset trip costs and allowed the crew to acquire essential equipment. As the program continues to grow, the group welcomes donations of canoes, kayaks and high-quality camping gear - and is currently seeking one additional canoe for the summer trip.

Venture Crew 746 is a coed program within Scouting America, open to youth ages 14 to 20. The crew offers opportunities for outdoor adventure, including climbing, paddling, biking and performance: whether audit findings had been addressed, hiring gaps closed or federal reimbursements applied for. It was important to review these analyses in order to highlight for HSS Subcommittee members relevant questions and lines of inquiry to guide the HSS budget hearings with each agency. This whirlwind General Assembly session provided me a window not only on the legislative process but also the state of health and social service delivery across Maryland.

Chris Martin

Serving as a Legacy Leader for Majority Whip Delegate Ashanti Martinez provided me with an incredible opportunity to experience the daily inner workings of the Maryland General Assembly. He and his chief of staff prioritized accessibility, transparency and active listening, fostering an environment in which constituents could feel heard. For me, as a volunteer staff member (as well as a constituent), they did an amazing job of making me feel seen and heard, tasking me with responsibilities that were challenging but not overwhelming. Our chief of staff encouraged a friendly and collaborative workplace, which included in-depth discussions on committee hearings, floor sessions and procedures for pending bills. My role involved greeting lobbyists, advocacy groups and community members and discussing their viewpoints with the team. My responsibilities also included reviewing bills, drafting testimony for committee hearings and cataloging messages from constituents. Looking ahead, the enormous number of calls and emails Martinez received underscored the challenges currently facing Maryland: the building of data centers, the increasing cost of living, the need for more job creation, healthcare access and protection of our most vulnerable communities. My experience was extremely rewarding and reinforced a simple reality:

democratic systems function best when we are active, and our representatives are informed, empowered and engaged.

Ron Benjamin

I had a completely different experience from my fellow Legacy Leaders, because my internship was at an executive agency, the Office of the Secretary of State (OSOS), not in the legislature. OSOS is a tiny agency with a diverse set of responsibilities. For example, they manage Maryland's relations with sister states in foreign countries, they maintain the Code of Maryland Regulations, they authenticate official documents that Maryland residents want to submit to foreign governments and they run the Maryland trademarks and service marks registry. My assignments reflected that diversity: I entered a lot of data into the OSOS subscriptions database, and helped design an arrangement that reduced the data entry workload by about 90 percent. I was one of the staffers who helped welcome a visiting Qatari delegation to the State House. I helped a small team do the final editing of the Governor's Subcabinet for International Affairs' 2025 Annual Report to the Governor. And I worked with fellow Legacy Leader Rob Coker to propose that Maryland contact Gyeongsangnam-do (province), one of Maryland's sister states in South Korea, to gauge interest in using existing test facilities in Maryland to perform environmental testing of new Korean satellites. I loved it. Most days when I went into the OSOS office I didn't know what I was going to do that day. But I knew it was going to be interesting.

Avenue in College Park. Witnesses reported the man, who was later identified as Simpson, fired several shots. No one was reported injured at that location.

A short time later, Simpson shot at a car with a 64-year-old man inside on Riverdale Road at the Baltimore-Washington Parkway in Riverdale. A bullet struck the car's window, and the driver suffered lacerations to his head as a result, though he was not struck by the gunfire. He was transported to a hospital with injuries that were not considered life-threatening.

Minutes later, Simpson's car struck another vehicle at 67th Avenue at Patterson Street in Riverdale. This collision caused Simpson's car to overturn and he exited his own car and carjacked a nearby Nissan. During the carjacking, Simpson shot at a minimum of four victims at that location. One man was struck by the gunfire and was critically injured. That man is expected to survive his injuries.

At this time Inzeo was off-duty and travelling in his own personal vehicle on his way to pick up his children from school. His wife texted him to warn him of a person who was shooting in the area.

Witness and Follow

Simpson was carjacking a woman, whom he shot at according to the PGPD report, stealing her Toyota at Kenilworth Avenue and Good Luck Road in Riverdale. As he was driving, Inzeo witnessed the carjacking, though he didn't see or hear shots. "I saw the lady being carjacked," Inzeo told the News Review, and she reminded him of his mother, who lives nearby. "I didn't know much of the before facts, that there were other incidents," said Inzeo. "I didn't think I was going to chase him." However, that's what Inzeo did, following the man and relaying his location and direction to his wife, who transmitted the suspect's location in real time to officers and partner law enforcement agencies across the county.

When Simpson reached Dora Kennedy French Immersion (DKFI) School on Edmonston Road in Greenbelt he attempted but failed to carjack a Honda in the 9000 block of Edmonston Road. Then he turned his attention to Inzeo and tried to carjack him. "We were close enough to have a conversation," Inzeo told the News Review. "He said, 'Come here; give me your car!' I shouted, 'No!'... or maybe something stronger," recalls Inzeo. Simpson then fired at Inzeo, who ducked. Then Inzeo drove his car onto the grass. "My intention was to stop the threat," said Inzeo, who turned his car around in the grass and headed back in the direction of Simpson. At that point armed Park Police were arriving on the scene and Inzeo yelled to them, "That's the guy! That's the guy!" Simpson turned his rifle on the three Park Police officers but it's believed he was out of bullets and he dropped it. Inzeo said he and the Park Police officers ran toward Simpson and apprehended him.

He Couldn't Get Away

"I know they say it's heroic," said Inzeo about his pursuit, "but I just felt like he couldn't get away." Which is what he told his chief when he asked why he did what he did. "I couldn't let him go. I couldn't let him get away with it." Inzeo said he later learned the two rounds fired at him were the final rounds in the AR-15 style rifle that Simpson had been using, but that he had another weapon with him. So, it was a good thing he didn't get any further, reflected Inzeo, who said it seemed like Simpson may have been trying to shoot as many people as possible.

As he was in pursuit, Inzeo said he was thinking how it could end and hoping his wife would be there or would have been able to send backup for him. "And she came through," he said.

In all, the chase was only a few minutes long for him, beginning at Kenilworth and Good Luck, to where Simpson did a u-turn, driving the wrong way back up the 495 ramp, and turning into Edmonston Road, where DKFI is located. Inzeo's chase lasted only a few miles to DKFI, which he said he initially reported

Simpson, 68, Was Serving Life For Beltsville Murder; Released 2023

by Anna Bedford-Dillow

Larry James Simpson, the 68-year-old man facing 66 charges, including 16 counts of attempted murder for his armed crime spree in the area on Friday, May 15 (see article on page 1), had already been sentenced to life plus 40 years for a Beltsville murder, attempted murder and attempted rape and robbery.

1983 Murder

Maryland court records reviewed by the News Review show that in 1987 Simpson was convicted of first-degree murder, three counts of robbery with a dangerous weapon and one count of assault with attempt to murder, rape and rob. These charges stemmed from a break-in at a Radio Shack store in Beltsville in 1983, when Simpson was 25. Simpson's arrest came four years after the Beltsville killing, when Simpson had been identified with the help of another man whose fingerprints were found at the electronics store after the killing. By 1987, Simpson was already serving a sentence of 10 to 30 years for robbery at a maximum-security facility in Virginia and had to be extradited to Prince George's County to face the charges, according to reporting from the Washington Post that year. The man who was killed in the robbery was 21-year-old store employee John Allister Parker. Simpson was subsequently sentenced to life in prison.

Attempted Escape

Following his conviction in 1987, Maryland court records show Simpson attempted to escape from the Prince George's County Detention Center. The Washington Post reported that at night, four inmates scaled a 12-foot brick wall in the outdoor recreation yard, pried open loose metal fencing above it and went through the eight-foot chain-link fence on top. They then fled to further perimeter fences. Three, including Simpson, were quickly recaptured inside the grounds but the fourth escaped and was apprehended almost 24 hours later, walking north along Ritchie-Marlboro Road near Brown Road, according to the Washington Post.

Appeals and Release

Court records show Simpson had post-conviction hearings in 1989, 1997, 1998 and in 2022 he filed a motion requesting drug and alcohol evaluation, which was granted and he was transferred to the Department of Health. In October 2023 he was released; his life-plus-40-years sentence was modified to all but 35 years, 5 months and 1 week suspended.

Simpson is now being held without bond and will appear in court in June.

as Greenbelt Middle because that's what the school was when he himself attended it.

Schools Lock Down

Several area schools near the various incidents were placed on a lockdown, which Prince George's County Public Schools initially reported to be: Beacon Heights Elementary School, Berwyn Heights Elementary School, Paint Branch Elementary School, Greenbelt Middle School, Greenbelt Elementary School, Bladensburg High School and Eleanor Roosevelt High School. Later the lockdown was lifted for all but Greenbelt Middle and DKFI (which was on lockdown but not included in the PGCPD announcement). Neighboring Springhill Lake Elementary, which dismisses students at 1:40 p.m. each afternoon, was not in session and not placed on lockdown.

During dismissal, which is 4:10 p.m. for DKFI and Greenbelt Middle, numerous officers, including Greenbelt police, were on the scene, Edmonston Road remained closed, and DKFI students were moved to the middle school to be released to parents from that school building, in the direction of Franklin Park rather than Edmonston. Though delayed, buses were able to pick up students from both schools.

Off-duty Role

Several people have asked Inzeo why he wasn't carrying a gun with him, he says. After two decades as an officer, even his children think of him as "Officer Inzeo" he says, and so he's been trying to leave more of that behind as he focuses on being "dad." Inzeo will celebrate his 20-year anniversary with Prince George's County Police Department in July. His wife has been an officer for 19 years.

"It worked out," says Inzeo. "It was good teamwork."

Speaking after Simpson's apprehension, PGPD Chief George Nader called the off-duty officer's efforts vital and brave. Though he didn't name the officer, Inzeo has since identified himself as the officer. "The bravery to follow someone that's armed with an AR-15 rifle that you know has already shot at people and to continue to follow him ... and he even after [Inzeo] was shot at - he was unarmed but still understood the magnitude of this incident and the threat to the community - still engaged with the apprehension with the United States Park Police. I've not seen bravery like that in my 33 years of service," said Nader.

Simpson in Custody

Simpson was transported to the hospital for treatment of injuries that police believed occurred during the car crash in Riverdale, when his vehicle overturned. He has since been released from the hospital and is in the custody of the Department of Corrections. He is currently charged with 66 offenses, including 16 counts of attempted first-degree murder, 16 counts of attempted second-degree murder and related charges, and more charges may be pending. Simpson also has a significant criminal history, including a 1983 Beltsville murder (see story above).

Detectives would like to speak to witnesses with information relevant to this case as well as hear from any additional victims. Anyone who has information and would like to speak to a Gun Crimes Unit detective, call 301-772-8960.

What's in Our Lake? Turtles!

by Joseph Ralbovsky

Who among us has walked the perimeter of our beloved Greenbelt Lake and not wondered, "What's in the Lake?" Its serene waters beckon imaginations toward wonderment.

This article provides a cold-blooded fact-driven response: In our lake are turtles.

I recently sat down with Greenbelt's Environmental Coordinator Kevin Carpenter-Driscoll to discuss this reality and educate News Review readers about this elusive, sometimes fearsome reptile.

At Least Four Species

Carpenter-Driscoll estimated, "Our lake has approximately one jillion turtles, of at least four species."

Red-eared sliders may be identified via a distinctive red patch on the side of the head. These are an invasive but naturalized species from the Mississippi region and may grow quite large compared to our native aquatic turtles, often outcompeting them for resources.

Painted turtles are smaller than the red-eared sliders and may be distinguished by yellow spot markings on the top of the head.

Common snapping turtles, the largest turtles in the lake, are capable of living more than 100 years.

Musk turtles are tiny but can release a foul smell when feeling threatened.

A Deep Dive

Carpenter-Driscoll continued on with more and more information until we were positively swimming in facts. For instance, some Maryland turtles - which tend to lay eggs between May and June, to hatch between August and October - produce offspring whose sex is determined by the egg's incubation temperature (hotter conditions producing more females and cooler ones producing more males.)

But perhaps the most crucial facts Carpenter-Driscoll had for Greenbelters are these:

Firstly: Do not feed the turtles, as this may degrade their health by causing artificial dependency or through disrupting their normal diet, which consists of varied aquatic plants, insects, fish and other small aquatic delights.

Secondly: Turtles may be very long lived - up to 40 years for some species (or more for snappers). Obtaining or cohabiting with turtles may mean committing to a lengthy relationship. Anyone thinking of getting one as a pet should take this into consideration.

Carpenter-Driscoll works alongside the city's other public servants to safeguard Greenbelt's residents - human and animal.

If you find yourself lucky enough to be traipsing along a footpath, or staring out glassy-eyed at Greenbelt Lake's well-loved waters, know this: there're turtles in there.

Turtles enjoy the lake on May 17.
